"We right on shook hands and great rejoicing, and after pistol salutes from rifles, Emin Pacha himself walked into my encampment, led by Captain Casati and Mr. Jephson and one of the Pasha's officers. I shook hands with all and asked [illegible] Emin Pacha soon one rather [illegible] eight figures were [illegible] glasses arrested my attention on saying in excellent English:—'Now you're a pleasant [illegible] Stanley, really do not know how to express my thanks to you.'

"Ah, you are Emin Pacha. Do not mention thanks, but come in and sit down. It is as dark out here we cannot see one another.'

"At the door of the tent we sat on a wax candle threw light upon the scene. I expected to see a quite thin, military looking figure in faded Egyptian uniform. But instead of it I saw a small, spare figure, in a well kept coat and a clean suit of [illegible] cotton drilling, well ironed and of perfect fit. A dark grizzled beard bordered a face of a Magyar cast, though a pair of spectacles lent it some what an Italian or Spanish appearance. There was not a trace on it of ill health or anxiety; it rather indicated a good condition of body and perfect mind."

A Bank Accountant Arrested.

Woodstock, N.B., July 20.—The arrest of Saunders, accountant of the branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia here, for larceny of $1,000 of bank funds is causing a great amount of talk. Saunders left the west on the bank at 7 Friday morning, having in his keeping that was to be sent to the express, which leaves here at 8:30. When the vault was knocked down and became unsecured. He did not see the assistant, but back being towards the entrance.

Testimonial Advised to Resist.

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,708,812 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $318,204, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,864,376	3.07
Confederation	17,574,828	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,065,837	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,817	10 36
North American	8,470,220	10.68
Temperance and General	2,984,972	17 84
Citizens	2,097,956	29.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,723,100	30.12
London Life	1,844,285	20.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent."

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

St. John's Organ Recital.

On Thursday evening next Dr. Davies will favor the public of Peterborough with another of his popular organ recitals, appreciation of which, we trust, will be evidenced by a large attendance of our music-loving townsfolk. The programme contains several gems of classical music being selected from the works of Beethoven, Handel, Rink, Mendelssohn and other composers of the highest order. The recital will commence at eight o'clock. 2d17

Grand Society Social.

A social under the auspices of the St. Vincent de Paul Society and Ladies' Sewing Society of St. Peter's Cathedral congregation, will be held in St. Joseph's Hospital grounds Thursday evening, July 24th. Music by the Fire Brigade Band. Abundant refreshments. Doucet's orchestra for dancing. Grounds illuminated by electric light. Be sure to go. 1d

Cricket and Baseball.

The baseball club was to have visited Lindsay to-day, but could not get a team together.

The cricket club is contemplating a trip to Kingston and Napanee on the 24th and 25th. If they go they will leave Peterborough Wednesday night, play in Kingston Thursday and in Napanee Friday.

A match will be played to-morrow, the Manitoba team against the remainder of the club.

He Sobered Up.

"Is this a good place to get sobered up," was the question with which a drunken stranger introduced himself at the police station Saturday night. "First rate," replied the Chief. "Well, I want to sober up," the man said, and he was invited into one of the cells. About half past nine o'clock he wakened up, complained that his back was nearly broke from sleeping on the boards, and asked to be let out. He went home to his wife quite sober.

Disturbed the Meeting.

The Chief of Police received Monday a letter from Mr. G. B. Sproule, who wrote "in behalf of the Christians gathered together in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, in the Gospel Hall," complaining that the Salvation Army interrupted their services by holding meeting on the corner of George and Simcoe streets Sunday. Mr. Sproule wrote that he had appealed again and again to the Army, but now he sought the protection of police against "the dear misguided people." Chief Rorzel spoke to the Captain of the Army, who expressed regret that they had given annoyance and had promised to give no further trouble. It was the first time he had heard of the matter, he said.

Mortuary Statistics.

The mortuary statistics for June show an extraordinary rate of mortality prevalent in Montreal, the official record placing the number of deaths at 31.6 per thousand. The total number of deaths was 664, of which 466 were children under 5 years of age. Peterborough's, on the contrary, is exceptionally low—the smallest on the list. Toronto's rate per thousand was 10. Ottawa's rate was 16.8, while her neighbour across the river, Hull, reached the high figure of 27.1. Hamilton's rate was 17.7, London 7, Winnipeg 19 3, Kingston 10 9, Brantford 7.5, Belleville 12.1, St. Thomas 9.4, Guelph 9 5, Windsor 10 9, Peterborough 4 3, Brockville 13 5, Woodstock 4.5, Chatham 7, Galt 12 3.

Willow and Wicket.

A cricket match took place at Millbrook on Saturday, between Millbrook and Omemee, resulting in favour of the latter team by three wickets. For the victors Anderson played well for his score of 18, and H. M. Wood, for the home team, for 24 and 10. Score:—Millbrook, 43 and 34; Omemee, 34 and 44 for eight wickets.

County Crop Prospects.

A brief synopsis of the crop prospects in Peterborough county will be of interest to the community in general. Fall wheat is a light crop in some sections and heavy in others, but all of good quality. Spring wheat is looking splendidly and filling out well. There is a little weevil. Barley is not an extra good crop on heavy damp land but splendid on dry ground. Oats are not promising, and will probably be less than average. Peas look magnificent and will go over the average. Hay is an extraordinarily good growth. Small fruits have been a failure but larger ones average. Roots are looking well. On the whole there is promise of a good harvest. Hay, wheat and barley (the latter with the exception of heavy lands), the three staple crops, will be a good yield.

Erin Cottage "Settlement."

The high, dry, breezy, healthy, and romantically situated "Erin Cottage" property since it has passed into the hands of Mr. W. Fitzgerald has improved rapidly. Three new streets have been opened out and two of them improved at his own expense, and now that there are several residents on the property and more to follow as soon as the new houses, now in course of erection, are completed. It seems to be the duty of the town to construct the necessary sidewalks and grade Cedar street on the south side of this plot. As before stated, there are now five houses on this plot, one of which is rapidly rising under the skilful guiding of Mr. J. J. Hastley. All the houses are of good quality of brick, well built and tastefully finished, including a neat rough cast residence on the eastern part, built for Mr. W. Henry, plasterer. There is a considerable number of excellent building lots on this property to dispose of, and these present a splendid chance to secure a home. Mr. Fitzgerald will sell the lots and co-operate with the buyer in the erection of a house, both on the most favourable terms. On the new streets trees have been planted, and these, with the fine growth of aged trees, make the place a most desirable one for a residence. The excellent drainage existing means perfect cellars. The spot is a healthy one, for those living there have vastly improved in health since they went there. Those desirous of a caring a beautiful home in a beautiful locality, should turn their attention at once to the "Erin Cottage" property.

A Home for the Homeless.

Dr. Barnardo's Great Work—He Brings Money, as Well as Children, to This Country—What the People of Peterborough and the County Might Do.

Dr. Barnardo, of London, Eng., the originator of the great philanthropic movement which has been the means of saving hundreds of English boys and girls from lives of infamy and converting them into useful and thrifty men and women, has been at "Hazel Brae" since last Thursday, and deeming that a personal talk with the Doctor might be interesting to readers of the EXAMINER, as well as himself, a reporter called upon him Monday afternoon. After a brief wait—for the Docto: is besieged with callers, and, besides, has a vast amount of business to attend to—Dr. Barnardo entered the cheerful sitting room, and in a brisk, business-like way readily complied with the scribe's request for some info mation concerning the great life-work in which he is engaged.

"I have come over to Canada," he said, "chiefly with a view to the development and extension of our work, principally that part of it in Manitoba, and I am visiting our other branches, of course. I am stopping a week here, and then I go to Toronto, where I have a large home for boys. Both here and at Toronto we have large staffs of help — at Peterborough, of women and at Toronto, of men, whose duty it is to visit the boys and girls after they are placed in homes, and ascertain that they are kindly and properly and sufficiently looked after, get proper education, food and training, that they attend church, and are not ill-treated—in short to keep thoroughly in contact with them as long as they are of an age to need such assistance.

"Our institution in Manitoba is a large one. We have 9,000 acres, a VALUABLE PLANT AND PROPERTY.

I have spent on Manitoba alone nearly $100,000 since beginning the work—and indeed I have spent on the whole work connected with our three homes quite $200,000 of English money. So that we are not impoverishing the country, but rather bringing money into it."

"Do you get much support in Canada?"

"No, very little. We ought to get more. We are serving the country by supplying it with good servants—and you would be surprised at the number of young men and women who have called on me during my present visit. They are all well grown and thoroughly respectable, some of them have been in situations six or seven years with credit, and are still there. Some are married and settled, whom I sent out when only children.

"If any of my children fail in such things as to be hopeless—that is either through immorality or crime or any grave illness of a chronic or incurable character. I send them back to England, as I would not leave a lad or girl in this country over whom I can exercise influence and who have proved themselves to be thoroughly bad or useless. Of course I don't send out any such if I can help it, but none of us are infallible. And many a child who has done excellently well at the time and been well trained, comes out here, makes great promise of usefulness and goodness for the first few years, and just as he or she is reaching maturity falls under the power of some great temptation. But these cases are now in the great minority. The majority have done well indeed."

Are there any changes being made in the local branch?"

"No, none but one already known. Capt. and Mrs. Annesley and Miss Annesley who for some time have actully presided over Hazel Brae, have returned to England, and now Miss Woodgate and Miss Code replace them.

"Will there be another party of girls out very soon?"

"No more this year. We send out more boys than girls."

"Because of a greater demand for the former?"

"No, but because boys are more plentiful, and, besides, girls require a much longer and to give them the necessary character to resist temptation."

MORE CAREFUL TRAINING

"How long is it since your last visit to Peterborough, Doctor?"

"Three years ago I was in Peterborough, and I was greatly impressed with the changes in your rising little town—or, I suppose, I ought not to call it a town now. I believe Peterborough is a city?"

"Not quite, Doctor, but we're big enough if we wanted to be incorporated and included Ashburnham."

"Well, we think Peterborough ought to help us. We have put a large number of girls out around here. For instance, now the roof of Hazel Brae home is rotting over our heads. It won't stand another winter. We are constantly bringing money into this country from England, and I thinks it would be a kind, generous and useful act if the people of Peterborough would repair our roof—for just now we are very poor, indeed, and can ill-afford to spend any money on roofs."

The reporter mentioned the fact that there was among certain classes in Canada a strong feeling against the bringing of Dr. Barnardo's children to this country.

"Who have this feeling?" asked the Doctor "Certainly not those who know the facts. Why, I simply supply the demand. Wait till I tell you. Last June I sent out 140 children, and my agent cabled over for 500, but I could not send them, and he had to return advance money to farmers whose contracts he could not fill. That will show what real weight there is to the argument against us."

After a few more words the reporter rose to leave, and Dr. Barnardo remarked that the people at Hazel Brae were always willing to receive contributions from the public, in the shape of money, food or material. The farmers who had their girls might occasionally remember the Home with a sheep or beef, or vegetables, or fuel—anything in fact that they could use would be very welcome.

Dr. Barnardo remains in town till next Thursday.

Hurrah for Chemong Park!

An Addendum to our Summer Resort Article.

My friends, if your cash are not closed, you must have heard the news,
If not, I will attempt to give them unto you in muse.
Since Sol is so scorching, burning heat has come in with July,
Pack up and off to Chemong Park! 'tis the full hue and cry.
From town the distance is not great; 'tis but six miles away,
The Chemong 'bus drove by friend Scott, runs twice each lawful day.
A pleasant ride, secured from storm, and moderate charge, with care
The honest quarter lands you safe in Chemong's park so fair.
Caretaker Pope, a genial man, is always on the ground
To tell you all about the park and show you all around;
Obliging, friendly, free of speech, not insolent nor tawdry,
He, on the lake, can show the spot where the fish swallowed Jonah.
For picnic parties unexcelled, the charms are all complete.
There love struck pairs in cool dark shades share love and joy so sweet.
If just the stream of love runs smooth, in wedlock they embark;
With joy they will recall the day they spent on Chemong park.
You business men shut up in town, rely on what I say,
For summer homes, a healthier place, you cannot find to day;
The grassy banks, the dark green pines, the grand wide spreading oak,
The sparkling unpolluted spring, clear, gushing from the rock.
Don't dwell in the close, smothering town, with smoke-filled atmosphere,
When comfort, at no small expense, lies at your houses so near.
If you prize health, and health of those whom you love and adore,
With wife and family mount the 'bus and head for Chemong shore.
If your wife bears consumptive seeds, maturing sure but slow,
Before two months with Chemong air in her new lungs will grow;
Her sunken eyes will lustre gain, her cheeks show youths' tint sweet
Her wasted form expand until her dresses will not meet;
Or does she feel dyspepsia's pangs, digestion nearly gone;
In a short time those organs will almost digest a stone.
No calomel, nor yet quinine, far less Peruvian bark—
A safer cure: pure heaven-sent air, that blows o'er Chemong park.
In weak and sickly children soon new life it will instil;
It beats all soothing syrups' power, powders or cooks pill;
Nice shaded play grounds on the banks, where healthful breezes blow;
Plunging and swimming in the lake, like young ducks they will grow.
It gives fresh vigor to the young, recuperates the old,
On health it gives a strengthening power you cannot buy with gold.
One person's name I only give to vindicate my cause,
Mark the result of Chemong air on John Maloney's face.
Its scenes its beauty can't be shown by a poor poet's pen,
Nor half the value it imparts to health of busi ness men
Confined all day—delightful change when daily cares are o'er,
Sit and inhale the balmy breeze upon the Chemong shore.
At sunset how the wind-tossed leaves hang quivering on the oak,
How grand to view the glass-like lake and take your evening smoke
When evening shadows eastward drop night's mantle cool and dark,
How sweet, refreshing is your sleep enjoyed on Chemong Park.

N. B. You members of the Boating Club,
I thought once to give you a rub.
From want of time, not lack of brain,
At present, sirs, I must refrain.
WILLIAM TELFORD, Smith.

No Cheese Sold.

The Market Has the Dumps—A Large Offering But no Sales.

The cheese market is demoralized. Hot weather and a consequent increase of supply over demand is the cause of it. At the board meeting to-day this stringency in the market was apparent. Liverpool quotations were only 41 shillings, and the highest bid was 7½c.

There present a large number of salesmen and Messrs. Warrington, Wrighton, Flavelle, Cluxton, Fitzgerald and Spence, buyers. Liverpool quotations were 41s. The board comprised 3,806 boxes, as follows:—

PETERBOROUGH.

Keene	250	Warminster	228
Shearer	248	N Smith	240
C Smith	155	Cherry Grove	225
Warsaw	120	Westwood	200
Norwood	125	Melrose Abey	50
S Dummer	245	Pine Grove	198
Otonabee Union	60	Maple Leaf	130
Peterborough	100	Myrtle	74
Lakefield	122	Missing Link	140

Total, 2,906.

VICTORIA.

Minden	54	Stanhope	54
Nelson Falls	132	Roaboro	80
Scotch Line	110	Downeyville	150
Lorneville	50	Cambray	50
Mariposa	70	Kirkfield	60
Haliburton	40

Total, 800.

Mr. Warrington bid 7c for the board, Mr. Cluxton advancing an eighth for Peterborough, Mr. Warrington raising to 7¼c for Peterborough board, and Mr. Flavelle offering the same for Victoria. Mr. Cluxton then bid 7½ for selections,—Mr. Warrington offering the same for the Peterborough board and Mr. Flavelle for Victoria. Mr. Cluxton again advanced a quarter of a cent for selections. There being no advance Mr. Cluxton named Keene, Warminster, Missing Link, North Smith, Lakefield and Central Smith None of the factors accepted. Mr. Flavelle's offer of 7½c. for selections from Victoria, including all but Minden, Lorneville, Stanhope and Kirkfield, was also refused.

There being no more offers, the meeting adjourned for a week, the Victoria men being given permission to sell off the board. The board is a little ahead of time at this meeting anyway, and perhaps by next week the market will be better. The next meeting is to be held in the new market building.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The hall of the Y. M. C. A. was crowded on Sunday night to hear an address from Dr. Barnardo, his subject was "Almost Persuaded," Acts xxvi verse 28. It is very gratifying to have such a busy Christian worker as Dr. Barnardo who is so much used and blessed of God in London, England, to address a meeting of the young people of our town. We are sure that God is going to bless his work here, the same as he has elsewhere, and to God be the glory.

On Sunday afternoon, Mr. James. Hannah gave an earnest address to the large audience at our open air service.

At our consecration meeting Mr. Fred Saunders spoke on the subject, "Looking unto Jesus."

Mr. A. Hamilton gave a bright gospel talk on Esau at our Saturday night meeting. There was a fair attendance.

Police Court.

TUESDAY, July 22.

In the police court this morning John Grady was fined $2 and costs—in all $5 80—for allowing his horse to roam at large. Cow cases against P. McNamara and John Gordon, were dismissed. An old man named Bartholomew Fox was arrested early this morning by P. C. McGinty while wandering aimlessly about the streets, and this morning he was charged with vagrancy. On promising to go to work he was liberated. Two young men were charged with immoderate driving on the streets last night. The cases were enlarged till Thursday.

News Nuggets.

—The band plays in the park to-night.

—About 250 persons attended the Foresters' excursion to Sturgeon Point to-day.

—The Chemong stage is a dashing turnout these days with its three-in-hand. The stage business is evidently increasing.

—The Ontario Canoe Company are to-day shipping an extra fine canoe to Mr. Sandford, Hamilton. It is a beauty, and worth about $150.

—Robbins' circus advertising car passed through Peterborough Saturday night on the way to Lindsay—just as the circus will do a month later. Peterborough will not likely have a circus this year.

—Canton Victoria, I.O.O.F., St. Thomas, passed through town last night en route to Kingston. Their car was elaborately decorated. The Chevaliers expected to meet some of the Peterborough Canton at the station.

Equal Rights.

The topic of the day and that which we all want is not only Equal Rights in a political sense of the word, but in many others. Here are people throwing away their hard earned money, with unprincipled houses who do not as much as thank them for it. Why should they do it? Why not call on W.J. Morrow, where you are received courteously, your money placed to a good advantage and you are placed on a solid basis in future for buying cheap groceries. dw

Warsaw.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A PRESENTATION.—On the evening of the 15th ult., at the close of the prayer meeting in Bethel Methodist Church, township of Dummer, ere ging her marriage and departure from this vicinity, a very nice acknowledgment, for services rendered, was made to Miss Lottie White, by the friends who wished her well. The presents were an evidence of how she was appreciated and loved by the people who knew her. Among some nice silver presents was an exceedingly beautiful family Bible, thus showing the good taste and judgment of the ladies who made the selection. The contributors toward these mementos were the members of Bethel church and the friends of the neighbourhood generally. A nicely prepared address was read by Bro. Stewart Payne, and, in behalf of Miss White, was feelingly and suitably responded to by her father, Bro. Jacob White. Miss White had been organist in the church for some time and well and faithfully she did her work As organist, helper in singing and worker in the church she will be greatly missed. However, we are thankful that the Lord is raising up others to take her place. It is well that people are missed in the work of the Lord, when they remove from our midst or are taken to the better home. There are those who leave us whose presence is not missed in the house of the Lord, and in every good work, because they take no part in laboring for the betterment of society, by practically living Christ—thus failing to correct existing evils, and to be as the Lord's disciples are—the salt of the earth, the purifiers of the moral atmosphere. The whole community will join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. George A. Grant, now of Eldorlie township, county of Bruce, Ont., a long life of happiness and usefulness. Shall we live in expectation of a glorious reunion "In the Sweet bye and bye."

HAVE WE NOT PLENTY?

What Need Have Canadians to Steal Yankee Timber?

NEW YORK, July 21.—The Herald's special from St. Paul says that lumber stealing by Canadians along the northern border of Minnesota has become so extensive that the Government has concluded to put a stop to it. A large expedition, headed by four agents, will leave Duluth about August, and will start in a northwesterly direction, its destination being the western portion of Rainy Lake. The four officers of law and the interior department will be instructed to continue their work as far as in their own judgment seems best, and no time is fixed for their return. The expedition was decided on by the heads of the interior and land departments after an examination of the report by a special agent who made a trip along the northern boundary of the state. He reported that on Big and Little Rainy rivers great quantities of logs were being run into the lake and across to the Canadian border. Trees had been cut from government land. Work was being carried on under the direction of Canadian lumber firms, and was performed by Canadian half-breed Frenchmen and by some of the dwellers on this side of the line, who were probably not aware that they were engaged in a fraudulent enterprise. The special agent estimated that in these two rivers there were 75,000,000 feet of logs, and perhaps as much more was being gotten away with at other points along the boundary line. An effort will be made to secure this in the name of the government, and as soon as logs have been found by agents and branded with the government stamp, which the agents take with them, they will be held at all hazards.

PETERBORO BOOMING!

The Manufacturing Industries of this town have never been in a more prosperous condition. They are receiving large orders and so many of them that they have to work overtime to supply the demand.

Notwithstanding the above facts, I have properties of all kinds forced on the market, for various reasons, at prices far below fair value, and I would strongly advise any person contemplating buying a vacant lot, a house and lot, a market garden or a farm to buy Now, and buy from me. It will be money in your pocket to do so. Come in and let me know what you want and where you want it. I will guide you right and sell you cheap property. I have a Grocery Business, a Flour and Feed Store, a Hotel, a Butcher Business, and a well established Real Estate Business, all good openings and good reasons in each case for selling. Do you want to buy any of the above,—if not then I want to sell you a Choice Lot in the Little Lake Cemetery; it belongs to a foreigner.

ALL AGAINST SALVADOR.

COSTA RICA AND NICARAGUA JOIN HANDS.

A Treaty of Alliance Signed With Guatemala Gen. Eyeta's Resignation Demanded—President Barillas Preparing to Meet the Revolution.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 22.—Specials from Guatemala say the ministers of Costa Rica and Nicaragua yesterday signed with Guatemala a treaty of alliance. They demand of Gen. Eyeta in the name of United Central America. First, that he leave the supreme command in San Salvador; second, that a legal regime be established in accordance with the San Salvador constitution as before June 22, the date of the assassination of President Menendez, and third, that general amnesty be granted to all who participated in the revolutionary movement in San Salvador.

Honduras bound herself to this alliance by a previous treaty with Guatemala. Guatemala is daily increasing her forces on the San Salvador frontier. The commanders are ordered to remain on the defensive. One general disobeyed this order and has been subjected to court martial. The report of the defeat of Guatemalan by San Salvadorians is declared to be untrue. It was only a defeat of San Salvador insurgents, it is said.

A special from Chempes, near the Guatemalan frontier, says the revolutionary movement against President Barillas of Guatemala has obtained considerable headway and that Barillas is preparing for it. The representative of the Salvador here has shown to the associated press correspondent telegrams from General Eyeta claiming that the report of a battle sent on Saturday was accurate.

THE WARRING STATES.

Something About the Extent and Trade of the Five Republics.

Of the five Central American republics involved in the pending case the most northerly is Guatemala, which is Mexico's immediate neighbor. Guatemala's area is 46,800 square miles and its population in 1887 was 1,500,000, of whom a third were of European descent and the rest aboriginal or Indian. The internal debt in 1888 was $2,724,115; the external debt $5,300,000, with $1,800,000 arrears of interest, besides a floating debt of unknown amount. The army consists nominally of about 2300 men, with an enrolled militia of 12,000. The leading exports, for 1888, consisting chiefly of coffee and hides, were raised at $6,400,000 and the imports at $5,500,000.

Honduras has an area of 46,000 square miles, with a population in 1887 of 400,000. The bulk of the inhabitants consists of aborigines. The traders and the people fancying descent from Europeans, mainly of Spanish origin, is in the small ports on the Pacific coast and in the town of Santa Rosa. The active army consists of 500 men, with 45,000 militia. The exports of Honduras consist chiefly of cattle, mahogany, hides and India rubber, averaging about $1,600,000 annually, while the imports of cotton goods, silks and hardware reach nearly the same figure. The foreign debt exceeds $7,000,000, most of which was raised professedly to build an interoceanic railroad from Puente Cortez on the Atlantic to the Bay of Fonseca on the Pacific coast.

San Salvador is much smaller in area, embracing only 7,225 square miles, but it had a population of 650,000 in 1886, including whites, mixed and aboriginal. Its silver and minerals are profitably operated. Its principal agricultural products are indigo, coffee, sugar and balsam. Its exports in the year 1885 were worth $3,250,000, and imports $1,450,000. The army numbers 3000 men, with 12,000 militia. Despite pronunciamentos and disturbances it was thriving commercially, keeping its expenditures generally within its revenues. It has two lines of railway and 1,250 miles of telegraph.

Nicaragua covers 49,200 square miles, but its population in 1885 was only 275,817, among whom the percentage of Europeans or their descendants was very small. There are few towns and the principal occupation of the people is the raising of cattle. Commerce is naturally restricted. The imports in 1886 aggregating only $1,500,000 and the exports $1,857,000. The leading exports are coffee and India rubber. Nicaragua has 90 miles of railway in operation and 1500 miles of telegraph. The army consists of 3000 men (500 of whom serve as police), with 9000 militia. The annual revenue is about $2,000,000 and the debt is a moderate one.

Costa Rica boasts an active army of five hundred men and in a war footing can command forty thousand militia, as every able-bodied male over the age of eighteen is bound to serve. The area of the Republic is 23,000 square miles, the population in 1883 182,073. Coffee is the principal product, the crop being about 20,000,000 pounds annually. Bananas also are largely exported. The revenue for the same year was $3,000,000, which was slightly in excess of expenditures. The main part of Costa Rica's trade is with England. The republic has 156 miles of railroad and 320 miles of telegraph.

THE CYCLONE COUNTRY

Seven Persons Killed in a North Dakota Windstorm.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 22. A special to The Tribune from Fargo, N. D., says: A cyclone passed over the northern part of this county at 5 p.m. Seven persons were killed.

DENVER, Col., July 22. A cloudburst has washed the towns up Clear Creek canon, destroying bridges, swept away buildings and left scarcely a vestige of the railroad.

The U. S. Merchant Marine.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The House Committee on Merchant Marine has recommended that the Senate bill to place the American merchant marine engaged in the foreign trade on an equality with that of other nations be passed in place of the bill already reported favorably by the committee of the House, as they are almost identical.

Attempted Suicide at St. Kitts.

ST. CATHARINES, July 22.—Con. O'Brien, a cooper who works in Norris' cooper shop, attempted to commit suicide this forenoon by taking a heavy dose of laudanum. He was pumped out, and may recover.

Conspirators on Trial.

BUENOS AYRES, July 22.—The trial of conspirators against the Government is proceeding. The feeling of alarm is subsiding. The gold premium is 214.

Nova Scotia's Gold Output.

HALIFAX, July 22. Two thousand five hundred and fifty one ounces of gold valued at $48,500 were crushed from 2200 tons of Nova Scotia quartz last month.

SHROUDED IN MYSTERY.

STRANGE ROBBERY OF THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA.

The Accountant Found Lying Unconscious on the Floor Cashier Barron's Murder at Dexter, Me., Recalled How His Slayers Were Brought to Justice.

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 22. The vault was wide open and the accountant, Robert G. Sanders, lay apparently dead on the floor. This was what J. M. Walker, teller of the Bank of Nova Scotia, saw when he entered the building at Woodstock on Saturday morning.

It seemed evident that a robbery had been committed and an alarm was at once sent out. Restoratives were applied to the man, who lay unconscious between the heavy doors of iron, and in a half hour he was able to tell of the daring robbery that has aroused all Woodstock.

"I was instructed," said the young man, "to get some money out of the bank early in the morning and send it away by the express that leaves at 7.48. So I entered the bank at 7½ o'clock and opened the vault. I was standing inside and had just unlocked one of the compartments when I felt a blow on the head and felt myself falling. That is the last I remember. I did not see the assailant, nor did I hear anybody follow me into the bank."

As soon as the accountant's story was heard a thorough investigation was made and it was found that $4000 was taken from the vault. Not a clue of the robbers could be found, and no one living in the vicinity of the bank had seen any one enter the building or depart therefrom.

All Woodstock is mystified and pending a thorough examination Sanders has been placed under arrest. He is a native of Larnubuth, is 30 years of age, and has been employed in the bank for three years.

Sanders was arraigned for trial this afternoon and remanded without hearing until 2 o'clock to-morrow. There are many rumors afloat concerning the burglary. One is that Sanders has a severe wound on his head which he said he received in the vault. Another rumor is that the money stolen has been returned to the bank and that all proceedings will cease.

Detective Power of Halifax, who has been working up the case, has left for his home. Sanders' father arrived at Woodstock this morning, and had a consultation with his son and then with the bank authorities.

The similarity between the assault upon Accountant Sanders and the assassination of Cashier John Wilson Barron of the Dexter, Me., Savings Bank is striking in most of the details. Mr. Barron was murdered on the afternoon of Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, 1878. He had left his home and gone to the bank during the afternoon to do some work on the bank's books which had been accumulating. It was a holiday and he entered the bank building, and unlocked the door to the private office. Before Mr. Barron could enter the room he was struck by a slungshot, and fell to the floor. Towards evening his body was found inside the locked doors of the bank vault, with handcuffs on his wrists, a rope drawn tightly about his throat and his head bruised and scarred.

For ten years the murder of Cashier Barron was a mystery which defied the combined talents of the best detectives of New York and Boston. Gradually the astonishing report was spread by the bank officials that Mr Barron was a defaulter and that he had committed suicide to hide his crime. His faithful widow was socially ostracized and a guilt was actually begun against her to recover the amount of an imaginary deficit.

After ten years of mystery information came into the possession of The New York World which led it to believe that the true clue to Mr. Barron's murderer was in its possession. Three years ago a skilful reporter of The World's staff was detailed upon the case and after six weeks' careful work he arrested David L. Stone and Oliver Cromwell — two notorious criminals. Upon evidence secured by The World reporter both men were convicted of the murder of Cashier Barron and are now serving life sentences in the Maine State prison at Thomaston, Me.

BOLD BANK ROBBERY.

The Union Savings Bank at Quebec Plundered at High Noon.

QUEBEC, July 22. A bold robbery was perpetrated at the Union Savings Bank in the Place d'Armes at noon to-day. A well-dressed individual entered the bank at that hour while Manager Veasey was alone, his assistant being at lunch, presented a card with the name "Rev. M. Moulle" on it, and stated that the clergyman, who was in a vehicle at the door, wished to speak to Mr. Veasey, but was too feeble to come into the bank. Mr Veasey went to the window to speak to the occupant of the buggy, and the thief going behind the counter quietly walked off with Mr. Veasey's private cash box, containing about $100 in money, $4800 of Town of Levis debentures, $1300 of the Quebec Steamship Company debentures, a quantity of private papers, keys, trinkets, etc. The man in the vehicle, who wore a white tie and black clothes, had no business with Mr. Veasey and as soon as the thief came out of the bank he entered the vehicle and the two drove off.

Fight at a Wedding.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 22.—Frank Hailey and Bettie Witmer, Bohemians, were married yesterday at St. Wenceslaus Catholic Church. Last night they received their friends. A fine supper was served and the cup that cheers was passed around. Toward midnight the liquor began to have its effect and soon there was a free fight, in which all the guests took a hand. The groom carved his bride to an upper room, and she clung to him so that he could not return. For over an hour the battle raged until there was little left of the dishes. Nearly every guest was more or less damaged. A policeman finally quelled the disturbance and marched the party to the station house. This morning they paid for their fun.

A Motiveless Murder.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Nicholas Cosulits, an Austrian sailor, this afternoon murdered Joseph Moore, employed at a sailors' boarding house in Hamilton-street. The murder was apparently without motive. The Austrian used a huge sailor's sheath-knife, which he plunged in Moore's left breast, the blade penetrating the lung, and again into his abdomen, ripping it open for six inches.

Conspirators on Trial.

BUENOS AYRES, July 22.—The trial of conspirators against the Government is proceeding. The feeling of alarm is subsiding. The gold premium is 214.

Nova Scotia's Gold Output.

HALIFAX, July 22. Two thousand five hundred and fifty one ounces of gold valued at $48,500 were crushed from 2200 tons of Nova Scotia quartz last month.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

LARGE EXPORTS OF CANADIAN CATTLE FOR SCOTLAND.

The Dominion Marksmen's Scores at Bisley—French Lawmakers Opposed to Woman Suffrage—Floods in China—Baron Wissman's Illness.

LONDON, July 22.—Large cargoes of Canadian cattle are arriving in Scotland, and a still greater influx is expected next month, charters having been taken for the bringing of several thousands during August.

It May Be a Murder.

BERLIN, July 22.—A wealthy retired merchant named Max Haucke, 45 years of age, dwelling at No. 18 Leibnitz-strasse, Charlottenburg, died suddenly ten days after his young and pretty wife had induced two Samoan natives to desert a circus and had brought them into Haucke's house, where she treated them as equals, dressed them like gentlemen and took them out driving, to the great scandal of the neighborhood. Haucke was a wealthy man, and said to be worth ten million of marks. The police stopped the funeral and held the body for an autopsy. Cunningham, the manager of the circus, has sued the estate for 100,000 marks damages for the loss of his savages.

The Peace Conference.

LONDON, July 22.—The Parliamentary conference on international arbitration was opened to-day. Lord Herschell presided. The Earl of Aberdeen offered a motion declaring: "The conference hails the concurrent resolution of both houses of the American Congress as a fitting reply to the address from 234 members of the British House of Commons requesting President Harrison to negotiate with the powers for the purpose of concluding treaties of arbitration and congratulates the autonomous states of America which in pan-American congress agreed to a treaty providing for arbitration, which now awaits ratification." The motion was carried, as was also a resolution rejoicing in the efforts to conclude a treaty of arbitration between France and America.

The Persecuted Armenians.

LONDON, July 22.—A despatch from Tiflis to The Daily News says the Armenian Bishop of Erzeroum was among those killed in the riot June 20 and his death has aroused the Armenians to the highest pitch of excitement. The whole country is in a state of anarchy. Business is at a standstill. Traveling is impracticable. Half-starved Turkish soldiers and Kurds, under the pretence of maintaining order, patrol the country plundering wherever they go. The Persian consul at Erzeroum offers the persecuted Armenians an asylum in Persia.

Canadian Scores at Bisley.

LONDON, July 22.—Sergeant Bates' score at Bisley was 278. The following scores were made by Canadians in the contest for the Queen's Prize: Lieut. Smith 258, Capt. Fishop 256, Quartermaster Ogg 249, Sergeant Hall 248.

French Legislation.

PARIS, July 22.—The Chamber of Deputies has decided to discuss the sugar tax measure Thursday. M. Charmis having stated that a further delay would involve a deficit of 20,000,000 francs.

The Chamber has rejected M. Gastes' motion in favor of woman suffrage.

The Lion and the Lamb.

BERLIN, July 22.—A French commodore was allowed to inspect the forts at Kiel to-day. He was cordially received by the Germans.

Recruits For the Congo State.

CAIRO, July 22.—Belgium is recruiting hundreds of Soudanese natives for the Congo State.

Russia's Protection Invited.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 22.—Advices from Erzeroum are that 575 Armenians, inhabitants of the village of Arzep, have petitioned the Russian Metropolitan at Erzan for admission to the Greek Church to be accompanied by protection of the Russian consulate. The Turkish authorities are vigilantly on the outlook to suppress all similar petitions from other districts.

Baron Wissmann Retired.

BERLIN, July 22.—Baron Wissmann has been placed on the retired list. His health has become affected from rheumatism.

Floods in China.

SHANGHAI, July 22.—The floods in the Hoang Ho have destroyed the embankment at Lunwaumiao. Shang-Tung is inundated. The Peiho is also rising. The waters cover the country as far as the walls of Pekin.

France's War Minister Ill.

PARIS, July 22.—M. de Freycinet, minister of war, was seized with sudden illness last evening after he had been speaking for some time in the Chamber of Deputies. He is suffering from over-straining, the result of working hard when he was still enfeebled by the effects of influenza.

An Injudicious Pamphleteer.

STUTTGART, July 22.—Captain Killer of the German army has been deprived of his rank and uniform for issuing a pamphlet aspersing the military forces of the empire.

A SPOONFUL OF ARSENIC.

Ends the Domestic and Financial Troubles of a Woodstock Man.

WOODSTOCK, July 22.—John Robertshaw a well known citizen of Woodstock, about 10 o'clock last night swallowed a spoonful of arsenic with the intention of ending his life. Robertshaw died this evening. Domestic, unhappiness and financial difficulties are said to be the cause of the deed.

Drowned in Buttermilk.

WILLIAMSBURG, July 22.—A little son of Charles Keeley, township of Canboro, was drowned in a firkin of buttermilk one day last week. The child was toddling around, and by some means fell into the firkin head-first. The parents were in another part of the house at the time, and on going to see where the child was the little fellow was found as above described.

OTTAWA, July 21.—Joseph Cantwell, aged 11, was drowned last evening while bathing with several companions near the Chaudiere Falls.

The River Gives Up Its Dead.

UTICA, July 22.—The bodies of the victims of the sunken yacht Catharine in the St. Lawrence River at Alexandria Bay, five in number, have been recovered by Diver Woods except that of Engineer Senecal.

Ontario County Crops.

WHITBY, July 22.—The crop prospects in the southern townships of Ontario county are not at all bright. Excessive rains have damaged peas and barley. Hay is now practically all housed, is of the finest quality and is the most abundant yield for years.

A FIERY DEATH.

Eight Persons Lose Their Lives in a Cincinnati Blaze.

CINCINNATI, July 22.—In a tenement house fire here to-night eight people were burnt to death.

NEW YORK, July 22.—This morning a fire broke out in a tenement in Third-avenue. Mrs. John Mackie, a paralytic on the fifth floor, was unable to move and was suffocated.

Losses Caused by Flames.

SIMCOE, July 22.—Fire broke out this morning about 1½ in the kitchen part of Rev. T. H. Carey's residence. The engines were out promptly, but as the house was some distance from the water the fire got a big start. Very little of the household stuff was saved. The property was partially insured. The origin of the fire is not known.

GRAVENHURST, July 22.—Dunn's skating rink was destroyed by fire about 1 o'clock this morning. The flames spread to an adjoining building known as the old planing mill and a wooden storehouse. These were also totally consumed. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

OTTAWA, July 22.—Ald. John Heney's tug Resolute took fire at her moorings, at the foot of the Rideau Canal locks, about 12½ this morning. The tug burned to the water

NED HANLAN AGAIN BEATEN.

Gaudaur's Four the Victors At the Duluth Regatta.

DULUTH, July 22.—The amateur four-oar d race, which was declared off yesterday by the fouling of the Larline and Duluth crews, was won by the Minnesotas in 10.30, Duluth following in 10.35 and the St. Pauls 3. The Winnipegs were out of the race from the start. The course was very rough and the wind strong.

All the races this afternoon took place in very rough water. The first event was the senior double sculls. Minnesotas, Larlines, Winnipegs, Cedar Rapids and Catlins started. The last two were the first to get away, but gave place to the Winnipegs, who pulled a magnificent stroke at ¼ mile. The Winnipegs were in the lead with Minnesotas and Larlines close behind. The Minnesotas crossed at finish a length ahead of the Larlines, the Larlines being 3 lengths ahead of the Winnipegs, the Winnipegs 3 lengths ahead of the Catlins, and the latter half a length ahead of Cedar Rapids. Time 10.53½.

The senior singles had but two starters, Corbett and Pearson, who struck the water about the same time at start. Corbett maintained the lead from the beginning, Pearson made a magnificent spurt on the last quarter, but Corbett beat him easily about 2½ lengths. Time 12.30.

The great four-oared professional race, on which betting and pool selling has been lively for the past few days, was the last event. There were five crews entered as follows: Hanlan, stroke, Teemer, Hosmer and Wise; Ross, Harry Vail, J. A. Kennedy and D. E. Murphy; The West Ends of Buffalo; McKay stroke, Hamm, Gaudaur and Tea Eyck and the Eries of Buffalo. After the first half of the down stretch, Hanlan and Gaudaur's crews were the only ones really in the race. The Erie caught the water first, but the Hanlan crew soon forged ahead, followed closely by the Gaudaur crew. There never was seen a more exciting struggle than between these two. It was a race for blood, and both crews were straining every nerve to win. They neared the turning buoys almost at the same time, but Hanlan's turned first and pulled away on the home stretch with a stroke which left the Gaudaur crew behind a couple of lengths. The latter were only reserving their strength, and when the ½ mile buoy was reached the Gaudaurs spurted and recovered the distance between them and Hanlan. Then came the tooth and nail pull. Every muscle was brought into play as the Gaudaur crew crept slowly ahead of the Hanlan crew until they reached the finish about a length and a half ahead of Hanlan. Erie came in a length behind, but the Ross crew was several boat lengths behind the Erie. The West Ends gave up in the race one-half way back. The time for the winners who captured the first prize of $1200 was 18.30; for Hanlan's crew 18.25, who took second money, $900.

The four-oared junior race, which was rowed this morning again on account of Larlines' foul, will have to be rowed over once more because St. Pauls fouled the Winnipegs by rounding the latter's buoy with the St. Paul's barred from race.

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

Reeve Jardine's Assailant Committed for Trial—A Brace of Burglaries.

HAMILTON, July 22.—John Mullin, who stabbed ex-Reeve Joseph Jardine of Saltfleet, was to-day committed for trial.

Asa Choate of North Gianford reported to the police this morning that $20 had been stolen from his place. He suspected a farm hand who has disappeared.

Burglars entered a residence in Hess-street near the mountain Sunday night or Monday morning during the absence of the residents and thoroughly ransacked the premises, carrying off a lot of silverware, ladies' jewelry and other valuables. While walking across a lot on the mountain brow last night a couple of gentlemen discovered a valise and basket with a quantity of the stolen property. A lot of the stuff is still missing and detectives have the case in hand.

At a meeting of the Hospital Committee of the city council last evening it was decided to appoint Dr. Olmstead of this city to the position of resident physician of the City Hospital at a salary of $1500 and expenses.

General Manager Hickson of the Grand Trunk has tendered to Mr. Richard Quinn, district freight agent, the position of Canadian representative in England for the Grand Trunk company, with headquarters at Liverpool. It is likely Mr. Quinn will accept the position.

A BRAVE WOMAN.

How a Mother Risked Her Life at Alexandria Bay to Save Her Son.

BROCKVILLE, July 22.—One of the most heroic acts and perhaps one of the narrowest escapes from a double drowning occurred about two miles from Alexandria Bay, up the river. A young son of Jonathan Bolton was fishing from a bluff of rocks near Lachie's point, and while endeavoring to land a fish was thrown into the river some four feet below, where the water is about thirty feet deep. Young Bolton's mother was near by at the time, and seeing her son sink beneath the water, immediately threw herself into the river, intending to rescue her drowning boy. She was also unable to swim and soon sank beneath the water, but when she came to the surface of the water she was holding her son in her arms. Mrs. Bolton made another desperate attempt to keep above the water, but to no avail. William Comstock, an Alexandria Bay oarsman who happened to be in the vicinity, seeing the frantic woman, hastily rowed to the scene of the accident. It was impossible to quiet the woman, although nearly exhausted, but Boatman Comstock nevertheless succeeded in catching the drowning pair and kept them above water while the party in the skiff paddled ashore. Mrs. Bolton is the wife of John Bolton, captain of Hayden's private steamer W. B.

Emancipation Day at Berlin.

BERLIN, July 22.—The annual celebration of the emancipation of the slaves of the West Indies will be held at Berlin this year on July 31 and Aug. 1. Extensive preparations are being made both by the colored people and the citizens to make it a grand success. Among the features is a colored band tournament for which large prizes are offered. Between $500 and $600 is offered alone for athletic sports.

On the second day a monster parade of colored people is to take place, consisting of all the bands, ex-slaves and colored societies. Reduced rates on all railroads have been secured. It is expected there will be fully 10,000 colored people present, besides the large number of white people who attend these celebrations. The colored people have chosen a delightful town in which to hold their celebration, and Berlin is second to none for amusement.

Lost an Ounce of Brain, Yet Lives.

FORT DODGE, Ia., July 22.—Willie Eberhart, a nine-year-old boy living here, is getting along with an ounce less brains than he had a week ago. Willie had his skull caved in by an accident at a mud-crusher a week ago. One side of his head was crushed like an eggshell, leaving the brain protruding in places. Although it was thought the boy could not live an hour the wound was dressed and a portion of the brain weighing an ounce was taken out. The bones were placed back in position and have knitted nicely. To-day the child is out of danger and, the surgeons say, is sure to recover.

The River Route.

WINDSOR, July 22.—George E. Dempsey, a colored man, committed suicide by jumping off the ferry Victoria last evening while the boat was on her trip from Detroit to Windsor. He was 28 years old and leaves a widow and two small children.

STREET "METAL."

Peterborough has the best natural streets possible, yet the question of a suitable and economical paving material for our business streets is one of the greatest importance. The present system of putting gravel, very closely allied to mud, on the streets at one season and removing it at another, is primitive, expensive and unsatisfactory. We cannot bring ourselves to even Macadamize the principal streets, yet we must in the near future face the question, and therefore a reference to a cheap and, with us, abundant paving material will be of interest. A number of American cities have adopted brick as a material for street paving. It is claimed that brick pavements are cheap, and will last from fifteen to twenty years Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha, Topeka and other cities in the western and middle states have put down brick pavements during the present year The streets of Venice, Amsterdam and European cities are paved with brick, and the experience of American cities with brick pavements should be watched with the view of profiting from it. Only recently has it been thought possible to make a brick pavement hard enough to bear heavy traffic. The city of Bloomington, Illinois, paved a portion of a street with brick in 1875, and it has worn so well that, as before stated, brick pavements are becoming the rule in western cities. As now laid this pavement consists of two layers of brick on a firmly rolled foundation of six inches of sand or cinders. For the bottom layer the bricks are laid on the four-inch surface, with the length parallel with the roadway, and with joints "broken." On this layer is spread half an inch of sand, then comes the second tier of bricks, placed on the two-inch surface, and so put as to "break joints" in different rows, and also have each brick resting on three in the lower course. Thus each one exposes a small surface to the weight of teams, and, as it rests on three others, has a large power of resistance. The whole is covered with a heavy dressing of sand, which is thoroughly pressed into the interstices. This gives a smooth surface, yet not too slippery, with joints so tight that they become waterproof.

TIMBER VS. TARIFF.

A well known lumberman informs the Ottawa Free Press that in the Ottawa lumber district there are a thousand men out of work and many of them in destitute circumstances. The policy of high taxation does not stimulate the lumbering industry, on the contrary, owing to tariff restrictions, the lumber business is in a very depressed and limp condition Lumbermen cannot run logs over a tariff wall. Tariff tinkering on both sides of the line between the United States and Canada, is responsible for the deadness of the lumber trade. Canada only supplies, it is estimated, one twenty-fifth of the lumber consumed in the United States. Last year it sent $11,000,000 worth across the line a cable length, and we sent $10,500,000 worth three thousand miles to England. We want a good market for our lumber, for we have abundance to sell. Practically the timber resources of Canada are inexhaustible. Especially if a proper system of culture and preservation is practised to replace the tree growth removed by lumbering operations, especially on lands unfitted by their nature for agricultural operations In the past, 19 000 square miles have been put under license and on these there is still standing ten thousand million feet. There are still 28 000 square miles of virgin timber untouched by the woodman's axe. A very careful estimate places the timber wealth of the province of Ontario alone at sixty thousand million feet, and at the present rate of cutting, even if there were no new growth, there is timber enough to last between seventy-five and a hundred years, and it may be added that it would yield a revenue of about one hundred and thirty million dollars. Therefore with abundance of timber to sell it is evidently to our interest that the fewest possible impediments should be placed in the way of the freest commercial intercourse with our neighbours to the south of us.

THE following table shows the amounts which, instead of those now payable annually by the Dominion Government to the several Provinces for government and legislative and per capita allowances, would be paid as subsidies to the Provinces, under the resolution adopted by the Interprovincial Conferences, and ratified by the several Provincial legislatures :—

	Population.	Subsidies
Ontario	1,923 348	$1,578 662
Quebec	1,359,027	1 307 221
Nova Scotia	440,572	542 457
New Brunswick	321,223	136 946
P. E. Island	103 891	187,112
Manitoba (estimated)	150 000	270 000
British Columbia	66,000	148,000
Total		$4,670,440

This would involve, as the Ottawa Free Press points out, a total addition to the Federal expenditure of about $600,000 a year, or a little more than the saving which might be effected by the repeal of the useless and wholly unnecessary Dominion Franchise Act. The Provincial governments propose that in future the subsidies payable to Provinces from the Dominion treasury shall be increased in accordance with the growth of population in each, and that under no pretext shall any special increase be granted to a particular Province.

Ruskin's Insanity.

How one of the Great Men of the Earth went Mad.

John Ruskin, who is honored in all civilized countries as the greatest writer upon architecture and art, has become insane; or, rather, his insanity has just become known, for as a matter of fact it may be said that Ruskin has been insane for several years.

His insanity may be attributed to one of two things—taint of heredity, of which there is no evidence, or intense work and application. The investigations of Mr. Ruskin's friends show that the overthrow of his reason and the wearing out of his mind directly resulted from the great amount of work that he did.

Death is a deplorable thing. Far more deplorable is the loss of reason. And, yet thousands of people in Canada—probably hundreds in this city—are risking both life and reason without a thought of the terrible results that come from constant work. That headache is the first warning of a brain overworked, that sleepless night admonishes one to work less and rest more. We all know of men and women whose health is shattered simply because they worked too hard or worried so much. "But I can't leave my business," exclaims some one upon whose shoulders rests great responsibility. Ah then, you must use Paine's Celery Compound, that great restorative for the tired body and weary brain. It will build up the wasted tissues, restore vigor and vitality, steady the trembling nerves, clear the clouded brain, gives restful and natural sleep, create appetite, tone up digestion, and make the user feel like a new person. Men and women prominent in business and social circles use it freely, and in the words of Mr. A. L. Auchmuty, 16 Lorne Avenue, Montreal, says: "It prevents the feeling of exhaustion and lassitude consequent upon a busy day."

The "Globe"

Electric Motors to be Used in the New Building.

The day of electricity as a motive power has surely arrived. It is true that steam power or some other natural or artificial force must be brought into play as the actual prime mover, but electricity offers such facilities for the transmission to distant points and the economical subdivision of the power produced by central plants, that it is bound to be the motor of the future. A very bold departure from ordinary practice has been made in the Globe building in Toronto. Owing to the peculiar shape of the premises, being long and narrow, countershafting would have been necessitated to an extraordinary extent. Instead, however, of using shafting, it has been entirely done away with, with the exception of one piece to drive two dynamos of large capacity. The entire machinery on the various floors of the building will be driven direct by electric motors, some seventeen or eighteen in all, obtaining their supply of power from two dynamos in question. This is the first time in Canada that a motor plant has been attempted for continuous using on such an extended scale, and we hope the confidence of the projectors in its adaptability will be justified by its ultimate success.

DEATH FROM HYDROPHOBIA.

A Horse Tears Large Pieces from Its Forelegs.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., July 21.—A horse owned by P. H. Mathewson, a farmer, has died of hydrophobia. In its madness the animal tore its forelegs fearfully with its teeth and had to be bound with chains to prevent its doing injury to people. The horse was bitten a month ago by a strange dog, which was evidently mad and was subsequently killed. The horse did not appear to suffer from the bite until Thursday night.

The animal was one of a valuable pair of bays. They had worked together in a mowing machine all the afternoon. When about to put them up for the night the farmer drove the pair into the barnyard, gave them some water and left them in charge of his wife while he went to the house. He was called back to the horses by his wife. One of them had fallen and was acting strangely. He separated the animals and tied up the affected one in the yard. The animal's eyes had become blood-red. A stringy saliva started from the mouth and it began to bite at everything within reach.

HIS TONGUE CUT OUT

Cowardly and Fiendish Attack on a Negro in Texas.

PARIS, Texas, July 21.—Early Saturday morning, 20 miles southeast of here in Red River county, six or seven men went to the house of Andy Young, a hard-working negro, and called him up. When he came to the door a volley from Winchesters, shotguns and pistols was fired into him. The Winchester balls went through his head in front of his ears and cut his tongue in two. His body, legs and arms were filled with bullets. He was alive at last accounts, and conscious, but it is hardly possible he can live. It is thought he knows who shot him, but his tongue being cut out he cannot tell. A number of shells picked up in the yard may give a clue.

NOTES FROM MONTREAL.

Death of a Customs Inspector—Drowned —A Wronged Girl Set Free.

MONTREAL, July 21.—Thomas Webster, inspector of customs at Brantford, Ont., who was staying with his brother at 408 St. James-street, died suddenly of heart disease last evening. A verdict to that effect was returned by the coroner's jury.

Alphonse Vallee, employed as bookkeeper by Vallee Brothers, St. Catharine-street, was drowned at St. Anne Bout de Lisle yesterday.

The girl Laraide Beauchamp has been released unconditionally from the Longue Pointe Asylum by the court, where she was confined for eight years, it having been proved that she never was insane.

A Free Trip to Europe.

Our Story.

Enduring Love

I do not say my love is only
As kind to me as now you are,
And ere that I may love you wholly,
As once a mortal loved a star
Seen from afar.

I will not plead for more, albeit
I hunger for your merest touch,
I will pour forth no wild complainings,
Nor to importune you with such,
Tool over much.

I will be patient and enduring,
That you may learn at last to know
My love is deeper in its moaning
Than those protesting loud or low.
We cease and go.

I will not ask you to believe me
With only these poor words for sign,
Futurity shall prove unchanging
The deep transcendent strength divine
Of love like mine.

WILFUL CLARA.

A bright baby morning in June in one of your Sussex villages. A handsome Summer to admire, starting by itself with a broad frown in front, and a graveyard walk shadowy, lasting trees, leading from the house to the street.

In the pleasant breakfast room, bright with the morning sunlight, the woodwork should be, nothing paints, whose reflections were the graphic opposite, good prints on white carpet, set three persons round the table.

One, a pleasant faced matron, sat at the head of the table. She was the lady-housekeeper of the handsomest gentleman opposite. Mr. Ralph Dunbar, whose age might be thirty-five, and whose fortune was considerable.

The third party was a pretty girl of perhaps eighteen, with bewitching hazel eyes, clear complexion, and an air altogether saucy, independent bearing. The relation she and the gentleman entertained to each other was that of ward and guardian, and they were both spending the last Summer months in this pleasant country retirement, far from the noisy metropolis, where most of their lives were passed.

These two were at present engaged in a discussion, nominated on the part of the lady, who we shall Clara Russell, quiet and grave on the part of Mr. Dunbar, as he answered her last remark.

"I cannot possibly give my consent to your riding Lightfoot this morning. He is unsuited for a man, much more for you. I should be doing wrong to allow you to endanger your life in such a wreckless manner.

"But I have been used to ride a spirited horse, and Brownie is so slow. I want something to call out my energies this morning. I am sure no lady will object if you will only give your consent."

And she tilted her head to his face, with that half-appealing look with which only a woman can give when she wants her own way.

Her counsel unmoved by her entreaties, however, and as Mr. Dunbar, the head keeper, of the town, attended to some business he came to, returned round to the back and putting his hands on her shoulder said in a still more decided tone,

"Now, Miss Clara, mere, Clara, for I cannot be denied anything you wish, and dear I could yield. You may try Lightfoot some day when I am at leisure to accompany you; but urgent business calls me away this morning. You can ride Brownie, he will be quite safe for you to manage alone."

Clara watched him as he sprang into the phaeton waiting for him at the front door, and gathering up the reins drove rapidly away, and a tender love light came into her eyes for a moment, but it was soon replaced by determination, and she said to herself, "I will ride Light foot this morning! I am going to be thwarted and treated like a child. And when I am a woman now. I love him as though he is to control both wishes, but of course he is the soul of nothing regarding me, which I wish he could, and I'll show him, and I won't give in to him, that is my guardian.

Accordingly, as soon as Mr. Dunbar had disappeared, Clara went round to the stables and ordered Thomas to saddle Lightfoot for her immediately.

The man looked doubtfully at her.

I command you cannot manage him, he is very fiery, and

"I am not another word!" interrupted Clara, stamping her foot impatiently. "I know I can manage him.

"I tell Mr. Dunbar will not like it," ventured Thomas.

"And you I don't care what Mr. Dunbar likes. Anyway he need not ever know."

The man was too much accustomed to her imperious ways to question her further. He went into the stable and brought out the horse which Clara, not to annoy herself more ordered him.

So animal of beauty and strength and size the horse's breed was, and the delicacy of Eleanor would tremble after her. She was much accustomed to riding alone, and knew how the creature on so spirited an animal was an excellent sight to see.

She soon reached a sandy country lane, fresh and beautiful with summer glories when Mr. Dunbar and herself had often ridden their horses head to head, and was riding along rapidly, and exulting in her success in gaining her own point, when suddenly young Peter, the terror of the neighborhood for feats of mischief, and to whom Clara had often given money to run errands for her, suddenly emerged from behind a clump of bushes and darted into the path, exclaiming, "Lor now, Miss Clara, you have mighty good courage to come out on that——"

But he never finished the sentence, for her horse at sight of him, suddenly started and plunged, throwing Clara with violence on a pile of stones near, as on the roadside.

Peter looked on, struck dumb with terror and was not gaining presence of mind enough to think of running for help when, looking along the path, he espied a horseman coming toward him. It was Thomas, who unable to control his fears for Clara's safety had mounted Brownie and rode on after her, keeping a good distance between them.

Meanwhile Ralph Dunbar had very unexpectedly met the gentleman whom he wished to see transacted his business with him on the road, and, at the moment Clara was thrown from her horse, was driving homeward with all speed. His thoughts turned to Clara and the scene of the morning, and by the working of that unaccountable influence of mind over mind, which all admit but none can explain, he suddenly seemed to know that something had happened to her.

He drove more quickly, and reached the lane about the same time as Thomas. The man told them in a few words that Clara had persisted in riding Lightfoot; and together they urged their horses till they reached the spot, where they found their worst fears fulfilled.

Clara lay pale as statute, with face and lips as pale as death, her long, dark lashes sweeping her cheek. Her hat had been knocked off, and had fallen from her head, her hair was partially disarranged, and lay in rich confusion and face in artistic contrast. Without questioning Peter as to the cause of there, they at once proceeded to convey her to consciousness, and brought water from a brook close by, applying it to her face and moistening her lips.

She soon gave a faint gasp, the eyelashes trembled, then were slowly lifted, and those eyes sparkling with mirth but a few moments before, met the earnest gaze of Mr. Dunbar with a guilty, remorseful look, as she remembered that all this had happened by her going contrary to his wishes. She attempted to move, but a sudden cry of pain escaped her lips as she tried to move her right arm, and found it useless: it was broken.

Knew It All.

An old gentleman speaking to a young lady, and commenting upon her freshness and good looks, remarked:

"Ah, my dear, may you long retain them. Yours is a happy period of life. You know nothing yet of the jealousies, the heart burnings, the contentions, the rivalries that beset the pathway of existence."

"Don't I," thought she, interrupted, "I want you to understand that I belong to a church choir."—Drake's Magazine.

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,709,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $216,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage [of Surrender and Lapses.
Canada Life	$48,684,276	3.07
Confederation	17,874,928	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,058,637	10.35
Sun Life	11,870,817	10.36
North American	8,470,620	10 66
Temperance and General	2,994,972	17 84
Citizens	2,097,956	23.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,723,100	30 12
London Life	1,644,286	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent."

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

The Sergeants' Mess.

It is probable that the 57th sergeants' mess will be established. A meeting of the non coms was held last night and estimates of the cost of maintenance for a year placed at $150. It is proposed to rent a suite of rooms in the Cox block for the purpose, and another meeting is to be held Friday night for the purpose of completing arrangements.

The Fall Exhibition

The directors of the Central Exhibition are bestirring themselves and intend to make the coming fall show a success, if hard work will accomplish it. The prize list has been made out, committees struck, and a number of special features procured and others in course of negotiation for. The directors have a general meeting next Saturday, when more definite arrangements will be completed. The fall exhibition will be held September 24th, 25th and 26th.

A Man Wanted.

Chief Rozel has received a letter from the judicial authorities of Ontario county, asking for information, which may be gained through the medium of the press. It seems that on June 17th, the night of the accident at Locust Hill, a man, who said he was proceeding from Saginaw to Peterborough, walked from Locust Hill to Claremont in company with Mr. Alvin Hastings. It is believed that this stranger possesses knowledge which will be of much use in the investigation of the accident. The man's name is not known, and Chief Rozel would be greatly obliged if he called upon him. He may materially advance the cause of justice.

A Valuable Horse Dead.

The imported clydesdale stallion "Cheviot" owned by Mr. S. Staples, of Cavan, died at the Balmoral stables about noon to-day. "Cheviot" under the grooming of Mr. John Ryan has had a most successful season, and every Friday and Saturday put up at the Balmoral. Last Saturday he was taken sick with inflammation and despite the best attendance of Dr. Beatty, the stallion died in great agony to day. "Cheviot" was purchased by Mr. Staples for $2,000, but is valued at more than that amount. Mr. Staples will be sympathized with in his loss. "Cheviot's" death will be a blow not only to Mr. Staples' finances, but to the stock improvement of the district. "Cheviot" was one of the best stallions of his kind in this country. There was no insurance on the horse.

Oddfellows' Grand Encampment.

The annual Grand Encampment, I.O.O.F., met in Kingston Tuesday. There was a large gathering of Oddfellows, including eight Cantons, who made an imposing appearance. Dr. Bell, Grand Master, and Major Moore, commanding the 2nd Regiment, were in attendance from Peterborough. Grand Scribe Dawson, of London, reported a gratifying increase in three fourths of the encampments in the jurisdiction. Three new camps had been started during the year. The present number of members is 8,110. The sum of $2,800 was expended in relief, being one-third of the entire revenue The invested fund of subordinate encampments is $18,305, with a yearly revenue amounting to $9,063. He states, that when the S.D. Encampment met in Kingston 16 years ago there were 25 camps, with 1,000 members, the increase since then being threefold. In concluding he disclaimed any desire to boast of their own special charity, but stated that the order at large presented a record worthy of imitation. Grand Treasurer Reltz's report showed the financial condition of the grand encampment to be flourishing. The receipts during the year were $2,200, and the balance on hand at the end of December $700. Galt was chosen as the next place of meeting. The election of officers resulted in the election of John A. Macdonald, of Arnprior, as grand patriarch; D. H. Moore, Peterborough, grand high priest; Fred Daggett, St Thomas grand senior warden; M. D. Dawson, London, grand scribe; Ed. Bolz, London, grand treasurer; Freeman J. Daniels, Ottawa, grand junior warden; J. T. Hornibrook, Toronto, grand representative.

Foresters' Excursion.

Another Inevitable and Delightful Success—A Pleasant Party—A Smooth Journey—Enjoyment at the Point—Sports and Games.

The Foresters on Tuesday more than sustained the reputation of making a success of everything to which they put their hands. Their annual excursion (to Sturgeon Point) was a most unqualified success in every way. At eight o'clock the excursion train steamed out of the station having on board about 300 excursionists. The run to Lindsay was rapidly made. At the latter place a few joined the party, which the steamer Beaubocage and palace barge Paloma landed at the Point at 11:30. The weather was delightful and the pic-nic seekers enjoyed the water portion of their journey immensely. Dancing was kept up continuously on the journey. Arriving at the beautiful grounds, the company dispersed for dinner, chiefly of the pic-nic variety. The tea, hot water and milk, supplied free by the committee, was highly appreciated, especially the tea, which the elderly ladies, always connoisseurs in such matters, pronounced to be of the very best brew. There is an excellent pavillion on the grounds, which the dancers made industrious use of to the excellent music of the orchestra which attended the excursion. The committee wish to state that the orchestra (Cawthorne's) with R. Russel as director of the dance, gave every satisfaction, both to the committe and the dancing devotees. During the afternoon the following programme of was successfully and smoothly carried out by Messrs. T. Hooper sr., A. Carpenter, C. R., A. McNeil, Jos. Matherall and Fred Robinson.

SPORTS AND GAMES

BOYS' RACE—Thos. Spratt, Lindsay.
GIRLS' RACE—Ellen Madison, Lindsay.
ONE HUNDRED YARDS RACE—Archie Moore, Peterborough.
HOP, STEP AND JUMP—H. Fife, Peterborough.
FORESTERS RACE—T. Hooper, sr.
SINGLE LADIES RACE—Maud Hooper.
BEST LOOKING BABY ON GROUNDS—Mrs. Wm. Simpson, Lindsay.
HIGH JUMP—Archie Moore.
TUG OF WAR—Won by married men's team.
CATCHING GREASY PIG—The greasy pig contest was entered into with great sport, but the pig unfortunately preferring to drown, the game was declared a draw.
LARGEST FAMILY (on grounds)—C. Dredge (12, including grand children).
THROWING HEAVY WEIGHT—Archie Moore.

After five hours and a half of delightful enjoyment on the grounds, the party started for home at 5 o'clock reaching Lindsay at seven and the home station safely and happily at 9 o'clock. Home would have been reached earlier if the excursionists had not run the risk of being left by spending too much time in the town. And that they were not so left was largely due to the obliging disposition of the obliging Conductor, who on this occasion as well as during the whole journey earned the gratitude of the excursionists by his obliging courtesy. Everybody enjoyed the excursion, and the large committee of management deserves the greatest credit for the excellent and satisfactory manner in which they performed their several duties. It is always safe to count on "a good time" when one goes out pleasure seeking with the Foresters of Court Peterborough.

Lakefield.

Resolution of Condolence to a Mason.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

At the last regular meeting of Clementi lodge, No. 313, G.R.C., A.F. & A.M., Lakefield, the following resolution was tendered Mr. T. J. Bird, on hearing of the death of his mother, Mr. K. Urquhart:—

To our brother, Mr. T. J. Bird:

DEAR SIR AND BRO.—It is with deep sympathetic sorrow that we, your brethren of Clementi lodge, No. 313, G.R.C., A.F. & A.M., became aware that the Grand Architect of the Universe had bereft your home of your loving mother, the sharer of your joys and of your sorrows, your guardian through ill and through good, and the sole companion of later years in your home.

Dear brother, this lodge, with which you are connected, desires to extend to you its unbounded sympathy, and to direct your trust to the Grand Geometrician of the Universe, who, having formed all things, doeth all things for good.

Life with us all is fleeting, and to each of us cometh sorrow of parting with our loved ones for the last time on earth. May we, therefore, trust and believe and take consolation from the sure knowledge we have that the Most High in His infinite wisdom has so ordained it that we may, by our lives here on earth, build an inheritance beyond the skies, where parting and sorrow are known no more, where loved ones meet again, never to part, and where happiness is forever established.

Kindly accept, dear Brother Bird, the warm sympathy of Clementi lodge, on whose behalf we subscribe,

WOR. BRO. ROBERT GRAHAM, P.M.
WM. J. CAMPBELL, P.M.
W. H. CARKMENT, P.M.

Peter Lynch, a young man lately employed by Mr. Robt. White, liveryman, Charlotte street, took revenge for his discharge by killing several of Mr. White's ducks which were swimming in the creek yesterday. He was arrested and this morning in lieu of payment of a fine of $5 went to gaol for 2½ days.

John Leclaire and John Kelly, two drunks, were each fined $2.

There is to be a lawn social held on Mr. Andrew Stevenson's lawn, (formerly Mr. Hick's place) on August 1st. Tea to be served at seven. There will be speeches, reading and singing. Admission 10c. Children under 8 years 5 cents.

Provincial Crops.

Reports from different points throughout the Province show that the crops in the greater portion of it promise fairly well. Hay, except in the extreme east, is exceptionally good. Fall wheat has done well in most counties where it is much grown. Spring wheat and barley seem to vary much, but may yield fairly in most places. Oats are badly rusted and peas also seem to suffer from too much dampness. Roots in the west now need rain. Apples are generally reported a failure.

Personal.

Civic Holiday Fixed for August 14th—No Liquor Stores to be Allowed in the New Market Building—Anti-Cholera Precautions—A Long and Busy Meeting.

A subtle odor from the town stables permeated the atmosphere of the council chamber last night, and as each alderman entered he sniffed once or twice, glanced hastily about the room as if to ascertain the source of the perfume, and then gave vent to an expressive "whew." For a long time the stables have been a nuisance. It seems impossible to corral the smell which emanates from the stalls and fills all the offices in the town buildings. They ought certainly to be removed.

Mayor Stevenson occupied the chair at the special meeting of the council. All the councillors present, Messrs. Hartley, Kendry, Langford, Rutherford, Moore, Dawson, A. Hall, E. H. D. Hall, Kelly, Winch, Dawson and Cahill.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Communications were read from Wm. Whitehair and Geo. Robinson, protesting against paying the statute labor tax for which they were assessed—Referred to the Court of Revision.

A petition was presented from nearly a hundred ratepayers, asking that Civic Holiday be fixed for August 12th.—Received.

The Joint Oddfellows's Decoration Day Committee sent in a resolution of thanks to the council for having the street to the Cemetery watered, and declaring a half holiday, and to the business men for observing the same—Received.

The auditors report for 1889 was received.

The Secretary of the School Board sent in the estimates for the year, (which have already been published), asking the sum of $17,509 00 from the town for 1890.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

The following resolution, adopted by the Commissioners of the Town Trust, was communicated to the council for approval by Mr. E. Pearse, Sec.-Treas:—"That the store south of the arcade be rented to Edward Brown at a rental of five hundred dollars per annum, rent payable quarterly, free from taxes for the year 1890; Brown to supply all fixtures, etc."

There was some little discussion on this matter, several councillors protesting against renting the store for the sale of liquor, and pointing out that the town council had already passed a resolution to the effect that none of the stores in the new building were to be let for such purpose. The communication was received for the present and dealt with later.

Mr. Robt. Pope, Street Inspector, applied for an increase of salary.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

The Wm Hamilton Manufacturing Company asked the council to place two branch hydrants in their yards.—Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

A. L. Conte applied for remission of taxes.

A statement was received from the License Commissioners, stating that the amount paid the town was $2400.

THE ALL-NIGHT LIGHTS.

Mr. Adam Hall read the following:—

To the Mayor and Council of the town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Fire, Water and Light Committee beg leave to report, and recommend that the Peterborough Electric Light and Power Company be instructed to place the all-night electric lamps in the following places: One each at the corner of London and Race streets, Hunter and Race, Sheridan and Brock, College and McDonnel, Harvey and London, Water and Charlotte, Water and Simcoe, Water and Hunter, Water and Murray, Water and McDonnel, George and Wolfe, George and Sherbrooke, George and King, George and Charlotte, George and Simcoe, George and Hunter, George and Brock, George and Murray, George and McDonnel, George and London, George and Dublin, George and Edinburgh, George and Antrim, Charlotte and Louis, Simcoe and Lock Works, Hunter and Bellgheem's store, Aylmer and Dublin, Aylmer and London, Aylmer and Murray, Aylmer and Hunter, Aylmer and Simcoe, Aylmer and King, Aylmer and Dalhousie, Smith and Water, Bethune and Charlotte, Bethune and McDonnell, London and Stewart, Brock and Stewart, Simcoe and Stewart.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ADAM HALL,
Chairman.

A VIGOROUS OBJECTION.

Mr KENDRY entered a protest against the report on the ground that the north ward was neglected. The last report was sent back to the committee, he said, for the purpose of conferring with the electric light company and getting an extended service if possible for the northern portion of the town. And yet, he said, the chairman came back with the same report, with the boundaries unextended, with no explanation. Mr. Kendry moved that the report be referred back.

Mr. HALL replied that the manager of the electric light company had refused to extend the all-night service beyond the present limits without extra expense.

Mr. DAVIDSON said the manager had given him to understand the same thing.

Mr. RUTHERFORD did not see any necessity for this extra expense of about $1,200. He did not think an all-night service was required. All good people should be in bed after midnight. It appeared to him a waste of money. He was willing to have half a dozen lamps on George street, but forty was piling it on too strong.

Mr. DAWSON spoke in the same way, and said the taxes would be high enough without it.

Mr. MOORE said he had a conversation with the manager of the Electric Light Company, and was told the Company could not give all-night lights to the north ward without a large expense. They had to either take the Company's terms or do without the all-night lights.

Mr. KENDRY also thought it better to leave this thing over till next year, but if it was to be done he thought the outskirts of the town ought to be considered.

BETTER DISTRIBUTION WANTED.

Mr. CAHILL said the council had already adopted a motion for forty all-night lights and some of the gentlemen who were now speaking against the report had voted for the all-night lights before. But if the lights were to be placed in the outskirts, both north and south, ought to be better considered. There were lights on every corner on George street which he thought might be better distributed.

Mr. HARTLEY supported Mr. Cahill's contention, and said it would be better to pay a little more if necessary and have it well done. But he thought it better to leave the whole thing over.

Mr. RUTHERFORD corrected Mr. Cahill and said the portion of the report referring to the all-night lights was not adopted.

Mr. A HALL said that in order to light the outskirts a separate and new circuit would have to be erected.

Mr. KENDRY claimed that some of the 40 lights could be taken from the centre of the town and placed further north and south. one dynamo would run 40 lights, and it would not make much difference where they were placed. Mr. Kendry grew pretty warm and accused Mr. Hall of trying to make the contract easy for the Electric Light Company. He said no committee meeting had been called, but he thought a hole-and-corner meeting had been held.

The Mayor called Mr. Kendry to order for having spoken too often to the subject.

Mr. LANGFORD said he would vote for light on the principal streets and at railway stations, but not 40 lights.

Mr. E. H. D. HALL said the Company could run the 40 lamps about as cheaply as any lesser number. He was in favor of the all-night service and would have it extended if possible.

Mr. KELLY also advocated the claims of the outskirts for better light.

Mr. Kendry moved, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the report be referred back for consideration by Committee of the whole council.

COMMITTED TO THE NIGHT LIGHTS.

Mr. Cahill pressed his argument that the original report recommending the adoption of the 40 all-night lights had been adopted, and the clerk looked up the minutes and found that Mr. Cahill was right. The report was simply referred back for a re-distribution of the lights.

Mr. CAHILL again urged his claim for a better distribution of the lights, and said that if there was to be an all-night service, by all means make it satisfactory, even if a few hundred dollars more had to be expended.

Mr. Kendry's amendment was then carried.

FIRE LIMIT BY LAW.

Mr. A. Hall presented a by law. fixing the fire-limits of the town. The boundaries were King, Aylmer, McDonnel and the line forming the easterly limit of lots 3 and 4 east of Water street. The limits were the same as fixed by the old by-law with the exception of the western boundary, which was contracted, the block between Aylmer and Bethune streets being left out.

In discussing the by-law, the Mayor and Messrs. Rutherford and Dawson objected to changing the limits. They held that it would be a wrong principle to contract the limits.

Mr. E. H. D. HALL stated that the object of the new by-law was to relieve property-owners on Bethune street from difficulty. Property on Bethune street, since the railway was built along it, is only fit for building warehouses upon, and wooden buildings were most suitable for that purpose.

Mr. A. HALL confirmed these remarks.

Mr. MOORE called attention to the fact that Mayor Stevenson had stated that he would rather have brick warehouses than wooden ones. However that might be, if Bethune street was only fit for such purposes and these should be built of wood, they might make an exception and allow wooden warehouses and elevators to be built and covered with sheet iron.

Mr. CAHILL asked that the southern limit be fixed at Charlotte street for the benefit of parties who might build private houses on the vacant property alongside the creek.

Mr. KELLY also spoke in favor of making concessions to warehouses on Bethune street.

On motion of Mr. Kendry the by-law was referred back to committee of the whole council for reconsideration.

THE WATER FRONT.

Mr. E. H. D. HALL presented a by-law respecting the conveyance of certain lands along the water front in the town of Peterborough. Mr. Hall explained that until the conveyance of the land on the river front was made to the town, the government would not issue the patent therefor, and the work of filling in would be delayed. The Dickson Company would soon begin sawing and it was time the work of filling in should be begun. Mr. Wm. English and the Boating Company, the only parties interested in this property, were willing to grant the conveyance.

The by-law was passed and finally adopted.

TELEGRAPH POLES.

Mr. Moore's by-law regulating the erection and maintenance of telegraph, telephone and electric light poles on the public streets was given a second reading.

There was considerable discussion, several members finding fault with the by-law, and on motion of Mr. Kendry the by-law was referred back to the committee for alteration.

SANITARY PRECAUTIONS.

Mr. Moore introduced another by-law for the purpose of improving the sanitary condition of the town. It was proposed to place a system of sewerage in the town, which would cost about $200,000. A beat for draining only George and Aylmer streets. Thus a large part of the town would be left without sewerage, and as it was reported that cholera was almost certain to invade this country, it would be well to take precautions for the preservation of the health of the community. In Brantford they had no sewerage, but they had a system of closets which they claim gave them no trouble. This by-law provided for the closing up of deep pits in the town and the substitution of dry earth closets. These closets are said to be perfectly healthy, and besides would greatly lessen the cost of scavenging, which alone was a great expense to the people.

Mr. Moore did not press the second reading, and on motion it was referred back to the committee of the whole council for consideration.

THE MARKET STORE.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall moved, seconded by Mr. Hartley,—That in reference to the communication of the Town Trust Commissioners with regard to renting a shop in the new market building to E. Brown, this council beg to call the attention of the commissioners to the fact that they have already, by unanimous resolution, requested the commissioners not to rent any of these shops to any one who intends to deal in the sale of intoxicating liquor; and, as this council understands that Mr. Brown proposes to keep a saloon, they strongly urge on the commissioners not to rent any of the shops in the new market building to Mr. Brown or any other liquor dealer.—Carried.

CIVIC HOLIDAY.

Mr. Langford moved, seconded by Mr. Kendry,—That August 12th be proclaimed civic holiday.

It was brought out in discussion that last year a resolution was passed to the effect that the Thursday nearest the 15th of August should be selected as civic holiday, and it was understood this was to be a general rule. Of course it was not binding, but the majority of the councillors thought it should be followed out.

Mr. Langford urged that as the 12th of August was the only date asked for, it ought in all reason be granted.

Mr. Kelly moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. E. H. D. Hall, that August 14th be Civic Holiday as fixed by the council last year.—Carried.

STREET VENDORS.

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Dawson, that the Chief of Police notify the owner of the peanut stand at the corner of George and Hunter streets to remove from that position to the market square or to some other place to be fixed by the chairman of Streets and Bridges; and that any moneys paid to the town for the privilege be returned to him.—Carried.

MORE MOTIONS.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Winch, that the matter of renting the new market buildings be left entirely with the Commissioners as to the amount of rent to be charged.—Carried.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the Street and Bridge Committee be instructed to put down sidewalks on the market square where required.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Winch, that Nightwatchman Gordon be allowed 30c. per week during the pleasure of the council for looking after the market buildings at night.—Carried.

Mr. Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the Fire, Water and Light Committee be authorized to provide for an all night light in the market arcade.—Carried

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr Dawson, that the Street Inspector be instructed to complete the work begun on Weller street near the corner of Park street so as to properly grade Weller street and find an outlet for the water to the west.—Lost.

The council adjourned at 11.30 p.m.

The Bishop at Norwood.

A Dutiful Address from Rev. Father Conway's Parishioners.

On Sunday, July 20th, His Lordship Bishop O'Connor paid his first official visit to St Paul's Church, Norwood. After high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Conway, the church committee approached the altar, where Mr. Dennis Hurley read the following address to His Lordship:—

To the Rt. Rev. R. A. O'Connor, Bishop of Peterborough:

MY LORD,—We, the residents of this parish, gladly welcome you on this your first official visit to us.

Having heard of your many earnest and zealous works in the Archdiocese of Toronto, where your Lordship laboured so long and so successfully, we hailed with delight the news of your appointment to Peterborough to take charge of this young diocese. Your successful efforts in the past is a guarantee of your success here. Your constant daily work is a proof of this. May its continuance be long.

We scarcely know what to say of ourselves, but we ask your Lordship to judge of us by our works. A little more than two years ago our respected pastor came to take charge of us. We then were little, and had but little. To day we have a residence for our pastor, our church renovated and equipped, a good choir, with a new organ, our cemetery is now in a respectable condition, and, when consecrated by your Lordship, will be a fit resting place for our dead, and last, but not least, our parish owes no man a dollar.

We have to express our gratitude in your presence to our worthy pastor, who spared neither himself nor his pocket in leading us up to the happy and proud position we now hold.

We fervently pray that your Lordship may long be spared to this young diocese. We now ask your blessing.

Signed on behalf of the congregation of St. Paul's Parish, Norwood,

His Lordship in reply expressed great satisfaction at the feeling existing between priest and people, spoke in glowing terms of the work done, commended the congregation for their co-operation with their much revered pastor in the past and encouraged a continuance of the same as an absolute necessity for the successful accomplishment of any undertaking they have to overcome. His Lordship then, accompanied by Rev. Fathers Conway and Scollard, proceeded to the cemetery, a distance of two miles west of the church, whither they were followed by about two hundred vehicles. The ceremonies at the consecration of the cemetery were very impressive. At Vespers his Lordship delivered an excellent sermon taking as his text:—"Unless ye eat of the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood ye shall not have life in ye."

Those of the choir whose singing attracted special attention were Miss Lillie Brennan and Bridget O'Shea. The music furnished by Miss Kelly, the organist, was grand.—[Com.

Consecrating the Cemetery.

The Hastings Star has the following account of the consecration:—

Immediately after high mass in Norwood, His Lordship, Father Conway, and the entire congregation, which was augmented by large numbers from this section, wended their way to the cemetery. The plot to be consecrated was indicated by small wooden crosses placed at intervals along the boundaries, a larger cross being erected in the centre of the plot. On the arms and bases of the crosses, were fixed lighted wax candles. All being in readiness, the Bishop, attired in mitre and cope, attended by a priest on his left carrying the crozier, Father Conway on the right, followed by two surpliced boys, the one bearing a censer, the other with holy water, knelt at the foot of the cross in centre; the Bishop recited the litany of the Saints, the clergy and laity responding. Similar prayers were offered at the cross at the entrance, after which the consecrator and attendants made the rounds of the plot, the Bishop sprinkling on all sides as they went, Father Conway preceding, chanting the prayers for the occasion, the ceremony ending by the Bishop invoking a blessing on the assembly, and prayers for the souls already interred.

THE BEHRING SEA PAPERS

TRANSMITTED TO CONGRESS BY PRESIDENT HARRISON.

Secretary Blaine's Presentation of the United States' Case. Lord Salisbury Exposes the Fallacies in His Argument. Protests, Recriminations and a Warning. Canada Consulted.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The President to-day sent to the House of Representatives, in answer to the resolution introduced by Representative Hitt, the official correspondence between the Government of the United States and the Government of Great Britain touching the seal fisheries of Behring Sea. In his accompanying letter transmitted to the President Secretary Blaine, under date of Bar Harbor, July 19, regrets the delay in transmission which the President directed July 11, and says the correspondence is still in progress. The correspondence includes 30 separate papers, beginning with a letter from Mr. Edwards, first secretary of legation and charge d'affaires after Minister West's recall, dated Aug 24, 1889, and closing with one from Secretary Blaine to Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Minister, dated July 19, 1890. The first letter from Mr. Edwards to Mr. Blaine reads as follows:

BAR HARBOR, Aug. 24, 1889.

SIR,—In accordance with instructions which I have received from Her Majesty's principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, I have the honor to state to you that repeated rumors have of late reached Her Majesty's Government that United States cruisers have stopped, searched and even seized British vessels in Behring Sea outside the three mile limit from the nearest land. Although no official confirmation of these rumors has reached Her Majesty's Government, there appears to be no reason to doubt their authenticity. I am desired by the Marquis of Salisbury to enquire whether the United States Government are in possession of similar information and further to ask that stringent instructions may be sent by the United States Government, at the earliest moment, to their officers with the view to prevent the possibility of such occurrences taking place. In continuation of my instructions I have the honor to remind you that Her Majesty's Government received very clear assurances last year from Mr Bayard, at that time Secretary of State, that pending the discussion of the general questions at issue, no further interference should take place with British vessels in Behring Sea.

In conclusion, the Marquis of Salisbury desires me to say that Sir Julian Pauncefote, Her Majesty's Minister, will be prepared on his return to Washington in the autumn to discuss the whole question, and Her Majesty's Government wish to point out to the United States Government that a settlement cannot but be hindered by any measures of force which may be resorted to by the United States. H. G. EDWARDS.

To this letter Mr. Blaine replied on the same day and at the same place that the same rumors, probably based on truth, have reached the Government of the United States; but that up to date there had been no official communication received on the subject. He added: "It has been and is the earnest desire of the President of the United States to have such an adjustment as shall remove all possible ground of misunderstanding with Her Majesty's Government concerning the existing troubles in the Behring Sea, and the President believes that the responsibility for delay in the adjustment cannot be properly charged to the Government of the United States. In the opinion of the President the points at issue between the two Governments are capable of prompt adjustment on a basis entirely honorable to both."

Sept. 12 last year Mr. Edwards asked when he might expect an answer to the request of his Government made Aug 24 that instructions might be sent to Alaska to prevent the probability of the seizure of British ships in Behring Sea. He says Her Majesty's Government are earnestly awaiting the reply of the United States Government on this subject, as the recent reports of seizures having taken place are causing much excitement in England and Canada.

Mr Blaine, still at Bar Harbor, Sept. 14, replied that he had supposed Her Majesty's Government was satisfied of the President's earnest desire to come to a friendly agreement touching Behring Sea and that the official instruction to Sir Julian Pauncefote the new Minister at Washington, to proceed immediately after his arrival in October to a full discussion of the question removed all necessity for preliminary correspondence touching its merits.

Referring to Mr. Edwards' question he says "A categorical response would have been and still is impracticable, unjust to this Government and misleading to the Government of Her Majesty. It was therefore the judgment of the President that the whole subject would more wisely be remanded to the formal discussion, so near at hand, which Her Majesty's Government has proposed and to which the Government of the United States has cordially assented. It is proper, however, to add that any instructions sent to Behring Sea at the time of your original request upon Aug 24 would have failed to reach those waters before the departure of the vessels of the United States."

Next Mr Edwards left at the Department of State a despatch received by him from the Marquis of Salisbury, in which he recalls that in 1886 and 1887, when the seizures made in Behring Sea were under discussion, the United States Minister had made overtures with respect to the institution of a close time for the seal fisheries to prevent the extirpation of seals in that part of the world. He says that, without admitting the justice of the seizures, his Government was very ready to agree that the subject was one deserving of the gravest attention, and that the Russian Government was disposed to join in the proposed negotiations, but they were suspended for a time in consequence of objections raised by the Dominion of Canada and of doubts thrown on the physical data on which any restrictive legislation must have been based. The Marquis adds:

"Her Majesty's Government are fully sensible of the importance of this question and of the great value which will attach to an international agreement in respect to it. Her Majesty's representative will be furnished with the requisite instructions in case the Secretary of State should be willing to enter upon the discussion."

In another letter to Mr. Edwards, dated Oct. 9 last, the Marquis transmits copies of affidavits bearing on the seizures of the British sealers Black Diamond and Triumph, by the United States revenue cutter Rush. He says further:

"It is apparent from these affidavits that the vessels were seized at a distance far in excess of the limit of maritime jurisdiction which any nation can claim by international law. The cases are similar in this respect to those of the ships Caroline, Onward and Thornton, which were seized by a vessel of the United States outside territorial waters in the summer of 1887. In a despatch to Sir L. West, dated Sept. 10, 1887, which was communicated to Mr. Bayard, I drew the attention of the Government of the United States to the illegality of these proceedings and expressed a hope that due compensation would be awarded to the subjects of Her Majesty who had suffered from them. I have not since that time received from the Government of the United States any intimation of their intentions in this respect or any explanation of the grounds upon which this interference with the British sealers had been authorized. Mr. Bayard did indeed communicate to us unofficially an assurance that no further seizures of this character should take place pending the discussion of the questions involved between the two Governments.

"Her Majesty's Government much regret to find that this understanding has not been carried forward into the present year and that instructions have been issued to cruisers of the United States to seize British vessels fishing for seals in Behring Sea outside the limit of territorial waters. The grounds upon which these violent measures have been taken have not been communicated to Her Majesty's Government and still remain unexplained. But in view of the unexpected renewal of these seizures of which Her Majesty's Government have previously complained, it is my duty to protest against them and to state that in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government they are wholly unjustified by international law."

It appears that Mr. Blaine enquired what authority there was for the above stated assurance of Mr. Bayard, as in a note on Oct. 14 last Mr. Edwards said it was an assurance communicated unofficially to His Lordship by the United States Minister in London, and also by Mr. Bayard to Minister West in April, 1888.

The correspondence between Secretary Blaine and the new British minister began Jan 2 of this year with a very long letter from the Secretary to Sir Julian Pauncefote. The Secretary opened with an acknowledgment of the receipt of the papers bearing on the seizures made by the Rush. He says:

In the opinion of the President the Canadian vessels arrested and detained in Behring Sea were engaged in a pursuit that was in itself contra bonos mores, a pursuit which of necessity involves a serious and permanent injury to the rights of the Government and people of the United States. To establish his ground it is not necessary to argue the question of the extent and nature of the sovereignty of this Government over the waters of Behring Sea, it is not necessary to explain, certainly not to define, the powers and privileges ceded by His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Russia in the treaty by which the Alaskan territory was transferred to the United States.

"The weighty considerations growing out of the acquisition of that territory, with all the rights on land and sea inseparably connected therewith, may be safely left out of view, while the grounds are set forth upon which this Government rests its justification for the action complained of by Her Majesty's Government."

The Secretary then speaks of the value of the seal fisheries, which were controlled by Russia without interference or question until the cession of Alaska to the United States in 1867. This undisturbed possession continued to the United States until 1886, passing whaling vessels abstaining from seal capture. He says this uniform avoidance of all attempts to take fur seal in those waters had been a constant recognition of the rights held and exercised first by Russia and subsequently by this government. It had also been the recognition of a fact, now held beyond denial or doubt, that the taking of seals in the open sea rapidly leads to their extinction.

The Secretary says this is proved not only by expert testimony but by the total destruction of all seal fisheries, except the one in Behring Sea, which the Government of the United States is now striving to preserve not altogether for the use of the American people, but for the use of the world at large. He recites the successful efforts of the United States Government to improve and preserve the fisheries, resulting in the payment of more than $12,000,000 to English laborers for the preparation of the seal skins and the elevation to civilization of the natives of the Alaskan islands. He says:

"This, in brief, was the condition of the Alaska fur seal fisheries down to the year 1886. The precedents, customs and rights had been established and enjoyed either by Russia or the United States for nearly a century. The two nations were the only powers that owned a foot of land on the continents that bordered on the islands included within the Behring waters where the seals resort to breed.

"Into this peaceful and secluded field of labor, whose benefits were so equitably shared by the native Aleuts of the Pribyloff islands, by the United States and by England, certain Canadian vessels in 1886 asserted their right to enter, and by their ruthless course to destroy the fisheries, and with them to destroy also the resulting industries which are so valuable.

"The government of the United States at once proceeded to check this movement which, unchecked, was sure to do great and irreparable harm.

"It was cause of unfeigned surprise to the United States that Her Majesty's Government should immediately interfere to defend and encourage merely to encourage by defending the course of the Canadians in disturbing an industry which had been carefully developed for more than ninety years under the flags of Russia and the United States—developed in such manner as not to interfere with the public rights or the private industries of any people or any person.

"Whence did the ships of Canada derive the right to do in 1886 that which they had refrained from doing for more than 90 years? Upon what ground did Her Majesty's Government defend in the year 1886 a course of conduct in Behring Sea which she had carefully avoided ever since the discovery of that sea? By what reasoning did Her Majesty's Government conclude that an act may be committed with impunity against the rights of the United States which had never been attempted against the same rights when held by the Russian Empire?

"So great has been the injury to the fisheries from the irregular and destructive slaughter of seals in the open waters of Behring Sea by Canadian vessels that, whereas the Government had allowed 100,000 to be taken annually for a series of years, it is now compelled to reduce the number to 60,000. If four years of this violation of natural law and neighbors' rights has reduced the annual slaughter of seal by 40 per cent, it is easy to see how short a period will be required to work the total destruction of the fisheries.

"The ground upon which Her Majesty's Government justifies or at least defends the course of the Canadian vessels rests upon the fact that they are committing these acts of destruction on the high seas, viz.: more than three marine leagues from the shore line. It is doubtful whether Her Majesty's Government would abide by this rule if the attempt were made to interfere with the pearl fisheries of Ceylon, which extend more than 20 miles from the shore line and have been enjoyed by England without molestation ever since their acquisition. So well recognized is the British ownership of those fisheries, regardless of the limit of the three mile line, that Her Majesty's Government feels authorized to sell the pearl fisheries right from year to year to the highest bidder.

"Nor is it creditable that modes of fishing in the Grand Banks altogether practicable but highly destructive would be justified or even permitted by Great Britain on the plea that the vicious acts were committed more than three miles from shore. There are, according to scientific authority, great "colonies" of fish on the Newfoundland bank. These 'colonies' resemble the seals of great populations on land. They remain stationary, having limited range of water in which to live and die. In these great 'colonies' it is, according to expert judgment, comparatively easy to explode dynamite or giant powder in such manner as to kill vast quantities of fish and at the same time destroy countless numbers of eggs.

"Stringent laws have been necessary to prevent the taking of fish by the use of dynamite in many of the rivers and lakes of the United States. The same mode of fishing could readily be adopted with effect on the more shallow parts of the banks; but the destruction of fish in proportion to the catch, says a high authority, might be as great as ten thousand to one. Would Her Majesty's Government think that so wicked an act could not be prevented and its perpetrators punished, simply because it had been committed outside of the three mile line?

"Why are not the two cases parallel? The Canadian vessels are engaged in the taking of fur seal in a manner that destroys the power of reproduction and ensures the extermination of the species. In exterminating the species, an article useful to mankind is totally destroyed in order that temporary and immoral gain may be acquired by a few persons. By the employment of dynamite on the banks it is not probable that the total destruction of fish could be accomplished, but a serious diminution of a valuable food for man might assuredly result.

"Does Her Majesty's Government seriously maintain that the law of nations is powerless to prevent such violation of the common rights of man? Are the supporters of justice in all nations to be declared incompetent to prevent wrongs so odious and so destructive?

"The forcible resistance to which this government is constrained in Behring Sea is, in the President's judgment, demanded not only by the necessity of defending the traditional long established rights of the United States, but also the rights of good government and good morals the world over. In this contention the government of the United States has no occasion and no desire to withdraw or modify the position which it has at any time maintained against the claims of the Imperial Government of Russia. The United States will not withhold from any nation the privileges which it demanded for itself when Alaska was part of the Russian empire. Nor is the Government of the United States disposed to exercise in those possessions any less power or authority than it was willing to concede to the Imperial Government of Russia when its sovereignty extended over them. The President is persuaded that all friendly nations will concede to the United States the same rights and privileges on the lands and in the waters of Alaska which the same friendly nations always conceded to the Empire of Russia."

Sir Julian Pauncefote Feb. 10 informed Mr. Blaine that his Government was willing to adopt the suggestion that the tripartite negotiations suspended in London in 1888 be resumed in Washington.

Mr. Blaine sent the British Minister a pamphlet containing a large mass of evidence given by experienced officers of the United States to demonstrate that the killing of seals in the open sea tends rapidly to exterminate the species. Mr. Blaine also proffered further evidence.

Sir Julian wrote Mr. Blaine that in view of the divergent views held, no solution would satisfy public opinion in Canada or Great Britain without a full enquiry by a mixed commission of experts. He was prepared to recommend to his Government provisional measures to remove apprehension of depletion of the fur seal species pending the commission's report. He cites authorities to show the number of seals is increasing and that the destruction caused by pelagic sealing is insignificant compared with that caused by the seal's natural enemies. He gives affidavits of seal hunters and other papers to show that the destructive nature of the modes of killing seal by spears and firearms has been exaggerated. The Canadian Government estimate the percentage of seals wounded or killed and not recovered at six per cent. The minister, to quiet all apprehensions on this score, proposes these provisional regulations:

1. That pelagic sealing should be prohibited in Behring Sea, the Sea of Okhotsk and the adjoining waters during May and June, and during October, November and December, the "migration periods" of the seal.

2. That all sealing vessels should be prohibited from approaching within 10 miles of the breeding islands.

These regulations should stop the slaughter of female seals with young during the navigation periods and the destruction of female seals by marauders landing on the breeding islands during dense fogs. This regulation if accepted by Her Majesty's Government would certainly manifest a friendly desire on their part to co-operate with your Government and that of Russia in the protection of their rookeries.

The minister encloses the draft of a preliminary convention providing for the appointment of a mixed commission to report on specified questions within two years. The draft contains the above temporary regulations.

The draft adopts the fishery line suggested at the outset by Mr. Blaine. The Minister says the draft contemplates the conclusion of a further convention after the commissioners' report is examined. It also provides for the ultimate settlement by arbitration of differences which the report may fail to adjust. The draft provides that the other powers shall be invited to accede to it.

Lord Salisbury, May 22 last, in a letter to the British Minister, says the negotiations afford strong reason to hope for a satisfactory adjustment and undertakes to reply to Mr. Blaine's arguments. He says:

"It is obvious two questions are involved: first, whether the pursuit and killing of fur seals in certain parts of the open sea is, from the point of view of international morality, an offence contra bonos mores, and, secondly, whether, if such be the case, this fact justifies the seizure on the high seas and subsequent confiscation in time of peace of the private vessels of a friendly nation. That such action is only a justifiable in the case of piracy or in pursuance of special international agreement is a principle universally admitted by jurists and distinctly laid down by President Tyler in his special message to Congress Feb. 27, 1843. Lord Salisbury argues that pursuit of seals in the open sea has never been considered as piracy, and even if the United States should declare it piracy the United States Government could not punish foreign citizens violating such a law outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United States."

He then says that Her Majesty's Government must question whether this pursuit can itself be regarded as contra bonos mores until it has been agreed by international arrangement to forbid it. Fur seals are animals ferae naturae and they have universally been regarded by jurists as res nullius until they are caught.

"It requires something more than a mere declaration that the Government or citizens of the United States or even other countries interested in the seal trade are losers by a certain course of proceeding to render that course immoral." He declares that his Government is ready to consider a remedy if the United States has been injured by the pursuit of fur seals by British vessels on the seas, but says it would be unable on that ground to depart from a principle on which free commerce on the high seas depends.

Says the Marquis: "The negotiations now being carried on at Washington prove the readiness of Her Majesty's Government to consider whether any special international agreement is necessary for the protection of the fur seal industry. In its absence they are unable to admit that the case put forward on behalf of the United States affords any sufficient justification for the forcible action already taken by them against peaceable subjects of Her Majesty engaged in lawful operations on the high seas."

The Marquis declares that, in accord with the views which previous to the present controversy were successfully maintained by the United States, his Government has opposed all claims to exclusive privileges in the non-territorial waters of Behring Sea. The rights it has demanded have been free navigation and fishing in waters which previous to their acquisition of Alaska the United States declared to be free and open to all foreign vessels.

The British Minister, writing to Mr. Blaine, May 23, says that as the Secretary has confirmed the newspaper statements that revenue cutters have been ordered to Behring Sea to seize foreign sealers, a formal protest against such interference with British vessels will be forwarded without delay.

Mr. Blaine on May 29 writes Sir Julian that he is instructed by the President to protest against the course of the British Government in authorizing and protecting vessels which are interfering with American rights in Behring Sea and are doing violence to the rights of the civilized world. The Secretary sketches the history of the negotiations under the previous administration and says that from Nov. 11, 1887 to April 23, 1888, Lord Salisbury had in every form of speech assented to the necessity of a close season for the protection of seals. These assurances were given to the American Minister, to the American charge, to the Russian Ambassador and on more than one occasion to two of them together. The United States had no reason, therefore, to doubt that the whole dispute touching the seal fisheries was practically settled.

Mr. Blaine says that five days after that assurance Lord Salisbury said that neither an act of Parliament to give effect to seal fishery regulations nor an order-in-council to have naval vessels co-operate in the matter could be adopted "until Canada is heard from." Mr. Blaine says this Government cannot but feel that Lord Salisbury would have dealt more frankly if in the beginning he had informed Minister Phelps that no arrangement could be made unless Canada concurred in it and that all negotiation with the British Government was but a loss of time.

Mr. Blaine objects to Sir Julian's provisional arrangement on the ground that the open season selected by the latter would find the islands most crowded with seals, especially females, going forth for food for their young, and that deadly loss would follow. The sealing vessels would respect the 10-mile limit as wolves respect a flock of sheep. He says that the last proposition is in significant contrast with that made by Lord Salisbury in 1888, and remarks that the result with which the United States is expected to be content is that her rights within Behring Sea and on the islands are to be determined by one of Her Majesty's provinces. He says England would rightfully complain if an arrangement between her representative and the representative of the United States were broken off at the wish of California. Therefore the minister's proposition is rejected and negotiations are to be continued.

On June 14 Sir Julian presented his Government's formal protest against the instructions issued to United States revenue cruisers to interfere with the vessels of British subjects engaged in the seal fisheries on the high seas. The protest, says the minister, is instructed: "To declare that Her Britannic Majesty's Government must hold the Government of the United States responsible for the consequences that may ensue from acts which are contrary to the established principles of international law."

The correspondence closes with a letter of Mr. Blaine which would fill 30 newspaper columns, but which is a mere re-statement of the United States' position.

THE ENGLISH SYNDICATE

And the Canadian Cotton Mills. Why the Transfer Was Not Carried Out.

MONTREAL, July 23.—Mr. A. F. Gault, who has just arrived home from England, in speaking of the primary object of his visit to England, the arrangement of a transfer of the Canadian cotton mills to an English syndicate, said they had not been wholly successful. "We did not have all of the Canadian mills with us and we found some difficulty in arranging the scheme; however, things are in such a shape now that the arrangements can be taken up later and carried out. In England, before they invest in enterprises of this kind, they want to be sure that they have a good long record behind them, and unfortunately the records of our mills are not all satisfactory, as no very high profits have been made, and with some none at all. Where profits fall below eight or ten per cent. they do not care to invest." Then he said the time was not opportune. It was the holiday season when people were away, and there was some difficulty in seeing the persons concerned. For the present, therefore, the scheme is in abeyance, but it will likely be taken up in the autumn and, Mr. Gault thought, carried to a successful issue. The joint capital of the proposed syndicate of mills would be at least twelve millions of dollars.

WESTERN MILLERS.

Resolutions Passed by the Meeting of the Association at London.

LONDON, Ont., July 23.—A meeting of the Millers' Western Local Association was held here to-day, and this resolution was passed unanimously:

That this meeting of flour millers for the counties of Middlesex, Elgin, Essex, Kent and Lambton, having discussed the action of the Government in withdrawing the order-in-council making the 1-16 bushel measure a legal standard for testing the quality of grain, but at the same time permitting grain buyers to use the same to inform their own minds of its value, and having been informed by the secretary of the Dominion Millers' Association that the grain inspector in Toronto still intends to continue the small tester in ascertaining the standard of car loads and cargoes of grain in deciding whether such cargoes are number one, two or three grade;

Therefore, resolved, that this meeting of millers will continue to buy by tester, using their small tester to inform their own minds of the value of wheat, both farmers' loads and car lots, and in any dispute between buyer and seller about weight of any contract lots, then a peck or half bushel measure be used so as to legally decide the same.

THURSDAY, JULY 24, 1890.

It is estimated that the census just taken in the United States will show a population of sixty four millions. The census of 1880 gave a population of 50,155,783. This increase is larger than was anticipated.

The Tories of Prince Edward filed a petition against the return of Mr. John A. Sprague, the Reform M.P.P., for that county, but they failed to put up the $1,000 security in time, and so the petition is worthless. Mr. Sprague was first declared defeated by one but got the seat on a recount.

In Ohio there are 300 divisions of the Farmers' Alliance, with a membership of 15,000, and the farmers are organizing thoroughly for political work. It will be interesting to note the effect of the movement upon the Congressional elections and especially upon the election in the district in Ohio now represented by the author of the McKinley Bill.

Sir Adolphe Caron's organ insists that while he has been Minister of Militia the department has been properly managed. The fact is, remarks the Ottawa Free Press, the department is better managed without Sir Adolphe than with him. When here he is only in the way. The war minister is not even a private in the militia force, has probably never worn a uniform of any kind, and knows nothing whatever of military matters. Why does he not claim credit for the good shooting done by Canadian marksmen at Bisley?

When asking Parliament for two millions of public money with which to build the Oxford and New Glasgow railway, Sir Charles Tupper declared that the new road would reduce the distance from Oxford to New Glasgow by rail no less than forty-five miles. Now that the railway has been built, the official returns show that the distance from Oxford to New Glasgow by the new route is only one mile less than via the old Intercolonial route. Thus the taxpayers of Canada have actually paid two millions of dollars for one mile of railway. The Oxford and New Glasgow railway is purely a local road. Any through traffic that passes over it will be diverted from the Intercolonial, another government road. Two millions of dollars of Dominion money have been spent to provide extra railway accommodation for a few towns and villages in Tupperdom. And yet it is contended that the people of Ontario, who have to contribute towards the construction of the roads before referred to, should be content to build their own local railways, and should not ask for any assistance from the federal government.

Consumers Suffer Anyway.

When it is said that the people of Canada pay every year nearly $1,200,000 in duties on cottons, the usual cry of the defenders of the tariff is that people need not buy these cottons unless they like. If they will persist in clothing their bodies in the glories of imported jeans, ginghams, winceys, cotton socks and shirts they must pay for the luxury; the Canadian manufacturer is offering them "our own excellent domestic cottons," and if they turn away from these in scorn, seeking after strange gods in the shape of cotton bags, lampwicks, and print dresses they must suffer for their contemptuous treatment of the home product. This is the protectionist view. The manufacturers of certain kinds of cotton goods have met and "ordered" an advance in prices. The consumer must obey the order, as the tariff prevents him from seeking relief by buying his cottons elsewhere. At the same time certain mills have been "ordered" to shut down for six weeks. This is a rather curious comment on the working of a tariff which was heralded as a means of finding employment for the people. The enforced idleness of the employes will probably be attended with some hardship; as the most ardent defender of the tariff will hardly say that they have been earning so much money that they can easily afford a six weeks holiday.—Globe.

A Free Trip to Europe.

The publishers of the Canadian Queen will give a free trip to Europe to the person sending them the largest number of words constructed from letters contained in the name of their well known magazine "The Canadian Queen." Additional prizes, consisting of silver tea sets, gold watches, china dinner sets, portiere curtains, silk dresses, mantel clocks, and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit.

Webster's unabridged dictionary to be used as authority in deciding the contest.

This is a popular plan of introducing a popular publication. Every one sending a list of not less than ten words will receive a present. Enclose thirteen 2c. stamps for illustrated catalogue of presents and three months' trial subscription to the Queen. Address, the Canadian Queen, "B," Toronto, Ont. dw

An Immense Demonstration.

Chicago, July 22.—Workmen yesterday began building the enormous amphitheatre that is to be used during the celebration of the Patriarchs Militant and Oddfellows, August 3rd to 10th. The structure occupies three blocks in Lake Front Park, and will seat 35,960 people. The demonstration, its promoters say, will be the largest ever made by a secret society. Fifty thousand Oddfellows are expected, fifteen thousand of whom will be uniformed Patriarchs Militant. Cash prizes to the amount of $25,000 will be awarded.

AN ANGEL OF MERCY.

Miss Fanny Gary's Noble Act of Self-Sacrifice.

Chicago, July 22.—Miss Fanny Gary, the talented daughter of Judge Joseph E. Gary, has worked for two weeks in a Division-street tailor shop and has proved herself a worthy member of the Girls' Friendly Society of St. James' Church.

It was several years ago that Jens Anderson deserted his wife and children, leaving them penniless in the worst quarter of Milton-Avenue. The day soon came when there was no food in the house and starvation stared the inmates in the face. Death was hovering near when a knock came at the door and Miss Gary entered. With the aid of her associates she soon saw that there was plenty to eat and to wear for the inmates of the little home. The two girls Mathilde and Mary were secured positions in a tailor shop, and work was also provided for the mother. Miss Gary never lost sight of her charges, and three weeks ago she noticed that the hard work and long hours were telling on Mary Anderson. So she offered to send her to a pretty resort on Lake Wisconsin.

"I can't go," sobbed the girl, who is only 15 years of age, when she called at Miss Gary's home a few days later. "The boss tailor will not allow me leave unless I find some one to take my place, and I can't find anybody."

Miss Gary thought a moment, then said: "You go and enjoy yourself, and I will see that your place is taken."

Mary left, and the next morning as the train was speeding the little worker westward, Miss Gary, clad in a plain black gown, entered the tailor shop and announced that she had come to take Mary Anderson's place. All that day she stitched away at the coarse cloth, and on every morning for two weeks she was at her self-appointed task. Leaving her father's home at 6 in the morning, she did not return until 7, and it was not until Mary Anderson returned that it was learned that Judge Gary's daughter had worked for two weeks in a tailor shop.

FLEECED OUT OF $5000.

Alanson See of New York Bunoced at Asbury Park.

Asbury Park, July 22.—Alanson See, a retired contractor of New York, was fleeced out of $5000 in cash by card sharpers tonight. See is about eighty years of age and his mental faculties have failed somewhat. The card sharpers have left town. One of them claimed to be the son of Mr. Park, of the firm of Park & Tilford. See says he met the sharpers first on Friday, on the fishing pier. Young "Mr. Park" in some way gained his confidence and learned his history. Saturday the sharper met him again, called him by name and introduced his companion, whose description is not known. Saturday evening the young men took their aged victim to a house in First-avenue and induced him to play in a game, the description of which Mr. See cannot give with any coherency.

They had played some time for small stakes when the old man was told he had won $40. He was then persuaded to arrange for a game for a stake of $5000. He did not have the cash here, but agreed to go to New York for it. Accordingly See and the sharpers went to New York this morning. There they separated, each agreeing to secure the amount of the stakes. See went to the Irving Bank, where he has an account, and drew $5000 in cash. He then met the sharpers and came to Asbury Park, arriving here at 5½ this evening. Within an hour from that time he had lost every cent of the money and the case was in the hands of the police. Mr. J. A. Bradley sent a telegram to Inspector Byrnes warning him of the loss and describing the sharpers.

Betting on a Mountain Lion.

The recent attempt of Texas men to get up a fight between two bulldogs and a puma reminds me of a queer proceeding in our old mining camp in Nevada. There were plenty of mountain lions prowling around in those days, and one off day we built a deadfall in hopes to make a capture. The "fall was a heavy log, which was intended to break the lion's back, but one night a varmint was caught in such a way that he was simply held down and not a bit injured. He was full grown and as savage as a meat axe, and we had an awful time getting him down to camp and caged up. We calculated on selling him for a good, round sum, but after about a week along came a man with the meanest-looking cur dog at his heels you ever saw. The animal was gaunt, wild-eyed, homely, and awkward, and he didn't weigh over twelve pounds at the most. The man heard about our lion, and after looking him over he said:

"Boys, here seems to be an opportunity. I think my dog can lick your lion inside of five minutes."

You could have heard us laugh and yell a mile away, but the man preserved a very serious face and added:

"Anybody kin holler but money talks. Gentlemen, I'll bet a hundred even up that my dog licks your lion."

We jumped on to him awfully rapid under that proposition, and when he offered to make it $200 we jumped the faster. After the stakes were up we set about fixing for the fight. There was a natural sink near by about as large as a circus tent, but as we had no way to enclose it we had to get a collar at and our lion's neck and send seven miles for a chain to hold him. By the use of forked sticks and blankets we got him out of the cage and chained him to a stake in the centre of this sink. My! but wasn't he ripping mad! He rolled over and over—he stood on end—he howled and screamed, and none of us would have gone within reach of him for a thousand dollars.

The fight was set for Sunday, and there were 400 men there. At 9 o'clock in the morning everything was ready, and the master of ceremonies announced:

"Gentlemen, the bet is that this 'ere dog licks that 'ere lion in five minits."

The owner of the dog advanced with the cage under his arm, and the lion screamed. The dog was flung at him, and then, wonderful to relate, the lion gave him one look and turned tail. The dog ran him five times around that rink, biting at his heels, and then, scared half to death, the big beast twisted his head out of the collar, broke through the crowd, and dusted for the cedars. The dog ran him out of sight, and then came back as if nothing had happened.

"Gentlemen, the dog wins," shouted the referee, and the stakes were handed over.

We asked the man a hundred dollars to explain how it was done, but he replied:

"I couldn't do it for a thousand, 'cause I don't know. All I know is that everything gets out of his way."

And not one of us could ever feel satisfied as to why that raging old lion turned coward the way he did.—N. Y. World.

Our Story.

WILFUL CLARA.

The boy Peter explained in a frightened way what part he had acted in the affair, but they could not blame him, as the act was unintentional on his part.

Her guardian lifted Clara gently and tenderly in his arms, and bore her to the carriage; but not without pain to her, as her pale, compressed lips testified, while she bravely strove to suppress every sound.

Peter was ordered to ride Brownie home, and go for a surgeon, while Thomas went in pursuit of Ligh foot.

Very few words were spoken between the two in the carriage as they rode homeward. Clara's head resting on her guardian's shoulder, her arm lying limp and useless by her side, while every jar of the carriage gave her fresh pain.

Arrived at home, Dr. Dunbar lifted her out of the carriage, carried her into her room and laid her on her own bed. Through the exertions of Peter, a surgeon was there almost as soon as they arrived. On examination of the arm, it was found to be badly fractured, and the operation of setting it was an exceedingly painful one. Clara bore it bravely, for there was courage in her nature as well as rashness.

After the operation was over, and she was lying, exhausted by suffering, with a face as white as the snowy covering, that enveloped her bed, Mr Dunbar came and sat by her side. He let hand be held in one of his strong palms, while with his other he smoothed the fair, broad brow and parted back the damp hair. His touch soothed her nerves by that electric influence which such natures as his exert upon those of her temperament. She unclosed her eyes, looked up at him, and whispered, Forgive me."

For answer he kissed her on the forehead. A flush like the inside of a sea shell tinged her cheek, and rose even to her brow, and her frame thrilled with pleasure at this mute token of forgiveness. He held her hand until she went off in a quiet sleep, and then left her.

Ralph had remained all these years unmarried, his attention seeming to be much taken up with the education of his ward. Possessing a fine mind himself, he found in her, as she grew older, corresponding tastes, which he had carefully cultivated. As a child she had been affectionate towards him, though often wilful; yet he had borne with her, both for her own sake and for his who had left him the sacred trust.

But of late, as "the new warmth of life's ascending sun" was felt by her, she had become more reserved towards him, and her childish caresses had ceased, partly from that instinct which teaches womanly reserve, partly because she had discovered a secret which she had only lately acknowledged to herself—that she loved her guardian, notwithstanding the disparity in their ages.

He was in the full vigor of his physical and intellectual being, and was well worthy of the love of a true woman's heart. In her he saw the elements of a noble womanhood for the groundwork of her character was well laid, and all that was demanded was the pruning off of some outward excrescences when she would be a fitting companion for a noble man.

Day after day, Clara lay on the lounge in their pleasant sitting room, while her guardian spent with her as much time as he had to spare, conversing and reading to her from their favorite authors. Conscious that, in her hours of pain and weakness, she had betrayed too much, Clara began to rally round her the old independent ways, but she had betrayed her secret. He had not watched her in vain. He knew his advantage now, and intended to follow it up when opportunity offered. Like all strong natures, he knew his own power, and liked occasionally to exercise it.

One evening he strayed into the library and seated herself in a deep window recess that looked out upon the west. The Summer air, heavy with perfume, stole in through the open window. And there Ralph found her. He seated himself beside her and together they gazed upon the lately illuminated west, deepening and darkening as the wings of the Goddess of Night slowly unfolded and threw over it their dusky shadows.

They sat some time in silence, and then Mr. Dunbar bent his head toward her and whispered, "Do you love me, Clara?"

She started at the unexpected question; and could he have seen her face, he would have known it to be crimson. She at once recovered her lost self-possession, and drew away from him, as she said, 'What do you mean by asking me such a question? I am no longer a child, but a woman, and, as such I do not care to be trifled with."

She rose from her seat and drew herself up proudly.

"You are mistaken," he said, in low, grave tones as he imprisoned both her hands in his, and seated her again beside him, while he did not resist his touch. "Clara, my darling, listen to me. I love you; not with a guardian's love, but with all the strength of my manhood, as a lover. Pardon me, I should have declared my love to you before I asked for your's. Can you love one whose years have numbered so many more than yours?"

Her head drooped on his breast, his arm encircled her in a loving clasp, and never before in her unquiet life had she known such a sweet feeling of trust and rest as sweetly stole over her when she felt his kisses on her lips, and know that now the love she had so often coveted was hers along.

"I have loved you a long time, more because you were older than I," she whispered shyly.

In that hour her coquetry all vanished, and she gave up heart to the sway of a love deep and strong.

"I did not know you loved me until your eyes told some tales during your illness; then I suspected your love. Tell me why you tried so hard to conceal it from me?"

"I did not think you loved me, and I did not want to give my love unsought. You seemed to be so far above me, so good, so noble, that I dared not hope you could love the girl who had displayed such opposite abilities to your own. It seems that we have each misunderstood the other.

"But never will again, I hope," said Ralph, fondly. "Nestle closer to me."

The choice was a happy one. Clara and Ralph Dunbar were drawn together by a sympathy far more intense than that which a silken cord of speculative mating can generate. He loved her for herself alone, while she gave him her whole heart for the noble qualities of his person and mind. Her affection was the growth of years, and the deliberate result of thought rather than feeling, and she never regretted being united to her Guardian of her Heart.

High-priced Doctor—"You are now convalescent, and all you need is exercise. You should walk at least ten miles a day, sir, but your walking should have an object." Patient—"All right, doctor. I'll travel around trying to borrow enough to pay your bill."—New York Weekly.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

Stanley on Emin.

EMIN'S MANY RARE QUALITIES.

The world already knows of the vacillating character of Emin and his strange manner since he returned to civilization. Stanley says a great deal on this subject in these volumes, and all of it deserves careful reading. Of the ex-Governor's special abilities, however, Stanley is a hearty admirer:—

"His abilities and capacity and fitness for the singular position in which he has been placed will be seen in the manner in which he has managed to clothe many of his troops. Among the gifts he pressed upon us were pieces of cotton cloth woven by his own men, coarse but strong, and slippers and shoes, from his own bootmakers. The condition of his steamers and boats after such long service, the manufacture of oil suitable for the engines (a mixture of sesamum oil and tallow), the excellent sanitary arrangements and cleanliness and order of the stations under his charge, the regular and ungrudging payment of corn tribute twice a year by his negro subjects all serve to demonstrate a unique character, and to show that he possesses talents rarely seen in those who select Africa for their field of labor. In endeavoring to estimate him I pass in mental review hundreds of officers who have served on the Nile and Congo, and I know of but few who would be equal to him in any one of his valuable qualities. Besides his linguistic attainments, he is a naturalist, something of a botanist, and as a surgeon I can well believe that thirty years of an adventurous life such as his has been would furnish him with rare opportunities to make him wise and skilful in his profession. The language he has used as may be seen above, is something higher than colloquial, and marks his attainment in English. With his full, sonorous voice and measured tones it sounded very pleasantly despite the foreign accent. Upon any policy treated of in newspapers and reviews I found him exceedingly well informed, no matter what country was broached. His manner is highly courteous and considerate somewhat, perhaps, too ceremonious for Central Africa, but highly becoming a governor, and such as one might expect from an official of that rank conscious of serious responsibilities. Industry seems to be a vital necessity of life with him. He is a model of painstaking, patient effort. No sooner has he camped than he begins to effect arrangements orderly and after method."

There are some splendid bits of descriptive writing in the book, one of great length being about a phalanx dance by a thousand armed warriors—a dance that shook the dry ground like an earthquake.

THE MYSTERY OF THE REAR COLUMN.

After many long talks with Emin, Stanley started backward to find the rear column, which, under several of his officers to whom clear instructions had been given, was to have followed him with stores, ammunition, &c. Instead of his officers he found a single white man, the surgeon's assistant, and heard a story which will mystify the reader as much as it did the explorer. Four able and trusted men had seemed for some reason to have lost their written instructions, their heads, their courage or their loyalty, to have been cajoled out of sense of duty by Tippo Tib and his lieutenants. Mr. Ward's report to Stanley was dated from the Windsor Hotel, New York. The author lays the whole subject with the papers before the reader, as if he were seeking counsel in a difficulty entirely too deep for him to solve or pass judgment upon. The reader in turn will probably "give it up," but at the same time lose all respect for the men who so utterly failed.

A sheet of stick fly paper will do more damage to carpets and furniture than any thing ever invented. No careful housewife would have one about. Wilson's Fly Poison Pads will clear the house of flies more quickly and surely than any other means. When placed near the light where the flies are thickest, Wilson's Pads will kill pints every day, and clear the house in short order. At all druggists. dw

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,709,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $313,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,664,376	3.07
Confederation	17,574,928	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,058,837	10.35
Sun Life	11,870,817	10.36
North American	8,470,630	10.66
Temperance and General	2,264,972	17.84
Ottawa	2,097,266	23.15
Manufacturers' Life	3,722,100	30.19
London Life	1,044,295	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent."

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

Campbellford's Railway Station.

The excavation for the new railway station at Campbellford, the Herald says, was commenced several days ago. Its site is on a level piece of ground purchased from the Cumming's estate, on what has been known as "the commons." It is very suitable for sidings, and affords a clear view of the track for several hundred yards east and west. The distance from the west end of the bridge is about the same as that to the present railway station.

Congratulations.

At the annual meeting of the Grand Encampment of Oddfellowship held at Kingston, Mr. D. H. Moore and local Oddfellowship was honoured by the former being appointed to the prophetic position of Grand High Priest, the next step but one to highest. Mr. Moore has been for many years an active Oddfellow in Peterborough Lodge, and also an active member of Mount Hebron Encampment, No. 56, and his being elected to the position of Grand High Priest is both an acknowledgement of his fitness for the position, and a recognition of the active and intelligent interest taken by him in the promotion of the interests of both branches of the order. The EXAMINER gives Mr. Moore and the local organizations he represents, cordial congratulations on the honour conferred on them both.

Physician, Heal Thyself.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—In reading the report of the last meeting of the Town Council I was struck with the consistency of our town fathers. They prated learnedly and proudly of health matters, and showed a very brave front against the cholera, and seemed determined to make the people attend to sanitary precautions. All this time the grave and reverend seigniors were in a state of semi-asphyxiation from the stench from the town stables. In the name of consistency, let cleanliness, like charity, begin at home. Let the city fathers clean out their own Augean stables, and then they can afford to talk to the people. Of course the councillors can stand the stench once a fortnight; but have they no bowels of mercy for the town officials, the town clerk, the collector, and the firemen, who have to remain in an atmosphere of disease germs during all the time their duties require them to be at the town buildings. If the centre of civic authority—the town buildings—does not show an example of sanitary cleanliness, how can it be expected that the people in general will attend to such matters?

Yours respectfully,
CIVIS.

Peterborough, July 24th, 1890.

Cricketting Apathy.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Kindly permit me a line or two to draw attention to the shameful manner in which cricketting practice is neglected in this town. The membership of the club comprises "raw material" enough to make two or three of the best elevens in the province, and yet it is safe to say that hardly a single member of the club is in a decent condition of practice. Such a thing as proper and general practice seems to be unknown. A stray member or two drops in at odd times, and takes a few balls, in front of a net, from the professional. There is no fielding practice at all. There hasn't been a single practice match this season. The consequence is that when a match is on an eleven is scraped together, many of whom are entirely out of practice, and, of course a, defeat against any half decent visiting eleven is to be expected. The best cricketers is not at his best without practice, and the mediocre one needs it all the more. Why wont the club practice? Many years ago when I played cricket and the town club carried everything before it, such results were not got without practice. Can't something be devised to waken an interest in the game? Yesterday I was told by a disgusted cricketter, that after making arrangements at considerable inconvenience, to be on hand for a practice match, he went to the grounds and found nobody there to play. Players came by ones and twos and went away in the same manner and there never were enough on the ground at one time to make one, let alone two elevens. Come, come, boys, this won't do. Arise and practice, mount your flannel and get at practice. If the club, as a club puts in a fortnight's good practice, you need not be afraid of any ordinary eleven that comes along. You will not regret it if you take the advice of

The Old Market Building Has Another Narrow Escape From Destruction by Fire.

Someone with an eye to business set fire to the old market early this morning, but it was discovered in time to prevent the destruction of the building. About half past six o'clock some workingmen crossing the market square observed smoke pouring out of the windows upstairs, and running into the police station they notified P. C. Stewart, who promptly applied several pails of water with good effect. The fire was evidently the work of an incendiary, as it was started in the middle of the floor, to which access was gained by means of a couple of small trap doors which had been used in connection with the stage when the hall was used for theatrical purposes. The flooring was pretty well scorched.

This is the second attempt that has been made to burn the old building. The town council is trying to sell it, but the most they can get for it is about $100. There is an insurance of $3,000 upon it. Perhaps this fact outweighs moral considerations in the minds of some frugal ratepayers, who have a personal interest in seeing that the civic revenue is made as large as possible. There has actually been some quiet talk about burning down the old market building.

Market Clerk Doherty was surprised on a morning upon inspecting the scene of the fire. He was quite unaware of the existence of the trap doors. The fire must have been started by someone intimately acquainted with the construction of the building. Mr. Doherty, however, thinks the fire-bug made a mistake in not beginning his work in the old closet under the stairway leading to the gallery, which has been used as a lamp room and is pretty well saturated with oil. If a fire got a good start in that place "saltpetre wouldn't save it," as Mr. Doherty tersely remarked. Nevertheless it is to be hoped no one will be foolish enough to take advantage of these information and burden himself with crime for the sake of possibly saving a few thousand dollars to the town. The butchers down stairs would suffer a heavy loss if the old market building was to burn just now, and besides far more damage might result from the fire than can possibly be foreseen.

The door of the hall above has been left open since the building has been deserted. It should be kept locked.

Port Hope's Fete.

Port Hope's postponed Dominion Day celebration was held Wednesday. It attracted a large crowd of people, a number going down from Peterborough. The features of the demonstration were aquatic and turf races, a baseball tournament and fireworks. Mr. H. C. Winch, of Peterborough, was one of the judges. In the named race Leith's (Garden Hill) Little Fred won first money, Simpson's (Lindsay) Maud B., driven by Ed. Brown, 2nd, and Daisy B. third. In the open trot, unfinished, Grey Tobe has two heats, and Mayflower (A. P. Morgan, Peterborough) and Blake one each. There were also a couple of fist races, no Peterborough horses competing. Port Hope baseball club defeated Newcastle, and Cobourg defeated Garden Hill. The baseball tourney and races were to be finished today, weather permitting.

Baseball.

A game of baseball was played Wednesday night between a west end nine and a south end nine. Five innings were played. The west enders buried the south enders under a majority of seven runs—11 to 4—with an innings to spare. For the victors the batteries were Sharp and Ringer, Hodgson, captain; for the noble ward nine, Heffernan and McDonough, Woods, captain.

ENCAMPMENT AND CANTON

The Origin and Growth of Two Oddfellow Orders.

The Encampment Twenty One Years Old—The First Canton Established Five Years Ago—Both are Now Flourishing Institutions.

(From the Kingston Whig.)

The Grand Encampment of Ontario I. O. O. F. was organized in the hall of Excelsior Lodge, No. 44, Hamilton, on 6th of August, 1869, twenty-one years ago. D. D. G. Sire James Woodyatt, the veteran Oddfellow of the west, was the instituting officer, and he had associated with him the following well known patriarchs, viz.: S. G. Dolson, Edmund Beltz, Henry McAfee, J. B. King, James Smith, Adam Bowes, John Gibson, Robert Kirkpatrick, George R. Marlatt, R. J. C. Dawson, A. D. Clement, John Hunter, George Powell, sr., George Irwin and M. D. Dawson.

There were six encampments represented, viz.: Union No. 1, St. Catharines; Frontier No. 2, Windsor; Harmony No. 3, London; Brant No. 4, Brantford; Charity No. 5, Stratford, and Beaver No. 6, St. Mary's. The brethren above named, with one or two exceptions, are all alive and yet connected with the order. Bro. George Irwin, the first grand treasurer, met with an accident on his engine which took his life.

The starting of a grand encampment for Ontario was looked upon as a somewhat hazardous undertaking, but earnest workers who shouldered the burden predicted success, and the result has been that from that day to the present the grand officers have annually reported an increase in their numerical strength.

The following were the first officers elected:—James Woodyatt, Brantford, grand patriarch; S. G. Dolson, St. Catharines, grand high priest; Edmund Beltz, London, grand warden; M. D. Dawson, London, grand scribe; George Irwin, Windsor, grand treasurer; A. D. Clement, Brantford, grand jr. warden; John Hunter, London, grand sentinel. P. C. P. James Smith, of London, was elected the first representative to the grand lodge of the United States, now known as the sovereign grand lodge.

At the next annual session, in Brockville, the position of grand scribe and grand treasurer were united, the grand scribe holding the dual position without interruption until 1886, when the law of the sovereign grand lodge made it necessary that a change should be made, and Edmund Beltz, of London, was elected grand treasurer, which position he holds to-day.

It was found necessary to borrow $100 from the grand lodge of Ontario at the organization, and in 1871 the loan was kindly increased to $200, without interest. For years it was a struggle to get out of financial difficulty, but finally the grand lodge passed a resolution cancelling the debt. This was an exhibition of paternal and fraternal affection that has been very highly appreciated, so much so that the grand encampment has always held its sessions at the same place and one day prior to the meeting of grand lodge. At the last session it was thought that a child of twenty-one years of age ought to be strong enough to go alone, and as the funds of the grand encampment had gradually grown until it was in a certain sense independent, a resolution was adopted changing the time of the annual session from August to July, and the city of Kingston was selected as the place of meeting. This departure is but a trial to give canton members, who are uniformed patriarchs, a fitting opportunity for a grand assembly once a year to test their love for drill and camp life. If it proves a success, the separation from the parent body may be considered final. If not, the grand encampment will again go back to the old system.

From a small beginning the grand encampment of Ontario I.O.O.F. has grown until it now numbers on its roll some seventy tents, and the good work they have done in the past twenty-one years is registered above. Though not an insurance society, their laws teach them to care for and protect the widow and orphan, and they are a beneficial society. They relieve the sick, smooth the pillow of affliction, and never fail to pay the last sad rites to departed worth. While only a trifle over 3,000 strong in Canada they have contributed annually about $3,000 per annum in relief for the past few years.

The Patriarchs Militant.

The great feature of this week will be the presence of uniformed men, who go under the title of Patriarchs Militant. The order has been popular since its inception. The friends of the movement thought at its inception that it ought to receive support from the display element of the order, and it was predicted by the most enthusiastic that from one hundred and fifty to two hundred cantons would be formed the first year. Such expectations have been more than realized, for the army of the Patriarchs Militant embraced after one year three hundred and fifty-seven cantons, and an active membership of fourteen thousand encaliers were organized and officered. The movement started upon a basis of uncertainty, with a nucleus of one canton and thirty members at Baltimore, the 24th of Sept., 1885. There are now over 600 cantons, and a membership of drilled men of 21,000.

The Canadian cantons comprise the second brigade of the division of Niagara attached to the second army corps. Its headquarters are in Philadelphia, and under command of Major-General J. B. Nicholson. The division of Niagara, comprising New York state and Canada, is commanded by Major-General J. A. Woodward, of Albany, N. Y. Brigadier Slatter, of Toronto, is in command of the second brigade. It is subdivided into two regiments. No 1 comprises all cantons west of Toronto; No. 2 those east of Toronto, including the cantons of Quebec, New Brunswick and Manitoba. The first regiment is in command of Col. F. W. Unitt, of Toronto. The officers of the second regiment are:—

Col. George H. Lauder, Belleville; Lt.-Col., N. S. Young, Bowmanville; major first battalion, James Grant, Ottawa; major second battalion, D. H. Moore, Peterborough; major third battalion, George R. Breton, St. John, N. B; adjt. and capt., J. E. Walmsley, Belleville; quartermaster and capt., J. B. Ferris, Campbellford; commissioner and capt., John Maynard, Bowmanville; sergt. and major, J. H. Parnell, Ottawa; assistant surgeon and capt., W. Marriage, Montreal; chaplain and capt., Thomas Besson, Ottawa; bannerette and lieut., J. D. Tully, Peterborough; sergt.-major, W. H. Bowen, Belleville; color-sergt., Jesse Harris, Belleville; quartermaster sergt., J. Menzies, Ottawa; commissary sergt., Samuel Hoskin, Bowmanville; equipment sergt., Thomas J. Emerson, Peterborough.

The uniformed association was first formed in 1877 as an independent organization. In 1880, when the sovereign grand lodge met in Ontario, an attempt was made to secure recognition, but this was refused. After a number of years a uniformed degree was established, but its working was unsatisfactory and the whole concern was remodelled upon the present lines of the Patriarchs Militant, with cantons in many place. The organization is controlled by a military council, who report to the sovereign grand lodge. Each organization is under its own commander, amendable to those above him.

Omemee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

FASHIONABLE WEDDING.—In Christ's church, Omemee, Miss French, daughter of Rev. W. H. French, pastor of the church, was united in the holy bond of matrimony on Wednesday, July 23, to Mr. Anderson, B.A., Trinity University, (Dublin), now of Smith's Falls. Miss Coleman, of Cookstown, acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Pakenham, of Peterborough, as groomsman. The bride and bridesmaid looked charming. The solemn ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by his son of Cookstown. The attendance was a large and fashionable one. The presents were numerous and costly. The happy couple left by the evening train for Toronto and Chautauqua.

CRICKET MATCH.—Omemee club defeated Millbrook, at Millbrook last Saturday by 3 wickets. The game was a well contested one. The Rev. Mr. Allen, and Messrs. Wood, Hunter and W. H. Wrighton, of Peterborough, played well for the home team, whilst Messrs. Anderson, Stephenson and Elliott played well for Omemee. The return match will be an interesting one.

Centreville.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A social under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church of Centreville was held at the handsome residence of Mr. Tait Wednesday evening, and but for the storm it would have been an unqualified success. About 300 people from all parts of the neighborhood and Peterborough gathered on the occasion. About $75 was taken in at the gate alone. The tables were spread on the spacious lawn, while the house was thrown open to guests. About eight o'clock the rain began to fall and before the edibles could be taken inside a large quantity were spoiled. The house was crowded to overflowing, and the carpets were almost ruined by the wet muddy shoes. A good programme was rendered as well as the limited room would allow. It is unfortunate that the rain spoiled the social, as the prospects were otherwise good for a most successful evening.

GRIFFIN'S FLIGHT.

An Agricultural Implement Agent in Jail at Brockville.

BROCKVILLE, July 23.—Lincoln Griffin, an agent for the Massey Manufacturing Company of Toronto, and who resides with his uncle at Caintown, in this county, has been arrested and lodged in jail here on the charge of committing an assault Sunday last, on the person of Sarah Ann Spears, 17 years of age, and who had been taken from Fairknowe Orphans Home about a year ago, by the relative with whom he has resided. The girl returned to the home on Monday, told the circumstances of the assault and was subsequently examined by Dr. Vaux. The physician told Mr. Burgess, of the Home, that the girl had undoubtedly been abused, and Mr. Burgess then swore out a warrant for Griffin's arrest and placed it in Deputy Sheriff Robertson's hands.

The prisoner was found early this morning at Lansdowne, where he had gone to put up an agricultural implement and at once submitted to arrest. He seemed to recognize the terrible position in which he has been placed but stoutly denies the charge. He admits having been criminally intimate with the girl but not without her consent.

LONDON, July 23.—The contest for the Kolapore Cup took place to-day at the Bisley range. The English team won the cup with a score of 704 points. The Canadian team made 676 points.

The Drouth in Amsterdam.

AMSTERDAM, July 23.—As a result of the drouth there are fears of a water famine here. The reservoir is now lower than ever before. The water commissioners to-day ordered that sprinkling of streets and lawns be discontinued. There is consternation among the citizens.

A TRAGEDY RECALLED.

Death of Mrs. Mack, Who Was Shot at Belleville Four Years Ago.

BELLEVILLE, July 24.—Mrs. William Mack, whose figure was well-known to all who pass the little frame grocery at the south end of the overhead bridge in the Madoc-road, died of consumption Sunday at the age of 55 years, and was buried to-day.

Her death recalls a page in the history of the crimes of this city. It was a bright day in July, 1886, that the police were telephoned that murder and suicide had been committed in Ridley-street, and soon the humble abode of the Macks was surrounded by an anxious throng. William Pentlandt, a British pensioner and a tenant of the Macks, had quarreled with them over a garden plot, and hot words had ended in a police court case in which Pentlandt could not see that justice had been done him. The Macks knew of his wrath, but had no thought of danger. The enraged man secured a revolver, and entering the small grocery fired twice at the old man at short range, but went wide of his mark each time. Mrs. Mack ran across the street screaming, but when in the centre of the road Pentlandt, who thought he had finished the old man, fired upon her, the ball striking her below the shoulder and passing through her body. Believing he had finished the lives of both the old people he fastened himself in the chamber of his part of the house and with his revolver stood at the chamber window to keep the crowd at bay. Chief McKinnon convinced him that it was useless to think of escape when, rather than surrender himself to the police, the man settled himself back upon a bed, placed the weapon to his head and sent a bullet into his brain.

Mrs. Mack lingered long, rallied and partially recovered, but fell into a decline, the result of the wound, and on Sunday her release came.

ODDFELLOWS AT KINGSTON.

The Celebration a Great Success—Competitive Drill of the Patriarchs.

KINGSTON, July 23.—The Oddfellows' demonstration yesterday and to-day has been a great success. There was a great crowd in the city to-day, cantons of patriarchs militant being here from Rochester, Oswego, Watertown, Belleville, Montreal, Ottawa, St. Thomas and Kingston, and delegations from many cities and towns in New York and Ontario. This afternoon four hours were spent in competitive drill, but results will not be announced until after to-morrow's exhibition.

Labor Day at Halifax yesterday was observed as a public holiday.

A MYSTERIOUS EXPLOSION

THREE PERSONS KILLED AND SIX INJURED.

Bullard's Boarding House at Savannah, Ga., Blown Up at 1 O'Clock in the Morning The Building a Heap of Ruins Rumors of an Ugly Nature.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 24.—W. J. Bullard's boarding house, a three-story brick dwelling at 251 Congress-street, was blown up at 1:20 o'clock this morning. Three persons were killed and six injured, two of whom will probably die.

There were 18 people in the house. The explosion shattered the walls, which collapsed in an instant a mass of ruins. Most of the occupants of the house were asleep and were hurled from their beds and either buried under the falling debris or thrown on top of it. The killed are:

MRS. W. J. BULLARD.
MR. LOCKLEY.
GUS ROBIE.

The wounded are.

John Roberts, right ankle fractured and concussion of the brain from the shock.

L. J. Tate, contusion of face and chest.

Maedon Hywood (colored), shoulder dislocated and bruised.

J. A. Rimes, slightly bruised.

Edward S. Everitt, slightly bruised.

Mrs. Edward S. Everitt, slightly bruised.

Sam King (colored), badly injured about body.

The first person taken out of the ruins was L. J. Tate, collector for the Citizens' Bank, who was sleeping on the second floor and was passed down by falling timbers. A few minutes later the mangled body of Mrs. Bullard was found eight feet under a pile of bricks, beneath the room where she was sleeping. Robie's body was taken out at 3 o'clock and was laid in Franklin-square on a mattress. Robie came here from New York a month ago and was employed by McClongahn & Co. as second-man. He slept in the front hall room on the second floor, and was found under a sheet in the bed, where he had evidently been killed as he slept. He has a wife in New York, from whom he received a letter a day or two ago. He was about 40 years old. The body of Lockley was found about 4 o'clock. It was the last taken out of the building.

J. A. Rimes, who was sleeping in the front room on the third floor with Roberts, was buried to the second floor, and was pinned between the bed and floor until he was pulled out by the firemen. He did not see Robert a after the explosion occurred. The first he heard was a grinding noise and then came the crash and then a blank. The next he knew was being taken out from under the debris. He was slightly bruised.

Mr. and Mrs. Everitt, who were sleeping in the front room on the second floor, were pulled out from under the ceiling above, which held them fast. Mrs. John Paige and baby, who were sleeping in the room back of Mr. and Mrs. Everitt, escaped unhurt and were lifted out by the firemen.

As fast as the injured people were taken out they were carried into the rear of Andrew Jackson's residence, just east of the fallen building. Jack Roberts, who slept with J. A. Rimes on the third floor, sustained severe injuries about the body and head. Mr. Bullard, who was sleeping with his wife, had a marvelous escape and received but a few slight bruises. Mrs. Bullard was dead when taken out. She was fearfully crushed.

The cause of the explosion is a mystery. There are many rumors of an ugly nature, but nobody will take the responsibility of making a direct statement. One man insinuated that there had been a row in the house toward the end of the jollification in which the inmates had been indulging. The building was a three-story tenement built in the French flat style and faced north and south. The two top floors were used as sleeping apartments. The explosion blew the entire building to the northward. Some of the furniture was blown across St. Julian-street into splinters, while the flying bricks went as far as Bay street. The entire structure collapsed outward in Congress-street.

Two Killed by this Explosion.

PATERSON, N.J., July 24.—The corning mill of the Lafin & Rand Powder Works at Mountain View blew up to-day with terrific force. Two workmen in the building at the time were killed.

LABRADOR'S TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

Details of the Manner in Which Oliver Killed His Children and Himself.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., July 24.—The steamer Panther brings the news of a terrible tragedy in Labrador. Thomas Oliver had lived for nine years at Fig Brook, Stag Bay, Labrador, with his wife and five children. May 4 he told his son to go across the river and hunt for partridges, he also sent his wife and daughter out to pick wild tea. Oliver then took his Bible and lay down on the bed. Before leaving his wife took the infant boy, six months old, and placed it on the bed.

When on the ice about half way across the river she heard the report of a gun. Looking around she saw the dogs running from the door. Thinking nothing was wrong she continued her journey.

After she and her daughter had gathered wood they wanted they returned home. They beheld a sickening sight. On the bed was the baby. On taking it up the mother discovered that its head had been battered to pieces. The next sight that met her horrified gaze was the body of her daughter, 11 years old. She was in a sitting posture on the floor, with her head fearfully mangled, while across her legs lay a boy, six years old, with his head split open. He lived until sunset.

Mrs. Oliver next discovered the body of her husband stretched on the floor, with his gun grasped in his hands and a bullet hole through his head. The distracted mother after waiting till her boy died, ran down to Seal Cove, three miles away, where her nearest neighbors lived, and told her awful story. The victims were buried near the house in which the crime was committed. The gun was put in the murderer's coffin. The children were killed with an axe. Melancholy caused the crime.

Frank—Hello, old man, going out of town? Tom—Yes, up country—shooting, fishing and gambolling like a lambon the green, you know. When are you going out?

Frank—Well, I can't say—probably not till next summer. You see, I did some gambling like a lambin the sugar down State street a few days ago and dropped about $9,000. Hope you'll get your gambolling cheaper.—Boston Boston.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

THE BURNING OF THE STEAMER EGYPT AT SEA.

Gladstone Praises Salisbury for the Anglo-German Agreement, but Will Not Vote on the Bill for the Cession of Heligoland.

LONDON, July 24.—The steamer Manhattan sighted the Egypt in full blaze in lat. 40-28 north long. 38 west, but being laden with oil dared not go near the burning vessel. She lowered her boats, however, and saved all on board the Egypt. Captain Robinson of the Manhattan, who formerly sailed in the National line, informed the rescued officers he had only enough provisions for 40 persons, and a discussion was had as to whether or not to make the Azores, 250 miles distant. It was finally decided to proceed for Dover, and everyone was placed on short rations.

There were 400 head of cattle on the Egypt and all were burned to death or breaking loose and plunging overboard were drowned. For a time there was much confusion on the Egypt but no panic. The National Company chartered a tug at Dover to meet the Manhattan and supply her with provisions. She started at 6 o'clock this evening with a full supply of provisions and other necessaries for the rescued people.

Captain James Sumner of the Egypt is the commodore of the National line. The company do not insure their vessels, but put the amount which they would have to pay as premiums into a special fund on account of their vessels.

Upon arriving at Dover the Manhattan sent the crew of the Egypt ashore in boats. The landing of the shipwrecked sailors was watched by a great crowd. It transpires that as the Manhattan approached the Egypt the German ship Gustave and Oscar, which was lying near by, sent up signals of distress. The decks of the German vessel were found crowded with the 95 men of the crew of the Egypt. There was no room for them on the German vessel.

According to an official statement the fire occurred 1100 miles from Landsend, the flames first appearing among bales of cotton stowed over the boilers. The fire dried up the pumps until they refused to work.

The Cession of Heligoland.

LONDON, July 24.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Fergusson moved that the bill providing for the cession of Heligoland to Germany pass its second reading. He advocated the bill.

Mr. Gladstone made a speech in support of the African portion of the Anglo-German agreement. He paid a tribute to Lord Salisbury for the part he had taken in effecting the agreement, which he urged was conceived in a spirit of regard for the best interests of England. Mr. Gladstone blamed the Government for not securing beforehand an agreement with France regarding Zanzibar. He said the House had never before been asked to vote a cession of territory. There had been several cessions of territory without the consent of the Commons being asked. He was not disposed to make a precedent on a subject of profound practical importance in the constitution, and would therefore decline to vote on the bill.

The debate was adjourned.

Blaine Smart, but Wrong.

LONDON, July 24.—The Chronicle says: Mr. Blaine proves himself an adept man in controversy than Lord Salisbury, although having a worse case to defend. The representatives of England seem mere babies in the hands of Mr. Blaine. It is obvious that Lord Salisbury at an early period of the discussion became sensible of his inferiority in dialectic skill to his opponent, lost his temper and deliberately insulted Mr. Blaine by declaring he conducted the negotiations in the interests of a party and not of the country. Lord Salisbury has never been guilty of a more reprehensible breach of diplomatic courtesy. Happily Mr. Blaine, untouched by the taunt, was contented to drive Lord Salisbury into a corner. Clever as Mr. Blaine's logic may be, it does not alter the fact that no claim Russian or American—no admission of John Quincy Adams, can convert a vast open sea into a mare clausum.

The Dockmen's Strike.

LONDON, July 24.—Work on the London and St. Catharine docks has stopped, the Dock Laborers' Union having ordered out the men because the directors refused to allow representatives of the union to go inside the docks to ascertain if men had the proper cards issued by the union.

The Dock Laborers' Union at Cardiff is supporting the strike for shorter hours on Saturday, an increase in wages and the abolition of middlemen. Benjamin Tillett is organizing the strikers. The strike threatens to paralyze the whole trade of Bristol Channel.

The trouble at the London and St. Catharine docks has been settled, the directors yielding to the demands of the union.

Minister Reid's Denial.

PARIS, July 24.—Whitelaw Reid, the United States Minister, explicitly denies the truth of the alleged interview with him in which he is represented as denouncing the McKinley Bill and declaring that the people of the United States would not long endure the tariff, etc. He says he saw no journalist and authorized nobody to speak on the subject in his name. The Secretary of the American Legation, who alone responds to press requests for information, denies the accuracy of the interview.

A Riot in Chile.

LONDON, July 24.—A despatch from Valparaiso states that a mob attacked a number of stores in the city of Santiago, the capital of the republic, and sacked them. The military quelled the disturbance.

Farmer Chaplin Talks.

LONDON, July 24.—Mr. Chaplin, Minister of Agriculture, to-day delivered an address at the Lincoln Agricultural Show. He said the recent rise in the prices of agriculture products was due to advance in the price of silver, which, in turn, was occasioned by the recent passage of the Silver Bill by the American Congress.

Carnegie's Liberality.

LONDON, July 24.—Mr. Carnegie has donated £10,000 for a library at Ayr.

Ireland Wins the Elcho Shield.

LONDON, July 24.—Ireland won the Elcho Shield at Bisley to-day.

A Steamer Ashore at Anticosti.

QUEBEC, July 23.—The steamship Idaho is ashore on Shannon Reef, Anticosti Island, in a critical position and asking assistance.

THE WARRING REPUBLICS.

UNCLE SAM MAY TAKE A HAND IN THE FIGHT.

The Rifles Taken from the American Steamer Colima Will Possibly Cost Guatemala Dearly—More Conflicting Reports About Recent Battles.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The announcement of the fact that the Guatemalan authorities boarded the Pacific mail steamer at a Guatemalan seaport and seized many cases of rifles shipped from San Francisco for Salvador causes much surprise here, and the question is asked whether this arbitrary act upon the part of Guatemala will not tend to further complicate matters.

The Pacific mail steamers fly the United States flag, and it is possible that the boarding of the steamer and the seizure of a portion of her cargo may prove to be a serious breach of international law, which should justify our Government in treating it as a casus belli.

To say the least it was a most ill-advised proceeding on the part of Guatemala, for the United States is the only government to whom she can look for protection in the event that Mexico should show a disposition to interfere in the Central American difficulty.

Both Secretary Blaine and Assistant-Secretary Wharton are absent from the city and Assistant-Secretary Adee is quite unwell, so no information could be obtained from the department as to the probable view the administration may take of this seemingly gross breach of international courtesy.

By Way of Berlin.

BERLIN, July 24.—Despatches received here state that the United States and Mexico will offer to act as arbitrators to the questions at issue between the Central American Republics.

SALVADOR'S SIX VICTORIES.

Many Killed and Wounded on Both Sides Determined to Be Free.

LIBERTAD, San Salvador, July 24.—News has been received confirming the reports of the success of the Salvador forces beyond the frontier in Guatemalan territory. The Salvador army has now gained six battles, capturing a large quantity of arms and ammunition. Many were killed and wounded on both sides.

The Salvador forces are now pushing their way into the interior of Guatemala and are meeting with success at every step. Great enthusiasm prevails and the intention is to overthrow the government of President Barillos before coming to any agreement.

Salvador is determined to free itself from the yoke of Guatemala and to assure its liberty and independence.

Conflicting Reports.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 23.—Guatemala advices Eyetas army attacked the Guatemalans near the frontier of Guatemala yesterday and the Salvador forces were routed, leaving many dead, wounded and three cannons in Gen. Sanchez hands. San Salvador advices are exactly to the contrary, claiming five victories and the capture of a large amount of booty.

OBLIGING ADMIRAL HOTHAM.

Does a Good Turn to a Distressed American Captain.

VICTORIA, B.C., July 24.—The American steamship George W. Elder, plying between Victoria, Puget Sound and Alaska, reached Esquimalt last evening in a disabled and leaky condition, having been ashore near Port Townsend. She came to Esquimalt with the object of entering the dry-dock there. This dry-dock is owned conjointly by the Imperial and Dominion Governments and British warships have the preference over the merchant lines. On Saturday H.M.S. Espiegle entered the dock for the purpose of receiving an overhauling, and she had three week's work ahead before she would be in a condition to leave the dock.

Captain Hunter, upon his arrival, boarded the warship for the purpose of interviewing Admiral Hotham to see if it was possible that the Elder could be docked. He represented that his ship was in a disabled condition and that 300 excursionists were waiting to take passage to Alaska. Admiral Hotham received him courteously and immediately informed him that the excursionists would not be disappointed. As far as he was concerned that dock would be ready to receive the Elder as soon as that ship was ready to enter. In half an hour from the time that Captain Hunter boarded the warship the Espiegle was signalled as follows: "The Espiegle is ordered to leave the dry dock at once." In another hour the dock was full of water and the Espiegle floated out, the Elder taking her place. The admiral also offered any assistance in his power, sending a large number of man-of-war men to assist in docking the Elder. This prompt and courteous action of Admiral Hotham has without doubt saved the ship, and will result in saving a very large amount of money to the American company owning her. It will also show that a British officer is always ready to assist the distressed of any nation, even when it results in great inconvenience to himself and his ships.

Fatality at St. Thomas.

ST. THOMAS, July 24.—David Trainer, who was injured on Monday while attempting to put a belt on a pulley at Still's factory, where he was employed, died this morning at 12½ o'clock. The stick with which he was moving the belt had slipped, and catching in the spokes of the pulley, had been driven with great force against his abdomen. Inflammation ensued. Deceased came from Tilbury Centre and was 29 years old. He leaves a wife and two children. His physicians, Drs. Duncombe and McLarty, could not determine how severe were the injuries that resulted, but they feared from the first that inflammation would ensue. This was the case, and at noon yesterday the change in the condition of the injured man showed that the worst was to be feared. The inflammation made rapid progress, and as stated Mr. Trainer died early this morning.

Kingston's Celebration Wound Up.

KINGSTON, July 24.—The Oddfellows' celebration closed to-day. The Oswego canton was awarded first prize for drill, St. Thomas second, and only a few points behind Oswego; Belleville canton secured third place. The judges were Hon G. A. Kirkpatrick, Chief of Police Horsey of Kingston, and Major Shall of Little Falls. Ottawa canton got the prize for the largest number on parade, and St. Thomas for coming the longest distance.

U.S. Bond Purchases.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The Treasury Department to-day purchased bonds to the amount of $5,838,050 under the circular of July 19.

Free After Eight Years in Jail.

WOODSTOCK, July 24.—A. S. Ball has received a telegram from the Attorney-General's Department notifying him that an order-in-council has been made discharging his client, Mrs. Nancy Legg, who has been confined in the jail since 1882, when she was arrested on a charge of infanticide. She will be taken to Michigan and cared for at the home of her son.

The girl, a young domestic, deposited her babe in a privy vault. She was weak-minded, but not sufficiently demented to warrant her incarceration in an asylum, and in consequence of her enfeebled health she was not sentenced to the penitentiary.

Cutting Wool Rates.

CHICAGO, July 24.—East-bound wool rates are apparently going to pieces. A week ago these rates were reduced from Chicago to the seaboard to the basis of 30 cents per hundred pounds to New York and 55 cents to Boston, to meet the competition of one of the southern routes. It has since been discovered that some lines have been quoting the same rates from the Missouri River that are in effect from Chicago. The eastern roads have now issued a circular announcing a rate of 40 cents from the Mississippi River to New York, and 45 cents to Boston.

WEDDED A REVOLVER.

Suicide of a Bridegroom while Dressing for the Marriage Ceremony.

OSCEOLA, Fla., July 24.—Tragic unanimity was shocked this morning by news from Ponce that G. Tate Carr had shot himself through the right temple and was not expected to live. The surprise was increased as he had gone down last night to be married this morning to Miss Rubie Weston. The nuptial ceremony was to have taken place several months ago, but owing to some important phosphate deals in which he was engaged it was postponed. Yesterday Carr was busy all day making final arrangements for his marriage. Rev. J. B. Levy was engaged to perform the ceremony and took the train to Romeo, 21 miles distant. To the family of Dr. Weston he said, knowing how busy Carr was, that he did not doubt he would come out in a private conveyance or on a special engine. He was correct, for at 3 o'clock Carr arrived on a special engine, provided through the kindness of Superintendent Mann, who, learning the urgency of the case, made a voluntary offer of transportation.

The marriage was to have taken place at 9½ this morning, breakfast to follow, and then the couple were to go on an extended northern tour. Will Weston, brother of the bride, assisted the groom to dress. His toilet nearly completed, Carr asked Weston to go into another room and get a pair of suspenders. While absent young Weston heard a shot, and returning found Carr on the bed with a pistol hole in his temple. It was found today that before Carr took the engine he applied to several parties for a pistol, saying it was some distance from the depot to Dr. Weston's residence, and he wanted something to protect himself in case of danger, and he got George Battie's pistol.

Carr was dealing in phosphate lands and the impression got out that he had made considerable money. He had engaged to buy a fine residence in Osceola. He informed the phosphate company last week that he had not paid for his residence, and said he could not pay for the lands as agreed, owing to failure to get funds. Yesterday afternoon he deeded to George R. Battie eighty acres of land near Blue Springs, with the understanding that the latter was to sell the same or make a loan on it. In the letter of instructions occurs this passage: "Well, George, I am in the vicinity of two failures, neither of which I am directly responsible for, though I take the whole blame. If I could have gotten north I would have pulled through, but as I don't see how I can I will give it up." Carr was a bright young man, 24 years old, of good habits and fine character.

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

Upset in the Bay—To Bore for Gas—The Mimico Conduit.

HAMILTON, July 24.—Four young men were upset while rowing on the lake last night. They clung to the boat and finally reached shore in an exhausted condition.

The yacht Petrel capsized in the bay last evening. Hugh Hooper, who was sailing the boat, was rescued by Mr. E. Jarvis.

The 1500-foot iron conduit pipe opposite the new Mimico Asylum has been laid. The pipe is 16 inches in diameter and weighs 700 pounds per length of four feet.

N. R. Waddell, the solicitor for the Wentworth Gas & Oil Company, will leave for Pittsburg in a few days to consult with American experts on oil and gas. The opinions of Lieut.-Col. Grant, the well-known geologist of Hamilton, and Alf. R. C. Llewellyn, director of Geological Department, Ottawa, have been obtained, and from these opinions the promoters feel safe in going on with the work. Gas is what they are in search of principally, although the charter covers oil and salt. Early in September drilling will be commenced at some point in the county.

John Swinburne, the actor, who was arrested a week ago at the Grand Trunk station, where he was acting in an erratic manner, was discharged by the Police Magistrate this morning.

There is some kicking over the appointment of Dr. Olmsted as resident physician at the hospital, the salary of $1500 being the chief cause of complaint.

An officer of the inland revenue department has called upon all the cigar dealers in the city, and served them with the following notice: "You are hereby informed that by the amendment made to section 38 of the inland revenue act during the last session of parliament, it is required that all packages containing cigars shall be destroyed as soon as the same are emptied." The penalty for neglect to comply with this regulation is a fine of $200, and it applies to all people who buy cigars in boxes. The regulation will act particularly against dealers who are in the habit of filling up the shelves in their stores with empty cigar boxes. Henceforth all the boxes in sight will be known to be full of cigars, or the revenue officers will know the reason why. It is said the regulations will be strictly enforced.

GUILTY OF MURDER.

A Verdict Against the Quebec Saloonkeeper and His Wife.

QUEBEC, July 24.—The jurors in the inquest on the bodies of the five victims of the late fire rendered this verdict:

"Death was caused by suffocation through the burning of a house, which house was set on fire by the prisoners July 17, and said prisoners are guilty of murder in the first degree."

Delamare and his wife were conducted to jail to await their trial at the first term of the Criminal Assizes.

A VINDICTIVE WOMAN.

Attempt by a Discharged Employee to Fire a New York Hotel.

NEW YORK, July 24.—An attempt was made to burn down the big Grand Union Hotel at 42d-street and Fourth-avenue this afternoon. At 3½ one of the hall boys discovered smoke issuing from the air shaft on the second floor of the building. He found a bundle of rags which had been placed on the sill of the shaft afire. The flames were extinguished by employes of the hotel without damage. At the time the fire occurred over 500 persons were in the hotel. The building is old and if a fire should once gain headway the conflagration would be destructive and loss of life probable. Investigation showed that the rag bundle had probably been put on the sill and fired by a vindictive scrub woman who had been reprimanded for misconduct.

The Colorado Washout.

DENVER, Col., July 24.—The washout on the Colorado Central railroad is the most disastrous that has occurred since the road was built. The loss is approximated at $350,000. The amount of track washed out covers a distance of 30 miles. The iron bridge at the forks of the creek looks like a bundle of wire, it has been so tangled up.

Attempted Suicide in Jail.

LONDON, Ont., July 24.—Thomas Hastings, an old man, made a desperate attempt to end his career at the jail some time during last night, using a rusty old knife which he got possession of from another prisoner. Gashes had been made at the side and in front of the neck, but they are not very deep. It was impossible for Hastings to have further injured himself with the kind of an instrument he used. The man is very weak from loss of blood, but it is thought that he will recover.

The Seawing Was Overturned.

RED WING, Minn., July 24.—Government inspectors have secured the names of 214 persons who were on board the illfated steamer Seawing. The steamer and barge were allowed by law to carry only 175 persons.

A $10,000 Fire at Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 24.—Fire this evening destroyed the drygoods store of John Delisle, 573 St. Catharine-street, and damaged the grocery and saloon adjoining. Three families were burned out of house and six others had premises more or less damaged. Loss $10,000

The Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, JULY 25, 1890.

It has been discovered by the Mail that while New Brunswick sends a majority of Conservatives to the Commons, it gave in 1887 a popular majority to the Liberals of 213. It is very certain that a redistribution will not be thought necessary in that province; the soil is not adapted to the culture of the gerrymander.

They are having a family fight in Kent, New Brunswick. Four Conservatives are running for the seat made vacant by the elevation of Mr. Landry to the bench. Among the quartette is, however, a Liberal, but a Tory for revenue, we suppose, in the contest, and his chances are said to be the best. Sir John can comfortably drive a party hack, but when it comes to managing a four-in-hand he is nowhere. The government only endorse one of the Tory candidates.

The editor of The Drygoods Economist in New York has given in that newspaper an account of his recent experience in Europe in regard to the McKinley bill. He says, among other things, that Germany and the rest of the Governments of Europe, will, if driven to it by the McKinley bill, "unite in the most rigid retaliation ever known in commercial war, and will reduce our exports to a degree we do not now dream of." The feeling in the manufacturing cities of the Continent, as well as Great Britain and Ireland, he describes as "intensely bitter." Which goes to show the childish folly of governments bandying trade restrictions. Common sense suggests that free trade, would be the best for all. A simple tariff for revenue would leave less money in the hands of a government to squander, in indirect bribery to constituencies, upon otherwise unnecessary work. The simplest way to make a man (and the same applies to a government) economical is to keep him rather short of money.

Peterborough is rapidly approaching the time when street railways will have to be constructed, and a motive power will be one of the first considerations. With abundant power for developing electricity, there is reason to believe that that power would be the preferable. An incident which goes to show the difference in cost between animal and electric traction is reported from a town in Lancashire, England. A breakdown occurred in the insulation of an electric line and horses had to be resorted to temporarily to draw the cars. During the month when the horses were employed, the average cost a week was equal to $585, but during the similar periods of time previous to the hitch and since, the the cost of electrical working has not exceeded $225. This is a very striking difference in the cost of working street cars, and it must be remembered that the cost of producing the electricity by steam power, as was doubtless the case in Lancashire, is much greater than it would be in Peterborough with water power. This would make the results much more striking in favour of electricity.

Mr. Alex. Staveley Hill, Q.C., M.P., has been visiting British Columbia for the purpose of gathering information concerning the Behring Sea troubles. Mr. Hill has taken a prominent part in the discussions in the Imperial Parliament upon these questions, and is returning home with much information gathered during his visit to the Pacific Province. He believes in protecting British interests in those seas and believes that England is going to take a firmer stand upon these matters, and he believes Britain's position is a sound one, both as regards the seizures of the United States and Russia. In sketching the history of the troubles, he pointed out that in 1886 and 1887 the Americans seized several vessels, but none in 1888, renewing them in the following year. This year they seem to have fallen back upon the policy of 1888. "I think we have good ground for claiming recompense for injury done by American and Russian seizures, and I think Britain will resent any further seizures." There were now six British warships on the Pacific coast under Admiral Hotham's flag, the "War Sprite" being the last added to the fleet. The feeling in British Columbia is very strong upon this matter, and they think they should not be interfered with in the exercise of their rights. As to the feeling of the American Government, Mr. Hill thinks that they do not feel their case to be as strong as at one time they thought it to be.

Canadians in the States.

Canadians who emigrated from Ontario principally and settled in Northern Dakota have had their visions of western comfort and plenty rudely dispelled. After a hard struggle they found themselves last autumn face to face with starvation and a long severe winter before them. Accounts of their deplorable condition and their appeals for help were published in the papers at the time. Somehow or another they managed to get through the long dreary winter. Those who had enough means left the country and either returned to Ontario or went northward to Manitoba. Those who remained have a fair crop prospect this season, but it seems that owing to a government tax on elevators, the owners thereof refuse to store the settlers' grain. The effect of this will be that they will be compelled to sell their grain for whatever price may be offered, which, it is said, will leave them as poor and almost as badly off as they were last year. It is not surprising, therefore, that many more of these Dakota Canadians are preparing to leave a country where the natural difficulties of securing a livelihood are increased by oppressive imposts and where they are at the mercy of unscrupulous speculators. Such is the picture presented of Canadian settlers in the much-lauded Western lands of the United States. Now let us turn to the East. The manufacturing towns of New England have for the last sixteen years attracted a large emigration of French Canadians. As a rule these people prospered in their new homes. At all events they have had regular employment and were contented. But a change is coming over their condition. Owing to the New England States having no coal mines and being cut off from their natural source of supply of this indispensable article in the maritime provinces of the Dominion, by the tariff, their manufactories are being compelled one after another to shut down. Last week one of the largest concerns in New England, the Moen & Washburn Wire Works, purchased land in Illinois, whither the company will remove its works. Other concerns are doing likewise, going some South and others West. Thus it appears that the time must soon come when the busy manufacturing towns of New England will be as deserted as its farms, and the French Canadians will have to emigrate further or return to Canada. The latter alternative is by no means likely to be chosen. But, however that may be, the experience and prospects of the Canadian settlers in Dakota and of their compatriots in New England should be a warning to those at home that they may do worse by going to the States than by staying at home. —Star.

ANGEL OR DEVIL?

Contrasting Opinions About Woman by Men of All Ages.

Heine: "Every man who marries is like the Doge who weds the Adriatic Sea; he knows not what he may find therein—treasures, pearls, monsters, unknown storms."

Balzac: "Woman is a most charming creature, who changes her heart as easily as she does her gloves."

Victor Hugo: "Women detest the serpent through a professional jealousy."

Thackeray: "A good woman is the loveliest flower that blooms under heaven."

Punch: "The proper study of mankind is woman."

Socrates: "Trust not a woman when she weeps, for it is her nature to weep when she wants her will."

Thackeray: "A woman's heart is just like a lithographer's stone. What is once written upon it can not be rubbed out."

George Sand: "Love is the virtue of women."

Fleming: "He who trusts women draws water with pitchers full of holes."

Shakespeare:

She is mine own,
And I as rich in having such a jewel,
As twenty seas, if all their sands were pearl,
The waters nectar and the rocks pure gold.

Franklin: "He that takes a wife takes Care."

Goëz:

He who marries once may be
Pardoned his infirmity;
He who marries twice is mad.

Shakespeare:

Women are frail,
Ay, as the glasses where they view themselves.

Dryden:

As for the women, though we scorn and flout 'em
We may live with, but cannot live without 'em.

Voltaire: "Ideas are like beards—men never have any until they grow up, and women none at all."

Dumas: "Some women advocate platonic love, but none practice it."

Shakespeare: "Frailty, thy name is woman."

Jeremy Taylor: "Woman, the precious porcelain of human clay."

Chesterfield: "Very ugly or very beautiful women should be flattered on their understanding, and mediocre ones on their beauty."

Beaconsfield: "The girl of the period—she sets up to be natural and is only rude; mistakes insolence for innocence; says everything that comes to her lips, and thinks she is gay when she is only giddy."

Proverbs xii. 4: "A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband."

Milton:

It is for that such outward ornament
Was lavish'd on their sex, that inward gifts
Were left for haste unfinished.

S. Levi: "Beware of girls with red hair."

Goethe: "Happy is the man who possesses a virtuous wife; his life is doubled."

Victor Hugo: "Men are woman's playthings, women are the devil's."

De Prades: "I would not enter heaven if I thought the woman I adored on earth was not there."

George D. Prentice: "If a man is happily married his 'rib' is worth all the other bones of his body."

Virgil: "Woman is ever a fickle and changeable creature."

Tennyson: "Man dreams of fame while woman wakes to love."

Moliere: "It is more difficult to rule a wife than a kingdom."

Lord Chesterfield: "Women are to be talked to as below man and above children."

Richter: "Love lessens woman's delicacy and increases man's."

Beaconsfield: "Talk to women as much as you can. This is the best school. This is the way to gain fluency, because you need not care what you say, and had better not be sensible."

Seward: "The porch of a temple in the interior of Japan has this inscription. "Neither horses, cattle nor women admitted here."

Anna C. Steele: "Women are generally consistent in their insincerity, if in nothing else."

Bulwer Lytton: "Oil and water—women and a secret—are hostile properties."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

STONY LAKE CAMPERS

WILL FIND AT

JUNIPER ISLAND STORE

A full assortment of Groceries, Canned Goods and Campers' Supplies generally—a first class stock, fresh and reliable, and at Peterborough prices. The popularity of this store last year and the favor with which it was received—has induced us to enlarge the building and lay in a much larger stock this season so that campers may be saved the trouble and annoyance of bringing their supplies from town and other places, as they can be equally as well served by us. Being centrally situated, it is easy of access—the Steamer passing close to the Island both entering and leaving Stony Lake.

Our Story.

The Song of the Sea.

Their world was a world of enchantment:
A wonder of luminous light
Came out with a flaring of carmine,
From all the black spaces of night:
The music of morn was as blithesome
And cheery as music could be:
But all through the dawn and the daybreak
I mourned for the song of the sea.

They showed me the marvellous flowers
And fruits of their sun-beaten lands;
They said, "Here are vine-tangled valleys;
Forget ye the barren white sands:
For a weariness urt to the spirit
The dash of the breakers must be;
So dwell ye beside our blue waters;
Forget the sad song of the sea."

And I wrapped me about in the sunlight,
On the marge of a dimpling stream,
And there in a tangle of lilies,
I wove me a wonderful dream:
And a song of my dreamland went floating
Far up where the angles must be,
But deep in its under vibrations
I heard the sweet song of the sea.

With the dew in his locks all a-glitter,
The Prince of the Daytime lay dead;
For the silver-white lance of the twilight
Smote off the gold crown from his head;
And the Princess of Night came to woo him,
Her lights all about him to hang;
And a nightingale screened in the thicket
His song to the slumberer sang.

And the stream from the tangle of lilies
Came winding its way through the sedge;
And a silvery nocturne it rippled
Among the tall flags on its edge:
But its ballads I can would have given,
For the sleep-wooing sea voices' lull,
And the nightingale's song would have hart ened
For a desolate cry of a gull.

Their world was a world of enchantment,
And they laughed with the laughter of scorn,
When I turned me away from its beauty
In the light of the luminous morn;
But I heard a grand voice in the distance
Insistently calling to me,
And I rose with a jubilant spirit
And followed the song of the sea.

—Belford's Magazine.

A REVOLUTIONARY LASS.

"Father, your breakfast is ready now."

It is the morning of the 19th of April, 1672, and though Dorothy Harris's voice is as calm as usual, the glow brought into her cheeks two hours before by Paul Revere's startling news has not yet died away.

No answer comes to her summons, so she hurries down the path to the barn, but the very thought of breakfast vanishes as she hears Neighbor Hosmer's voice in excited conversation with her father. "——an' you're to take these papers to Isaac Davis, in Acton, and tell him the regulars are on the road here from Lexington.

So they're really coming," says Harris, compressing his lips sternly. "To destroy the ammunition, I suppose. In that case there's no time to be lost in getting this cart to the village, for every bit of powder will be needed. You will have to take it Ren ben either to the court-house or to Major Buttrick's. I must be off at once."

"Will there be fighting, father?" Dolly asks, as he bends from his saddle to give her a farewell kiss.

"God only knows," he answers, "if the reports from Lexington be true we have a terrible day before us. You had best not stay here alone," he adds. "Row down to the Manse and stop with your Uncle William till the red-coats leave the town," and he rides swiftly away.

Dolly gazes after him wistfully till he is out of sight, and then turns to Reuben.

"Won't you come in to breakfast, Neighbor Hosmer?" she says, "or can't you spare the time?"

"No," he answers. "As your father says, the powder may be wanted at any moment. I only wish there was more of it," glancing regretfully over his shoulder at the few kegs. "This is so little compared with what those rascally red-coats will have.

"Good-bye, Dolly, you'd better leave the house as soon as you can. It's after five now."

For the next two hours Dolly is busy with her household cares, but now the last pan is scoured, the last dish washed and put in its place on the shelf in the pantry, and with a tired sigh she sits down there among the boxes and barrels to rest.

Her only companion a large gray cat, rubs affectionately against her homespun gown, and purrs loudly, as if to make amends for her inability to talk matters over with this troubled little maiden.

"Oh, Tabitha!" says Dolly, sorrowfully, burying her face in the soft fur. "I'm afraid things are going very, very wrong! Those terrible Britishers! How can we keep them out of the town with so few men and so little to do with? Well, we must not sit here moping. I must go to the Manse, and you shall come, too, but, oh, how I wish we could help in some way. Why, stop, what is this?"

She pushes the puss at cat from her knee and drags aside a heavy box, disclosing a stout wooden keg, whose contents are well known to her.

"Oh, Tabitha, Tabitha, 'tis gunpowder! Father must have forgotten it in his hurry and every little is needed he says. What can we do?"

Tabitha sniffs suspiciously at the cask, and then comes with a loud purr to rub herself again against her little mistress's knee, but Dolly is too troubled now to notice her.

"He said to the court-house or to Major Buttrick's," she muses.

"I could get it to the Buttrick's, not through the village, for I might meet some of the red-coats. Besides it is too heavy, but I could easily carry it down to the river, and then I would'nt be more than fifteen minutes in rowing to the village.

"The only trouble would be the south bridge. If the Britishers were there they'd surely never let me row under their very noses with a keg of gunpowder. I must think of some way to hide it.

"I could put the keg in the chest; they might think it was clothes or something, and I can tie it up with a stout cord, and——

No time for further words. It is half-past seven now and Dolly fears to delay longer, so with great care she places the keg in the chest and packs straws about it to keep it steady.

It is fortunate that the river is near the house for two stone is no light weight for a fourteen year old girl to carry. Dolly's sturdy arms ache, and the short curls on her forehead are moist with her exertions by the time she gets the big box safely in the bottom of the boat.

Tabitha curls herself up, beside it, but Dolly is not yet satisfied.

It is a suspicious looking cargo.

Once more she looks reflectively about her. Spring is fully in advance this year. The grass is green and the cherry trees are white with fragrant blossoms.

"This is not a very thrifty thing to do," she says gricfully at the cheery trees. "I shall have to heap blossoms over the box. If she is in a hurry now much about country customs they will not think it strange I should make way with so many good cherry trees."

Breaking off large branches she throws them in a careless heap over the box.

"There, Tabby," she says, with much satisfaction. "It does very well as long as you and I are the only ones in the boat."

She pushes out into the stream and rows steadily for several minutes. Then, as she turns the head in the river, she suddenly rests on her oars, her heart beating wildly, for there on the very bridge under which she must pass she sees the glittering bayonets and scarlet coats of a group of English soldiers.

Dolly hesitates only a moment, then she continues the course and is nearly under the bridge when a peremptory voice arrests her.

"Stop, my lass, we must have your boat for a time to take this gentleman down the river to Mr. Rice's."

"I'll not lend my boat for any such purpose," she answers back stoutly, continuing to row.

"Mr. Rice is a Tory," she adds, as the boat glides swiftly under the bridge.

But as it emerges from the other side its progress is checked. A red-coat leaning over the low railing has thrust his bayonet into the stern, and the boat comes to a sudden standstill.

Dolly raises her pretty, flushed face to those above her, and, with flashing eyes, cries angrily: "Let go my boat at once! What right have you to hinder me like this?"

"A little rebel, I see," says the offender, with a loud laugh. "Nevertheless, we must have your boat for Capt. Chandos, and that at once."

Dolly's heart is beating widely for the safety of her gunpowder, and Capt. Chandos, seeing the troubled look in her blue eyes, fancies she is frightened, and come hastily forward.

"My pretty lass," he says, with a reassuring smile, "you have no cause to fear. I merely wish to get to Mr. Rice's as soon as possible: I'll only need your boat for half an hour.

Dolly has been turning matters over swiftly in her mind, and she now answers:

"Well, then, if I must, I'll take you down; but that man," glancing contemptuously at the first speaker," shall not step foot into this boat."

A loud laugh greets this rejoinder, and Capt. Chandos, lowering himself into the, boat, cries merrily. "This will be better than having you for the skipper, Parker, take your bayonet out." The boat is freed, and Dolly, seizing her oars, bends again to her task. Her quick brain has already furnished her with a plausible story to account for the powder, so when Capt. Chandos, catching sight of the box, exclaims, "Why, what have you here?" she answers: "That's grandmother's silver. I am taking it to Aunt Hetty Buttrick's to hide till the red-coats leave the town, for we were warned they would take everything they could lay their hands to. That's the reason I wouldn't give my boat to your soldiers." Then she drops her eyes hastily, for this is the first lie she has ever told, and though it is for a good cause, it troubles her Puritan conscience not a little.

Capt. Chandos leans back with an amused laugh.

"Poor little lass," he says gayly. "To think she would have given me all this trouble to conceal her household goods from the grasping British. Why my dear we don't want to touch your personal property. Good King George has only sent us over to keep the peace. 'Tis shocking," he adds warmly, "that the very children here should have been taught disloyalty to their sovreign." Dolly stops rowing abruptly her New England blood on fire.

"Yankee children don't have to be taught their rights," she cries hotly. "We know what we should have and your good King George will know it before long."

Capt. Chandos bows with mock solemnity.

"Your pardon, my little lady, for those thoughtless remarks. I forgot for the moment that I was addressing a staunch Whig. Let us not discuss this dangerous topic further; but turn to more congenial subjects. By your leave I'll light my pipe.

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,709,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $318,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage [of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,884,376	3.07
Confederation	17,574,528	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,088,527	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,617	10.36
North American	8,470,220	10.63
Temperance and General	2,964,972	17.94
Citizens	2,097,958	23.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,723,100	30.12
London Life	1,644,285	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent."

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons is will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

The Dangers of Sailing.

There was a good wind for sailing on the lake last night, and several canoes were skimming through the water. A craft was struck by a squall while rounding Burnham's point and upset. The occupants, after being immersed, pulled themselves up on the bottom of the canoe and floated until rescued by a couple of Frenchmen.

An Explanation.

With reference to a police court paragraph the other day, Mr. Robt. White wishes an explanation made. Peter Lynch, the young man fined for killing his ducks, stated that he took that means of getting even with Mr. White for having discharged him without paying up arrears of wages. Mr. White says he owed the boy nothing, but that their accounts had been more than squared by his maintenance of Lynch during the latter's illness of several weeks in the hospital.

Equal Rights.

The topic of the day and that which we all want is not only Equal Rights in a political sense of the word, but in many others. Here are people throwing away their hard earned money, with unprincipled houses who do not as much as thank them for it. Why should they do it? Why not call on W. J. Morrow, where you are received courteously, your money placed to a good advantage and you are placed on a solid basis in future for buying cheap groceries. dw

Mercantile Assessment.

The difficulty of ascertaining the amount of the personal property of merchants, generally, has long been a chief care with the assessors, and some method of fair assessment has been anxiously awaited. A bill passed recently in the legislature by Mr. Ross, of Huron, provides that "In the case of persons carrying on a mercantile business, the council may pass by-laws substituting a business tax for the taxes on so much of the business, providing that such business tax does not exceed seven and a half per cent. of the annual rental of the premises in which the business is carried on"

A Busy Official.

The Dominion Oddfellow says:—Grand Master R. W. Bell has for the past few weeks had a busy time, and no doubt he will be kept busy till after Grand Lodge meets. On Wednesday evening, 16th inst., he visited Nipissing Lodge, No. 79, Uxbridge, and cheered their hearts by his judicious visit. On Thursday he attended the decoration services at Oshawa, and visited a joint meeting of Phœnix and Corinthian Lodges in the evening, at which a most interesting time was spent. On Monday evening, 21st, he visited a joint meeting of Cataraqui and Kingston Lodges, and visited the Grand Encampment on Tuesday—a pretty busy week for a medical man who has a large and ever-extending practice. Bro. Bell well illustrates what a man may accomplish when his heart is in his work.

Water for Man and Beast.

The new drinking fountain ordered from E. H. Olmstead, Hamilton, by the town council, arrived this morning and was unloaded at the town clerk's office. It is made of cast iron, set upon a stone base, 4 feet 9 inches high. At the top water flows from a pipe proruding from a lion's mouth, and attached thereto by a chain is a bell-shaped iron cup for drinking purposes. The horse trough is a big oval shape basin surrounding the central post, 3 ft. 4 in. by 2 ft. 4 in. in dimensions. At the foot of the fountain is a small trough for dogs to lap water from. The fountain is to be kept constantly supplied with fresh, running water. It is being placed in front of the police station If it fulfils its requirements the council will probably order more fountains. They cost $50 each.

Still Hunting.

The Bobcaygeon Independent says:—When a Parliamentary candidate hustles around just previous to the election, it is nothing but natur-l, but when a member of Parliament hustles around after election as before it is decidedly surprising. And that is the case with Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., for West Peterborough, who is earning for himself a pre-eminent position as a perfectly irrepressible hustler. On Wednesday Mr. Stratton passed through the village on his way from the north, where he had been arranging for the expenditure of the Government grants to the roads. Some two thousand five hundred dollars are to be placed on the roads of the district by the Crown Lands Department which will be an assistance to a class of men well deserving of Provincial aid.

Ontario Association of Architects.

The EXAMINER congratulates Mr. William Blackwell of this town, architect, on receiving the appointment of a member of the first council of the Ontario Association of Architects. This Association was incorporated at the last session of the Ontario Legislature for "the better protection of the public interests in the erection of public and private buildings in the Province of Ontario, and in order to enable persons requiring professional aid in architecture, to distinguish between qualified and unqualified arthitects and to ensure a standard of efficiency in the persons practising the profession of architecture in the Province, and for the further advancement of the art of architecture." The council is composed of nine persons appointedby the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, who are required to meet for organization in Toronto within one month from the date of appointment.

The Italian Must Go.

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Dawson,—That the Chief of Police notify the owner of the peanut stand at the corner of George and Hunter streets to remove from that position to the market square or to some other place to be fixed by the chairman of Streets and Bridges; and that the moneys paid to the town for the privilege be returned to him.—Carried.

When Mr. Frank Anthony, the proprietor and manager of the peanut stand in question, read the above paragraph in the EXAMINER'S report of town council proceedings, he fairly exploded with wrath. He has been stationed for years at the corner of Hunter and George streets, and came to consider himself as having a special claim upon that particular portion of the town. "Men may come, and men may go, but I stay on forever," was the constant burden of his song. But now the Italian must move on like the rest of mortals Despite the oceans of expostulation and entreaty with which he flooded the town councillors and other men whom he eagerly buttonholed for the purpose of gaining their vote and influence, the edict remains unaltered. Frank must go, and with him an old and familiar landmark will be removed The place which knew the palatial and aristocratic looking peanut stand so well in the past, will soon know it no more. Such is life.

Our Town Schools.

A Peterborough correspondent writes the Bobcaygeon Independent:—It may interest some of your European and foreign subscribers and readers to learn what a small provincial town in Ontario does in the way of educating its children. This town has a population of only a few thousand people,—the disk lot it includes, town and all, does not number more than fourteen thousand,and yet we support a Collegiate Institute, and a large number of excellent schools, in which every child is educated free. You readers in Great Britain will learn with astonishment that this little town of Peterborough maintains free educational establishments at an expense of $22,000. This large sum is partly paid by the ratepayers and partly by the Provincial Government. The Collegiate Institute costs this year $8,000, of which $5,500 is paid by the ratepayers, and $1,300 by the Government. The public schools cost $14 000, of which $750 is Government grant. The total annual taxation the people of this town impose on themselves for the purpose of giving free education to the whole of the children is $17,500. This information may interest your English readers, for in England the people appear to live in great ignorance, have no free educational system such as ours, generally speaking are infinitely inferior in social arrangements, and it would do the English much good to come to Peterborough and see our way of doing things.

Dr. Davies' Organ Recital.

Dr. Davies gave his second organ recital in St. John's church on Thursday evening. There was a large audience present, considering the threatening state of the weather and the large number absent from town. A noticeable feature of the audience was that it was composed of ladies and gentlemen in town recognized as possessors of musical taste and instincts, and comprised representatives from nearly all the different church congregations in town. These doubtless came to enjoy a musical treat and they were not by any means disappointed. The programme presented by Dr. Davies with the skill of a master, consisted of nine numbers, all of classical excellence, and of the most varied character and style. Dr. Davies performance of them was marked by a fine appreciation of these characteristics; his expression was most delicate and apropos, and this, combined with the greatest accuracy and manual and pedal dexterity, gave great charm to his execution. His appreciation of the beauties of his selections was equalled by his happy facility in giving them expression. The following copy of the programme presented will give some idea of the pleasure given to those who were present to St. John's last night:—

Organ Concerto	Rink
Meditation Religieuse	Camille Saint Saens
Allegretto Piacevole (from a violin sonata)	Beethoven
Grand March, "Leonore"	Raff
Berceuse	Delbruck
Bourree (fire music)	Handel
"The Phantom" (Characteristic March)	Spindler
Andante Expressivo	Mendelsshon
Concert Fantasia, "Dinorah"	Meyerbeer
Marche Triomphale, Opus 34	Davies

Personal.

Rev. B. C. Jones was formally inducted on Tuesday into the pastoral charge of the First Presbyterian church, Port Hope.

Mr. Geo. A. Cox seems to be quite a musical Maecenas. He was one of those instrumental in the establishment of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and yesterday he was elected Hon. President of the Haslam Vocal Society, a new organization, or, rather, a reorganization of the Toronto Vocal Society.

The U. S. Wheat Crop.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The Farmers' Review says:—The prophecies of a shortage in the winter wheat crop are confirmed by the late reports of private correspondents relative to the yield and condition of the grain. Winter killing and the ravages of insects reduced the crop in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri and Mississippi. In Kansas drought prevented the perfect development of the berry, while the wheat fields of the Pacific coast, as also those of the Southern and Eastern States, were drowned out by the excessive rainfall experienced during the early spring months. It may safely be said that the average condition of the entire crop when harvesting commenced was 20 per cent. below the average. The Review estimates a total of 272,344,436 bushels as the entire wheat crop of the United States, but adds that, considering the low condition of wheat at harvesting time the merchantable product will be considerably less than that figure.

A Just Cause for Complaint.

The County School Inspector's Injustice to the People of Norwood.

The Norwood Register this week publishes the list of candidates at the recent entrance examinations, and appends the following remarks:—

"The above detailed report was furnished the Peterborough DAILY EXAMINER of Monday, while the people of Norwood and surrounding country, where the great majority of the candidates reside, were supplied with a meagre statement, not too legibly written, on an antiquated sheet of foolscap, and HUNG IN THE POSTOFFICE—a piece of insolence which the people of this locality don't propose tolerating, and which will be brought to the attention of the proper authorities."

The EXAMINER has a common cause of complaint with the Register. We were not favoured with an original list, but reproduced it from the Review, which is given the preference because of the stand the EXAMINER has taken in exposing the incompetence of the county school inspector, while the other newspapers have to shift for themselves. The inspector and examining teachers in Peterborough make it a point to furnish both local papers with examination results at the same time. No favour is shown either side. But in the county it is different. The EXAMINER scarcely expected to receive the entrance examination results from the County Inspector, for it knew the man too well. We have always contended—and this manifest unfairness to the newspapers, not in accordance with his own peculiar views, will lend confirmation to the charge—that the school inspector for the county is totally unfit for the position. From all parts of the county complaints are heard of his incompetency, and when to this serious fault is added a strong spice of partizanship, it is clearly apparent that something should be done to remedy the evil as promptly as possible. Complaints are not heard, however, as frequently as they would be did not teachers have the reasonable fear that the Inspector would use the power vested in his position to make it "hot" for them. Numbers of teachers in the county dare not utter a word of protest for fear of an unjust report being made against their schools.

It is time that this state of affairs was rectified. The Register has struck the right key. It is to be hoped the note of warning will have a good effect.

Lakefield "Chronicles."

On Tuesday next the members of Court Warsaw, No. 220, C.O.F., will run an excursion to Stony Lake, via Lakefield and str Mary Ellen.

The villagers of Buckhorn are so elated over the success of the Orange celebration on the 12th, that they have decided to hold a civic holiday some time in August or September.

The Plaiser Camp, of Pittsburg, arrived in Lakefield Thursday on their way to Stony Lake. Among its members are Mr. Ed. C. Carter and brother Harry, formerly of Lakefiled, also Dr. F. M. Boyle and George B. Clark. The expect to be in camp, Juniper Island, about 4 or 5 weeks and have an elegant time. They are all musicians and will be glad to entertain visitors and friends while in camp.

Late on Saturday evening or early on Sunday morning the store of Messrs. R. Graham & Son was burglariously entered. The content of the safe, which fortunately was not locked, was thoroughly overhauled, but as no cash had been left there the burglar or burglars contented themselves with taking a few pounds of tobacco and other small articles, also clearing the tills of small silver and coppers. Entrance was gained by prying open a back window.

Mr. Wm. Leahy, late manager of the Balmoral hotel, Peterborough, has succeeded to the St. Lawrence hotel, recently occupied by Capt. Dion. Mr. Leahy took possession last Saturday morning and is now giving the premises a thorough overhauling. "Billy" graduated in the art of "mixing drinks" in the village, and from his extensive experience since, knows how to run a hotel. He purposes making several alterations in the hotel that will add to the comfort and convenience of guests, and no doubt will meet with a fair share of public patronage.

True Blues at Norwood.

Preparations for Derry Day.

The Norwood Register says the Brittannia lodge, No. 20, L.T.B.A., Norwood, in conjunction with the lodges of the Peterborough district, have about completed arrangements for the celebration of the anniversary of the closing of the gates of Derry, in Norwood, on Tuesday, the 12th of August. Over one hundred invitations have been extended and already a large number have been accepted. Lodges are expected from Toronto and all intermediate towns and the demonstration gives promise of being one of the best ever held in East Peterborough. A number of fine brass and fife and drum bands will take part in the monster street parade at 1:30 o'clock p.m. During the afternoon speeches will be delivered in Grover's grove by Grand Master Newman and Grand Secretary Ingraham, L.T.B.A.; E. F. Clarke, M.P.P., Mayor of Toronto; Clark Wallace, M.P., Grand Master G.L.O.N.A., the local clergymen and others A special train over the C.P.R from Toronto will convey excursionists and visiting lodges from the west at a reduced rate. The local lodge has a splendid working committee in charge of the celebration and no stone is being left unturned to make it a huge success.

News Nuggets.

—"Labouring John" Sullivan was fined $2 for being drunk.

—The Street and Bridge Committee meet to-night to open tenders.

—Since 1887 the municipal indebtedness of the town of Cobourg has been reduced by over $100,000.

—The Cobourg electric light company wants to buy out the gas works of that town. This is objected to on the ground that it would leave the town at the mercy of a monopoly.

—Several young men were before the Beak this morning for not paying their statute labour tax. They were all let off on paying costs. Future offenders may not be dealt with so leniently.

—The horse races at Port Hope were concluded Thursday afternoon, Mayflower winning the final heat of the open trot, Grey Tobe took second money and Blake third.

—The Ontario Government has commenced the building of the new dam, the Independent says, at the foot of Gull Lake on the head of Mazenazga River. It will cost some thousands of dollars to build it.

—Belleville is moving for a public park for the city. The island in the harbour is spoken of as a possible site—the park to be approached by a floating walk.

—On Wednesday afternoon Prof. Holgate, late of Albert College, Belleville, was united in marriage to Miss Georgina Burdett, of Newburgh, a late teacher in the College. Rev. D. O. Crossley performed the ceremony. The couple have left for Clark's University, Mass., where Prof. Holgate will take a post graduate course.

—A grand civic tournament will be held at Cobourg on August 18th and 19th. One striking feature in the tournament programme for the 19th will be the co-operation of the benevolent brotherhoods and secret orders. Liberal prizes will be offered to uniformed encampments including the Militant Patriarchs and Knights of Sherwood Forest.

—A couple of practical men are in Cobourg for the purpose of interesting the farmers of that district in the growth of beet root for the production of sugar. They propose to establish a factory if the farmers co-operate with them.

An Encouraging Increase.

Statistical reports received from the various conferences of the Methodist Church show an encouraging increase. The membership returns are as follows:—Toronto, 37,728, an increase of 700; London, 27,254, an increase of 673; Bay of Quinte, 29,962, an increase of 787; Montreal, 34,156, an increase of 1,073; Guelph, 28,420, an increase of 128; Niagara, 26,814, an increase of 792. Total membership, 184,437, being an increase of 4,150.

A Montrealer's Gratitude.

PORTLAND, Me., July 24.—A wealthy Montreal man attempted to board a train at Old Orchard Beach to-day after it had started. He ran to the rear end of the baggage car and caught the railing, but lost his footing. As he was hanging to the railing he swung between the cars and was losing his grip when Frank E. Kelly, of South Berwick, a boy peddler, saw him and managed to pull him on board the train. When the man had recovered himself he asked the lad's name, and said he had saved his life. He promised to send him a cheque for $5 000 when he reached Montreal.

That War Cloud.

Again we are told that the war cloud over the Balkans is about to burst. As an item of news this announcement has become too monotonous. The world is getting weary waiting for that Balkan burst. Meantime the Emperor of Austria keeps his eye on the safety valve, the Emperor of Russia keeps firing up, and the Sultan keeps pumping cold water into the boiler. Viewed in this way the date of the explosion seems to depend on the amount of steam the Russian will be able to produce. He has a big shovel, fuel is plentiful and his arms are strong.

A TELEGRAPH WAR.

Attempt to Oust the Western Union From the Northern Pacific Lines.

ST. PAUL, July 24.—The suit brought by the United States Government against the Northern Pacific Railway and the Western Union Telegraph Company is much more far-reaching than appeared from a cursory glance over the complaint. The object is to wholly forfeit the right claimed by the Western Union under franchises alleged to have been derived from the Northern Pacific Railroad. The telegraph franchise in question extends over 2189 miles of railroad.

The proceeding also denies the right of the Western Union Telegraph Company to succeed to the rights and franchise of the Northwestern Telegraph Company of Kenosha, Wis.; The United States Telegraph Company, the Pacific Telegraph Company, the Overland Telegraph Company and a number of others, the lines of which are not specified.

The complaint alleges that the Northern Pacific had no right to enter into contract with telegraph companies; that it was a breach of public trust and a violation of the Northern Pacific's charter rights. In spite of this these contracts are still in effect, says the complaint, and the Northern Pacific Railroad has long ceased to operate or maintain a telegraph line for any public or commercial purposes, and has sought, and still seeks, to protect the defendant telegraph companies in their enjoyment and possession of their monopolies of such business.

It averred that the contracts are induced by corrupt considerations which render them void against public policy and a violation of the rights of the United States.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Fined For Assault. The Price of Whisky by the Glass to be Raised.

TORONTO, July 25.—Peter Ryan, the well-known politician, was yesterday fined $10 and costs or 30 days for the assault on Muldoon reported the other day.

The trouble in the Toronto Vocal Society has culminated in the formation by 54 members of that body of a new organization called the Haslam Vocal Society.

The hotelkeepers have decided to raise the price of whisky by the glass to 10 cents.

Robert Hay, ex-M.P. for Centre Toronto, died yesterday, aged 82.

In the Police Court, yesterday, Joseph Smith, a King-street car driver, was sent to the Central Prison for three months for stealing $3 from the fare boxes of the company on this route. Smith by some means had obtained possession of a key to the boxes and had been depleting the receipts quite considerably. This, however, was not the worst feature. He had eight duplicates made by a Queen-street west locksmith. Of these he sold six to other drivers at $1 each and two he gave away. When arrested he gave the names of the eight to Superintendent Franklin and in consequence there are eight vacant places on the King and McCaul-street lines. The men were dismissed, but they still retain the keys, and in consequence the locks in the fare boxes of all the bob tail cars will have to be changed at considerable expense.

The Proper Pitch.

The schooner George Moffat came ashore 28 years ago last June near Poplar Point South Marysburgh. She had a cargo of flour and peas, a portion of which was thrown overboard. Among other things thrown overboard was a barrel of tar. On June 17 last Joseph Grenier recovered in a seine net a barrel of tar which is supposed to be the identical one thrown overboard 28 years ago. The head of the barrel was broken and some of the tar had run out but the balance was none the worse. An old lady living in the neighborhood remembered distinctly the circumstance of the vessel coming ashore and losing the barrel of tar.—Cobourg Sentinel Star.

An Insane Woman Sets Fire to Her Clothing and Dies in Terrible Agony Projected Indian Industrial School at St. Boniface—Other Northwest News

WINNIPEG, July 25.—The first case of ticket scalping of the season came up before Justice Shelton at Calgary yesterday. The return part of a farmers' excursion ticket, issued to an Ontario farmer named Kelp, from Toronto to Calgary, was sold to Tom Cavan, who sold it to a third party for $22. Cavan, who pleaded innocence of the law, was fined $30

Yesterday morning at 6 o'clock a wealthy farmer, Thomas Latimer, was found by his hired man lying dead under his wagon 18 miles from his home at Portage la Prairie. Wednesday morning he went to town and was bringing a load of lumber home. When found the wagon was partly sagged to one side of the road. He evidently fell off and rolled under it. No marks were found to show the cause of death.

The verdict in the Ashdown-Free Press libel suit of $500 for plaintiff was set aside this morning by the full court, which found that the jury had disagreed. The appeal was not based on technicalities but was against the verdict on the merits.

Mrs. Enos Sanford, widow of a well known Methodist minister who died last spring, set fire to her clothes to-night with coal oil and received fatal injuries. Her mind has been upset for some time owing to her husband's death. She went to a closet and sprinkled oil on her clothes and lighting them ran to the house, in which the flames ignited the curtains. The neighbors extinguished the flames, but not before she was terribly burned. Her mind was apparently restored through her suffering and she made her will.

THE IDAHO IN A BAD WAY.

Making Water Fast and Not Likely to be Saved.

MONTREAL, July 25.—The stranding of the Dominion line steamship Idaho upon the unhospitable shores of Anticosti seems likely to prove one of the most costly wrecks for many years. Not only is the vessel herself a valuable one, being estimated as worth £50,000, but her cargo is one of the largest and most valuable that ever left Montreal upon any ship which met mishap. Many Montrealers are heavily interested in her, and news from the vessel is anxiously awaited.

Ill news invariably travels fast, and, peculiarly enough, sometimes outstrips even the electric telegraph. It was rumored round town yesterday afternoon that the vessel was rapidly filling with water, that her cargo was in much danger, and that the vessel was a total loss. A reporter went to the head offices of the Dominion line only to be told that the Messrs. Torrance had not received any other information beyond that published except the fact that the vessel's ballast tanks were filling with water, but that the cargo was in no immediate danger. They were, however, expecting news hourly. This was satisfactory to some extent, but it was unfortunately followed soon afterwards by news of a more serious nature.

A despatch from South Point, dated 9 p.m., said: "The steamship Idaho is making water fast and is not likely to be saved as there is a heavy ground swell on. The schooners Florence and Snow Queen of Quebec are alongside loading the cattle and cheese. The schooners Diver and Lady Belleau are expected in the morning. No cattle have been landed yet." A previous despatch brought the intelligence that she was laboring heavily, heading east, with a moderate list to seaward. She had driven in broadside over the Shandon reef a short distance. The crew were then all on board.

The Dominion line agents at once ordered extra assistance to be sent from Quebec, and the wrecking steamer Lake left there last evening with schooners, which should reach the scene of the disaster on Saturday morning. Orders have also been given for schooners to be sent to the wreck from Gaspe, and every effort will be made to save as much of the cargo as possible.

The Idaho's cargo, which consists of cattle, sheep, cheese and grain, is valued at $650,000 and is believed to be well covered by insurance in Montreal and western offices, a large portion of the grain being through shipments from Chicago. There are about 80,000 bushels of grain consigned by Crain & Baird and Norris & Carruthers, some 40,000 boxes of cheese, belonging nearly wholly to Montreal shippers, and 300 head of cattle. Of these 196 were shipped by Aikins & Flanigan of Toronto and 76 by Robert Bickerdike of Montreal. There are also on board 88 head of sheep belonging to Wilson & Verral of Toronto.

The Idaho is a steamer of 2400 tons register and 4000 tons actual capacity. She is 335 feet long, has a width of beam of 42 feet, and has triple expansion engines of 2000 horse power. She is a new vessel, having only been launched last autumn. She was chartered for the season by the Dominion line from the Pinkey & Sons Shipping Company of Sunderland, and until shortly was on the owner's line between England and the East Indies. Capt. Brotherton has made many trips to the St. Lawrence on other steamers.

Messrs. Kingman, Brown & Company, consignees of the cargo of coal of the steamship Thornholme, ashore near Riviere du Loup, have abandoned the cargo to the underwriters, all hope of saving the ship, which is being battered to pieces on the rocks, being abandoned.

The Erzeroum Riot

LONDON, July 26.—The News gives the following details of the recent riots at Erzeroum: The soldiery were ordered to disperse Armenians who were holding a meeting in a churchyard. The soldiers began a massacre of the Armenians and the Turkish populace joined in the attack. The shops and houses of the Armenians were pillaged. The sack lasted four hours. The British Consulate, at which on the same night a fete was being given for the benefit of the poor Armenians, was stoned and its gates and windows broken. The Consul and his family took refuge in the cellars of the building and the fete was abandoned. The American mission served as a refuge for 50 fugitives. Numbers of Armenians relying on the promises of Turks to escort them to places of safety were murdered in the streets. Fifty bodies have been found, mostly of persons who were bayonetted. 350 persons were wounded and 100 are missing.

The Dunlo Divorce Trial.

LONDON, July 25.—The trial of the divorce suit of Viscount Dunlo v Lady Dunlo (Belle Bilton, the concert hall singer) is proceeding before Judge Hannen. The court room is thronged, and the proceedings are interrupted by frequent bursts of laughter.

Detective Clark, a witness for the plaintiff, in his testimony gave it as his impression that Wertheimer, the co-respondent, kissed Lady Dunlo once when sitting near a window in the lady's house. Clark admitted, however, that he really did not see the kiss, nor did he hear it, but he detected giggling, which he construed to mean that a kiss had preceded it. Judge Hannen indicated considerable annoyance at the flimsy character of this evidence and indulged in a bit of sarcasm at the expense of the counsel for the prosecution. It was then proved that Wertheimer visited Lady Dunlo in her apartments in Hanover-square and elsewhere, but no evidence was produced to show he ever remained in them over night. On the contrary, several landladies appeared who testified to Lady Dunlo's perfect propriety while an inmate of their houses.

Another witness was Alexander Lumsden, dramatic agent, who obtained an engagement for Lady Dunlo and her sister in Manchester at $40 weekly. Lumsden swore that Wertheimer kissed Lady Dunlo four or five times in his presence, and, when playing on the piano together, he had frequently seen her head on Wertheimer's side, while upon one occasion in St. John's Wood he had detected the lady raising her cheek for her companion to kiss, while at the same time both were smoking cigarets and drinking champagne. When Mr. Lumsden got into the hands of Lady Dunlo's attorney, it was speedily discovered that his loquacity and excellent memory were sharpened by the fact that he had been paid a percentage on the Manchester engagement contract, and so, as he expressed it, he felt justified in giving his evidence against the lady. He admitted having told Wertheimer he had been treated badly, but denied saying that he could get a story from Lewis, attorney for Lord Chancelty, to swearing that he had seen Wertheimer in Lady Dunlo's bedroom.

The last witness to-day was Charles Nunn, formerly Wertheimer's coachman, who testified to having driven his master and Lady Dunlo in a cab and during the drive he noticed that his passengers were locked in each other's arms. The witness concluded his testimony with the appreciative remark that he saw no harm in that and would have done the same thing himself if he had enjoyed an opportunity. Judge Hannah expressed himself as deeply annoyed by the demonstrations of the spectators, and directed that a sufficient number only be admitted to-morrow to fill the seats, and said that he would clear the room if these theatrical displays continued.

Arnauts and Turks Fighting

LONDON, July 25.—A band of Arnauts recently made a night attack upon the Montenegrin village of Rogmore, surprising the inhabitants, many of whom were murdered. The Arnauts plundered the village and then left. Afterward the band was attacked by Turkish troops and in the fight which ensued 60 Arnauts were killed and many wounded.

A Clergyman of Acton Who Did Not Believe in Toggery at Funerals.

ACTON, July 26.—Following is an extract from the will of the late Rev. D. H. Cameron of this place:

"Considering the extravagance displayed by the community in general, and as a protest against it I direct that my body, when dead, shall be decently wrapped in bleached cotton, neatly prepared for the purpose, laid in a simple coffin made of pine, with no ornamentation, not as much as my name, and carried to my grave in a sleigh, if in winter, or a spring wagon, and laid in the grave without a shell; and that no monument or stone of any kind be put up to mark the place, unless some friend take a boulder from the field to mark the spot, and if he fancy to do so cut thereon the initial letters D. B. C."

The official supervisor's figures of Portland's (Me.) population are 35,675. There is general dissatisfaction, those in a position to estimate judging the actual population to be several thousands more than that.

BOLD DIAMOND ROBBERY.

A REMARKABLE SCHEME WORKED BY PHILADELPHIA PAWNBROKERS.

Big Haul of Brilliants—Inside History of One of the Boldest Swindles Ever Practiced in the United States and Its Compromise.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—There has recently come to light the inside history of one of the boldest diamond robberies ever attempted in this country. It was an attempt on the part of Philadelphia parties to steal from some New York Hebrews $60,000 worth of diamonds. The case was finally compromised and therefore the full circumstances, which follow, didn't become fully known.

In 1840, or thereabouts, there lived in this city a very bright young man, a Hebrew, who, from sheer ability, had won a great name as a diamond salesman. Having gained the confidence of a number of prominent people he embarked in the diamond business for himself. One day two men who ran a pawnbroker's establishment on Eighth-street, just below Chestnut, having approached the young man, unfolded to him a great scheme to buy up in New York the greatest quantity of diamonds he could get on credit.

The young diamond dealer was to effect as many purchases as practicable, paying in each case as little cash as possible. When he had made a purchase he was to telegraph his friends in Philadelphia how much cash he had paid in part payment, and they were immediately to deposit that much money to his credit in bank so that his check would be duly honored when presented.

The young diamond dealer carried out the plan. He succeeded in obtaining from six or seven large wholesale diamond dealers in New York diamonds worth $60,000, for which he advanced about $4000 cash. The diamonds were brought to this city and turned over to the pawnbrokers, who in about a month told the young diamond dealer he must fail.

The young diamond dealer was obedient. He went to the office of Lawyer James H. Shakespeare, on Sixth-street, and told that gentleman he wanted to assign for the benefit of his creditors, paying them ten cents on the dollar. Lawyer Shakespeare is far from being obtuse. He suspected that his client was not telling him the whole story. If his client did not have the diamonds what had become of the $60,000 which represented their value? Less than a month was a short period in which to get rid of that much money. The young diamond dealer had a ready story. While coming up on the cars from Baltimore some one, he alleged, had stolen his pocket-book, containing a large sum of money. On another occasion he had been enticed into a gambling den and lost there a considerable sum. Another large amount had been lost on horse racing.

Lawyer Shakespeare was plain spoken. "If that is the case, then," he said, "you are on the straight road to the penitentiary. Men will not accept a story like that. You have no right to play with other people's money in that way. Nothing can save you." The lawyer still suspected that other parties were back of the transaction and insisted on being told who they were. The young man, however, persisted in his story as given. There was nothing left to be done but try to effect a settlement. The offer of 10 per cent was made to the New York creditors through their lawyer, Mayer Sulzberger. It was rejected, the New Yorkers, however, not suspecting any trickery, agreeing to accept twenty-five cents on the dollar.

This the young diamond dealer, after many consultations with his mysterious friends, said he could not pay and then Mr. Sulzberger said his clients proposed to push the matter and fight.

Application was then made to Governor Hoyt for a requisition for the person of the young diamond dealer, so that he might be taken to New York on a criminal charge. As the notes which had been given for the remaining $56,000 at stake did not fall due until the end of the month, Lawyer Shakespeare had no difficulty in convincing Governor Hoyt that a requisition ought not be granted for a default of payment of which his client had not yet been guilty, since it was not yet really known what his client would do until the time expired.

Meanwhile, however, the young diamond dealer had been arrested pending the granting of the requisition, and when Mr. Shakespeare returned from Harrisburg he found his client lodged behind the bars in Moyamensing Prison. Once within the prison walls and with 10 years of penitentiary life before him the young man began to weaken. He sent for his lawyer at once and then for the first time the whole story came out. The lost pocketbook, the losses at gambling and horse races were made from the whole cloth. The part the pawnbrokers, Morris Rosenberger and his old partner, Myers, had played was laid bare.

When the New York parties learned they had failed to get the requisition they immediately had the young diamond dealer rearrested and held for a civil suit charging him with having obtained goods under false pretenses. Judge Finletter held him in $40,000 bail to appear at court. Lawyer Shakespeare's client now found himself between two fires. The New York creditors were making all efforts to convict his client for having done them injury, the two pawnbrokers were eager to keep him in prison so that his mouth should be closed against them. If they could only get him once to repeat under oath the stories of the alien pocket book and reckless losses in gambling, then they would be saved.

When, however, the charges had been brought against his client Lawyer Shakespeare refused to allow him go on the stand and be questioned or make any charge. The time had come for action. Going to the pawnbrokers Mr. Shakespeare demanded that they go his client's bail. This they refused to do. "Well, then," he said, "unless you do I propose to make known your proper position in this matter. If you do not furnish bail by 2 o'clock to-day before night I shall have you in Moyamensing too." The bail was not furnished. At 2½ Mr. Shakespeare went to the law office of Mayer Sulzberger and laid before that gentleman the whole conspiracy. Mr. Sulzberger was astounded. The sworn affidavit of the young diamond dealer was taken. The pawnbrokers were summarily arrested and taken before Magistrate Martin, who placed them also under $60,000 bail. They only escaped spending the night in Moyamensing by paying a constable $500 to spend the night with them in one of the city hotels.

When Lawyer Cassidy learned the full affairs had taken he immediately advised his clients to make a compromise. On promise that the case would not be pushed the pawnbrokers agreed to make complete restitution.

The young diamond dealer and weak dupe is now living in the West. His short experience in prison proved a severe lesson and he has since pursued a very honorable career.

BLAINE AND RECIPROCITY.

The Secretary Writes Another Letter Against the McKinley Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Senator Frye to-day received the following letter from Secretary Blaine regarding the reciprocity question:

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 22, 1890.

DEAR MR. FRYE: I have your reply to my letter and am glad that the essential part of it has been given to the press. You ask me what assurance I have as to Spain's willingness to enter into reciprocal arrangements of trade with the United States. Your question surprises me, for you cannot have forgotten that only six years ago the Prime Minister of Spain, in his anxiety to secure free admission to our markets for the sugar of Cuba and Porto Rico, agreed to a very extensive treaty of reciprocity with Mr. John W. Foster, then our minister at Madrid. A year before—in 1883—a very admirable treaty of reciprocity was negotiated by General Grant and Mr. William H. Trescot, as United States Commissioners, with the republic of Mexico, a treaty well considered in all its parts and all its details whose results would, I believe, have proved highly advantageous to both countries.

In view of the pending discussion it is a somewhat singular circumstance that both these treaties of reciprocity failed to secure the approval of Congress, and failed for the express reason that both provided for the free admission of sugar. Congress would not then allow a single pound of sugar to come in free of duty under any circumstances whatever. And now the proposition is to open our ports free to everybody's sugar and to do it with such rapidity that we are not to have a moment's time to see if we cannot make a better trade, a trade by which we may pay for at least a part of the sugar in the products of American farms and shops. Our change of opinion has certainly been remarkable in so brief a period. Indeed, the only danger of our not securing advantageous treaties of reciprocity now is the possible belief on the part of those countries that we are so anxious for free sugar that by patient waiting they can secure all their desire without money and without price.

Fearing that recent I might an interview with the eight Republican members of the Committee on Ways and Means more than five months ago, to be exact on Feb. 10, I endeavored to convince them that it would be expedient and wise to leave to the President as the treaty making power an opportunity to see what advantageous arrangements of reciprocal trade could be effected. I was unable to persuade the committee to take my view. I mention this circumstance now because it has been charged in many quarters that the suggestion for reciprocity came too late. In fact my effort was made before the Tariff bill was reported to the House or even framed in committee.

It is, I think, a very grave mistake to oppose this reciprocal proposition touching sugar from the fear that it may conflict in some way with the policy of protection. The danger is, I think, wholly in the opposite direction. Let us see what is proposed. Our government has heretofore collected a heavy duty from sugar—amounting one year in the aggregate to $56,000,000, and averaging $50,000,000 per annum for a considerable period. We wish now to cheapen sugar by removing the duty. The value of the sugar we annually consume is enormous. Shall we pay for it all in cash or shall we seek a reciprocal arrangement by which a large part of it may be paid for in pork and beef and flour, in lumber and salt and iron, in shoes and coal and hides and furniture, and a thousand other things? In short, shall we pay for it all in cash or try friendly barter in part? I think the latter mode is the highest form of protection and the best way to promote trade.

I address this note to you, as I did my first, because you have taken an active and most intelligent interest in the increase of our trade with South America. When shall we enlarge our commercial intercourse with that great continent if we do not now make a beginning? If we now give away the duty on sugar, as we already have given away the duties on coffee and hides and rubber, and get nothing in exchange which shall be profitable to the farm or the factory in the United States, what shall be our justification for the policy?

You have recently received congratulations, in which I cordially joined, on carrying the shipping bill through the Senate. Do you not think that a line of ships generally aided by the Government will have a better prospect for profit and for permanence if we can give them outward cargoes from the United States and not confine them to inward cargoes from Latin America?

THE BATTLE OF LUNDY'S LANE.

Celebration of the 76th Anniversary—Speeches and Resolutions.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 25. The 76th anniversary of the battle of Lundy's Lane was duly celebrated at Drummond Hill to-day under the auspices of the Lundy's Lane Historical Society. All the graves of the dead heroes were decorated with flowers and flags Canadians with the Union Jacks, and Americans with the Stars and Stripes. There was a large crowd in attendance.

The chairman, Dr. John Ferguson, M.P., made a brief speech referring to the necessity for the study of Canadian history as a means of inculcating patriotism in the hearts of the people.

William McCleary, M.L.A. for Welland, proposed a resolution expressing gratification at the grant of $10,000 by the Dominion Government for the erection of suitable monuments to the memory of the heroes of the war of 1812. The resolution was seconded by John A. Orchard and adopted.

J. Alexander of Hamilton moved, and Sheriff McKellar seconded, a resolution, which was adopted, favoring the organization of Canadian historical societies in every county, city and town, of and a provincial historical institute composed of delegates from the local institutes.

A resolution moved by Charles Durand of Toronto and seconded by Rev. Mr. Young of Drummondville advocated the placing of the study of Canadian history in the curriculum of every college and university in Ontario. This was also unanimously adopted.

Mrs. Curzon of Toronto read a paper on the "Erection of Monuments to our Dead Heroes." Alex. Muir of Toronto made a patriotic address and sang "Canada the Land of the Maple." Rev. E. J. Fessenden of Chippewa, Rev. Mr. Kerr of St. Catharines and Rev. Mr. Spencer of Brantford also made brief addresses.

Two Americans were next introduced by the chairman, J. Fraser Glück of Buffalo and S. B. Proctor of Albany. Both made speeches, which were warmly applauded, paying glowing tributes to the Canadian heroes of 1812, and eulogizing the institutions of the Dominion.

SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS.

A Kansas Embezzler Found in London, Ont. He Goes Back.

LONDON, Ont., July 25. James Mansfield, until within the last two months manager of the Topeka (Kas.) branch of the Kansas & Texas Coal Company, left Topeka with his wife on June 5 and the management, becoming suspicious at his prolonged absence, ordered an inspection of his books and found that all was not right. A Pinkerton man soon located Mansfield in this city, where he had on June 23 purchased the goodwill and stock of James Annett, who kept a grocery store in Dundas-street, London East. Yesterday detectives proceeded to the store and placed Mansfield under arrest. He decided to return across the border voluntarily to answer the charge against him. The party left this afternoon on the 2½ train for Detroit. The amount of embezzlement has not been exactly ascertained, although it will run up in the thousands. Mansfield's wife went with him.

VIENNA, July 25. Two earthquake shocks were felt on the Moell district yesterday. Another shock was felt to-day at Trechema, Moravia.

A Brakeman Badly Hurt.

BRANTFORD, July 24.—Brakeman P. A. Shea met with a serious accident yesterday morning between Brantford and Harrisburg. There were some freight cars on the train, and Shea in climbing down from the last car to get on the engine missed his footing and fell on the tender of the engine and from there to the ground. He broke three ribs in the fall and injured himself internally. He is lying at Harrisburg in a precarious condition, being unable to be removed.

MUSICAL CO-OPERATION.

It may seem paradoxical, but it is nevertheless true, that Peterborough is at once both the most musical and the most unmusical town in the country. The most musical, in respect of the possession of natural musical talent and the most unmusical, as regards the development, co-operation and adaptation of that talent to practical ends. We have spoken of musical talent being abundant—that is only part of the truth—musical ability either is not, at all, lacking. We have, belonging to the several church choirs in town, perhaps one hundred and seventy five fairly well trained singers with good voices, but there has been no successful effort made to combine these into one body such as a Vocal or Philharmonic Society to the end of producing those grand musical effects which can only be done with large bodies of singers well trained in concerted exercise. It is unfortunate that there exists so much modesty—so pat it mildly—among local musicians as to prevent them uniting and acting unitedly for the promotion of musical interests. This lamentable individualism or exclusiveness has a prejudical effect upon musical progress. Music should be studied and practised for the enjoyment it brings both performer and listener, and without hearty co-operation there is no possibility of attaining these ends to their fullest possible extent. Singing in church choirs does not, in all cases, tend to the production of the musical esprit du corps which we should expect to result from association in the broader field, which an organization, such as the societies mentioned, would present. Under competent training, such as is to be found in the town, with a proper spirit of agreement and concord among the persons concerned, the production of some of the best cantatas and some of the oratorios, would be a feasible undertaking. And a combination of the several church choirs, which naturally represent the best musical talent and ability of the social elements they represent, would result in a spirit of Christian unity—which would tend to lower, if not break down, the denominational barriers that, in these days, impart to the different churches the relations of hostile camps instead of different corps of the same great Christian army, and hasten the day of that organic Christian union to which so much earnest and prayerful energy is devoted. We refer to this subject in general terms, in order to excite some interest in it. The matter of details, both in the way of suggestion and application, is left to more practical heads and hands. Everything is favourable to the establishment of a strong vocal society in Peterborough—we have the material; all that is required is the inclination on the part of those competent to form the membership of such an association. Any public entertainment given by and under the auspices of such an organization would be sure to receive a liberal public patronage—the divers elements composing it would each have its entourage of friends, and the aggregate would result in such patronage as to insure easy financial conditions. We hope that some of our prominent citizens may take up the provisional baton and direct a movement for the formation of a Vocal, Choral or Philharmonic Society to a successful finale.

Salvation Army Criticism.

(Toronto Mail.)

Salvation Army methods are not universally admired. Mr. V. H. Hodges, LL.B., in a recent pamphlet assails the Booth family, and declares that it is working too much in its own interests. Now Mr. John McLaurin, in a letter to the Canadian Baptist, condemns the Indian missionary scheme. He mentions at the outset Abdul Aziz, who has figured in Toronto and elsewhere as an army convert and as the son of a Sheik. Mr. McLaurin says:—"Abdul was for two years a member of our mission staff in India. He was brought to Christ under a Methodist Episcopal missionary, whom we know well in Bangalore. That he was the son of a Sheik is news to us. He is represented as labouring under Major Tucker in Kolar, Cocanada, Chicacole, etc. This statement is utterly false. He laboured under our mission in Cocanada and Chicacole, and under Miss Anstiz in Kolar (Plymouth). He has been a convert about six years, and only joined the Army a few weeks before sailing for America." He proceeds to say:

"Two years ago, Major Muss Bhai with several other Hindus visited Canada. I saw and heard them in Woodstock. He was represented as a converted Brahmin. Said he had been seeking a knowledge of Christ in vain for years from the missionaries in India. I was then confident:—(1) That he was no Brahmin; (2) That he was an unprincipled adventurer, and (3) That what he said of missionaries in India was a barefaced falsehood. Later information from India and from Commissioner Tucker confirm my suspicions in almost every particular:—(1) He was a low caste Tamil; (2) He had passed himself off as an Eurasian, was a Roman Catholic, a Hindu, a Mohammedan, and a Salvationist in turn. Now he turns up in Ootacamund, luxuriating under the cooling shade trees, and fattening, at the sumptuous table of the Europeans, while he sends the raw lassie recruit from Old England to stifle and starve in the mud huts of his degraded countrymen. Verily the "Anglo-Saxon does love to be fooled."

Here is Mr. McLaurin's concluding criticism:—

"One of the strong points with the Army is that their officers come down to the level of the people and live among them and like them. But in Canada. Oh, no! the staff-captain comes to the best appointed Christian house in the place and beseeches them to put up the great man, the major, etc., while there. He eats the fat and drinks the sweet and takes his eastern siesta on the soft lounges of his host. Twenty-five dollars will keep one of their officers for a year. Yes! it will, along with what the rich merchant or the Government official deals out to the 'poor lugger, or, in addition to what the much despised missionary often gives, to prolong a half starved existence. Yes! it keeps them till they die or leave the Army or, better still, go up so high that they can reach the dish from which General Booth feeds."

Pulling Out a Rabbit.

The old doctor and the old captain were fast friends, both inveterate jokers, and both, despite their aggregate six-score years, rabid sportsmen. The doctor's frightful stammer did not seem to impede the flow of a joke, nor did the captain's equatorial girth lessen his agility, says Harper's Magazine.

One afternoon the old men set out on a rabbit hunt. As they passed through an orchard something scurried into a burrow.

"A r-r—wist—rabbit!" shouted the doctor. "L-l-let's p-pull him out;" and kneeling at the hole, he thrust his arm in up to the shoulder. "S-s-say;" he remarked, after a moment's fumbling; "I c-c—wist—can't q-quite g-get h-him. Y-y—uh—you t-try it. John; y-y—uh—your arm's l'onger than m-m—wist—mine."

The Captain knelt and thrust his arm down. In an instant he was executing a war-dance around the tree, waving a bloody finger.

"Blankety-blank-blank! That's no rabbit; it's a ground-hog."

"D-d—wist—did he bite you you, J-John?" queried the doctor, anxiously.

"Bite! Blankety-blank! Don't you see he took off the whole end of my finger!"

"Wh wh—uh—why, that's t-too b-b—wist—bad!" said the doctor, taking his own hand from behind him, and showing a sadly lacerated thumb. "H-he b-b—wist—bit me too!"

Not the Spelling.

A solid young fellow, who had been writing a letter with a pencil, got up from his seat in the Erie depot for a stroll around, leaving his unfinished letter on the seat. A man came in, took the seat to wait for his train, and in an absent way picked up the missive. He held it in his hands when the young man returned, and said:

"That's my letter, mister."

"Well, you can have it," was the reply.

"Did you read it?"

"N—o. That is, I glanced over a few lines of it and noticed that hardly a word was spelled correctly."

"It is a letter to my girl."

"Yes."

"Girl I'm going to marry."

"Yes."

"And I don't care a cocked hat about the spelling. What I want to impress on that girl is luv, l-u-v, and lots of it, for there's sixty acres of land and a sawmill behind her."—N. Y. World.

A Good Recommendation.

"Are those complexion powders warranted fast colors?"

"Well, ma'am, I cannot say that they will wash like the natural complexion, but they won't rub off on one's sleeve."

The True Irish Shamrock.

In Ireland only one shamrock is known. It is an indigenous species of clover, which trails along the ground among the grass in meadows. The trefoil leaves are not more than one-fourth the size of the smallest clover I have seen in America, and are pure green in color without any of the brown shading of white and pink clovers. The creeping stem is hard and fibrous, and is difficult to dislodge from the earth. On St. Patrick's Day, the true shamrock has to be searched out from among the grass, for, though comparatively plentiful at that season, it grows close to the ground. Later it bears a tiny "whitey-brown" blossom. The information that shamrock is the Arabic word for trefoil may be of service to those interested in the origin of the Irish race. The word could have been introduced by the Milesians, or it may furnish an argument in support of the contention that one of the lost ten tribes of Israel settled in Ireland, which has been revived by the publication of a recent book.—American Notes and Queries.

When I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters I had sixteen sores, but they are all healed save one, and I can now walk with crutches. MARY CALDWELL, Upper Gaspereaux, N.S. 2w30rd

Mothers and Nurses.

All who have the care of children should know that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry may be confidently depended on to cure all summer complaints, diarrhœa, dysentery, cramps, colic, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, canker, etc., in children or adults. 2w30d

Mrs. Alva Young,

of Waterford, Ont., writes:—"My baby was very sick with summer complaint, and nothing would help him till I tried Dr. Fowler's extract of Wild Strawberry, which cured him at once. It is one of the best remedies I ever used." 2w30d

Wilson's Fly Poison Pads

have an enormous sale in Canada, and are kept by all druggists. Nothing kills house flies, ants, cockroaches like Wilson's Pads. One packet lasts a long time, and kills flies by the quart. dw

A ten cent piece was found on the main street the other day. This was just enough to buy a packet of Wilson's Fly Poison Pads and could not be put to better use. For exterminating flies, ants, cockroaches, &c., nothing equals Wilson's Pads. Sold by all druggists. Take no imitations. dw

CATARRH and ASTHMA were not so readily controlled and cured before T. A. SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSIONS of PURE COD LIVER OIL came into the market. Every druggist is pleased to handle it for they know its value. For tightness of the chest and difficult breathing it has no equal. w30-ws

Our Story.

A REVOLUTIONARY LASS.

All unconscious of the explosive material beside him the young officer leans dangerously near the chest and with a blazing taper carelessly lights his pipe.

When he looks up he sees that all the pretty color has fled from his little companion's face.

"Egad!" he says to himself. "What a little rebel she is to be at such a white heat on account of a few words. I must do something to bring myself back to her good graces." Then aloud: "What is your name little one?"

"Dorothy Harris," she replies briefly with a slight feeling of relief as, the taper being extinguished, he leans back in his place. "Dorothy!" he says, with interest. "Why that is my little sister's name, Dorothy, and she is just about your age, too. Dear little thing," softly. "How she cried when I came away, and how glad she'll be to see her big brother again."

"What is she like? Tell me about her," says Dolly, feeling that she can take an interest now that the dreaded pipe is at a safe distance from the powder.

"What is she like?" he repeats. "Well, she has honest blue eyes, like yours, and wait, I have her miniature. Perhaps you'd like to see it?" He lays his pipe on the edge of the box while he feels in his pocket for the miniature. Dolly stops rooting and clasps her hands in terror; then as she sees the hot ashes slipping from the pipe toward a bit of straw left sticking from the box, she can stand it no longer. She leans forward and, seizing the hot bowl, holds it high in the air. "I never saw a pipe like this before," she says, and then—is it a motion of the boat or the heat from the pipe that causes it to suddenly slip from her fingers and fall down into the depths of the Musketaquid? Capt. Chandos starts forward with an exclamation of anger as he sees his cherished meerschaum disappear in the muddy river, but he checks the words that rise to his lips as he sees Dolly's face. "Don't look like that, child," he says hastily. "'Tis no great matter, though it was careless, but I'll forgive it for Dorothy's sake," with a glance at the miniature.

"For Dorothy's sake truly," repeats Dolly in a low voice; but she does not ask now to see the picture, for they have reached the long hill leading to Major Buttrick's house.

"Will you wait here," she says, "while I carry the box to the house and then I'll take you where you want to go." But Capt. Chandos has the box already in his arms.

"Lead the way, Dorothy; I'll carry the box. Grandmother's silver is much too heavy for your little arms." They are met at the door by Mrs. Buttrick, who looks with surprise at Dolly's martial companion.

"I believe this box is to be delivered to you, Madam," he says, his eyes full of suppressed laughter.

"Dorothy and I have had great difficulty in keeping it from the thieving redcoats. Many a narrow escape have we had."

"Father forgot to take care of it," says Dolly, looking meaningly at Mrs. Buttrick. "Will you keep it now? I shall be back presently."

Once more they glide down the river until they reach Mr. Rice's landing.

"Good-by, little rebel, I trust the day is not far distant when we may share the same feelings towards King George."

"Yours will have to change vastly before that day comes," is Dolly's saucy reply, as she glances back at the gay figure of the young officer who, standing there in the Spring sunlight, waves her a merry farewell.

It is noised of the same day, when Dolly and her old hand maiden Betty, make their way up the wood path leading to Betty's cottage. At the first intimation of danger the old woman left her tiny house near the Lexington road, and sought protection at the Manse, but now the village is quiet again she has insisted on returning home, and so Dolly goes with her to bear her company through the night.

Breathless with excitement, she goes over again and again the events of the day. "How they ran, those redcoats!" drawing a long breath of triumph. "What a glorious rout that was! But poor little Ruth Davis—with a sudden sob. I hate the Britishers for bringing her such sorrow. It makes me feel sorely troubled for father. Do you think there will be more fighting? Mercy on us! What is that?"

She clings to Betty's arm in terror, for a low moan comes from the thicket they are passing. In another moment, however, her courage returns. She stoops and hastily parts the thick branches and there they see lying on the ground before them the figure of a British soldier.

"Law's sakes!" cries Betty, recoiling. "It's one of them bloodthirsty red-coats. He's got his deserts at last, for he look as if he was done for."

But Dolly touched by the helpless moan, is leaning beside him. "How cruel, Betty," she cries, with reproachful eyes. "How can you talk like that about a wounded man? Help me lift his head." She turns his face to the waning light and then starts back with an exclamation of distress. "Oh, it's Capt. Chandos, the man who helped us with the powder. He must'n be left here to die. It is luckily we were so near the house. Fetch him some water, quick!" His right arm has been crushed and useless and there is a deep wound in his forehead, but by the aid of restoratives he is finally brought to consciousness.

Dolly stoops over him.

"Capt. Chandos," she says in her clear voice, "this is my nurse Betty, and we are going to try to get you to her house yonder. Do you think you could walk with our help? It is only a step." He smiles a feeble assent and then slowly they get him to his feet, and half lead half carry, him to Betty's little room, where he sinks fainting on her neat bed. Betty examines his wounds and then draws Dolly aside.

"His arm and shoulder are broke, and it'll take a doctor to fix 'em. N'iff he don't have one he'll die sortin."

"But then he'd be taken prisoner," cries Dolly in dismay, "and he's been so kind to me I can't give him up even if he is a Britisher."

"Well, child. I can allow for your feelin's but all in all, if you won't have no doctor I'll have to try and make him as easy as I can while he lives." Her last remark decides Dolly. Without another word she hurries from the house, straight to Dr. Prescott's. The good man has just returned from visiting the wounded and is filled with patriotic fire. He comes to meet her with outstretched hands. "Well, Dorothy," he exclaims, "we're shown the British to-day what stuff we're made of. Methinks they'll believe in Yankee pluck after this. And you, my little patriot, I've just heard what you did for us. That was a brave deed, my lass, and will not soon be forgotten. What's this, Why, Dorothy child, tears. 'Surely you will not treat your first victory in this wise.'"

Then Dolly, falling on her knees beside him, sobs out the whole story.

The doctor is sorely perplexed. He has known Dolly always and can well understand the struggle which is going on in her true little heart between gratitude for the wounded soldier and love for her country.

"My child," he says slowly, "I promise not to give your friend up without your permission. He may not need our care for long. Will you lead me to him now?"

Over an hour the doctor is busied, and soon he and Dolly have a chance of seeing that after all English grit does not differ from Yankee grit for though drops of agony stand on the young officer's brow, not a sound escapes his white lips. At last Dr. Prescott leetions Dolly outside. "Dolly," he begins, "that rascal hasn't come to his wicked end yet." Then, as his soft heart triumphs over his patriotism, he exclaims: "Thank God, Dolly, that we shant have to give him up as a prisoner, for the poor lad will never be able to shoulder a musket again."

* * * * * * * *

"Good-by, Dolly, good-by, my little friend." The time for Captain Chandos's departure has come. Dr. Prescott, true to his word, has made the necessary arrangements for an exchange, and in a few hours the young soldier will be on his way to England.

And now the sad parting with his brave little nurse has come.

All the loving care which she has bestowed upon him for the last month comes again to his mind, and he puts his arm tenderly about her, exclaiming, in a burst of gratitude: "Ah, little lass, I should not be standing here now had it not been for you. Tell me, Dolly, what ever made you so kind to one who was fighting against your cause?" Then Dolly answers bravely.

"Ah-ee Captain' Chandos, 'twas because you helped that cause more than you knew. There is something that I must confess before you leave. That was not true what I told you about grandmother's silver. There was not silver in the box you helped me carry, but—gunpowder!"—Marjorie Richardson.

Characteristics of the German Empress.

The Empress of Germany is said to be a young woman of exceeding fiery temper. She was a Schleswig-Holstein princess, and was reared with strict severity—is a thorough house keeper as well as a proficient scholar. But amiability is not her most notable characteristic. Of course she cannot quarrel with her husband, for the etiquette of the court is distinctly rigorous; but the Empress is at liberty to quarrel with everybody else, and of this prerogative the young woman avails herself. Some of her outbursts of temper have been of the most humiliating character, betraying a coarseness one would hardly expect to meet with in royalty. The Empress inclines to stoutness; her features are rather heavy, but the expression of her face is kindly. She is one year older than her husband. As for the ex-Empress Frederick, mother of the present Emperor, she is a picture of her mother, the Queen of England.

Cured of a Snake Bite.

A negro who was bitten in the leg by a rattlesnake in the woods near Valdosta, Ga., a few days ago, was treated as follows: "The snake, which clung to the limb, was killed, a tight cord tied around the bitten leg, then the snake was cut in pieces and the warm flesh applied to the bite. The negro was removed at once to the quarters and as soon as possible several roots of the 'prickly ash' secured, which can be found in almost any old field. Warm water was poured over these roots and a poultice made and immediately applied to the wound. The virulence of the poison soon colored the poultice green, and a fresh one would be sub stituted, until, in the course of an hour, the green failed to show any further. In the meantime the negro was given a large quantity of fresh, sweet milk to drink. He soon recovered, and is now doing well."

A Free Trip to Europe.

The publishers of the Canadian Queen will give a free trip to Europe to the person sending them the largest number of words constructed from letters contained in the name of their well known magazine "The Canadian Queen." Additional prizes, consisting of silver tea sets, gold watches, china dinner sets, portiere curtains, silk dresses, mantel clocks, and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merits.

Webster's unabridged dictionary to be used as authority in deciding the contest.

This is a popular plan of introducing a popular publication. Every one sending a list of not less than ten words will receive a present. Enclose thirteen 2c. stamps for illustrated catalogue of presents and three months' trial subscription to the Queen. Address, the Canadian Queen, "B," Toronto, Ont. dw

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,708,812 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $318,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,864,376	3.07
Confederation	17,574,828	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,068,837	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,817	10.36
North American	5,470,820	10.68
Temperance and General	2,984,972	17.64
Citizens	2 097,956	29.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,723,100	30 12
London Life	1,644,285	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

The Whole Souled Omemee Girl.

The society editor of the Omemee Herald is growing gushing. He "drops into poetry" in this manner:

The Omemee girl, a creature divine,
Whether wife, widow or miss;
Looks into your eyes with star-lit orbs,
And puts her whole soul in a kiss.

Judging from the average size of the kissing apparatus, she might put her whole body as well as "whole soul in a kiss."

A Change of Key.

We have just received the July issue of the Canadian Musical Herald, which is now incorporated with the Musical Journal, under the editorship of Mr. W. Elliott Haslam, (conductor of the Vocal Society of Toronto,) and published by Timms & Co., of that city. As the Herald is the only musical publication in Canada, we are glad to see that it is a representative one, both in contents and mechanical execution. The publishers will be glad to forward a specimen copy to any of our readers who may send their address.

Equal Rights.

The topic of the day and that which we all want is not only Equal Rights in a political sense of the word, but in many others. Here are people throwing away their hard earned money, with unprincipled houses who do not as much as thank them for it. Why should they do it? Why not call on W. J. Morrow, where you are received courteously, your money placed to a good advantage and you are placed on a solid basis in future for buying cheap groceries. dw

A Destructive Storm.

A severe thunderstorm passed over Peterborough and county Friday night. In town the rain fell in torrents, but no damage is reported. Smith township, however, suffered heavily. About eight o'clock hail fell heavily, some of the stones being as large as bird's eggs. Corn was cut into ribbons along the second line, while other crops were also badly damaged. Mr. Wm. Garbutt's barn, near Nassau, was struck by lightning and burned. Ten tons of hay were destroyed with it. A mowing machine and seeder, were saved, neighbors who saw the fire, arriving just in time to save these articles. There was no insurance.

A Borrowed Baby.

It is whispered about that a protest is to be entered by the sports committee of the Peterborough Court of Foresters which excursted to the Point Tuesday. That unique programme provided a prize of a handsome high chair for the best looking baby on the ground, and it was awarded by unanimous consent to a little cherub proudly held up for inspection by Mr. Wm. Simpson, manager of the hotel. It has since leaked out that the dimpled darling was the property of one of the lady guests and had been surreptitiously whisked away from the nurse to be presented "at court." The action in itself was scarcely blameable, but such a cool usurpation of a parent's rights should be condemned.—Lindsay Post.

The Social Saturated.

The promoters of the social at St. Joseph's Hospital grounds are in what is commonly termed "hard luck." A postponement was made Thursday on account of the inauspicious elements, and again last night the social was interfered with by the rain. Everything was in readiness, and there was a good number in attendance, but a few minutes after eight o'clock the storm clouds burst and put an end to the festivities. The band played one selection and then sought shelter. The ladies and gentlemen managing the social are somewhat dispirited over their second disappointment, nevertheless they are determined to fix an early date for another attempt, when they hope the weather will be more propitious.

A Tour of the Lakes.

One of the best excursion trips of the season will be held August 14th (civic holiday), under the auspices of the Royal Templars. The excursion will leave town in the morning by train for Chemong, where the fast steamer Alice Ethel will be in waiting to convey the excursionists through the chain of lakes via Barleigh and Stony Lake to Lakefield, Peterborough being reached early in the evening. This trip will afford a variety of scenery and constant change of view not obtainable any other way. The steamer and scow will have a capacity for 900 passengers. At noon a stop of two or three hours will be made at some convenient spot for dinner. Don't fail to take in this trip on civic holiday. 1d

Market Items.

The market this morning was a large one. The principal offerings were butter, eggs, fruit and vegetables. Butter sold at 18c. and eggs 12 and 13c. There was an abundance of raspberries at 90c. and $1 per pail, but these prices were reduced before noon. Huckleberries sold rapidly at 10c. a quart, and by 10.30 there were none left on the market. Cherries sold at the same figure. New potatoes and other vegetables sold at staple prices. The new market building was well filled, without any crowding taking place. Mr. Doherty is kept busy in his effort to teach the people to follow directions. The stair on the right hand side of the arcade is for ascent, and the other for descent. The forgetful public nevertheless make a constant misuse of both stairs. The people will learn in time.

The Crops and the Rain.

The heavy rains that have fallen the last few days have not had a seriously injurious effect upon the crops. Late cut hay has suffered of course somewhat, but the great bulk of this crop has been well gathered and is a magnificent yield. In Ennismore and the northern part of the county the rain has been heavier and has flattened about grain. This will make it difficult to harvest, but this drawback will be more than compensated by the benefit to root crops, pastures and late oats, which describes nearly all oats. In Otonabee the rain was lighter, and, of course, except to mown hay, only benefit resulted. The rain will necessitate a revision of our crop report published a few days ago especially in respect of oats. This crop did not at that time promise well, but has since picked up wonderfully, and, except very late sown oats on heavy, wet lands, will likely be a good crop. A prominent farmer, who, during the last few days, went through Otonabee, the Hastings region, Asphodel, part of Belmont and Douro, reports the crops magnificent. Spring wheat, especially, promises well. A gentleman from the Fenelon Falls region reports splendid crops. Altogether the reports from the whole county are, on the whole, very favourable, and, with fair prices, the farmers' condition will be much improved, and, with that, the general commercial condition will revive.

Last Year's Death Rate.

The mortuary statistics for the year 1889 have just been published as an appendix to the report of the Minister of Agriculture. From time to time reference has been made in the columns of the EXAMINER to the monthly mortuary returns published by the department, but the annual volume is, of course, the one to which the public must turn for the general record of health of the leading towns and cities. Quebec tops the list with the highest death-rate in Canada, the figures being 31.13 per 1,000. St. Hyacinthe comes next with 30.50. Then comes Montreal 29.56, Hull 29.50, Sorel 23.83, Three Rivers 23.80, Sherbrooke, 22.30, St. Johns, Que., 22.36. All the foregoing cities and towns, with the highest rates of mortality, are in the Province of Quebec, and one cannot help wondering him this comes about. Ottawa has the highest record in Ontario, the rate being 21.58. It is contended, however, that this is not Ottawa's normal rate, a maternity hospital, which does duty for eastern Ontario, being just within the city limits, unduly swelling Ottawa's death record. Winnipeg's rate is 20.85, Halifax, 19.23, Chatham, 17.05, Fredericton, 16.98, Brantford 16.54, St. John, N.B., 15.56, Kingston, 15.86, Belleville, 14.43 Charlottetown, 14.04, London, 13.29, Windsor, 13.42, Peterborough, 13.33, Toronto, 13.25, Guelph, 13.21, Victoria, 13.13, Woodstock, 12.03, St. Thomas, 11.53, and Galt, the Manchester of Canada, with a death rate of 9.99, carries off the palm as being the healthiest place in the Dominion. Peterborough's health record is one of which her citizens have just reason to be proud.

Masterly Incapacity.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I notice by a paragraph in your issue of Friday that the town fathers have ordered a drinking fountain, which is a "trial trip," preliminary to ordering several others. Of this action I approve, that is, I approve of the principle of supplying public drinking fountains. But why on earth do they want to get a new fountain, when they have had one thirsting for water three or four years in Central Park. This is ready for water. All that is needed is to supply a coil and ice box. The water can be had from the company for the taking, and yet the Brown memorial fountain has been standing idle all the time. And it is situated just where it would be used. Persons coming from the outlying portions in the north-west and northern parts of the town become thirsty as they near the business portion, and a cool draught of water at the Brown memorial fountain would be a refreshing boon. Besides, the children and others that use the park feel the need of drinking water. Again, a drinking fountain is much required in Court House Park. It is all that is needed to make it a paradise as a pleasure resort. The last band night I pitied a poor mother who had brought three or four little children with her to hear the music. One of the young ones became thirsty and pleaded for a drink. There was of course none to be had and one child set all the others a-thirst and combined they made a dead set at the poor mother. She seeing that she would have no peace regretfully decided on going home, thus depriving the poor overworked woman of perhaps the only breathing spell she had had for weeks. The park is for the people and the poorer people especially. The rich have parks and gardens of their own and the town authorities are not doing their duty in neglecting to provide a drinking fountain in Court House and Central Parks. It is all very well to provide a drinking fountain for police court bums. A draught will doubtless be very welcome to the thirsty bibulist after his night of debauch, as a sort of Cheap John Collins. But it would be a waste of money and philanthrophy to defer to the wants of women, children and sober, if at times, thirsty citizens. Our city father have apparently made an exhaustive and successful study of how not to do it.

Yours, etc.,

GRUMBLER.

Peterborough Telephone Company.

The New Company Organized—What the Directors Intend Doing.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Peterborough Telephone Company was held last evening at Messrs. Edmison & Dixon's office. There was a large attendance. Mr. Jas. Kendry was elected chairman of the meeting and Mr. F. E. Bell secretary pro tem. Mr. Wright, of Montreal, manager of the Federal Telephone Co. of that city, delivered an address of interest and instruction to the members of the new company. Organization then took place, the following Board of Provisional Directors being elected: Messrs. Jas. Kendry, A. Stevenson, C. H. Clementi, F. E. Bell, Geo. Edmison, Wm. Wright and R. B. Rogers. A resolution was also passed instructing the directors to call in 10 per cent. of the subscribed stock, and to proceed to make all necessary preliminary arrangements for the operation of the company. Messrs. Mulholland & Roper were appointed treasurers, and Mr. R. M. Denniston solicitor, for the company.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors Mr. Kendry was appointed Chairman and Mr. Bell Secretary.

THE COMPANY'S PROSPECTS

In conversation with one of the Directors, the EXAMINER was given some information concerning the prospects and intentions of the Company. Their authorized capital will be probably $50,000, with $10,000 subscribed. Of this amount about $8,000 stock has been already taken up, which is enough to begin work with. There are over 60 shareholders in the company, nearly all local men, the idea being to make it a purely local concern and to interest as many citizens as possible. For this purpose only a small number of shares are taken by each member of the Company.

It is the intention to begin the work of construction at once. The Directors meet again on Monday to take further steps. An order for 300 telephones, will be at once placed with the manufacturers, and the poles and wires will also be procured at once. The very best material only will be used. It is probable that Mr. Fry, who has taken an active part in the work of organization, will conduct the work of construction. A central office has not yet been procured, but the Snowden block on Simcoe street is spoken of as a favorable location. The Directors expect to have the line working inside of three months, and are very enthusiastic over its prospects. If outside stock was taken, or the local shareholders were allowed to subscribe as heavily as they wished, they claim that they could have the stock all subscribed before night. But the new company is to be entirely local with no possibility of a monopoly.

As to foreign connections, the Directors claim that they will have a line from Toronto to Montreal, and all intermediate points, within a year.

The St. Paul Cyclone.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Frank Dumble, of St. Paul.

"I sent you a paper describing the cyclone, but words cannot express what occurred. The busses were so crowded yesterday I could not get to the scene of destruction at Mr. Schumler's cottage where it was at its worst. The ground was left as bare as though it had been raked, and what trees were left standing, were completely robbed of the bark, and were just as though they had been sand-papered, while as for the cottages, without exaggeration, there wasn't a stick of wood a foot long. Boards were lifted into the air and driven upright into the ground for two and three feet. The way Mrs. Schumir, her little boy and the minister were drowned was by being blown clear off their feet into the water. Their bodies were found three or four days after, just close to the shore, but nearly covered over with sand, broken trees, etc. At the same time a pig was lifted up into a tree, killed and held there. A man who had about two hundred hens had everyone killed, and the remarkable thing about it was that not even a pin-feather was left on one of them.

I took the cars for North St. Paul, which was also visited. There we saw a large furniture factory built of brick, about 100x40 ft., with the upper half completely torn off.

Personal.

Constable Adams' mother and "big brother", from Orillia, are in town.

Mr. Jas. Kelso, of Rochester, an old Peterborough boy, is in town for a few days.

Mr C. Fessenden, principal of the Collegiate Institute, was in town to-day. Mrs. Fessenden accompanied him and they spent the afternoon in selecting a residence. They leave town this evening.

Mr. W. Hickson, principal of Bobcaygeon schools, the Warder says, is enjoying holidays among Manvers, Peterborough and Cavan friends, after which he purposes making a tour of the northern lakes.

Mr. L. A. Morrison and wife, of Toronto, and John Wigmore, wife and family, of Auckland, New Zealand, were in town yesterday, having just returned from a holiday outing at Stony Lake. Twenty-five years ago, when Messrs. Wigmore and Morrison were boys together in Dummer township, they were members of a camping party on Stony Lake, and their re-union after a quarter of a century was most pleasant. Mr. Morrison is a wealthy engineer and manufacturer of the Queen City, while Mr. Wigmore has made a competence out of the lumbering business in New Zealand. His visit to Canada this year is for the purpose of seeing his old home and the friends of his youth. The party has returned to Toronto.

Canon Liddon on Missions.

Across the triumphs and the failures of well nigh nineteen centuries, the spiritual ear still catches the accent of the charge on the mountain in Galilee; and, as we listen, we note that neither length of time nor change of circumstance has impaired their solemn and enduring force. It is a precept which, if it ever had binding virtue, must have it at this moment ever all who believe in the Divine Speaker's power to impose it—it must bind us as distinctly as it was binding on the first disciples. We are ambassadors of a charity which knows no distinction between the claimants on its bounty, and no frontiers save those of the races of man. A good Christian cannot be other than eager for the extension of our Lord's kingdom among men, not only from his sense of what is due to the Lord who bought him, but also from his natural sense of justice his persuasion that he has no right to withhold from others those privileges and prospects which are the joy of his own inmost life. When he finds comfort in the power of prayer, when he looks forward in humble confidence to death, when he enjoys the blessed gift of inward peace—peace between the soul and its God, peace between the soul's various powers and faculties—he cannot but ask the question: "Do I not owe it to the millions who have no part in these priceless blessings that I should do what I can myself, or through others, to extend to them a share in this smile of the Universal Father which is the joy and consolation of my life? Can I possibly neglect the command to make disciples of all nations?"

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The interest in the Y.M.C.A. meetings continues unabated. They will be held this week as usual.

Saturday evening meeting at 8 o'clock, led by Mr. W. Anderson.

Consecration meeting Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, led by Mr. A. Hamilton.

Open air meeting in the Central Park on Sunday afternoon at 4.15, addressed by Mr. Jas. Sutherland. Singing led by Y.M.C.A. orchestra.

Gospel and song service on Sunday evening at 8.30, open to all, at which Rev. W. Rogers, of London, is expected to deliver the address.

Our Northern Railway

The Empire's Ottawa correspondent writes that applications for railway legislation next session are beginning to come in. Messrs. Hall & Hayes, of Peterborough, give notice of intention to ask for an Act incorporating a company to build a railway from some point on Lake Ontario, in the county Northumberland or the county of Hastings, thence to Peterborough, thence to Bobcaygeon, thence to some point on the Northern Pacific Junction railway between Port Carling and Bark's Falls, thence to French River, thence through the districts of Nipissing and Algoma to Sault Ste. Marie.

BETTER SETTLE IT THAT WAY.

Gen. Eyeta of Salvador Challenges Guatemala's President to a Duel.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 25.—Gen. Eyeta, brother of President Eyeta of San Salvador, defeated the Guatemalans again at Atezlampa Chingo in Guatemala, twenty leagues from the frontier, obliging the Guatemalans to abandon their fortifications at Coco. The Salvadorans captured an immense booty, including the correspondence of Guatemalan generals and Salvadoran traitors. Geronimo Pou says Honduras takes no active part in the war, whilst Nicaragua and Costa Rica are privately friends of Salvador. Gen. Eyeta has sent a personal challenge to President Barillas of Guatemala.

A special to El Universal says Guatemalan agents are spreading false reports of Guatemalan victories.

The Guatemala Story.

EL PASO, Texas, July 25.—The troops of Salvador invaded Guatemala and planted their flag upon Guatemalan soil. Guatemala was insulted and declared war. The Guatemalan troops fought with great courage. The loss was great on both sides. Yesterday the troops of San Salvador were driven out of Guatemala.

The Colina's Detention.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The Secretary of State has called upon the United States Minister to Guatemala for a report regarding the alleged detention of the steamship Colina at a Guatemalan port and the seizure of arms and ammunition forming part of her cargo. The only information received at the Department of State came from the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and the reports are somewhat conflicting.

A NARRAGANSETT ELOPEMENT.

Ex-Governor Sprague's Sister-in-Law Makes a Runaway Match.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, July 25.—Ex-Governor Sprague has had his hands full the last two days. His wife has been visiting here and her sister, Cleo Juliet Weed, a very pretty young girl, 20 years of age, had formed the acquaintance of Howard S. Eaton, of Lynn, Mass., who had been here about six weeks and was attending to some electrical engineering at the local electric light station.

Yesterday Miss Weed left the famous Canonchet and meeting Mr. Eaton entered his carriage and drove toward Kingston. Young Eaton had just before this gone to the office of the Clerk of Narragansett district and obtained a marriage license, giving the age of himself and intended as 21. On arriving at Kingston Hill they called on Rev. Mr. Clark, the Baptist minister, and were speedily made man and wife. They returned to the Pier. Mrs. Eaton going alone to her sister's house and informing Mrs. Sprague that she and Eaton had eloped and were married.

Word was sent to Eaton to report at once at Canonchet, and there he was catechized by Governor Sprague. The result of this interview was that Eaton was informed that his marriage was illegal, inasmuch as he had failed to comply with the law by neglecting to get a permit from Miss Weed's guardian and from his own people.

Last night the bride slept at Canonchet and the young husband evaded off his love at his boarding place. Governor Sprague objected to the marriage because he and his wife knew little or nothing of Eaton's antecedents.

SUPPOSED TO BE FROM TORONTO.

Henry James Attempts to Commit Suicide in Lindsay Jail.

LINDSAY, July 26.—A man named Henry James, supposed to be of Toronto, and who has been working on the Grand Trunk Railway here, attempted to commit suicide in the county jail here yesterday. He severed his windpipe and gullet with a piece of broken glass. His condition is critical in the extreme. He was committed as a lunatic Thursday.

Oysters Growing Scarce.

BALTIMORE, July 25.—The oystermen of the Chesapeake Bay are beginning to realize the condition of the supply, and there is a growing anxiety about its future. Last year, owing to the failure of the crop in Delaware Bay and Long Island Sound, the prices were unusually high, and the scramble in the bay was unprecedented. In spite of the most thorough dredging that the Chesapeake has ever known, the yield was one-third less than usual. This shows to the men more plainly than anything they have seen that unless some methods of recuperation are found the supply will soon be doomed.

The Montmorency Election

MONTREAL, July 25.—The election in Montmorency to-day to fill the vacancy in the Commons, made vacant by the resignation of Langelier (Lib.) resulted in the return of Desjardins (Cons.) by a considerable majority over Prevost (Lib.)

Mr. Langelier resigned in order to enter the recent provincial contest and was elected to the Assembly last month from the same constituency.

Killed By Lightning.

SEAFORTH, July 26.—During a thunderstorm at noon yesterday, Aggie, eldest daughter of George Lockhart, living two miles north of this place, was instantly killed by lightning while berry picking.

Two Men Shot at a Picnic.

OLIVER, Ga., July 25.—John G. Harris, United States deputy marshal, and John Cleary were fatally shot at a Farmers' Alliance picnic here to-day. The shooting was the result of a quarrel over family matters.

RED REVOLUTION.

THE STREETS OF BUENOS AYRES RUN WITH BLOOD

Two Days of Fighting in the Argentine Republic's Capital. The Dead Lying in Heaps. The Revolt Spreads to the Provinces. Insurgent Successes.

BUENOS AYRES, July 28.—A revolution broke out here this morning.

The troops in the garrison rebelled and fighting is now (at noon) going on.

All the shops are closed and fighting is taking place in the streets.

Senor Garcia, Minister of Finance, is held a prisoner by the revolutionists.

Desperate fighting is now (1.30 p.m.) going on.

Many have been killed on both sides.

The insurgents are advancing toward the Plaza de la Victoria, where the President's palace and the Town Hall are located.

The President has escaped to Rosario.

A revolutionary government is announced, with Senor Arana as President and Senor Romero as Minister of Finance.

The authorities still hold out, but the revolutionary movement is extending hourly.

HEAVY LOSSES ON BOTH SIDES.

The Revolution Extending to the Provinces. Insurgent Successes.

BUENOS AYRES, July 25.—Generals Campos and Arredondo, commanding the insurgents, have seized the arsenal, barracks and Plaza Lavalle. Their forces include five military and two citizen battalions and expect reinforcement from Zarate. The street conflicts on Saturday were adverse to the Government.

The losses on both sides were heavy.

Many buildings were destroyed.

The navy remains neutral.

Senhor Pellegrini, the vice-president, has assumed the presidency.

Another battalion of troops with arms and baggage joined the insurgents at 1½ this afternoon.

The populace support the revolution, which has extended to the provinces.

The authorities are negotiating with the insurgents.

Another Account.

BUENOS AYRES, July 26.—At 4 o'clock this morning a revolution was commenced by the Union Civica, assisted by the battalions of the garrison. President Celman has declared the whole republic in a state of siege. The National Guard has been called to arms.

Later reports are that five more battalions of the marine arsenal and part of the artillery have declared in favor of the revolutionists.

Hospital and telegraph offices are surrounded by soldiers.

The revolutionists are reported to have completely triumphed. The Governor of Buenos Ayres is seriously wounded.

President Celman has just embarked from the Catalinas Mole, taking refuge on board of a foreign ship. The Governor of Cordova, brother of the president, has also escaped.

The revolutionary party has issued a manifesto signed by Alejandro M Aleim, A. del Valle, M de Mana, M Goyena, Juan José Romero and Lucio V Lopez.

The revolutionists have liberated Gen Manuel J Campos, who was awaiting trial as a conspirator and who has now placed himself at the head of the revolutionary party.

Several Hours' Fighting.

LONDON, July 28.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon says fighting was still going on at that hour and there were many killed and wounded on both sides. The insurgents have large resources at their disposal and are ably commanded. The rebels, the despatch says, have many sympathizers among the opposing troops.

By Way of Paris.

PARIS, July 28.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres says the 10th Regiment, headed by its officers, revolted this morning and the outbreak has become general. The rebels are in complete possession of their cantonments. The Government, with the assistance of the police, is trying to isolate the insurgents. The bourse and banks are closed.

THE DEAD IN HEAPS.

A London Times Cable Which Was Cut Off Abruptly.

LONDON, July 28.—A despatch to The Times from Buenos Ayres says: Early on Saturday the artillery, joined by some Cuirassiers, took the first steps to overthrow the Government.

The troops and the police paralyzed. Firing was opened at Palermo and soon extended to the Plaza Lavalle.

The infantry and artillery with mounted lines kept up a heavy firing all the morning. The police fired at and dispersed a crowd around the Government House but the people kept firing from houses.

A determined group of 40 men stood pluckily to their arms in front of the Government house while the roar of artillery and the roll of the musketry came nearer and nearer. A policeman in mere wantonness split an Englishman's head open with his sabre and a bystander shot the policeman down.

Then after noon the revolutionary Government issued its first decree. This ordered the mobilization of the national guard and appointed Nicolas Menalez chief of police.

At 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon two attacks were made by the Government troops on rebel battalions. The troops were repulsed both times.

Citizens and artillerymen are lying dead in heaps. The chief of police, Captain De Vedia, is wounded.

The Minister of War is reported killed.

Sharp fighting continues around the artillery barracks.

[illegible] the cable despatch to The Times ends.

MAY GO TO BUFFALO.

The Canadian Gas Company Cannot Get Pipe Enough.

ST CATHARINES, July 26.—H. A. Coste, manager of the Provincial Gas Company, [illegible] on account of the great demand for pipe on the other side it will be impossible to [illegible] this city this season. It may be [illegible] as Buffalo.

Ontario Gazette Notes.

TORONTO, July 26.—E. H. Cleaver of Burlington, has been appointed notary-public.

The name of the Hamilton Bridge and Tool Company has been changed to the "Hamilton Bridge Company (limited)."

United States Immigration.

WASHINGTON, July 28. The number of immigrants arrived in the United States during the year ended June 30 was 451,219 against 440,619 the previous year.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

SIR W. A. WHITE ARRIVED JUST IN TIME.

Had He Not Stiffened the Porte's Back to Resist Russia's Demands War Would Have Been Inevitable—Another Liverpool Cotton Corner.

LONDON, July 28.—The Standard's correspondent at Sofia says: The English Ambassador, Sir W. A. White, arrived at Constantinople at an opportune moment to stiffen the Porte's resolution to resist the demands of the Russian note. If Turkey had yielded to Russia's insistence a continuance of peace would have been impossible.

A despatch from Vienna says M Stambuloff, the Bulgarian Premier, will assemble the colonels of all the Bulgarian regiments and the deputies of the leading towns at Sofia on Aug. 3, when Bulgaria will be proclaimed independent and Prince Ferdinand be declared King.

The Earl of Jersey has been appointed Governor of New South Wales.

Servia and Turkey.

LONDON, July 26.—The second note of the Servian Government to the Porte, strongly insisting that Turkey shall make reparation for the murder of M. Marinkovitch, the Servian Consul at Pristina, has caused much anxiety in diplomatic circles, especially as it is known that Russia is behind the Servian note, and also owing to the justice of the demand.

A Cotton Corner.

LONDON, July 27.—The Liverpool Journal of Commerce says: New York cotton operators have undertaken to run a corner in Liverpool in autumn deliveries. They have set local houses to buy all spot cotton at the present basis, as well as for immediate delivery. They will try to run a corner in New York also.

The rise in silver and the concurrent advance in Indian exchange have gradually raised the price of India Council bills from 1s 4d, the lowest level, to 1s 7d, making an annual addition to the India budget of £3,555,000.

The Erzeroum Garrison Reinforced.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 27.—Nine battalions of Redifs have reinforced the garrison at Erzeroum.

The Sultan's trade-granting berats of investiture to the Bulgarian bishops of Macedonia is officially published.

Kiamil Bey, director of police, has been dismissed. He is succeeded by Nazim Bey, the Governor of Constantinople.

Lieut. Wyse's Mission.

PARIS, July 27. Le Paris publishes cablegrams containing news of the mission of Lieut. Wyse, who went to Colombia to secure a renewal of the Panama Canal concessions. The despatches say the Colombian Government has welcomed the proposals of M. Wyse, having had assurance that the French Government would do everything needful to facilitate the completion of the canal.

Bavaria's Prince Regent Injured.

MUNICH, July 27.—While the Prince Regent was driving in the suburbs today his carriage collided with a tram-car and the prince was thrown out and badly bruised.

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

After the Soda Water Factories. The T., H. & B. Tunnel. Sudden Death.

HAMILTON, July 26. English syndicates are now dickering for the soda water factories. Yesterday two agents of the syndicate, which has purchased several factories in Canada, were in Hamilton, and tried to purchase Pilgrim Bros.' factory, King-street east.

The officials of the T., H. & B. now say that work will be commenced on the tunnel on Monday.

Edward Rowland, an old man who has been a wanderer on the face of the earth and considerable of a nuisance to the city police for years, died suddenly at the jail a little before midnight last night.

John Gorman has been arrested charged with hitting Patrol Driver Harris with a stone while the officer was driving the wagon in response to a call Friday night.

The Knights of Sherwood Forest, the uniformed branch of the Ancient Order of Foresters, will have a meeting of representatives here Monday night to form a Canadian Supreme Conclave under the Canadian High Court. The Canadian body is severing connection with the United States Conclave in consequence of the latter's secession from the parent body in England.

A Tramp Tailor Drowned.

ARNPRIOR, July 26. Joseph N McGrath, a wandering tailor, hailing from the vicinity of Toronto, was drowned in the Madawaska River, at this place last night. He had been in the town but a week, and was under the influence of liquor when he fell in the river. The body was recovered about an hour afterwards.

Robbed the Bank.

WOODSTOCK, N.B., July 26.—Saunders, charged with stealing $4000 of the funds of the Bank of Nova Scotia, in which he was employed, was to-day committed for trial. The money has been paid back to the bank. Saunders claimed that he was assaulted and while senseless the bank was robbed, but he has since made a confession.

A Terrible Death.

LISTOWEL, July 27.—Mrs. Wm. Shewan, an old Mornington pioneer, in attempting to release a cow from a blazing barn had her clothes ignited by the flames. Her head and body were literally roasted and she died a few hours later after suffering untold agony.

The New Cable to Anticosti.

QUEBEC, July 26.—Mr. Gisborne, Superintendent of Government telegraphs, and son, have left for the north shore of the Gulf to superintend the laying of the new cable to Anticosti, which is to be conveyed there by the steamer Newfield.

The Stranded Idaho.

QUEBEC, July 27.—The steamship Idaho will become a total wreck, but the greater part of her cargo may be saved. All work in connection with the salvage of the stranded vessel's cargo is now in the hands of the underwriters, the owners having abandoned all claims to it.

Taking It Coolly.

Policeman—"Excuse me Major, but isn't that your dog?"

Maj. B.—"It certainly."

Policeman—"You see what the sign says: 'No dogs allowed in the park.'"

Maj. B.—"Yes; but that dog can't read; he is very illiterate. Good morning, sir!"—The Waterbury.

HOMELESS HUNDREDS.

SOUTH LAWRENCE (MASS.), STRUCK BY A CYCLONE.

Eight People Killed, Many Injured. About 100 Buildings Leveled to the Ground. The Property Loss Estimated at $100,000. Houses Crushed Like Eggshells.

MICHAEL HIGGINS, aged 55.
MRS. MARY O'CONNELL, aged 54.
MISS MARY O'CONNELL, aged 17.
MRS. ELIZABETH COLLINS.
ANNIE COLLINS, aged 6.
HANNAH BEATTY, aged 9.
MRS. MARY LYONS.
HELEN CUTLER.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 26.—A cyclone, the first of any considerable importance within memory in New England, and one equal in destructive power to those so frequently reported from western communities, visited the suburb of South Lawrence this forenoon at about 9½ o'clock, and in 15 minutes had killed 8 persons, seriously injured from 5 to 20, slightly injured at least 20 more, cut a swath through a thickly populated section 200 feet wide and a mile long, rendered 500 people homeless, destroyed or greatly damaged from 75 to 100 buildings, mostly dwelling houses, levelled a beautiful square of over 600 trees and entailed a property loss now estimated at $100,000, all of which was insured against damage by wind and storm. The calamity is the greatest which has visited Lawrence since the fall and burning of the Pemberton Mills 30 years ago.

South Lawrence is that section of the city lying south of the Merrimac River. At this point the main line of the Boston & Maine Railroad takes a sharp turn to the eastward and following the Merrimac crosses the river at Bradford. A railroad bridge connects the suburb with the city proper and with the railroad lines north. The point is a busy railroad junction, and in the vicinity were many wooden houses, occupied mainly by well-to-do mechanics, and among these the air fiend spent his greatest fury. The northern boundary of the belt of destruction was but three streets south of the lofty mills with their busy throngs of thousands of workers, showing how narrow was the escape from more appalling loss of life and property.

It was a veritable dog day. The air was hot and humid. Dark clouds scurried westerly through the heavens with intermittent rain. Suddenly the wind veered to the west, an inky black cone-like cloud seemed to drop from the cumulous mass hanging to the southwest and move rapidly with awful aspect toward the city. It was accompanied by torrents of rain.

In an instant the crash came. Buildings were crushed like eggshells; some were lifted from their foundations and dashed to pieces; others were tipped over or blown from their position and more or less damaged. The air was filled with flying debris. Most of those who met death in the wreck were killed instantly. Many lay unconscious or groaning in the ruins of their homes.

As soon as the survivors realized the extent of the devastating work word was sent to the police station, and ambulances with a squad of officers started for the scene. Marshal Vosesson ordered on the whole force, an alarm was rung in and the firemen responded promptly and rendered great assistance in removing the injured from the ruins. The ambulance carried several loads of mangled and crushed human beings to the hospital. Others were taken to private houses.

The work of devastation began at the cricket grounds, on the southwest, with the upcoming of a number of magnificent trees. In Emmett-street the wind lifted a story and a half house, belonging to Thomas Evans, bodily and slapped it into the roadway a complete wreck. Mr. Evans, his wife and baby were in the house at the time but escaped without great injury. No. 19 Emmett-street, occupied by a family named Daley, was lifted from its foundation and dashed down. No. 6 was partly moved from the foundation. In the rear of No. 6 was a story and a half house occupied by James Lyons and family. Hearing the approach of the storm, Lyons rushed into the house, seized his baby from his wife's arms, and fled into the street. Both man and child escaped, but the dead body of Mrs. Lyons was subsequently taken from the ruins of her dwelling. On Saunders court near St. Patrick's Church hall, a wooden structure was carried 15 feet from its foundation and a few windows were broken in the parochial residence. At the foot of Saunders court a switch house, in which Michael Higgins, a section hand, was standing, was taken up bodily by the wind and carried under the overhead railroad bridge crossing Salem-street, where Higgins fell out and was instantly killed. The railing on this bridge was taken off as though cut with a knife. The granite sheds of W. F. Jones near the bridge were demolished. The house of William F. Cutler, foreman of the Boston & Maine car shops, was next demolished.

F. S. Carr, chief clerk of the car shops, was an eye-witness of the storm at this point. He says there was a sudden rumbling sound and darkness. Timbers and trees flew by the car shops at a terrible rate. When these had passed he and other occupants of the shops saw that the Cutler House was in ruins. Miss Flossie Cutler was found in the cellar with a sprained ankle. Mrs. Cutler was found in the ruins slightly hurt. Little Helen Cutler was crossing the Salem-street bridge at the time, within a stone's throw of her home, and was buried beneath a pile of lumber and ruins. She was found by men from the car shops on their way to the ruins and dug out, but has since died from concussion of the brain. The cyclone now entered Springfield-street, where the greatest devastation was wrought.

Eight persons already are known to have been killed and between 20 and 30 injured, some fatally. The names of the dead are given above. The injured are: Mrs. W. F. Cutler and two daughters, injured about the head and back; Jessie Dorley, Frank Cessa and wife, slightly; Mrs. Manders, three-year-old daughter, fatally; Hugh Merriman, fracture of collar bone; five children, some of them badly; Mrs. Ryan, severe scalp wound; Patrick Nugent, Minnie Reed, Richard McDermott, Lizzie Oldsworth, Annie Dillon, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Merriman, Orr Morgan, aged seven, Jennie and Annie McLaughlin, Andrew Hart, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Thebault, Ellen McLaughlin, Cornelius Reardon, elbow fractured; Maria Quinn, aged 12, internal injuries; Bridget McDermott, scalp wound; Mrs. William Cutler, Miss Harriet Cutler, Miss Lizzie Morrisey, spine injured.

A Louisiana Tragedy.

NEW ORLEANS, July 27.—At Milneburg this evening a row occurred between a number of men from this city. Jack Hayes and Tom Larnegan were mortally wounded. John Larnegan, sr., was shot in the thigh. Cause of trouble unknown.

AN ONTARIO CYCLONE.

Thousands of Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed Near Millgrove.

HAMILTON, July 25.—The prosperous little village of Millgrove and the adjoining country was visited by a cyclone which did incalculable damage to the crops yesterday afternoon. The loss to the farmers will be thousands of dollars. Trees were uprooted, and barns unroofed. The crops were levelled and completely destroyed, and hail, ranging in size from a pea to a walnut, fell to a depth of a foot in some places. The storm did not last more than 10 or 15 minutes, but it made a clean sweep of everything that came in its path.

The storm came from the south, striking Greensville earlier in the day. The damage there was not so great as at Millgrove, where the cyclone reached its fury. The path of the storm was from a half to three-quarters of a mile wide. In the vicinity of Millgrove large trees were torn from the ground and carried bodily away for some distance. Fences were blown side. A stump fence being swept away, leaving an open space for the wind to work its destruction. The crops in the swath of the storm, particularly oats, peas and turnips, were entirely destroyed. Apples, plums and all kinds of fruit were blown from the trees. Outside of the path of the storm very little damage was done, the rain being light and the wind very mild. Great damage was done on John I. Platt's farm, just outside of Millgrove, which is rented by William Gillmore. Here the loss was very heavy. Gillmore had ten acres of spring wheat, which was leveled to the ground and will not yield more than 25 bushels. One large beech tree on his farm was uprooted and carried into J. Eaton's farm. Nelson Ryckman's barn was carried away about 100 yards into Hiram Anderson's farm.

As Large as Plums.

ROSEMONT, July 26.—A severe thunderstorm passed over this village about 3 o'clock yesterday. It was accompanied by a hailstorm, and for a radius of about two miles grain, fruit trees and vegetables were badly destroyed. The windows on the west side of the buildings were completely destroyed. The hailstones were as large as plums.

A Destructive Ontario Hail Storm.

EMBRO, July 26.—One of the worst hail storms ever known here visited this section last evening, doing a tremendous amount of damage to crops, great fields of oats being literally stripped and other grains suffering in like manner. The storm lasted only a few minutes, but so terrible was the downfall of hail that it could be scooped up in wagon loads.

SHOT HIS PLAYMATE.

Eight-Year-Old Maud White Accidentally Killed at Barnesdale.

ST. CATHARINES, July 26.—A boy named Eddie Taylor, 8 years old, visiting at his grandfather's near Barnsdale below St. Catharines, was playing with the 9-year-old daughter of W. J. White, an employe in the axe factory, and became possessed of a loaded gun, which in some manner went off, the charge taking effect in the girl's neck, causing her death almost immediately. The little fellow became so frightened at the result of his play that he ran away. After two hours' diligent hunt he was found by the neighbors hiding in the top of an apple tree. It appears several children were on a patch picking berries and playing about when little Eddie got an old gun. He was pulling at the trigger and cried out:

"Maudie White, take care or you'll get hurt."

Just then the gun discharged, blowing little Maudie's head almost off. Little Eddie is too young to realize what he had done. His parents live in Detroit, Mich.

MAKING THINGS LIVELY.

American Cattlemen Attempt to Take Possession of a Ship.

NEW YORK, July 27.—American cattlemen returning from Europe are making things lively for the captains of the ships by which they take passage. For the second time in as many weeks an English steamer came into port to-day with her Union Jack down. The police boat responded and found the steamer to be the Chicago, which left London July 10. Capt. Morgan made a formal charge against three of the 27 cattlemen who were passengers by the Chicago and turned them over to the police. They were John McNamara, James Tynan and Henry Halleson of this city.

These men, aided by the others, Captain Morgan says, intimidated his crew, insulted him and stole a portion of the ship's cargo. The crew of the steamer numbered only 12. The cattlemen began on the second day out to break down the cattle pens on deck, and when remonstrated with threatened to "take possession" of the ship. They got into the hold on July 18, made a raid on the ale stored there and became drunk. They then fought among themselves and insisted on occupying the forecastle instead of their own quarters in the stern of the ship. Two of the men took up their quarters in the captain's cabin. They were finally driven out, but for the remainder of the trip they made themselves very offensive.

A Blackmailer Murdered.

FRESNO, Cala., July 27.—John D. Fiske, a lawyer and opera house manager, was shot and killed last night by Joseph T. Stillman, an inventor. Stillman had been hunting for Fiske all day and found him at last in front of the Grand Union Hotel. Stillman claims the shooting grew out of an attempt of Fiske to blackmail him. He says Fiske has been demanding half interest in certain patents of his and threatening that unless Stillman gave him such interest he would tell Mrs. Stillman of an alleged intimacy with another woman. Stillman declares he was driven to desperation by Fiske's threats.

Killed by a Lunatic.

LOCKPORT, July 27.—At Wolcottville, a German village ten miles southeast of this city, yesterday afternoon, a lunatic named Yago beat Poormaster Schultz so severely with a shovel and an axe that Schultz died in the evening. Yago had been in an asylum two or three years, but was recently permitted to return home apparently restored to reason. He soon, however, became so violent that Poormaster Schultz, accompanied by a constable, went to Yago's house to take him and return him to the asylum. He attacked Schultz with a shovel and an axe, and soon beat him into insensibility. He then fled and has not been captured.

The Sectional Boycott.

ST. LOUIS, July 27.—Gov. Ross of Texas said here yesterday that the proposed boycott of the North by the South was utterly impracticable, and if practicable it would be unwise, because it would array the North and the South against each other in permanent political, social and commercial hostility. It would withdraw millions of eastern capital from the South and destroy the credit of thousands of southern merchants.

The Great Northwest Central.

OTTAWA, July 22.—It is not at all improbable that the contract will be awarded this week for the construction of an additional 100 miles of the Great Northwest Central Railway.

The Daily Smash.

ANTIGO, Wis., July 22.—In a collision between two freight trains here to-day, Brakeman Seymour and Fireman Sims were killed. Engineer Laing had both legs broken and Engineer Ryan was fatally hurt. Both engines were completely wrecked.

Stole the Elephant.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 27.—Two weeks ago Colonel Tyler of this city was appointed receiver for the Sells & Andrews circus and menagerie. Last night somebody, thought to be Andress, stole the elephant, two camels and five horses.

The Daily Smash.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., July 27.—Yesterday there was a head-end collision on the Santa Fe Road at Canon City between a passenger and freight train. Engineer Dennis of the freight was killed, Fireman Westfield and Messrs. Hanna [illegible] injured.

GOVERNMENT AID TO RAILWAYS.

The total amount of subsidies voted by the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada on which payments have been made or liabilities still exist, was on the 4th of November 1889, $12,903,607. Of this amount the sum of $6,448,444 had already been paid, leaving $6,415,152 still due. The above amount of $12,903,607 had been voted among ninety-one companies, but, as on the 4th of November, 189, no contracts had been entered into by thirty-two companies, it is possible that the full amount may never become payable. In addition to the above money subsidies, grants of land have been made to fifteen companies in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, amounting to 24,145,143 acres of which quantity 81,058 acres have been patented. The average grant was $6,400 acres per miles, and the estimated number of miles subsidized was 3,272. A loan was also authorized to one company in 1886 of of $15,000, of which $14,725 were paid, leaving $275 still due.

Previous to Confederation Nova Scotia subsidized the Windsor and Annapolis Railway to the extent of $1,059,674, and the Canadian Government had paid $2,656 to the Toronto, Gray and Bruce Railway, afterwards assumed by the Dominion Government. The total amount, therefore, paid by the Dominion Government towards the construction of railways since Confederation is $7,580,785. The above figures are taken from the "Statistical Year Book" issued by the Dominion Government.

The amount of aid given by the Ontario Government to railways, from 1872 to 1889 inclusive, with the names of railways and the amount to each, is as follows:

Name of Railway.	Amount.

SPEAKING of the importation of stone for Canadian buildings, it appears that Senator Drummond, the chief of the Canadian sugar combine, is building a magnificent palace in Montreal with stone imported from Scotland. Mr. Drummond, remarks the Ottawa Free Press, has such a contempt for the country which he is permitted to rob that he will not even live in a house built of Canadian stone.

IN order to carry the election in Montmorency on Friday in the interests of the Dominion government, Sir Adolph Caron promised that the government would assist the Quebec bridge project, which involves a cost of about five million. Let those Ontario Tory fire-eaters, who are incensed at the proposal to increase the subsidies of the provinces by $600,000 altogether, devote some attention to Sir Adolphe's promise to spend five millions upon a bridge over the St. Lawrence at Quebec, in order to keep a few constituencies in line.

Labor Notes.

Pittsburg boiler makers have secured a nine hour day.

In the Southern States, during the six months ending June, almost 1,000 miles of railway were built, more than half of the total on the North American continent. The new South is awakening to the advantage that a plentiful supply of cheap railway brings.

The National Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators will hold a convention in Pittsburg, beginning August 5th. The organization embraces unions all over the States and Canada, including a local in Toronto.

The scale of the amalgamated ironworkers is being signed by the chief rolling mill proprietors in the eastern district.

Of all the granite used in the United States a large part is imported in a prepared condition. The granite cutting trade is splendidly organized, and in all Pennsylvania there is only one shop employing non-union men.

The Iron Moulders' Union of North America, embracing Canada, at their recent Detroit convention elected Martin Fox, of Cincinnati, president of that body.

In Denver, Col., almost all stores close at 6 o'clock. The barbers want to stop Sunday shaving.

The Allegheny Steel Company, of Duquesne, Pa., has granted an eight-hour day in all departments.

Pittsburg is becoming without rival the Birmingham of America. Eighteen thousand men are employed in her rolling mills, and 111 of the 268 flint glass furnaces in the United States, 44 of the 151 window glass furnaces, and 33 of the 123 green glass furnaces are in Pittsburg.

Rockefeller, the oil king, is building a house to cost $3,000,000, and Westinghouse, of air brake fame, a cottage at $500,000. One comforting reflection is that they are giving employment to American workmen, instead of building castles on the Rhine.

Canadian Industrial News.

McKellar Island, near Port Arthur, is rich in baryta, a clay used in the manufacture of crockery, which is being extensively shipped to Cleveland.

The depression in the lumbering and sawmill industries of the Ottawa Valley is increasing.

It is stated that the C. P. R. has acquired a controlling interest in the locomotive works of Kingston. A large number of engines have recently been built and orders are plentiful.

A St. John, N.B., firm will supply 600 car wheels, weighing almost three-fourths of a ton each, to support the cradle on which ships will be transported.

The Canadian Edison Company will shortly remove from Sherbrooke, Que., to St. Catharines, where a capital site has been secured.

A Free Trip to Europe.

The publishers of the Canadian Queen will give a free trip to Europe to the person sending them the largest number of words constructed from letters contained in the name of their well known magazine "The Canadian Queen." Additional prizes, consisting of silver tea sets, gold watches, china dinner sets, portiere curtains, silk dresses, mantel clocks, and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit.

Webster's unabridged dictionary to be used as authority in deciding the contest.

This is a popular plan of introducing a popular publication. Every one sending a list of not less than ten words will receive a present. Enclose thirteen 2c. stamps for illustrated catalogue of presents and three months' trial subscription to the Queen. Address, the Canadian Queen, "B," Toronto, Ont. dw

THE FLOUR MARKET.

Minneapolis' Output—Prices About the Same—The Exports.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 24.—The Northwestern Miller says: The aggregate flour production last week was 125,200 barrels. Orders are not coming in as freely as millers would like and some mills are fast catching up with those they had booked ahead. There is some talk about the necessity of curtailing production again soon if business does not improve. There has not been much life to the flour market the past week, this dulness possibly being more since Saturday than before. Prices are about the same. Bakers and low grades are not in very good demand for export. Patents are usually reported slow of sale. The export shipments last week were 43,900 bbls.

The flour output of the Minneapolis mills for June was the smallest of the present crop year. However, for the past ten months the total grind was 887,000 barrels ahead of that of last season. The direct exports for June were extremely light, though for the ten months the figures exceed last year's work by 500,000 barrels.

EPISODE OF THE HAT.

How a Pretty Woman Won a Vote of Thanks in a Theatre.

A stately and handsome example of the well-bred young lady attended a theatre at first-night last week, and occupied, with her escort, seats in the third row of the orchestra, says the Philadelphia Press. She was so fair to look upon that a large share of the audience watched her as she went down the aisle and settled gracefully in a chair.

It was then observed, with much interest, that she raised her arms and detached from her head the fashionable hat that became her so well. Her hair was bright golden, and under the lights it fairly flashed its beauty. The old gentleman sitting behind her settled back comfortably in his chair and congratulated himself that he had been placed behind such a thoughtful creature, for now he could not only see the stage, but a splendid head of hair as well.

Presently two or three young women in the immediate vicinity quietly removed their hats, having noted the admiration that the originator of the scheme had excited.

From this the movement spread until hatless feminine heads were discoverable all over the theatre, even to the rear rows of the circle. Between the acts a paper began to circulate among the people in the orchestra.

Each gentleman, as he received it, read something that had been written on it, and then smilingly signed his name, after which he passed it to his immediate neighbor.

In a few moments the paper came back to the old gentleman that had started it on its travels. Reading forward he politely addressed the golden haired girl, handing to her at the same time the paper. She read it and as she did so a deep blush and a smile crept over her face. The paper was a vote of thanks, signed by thirty or more of the male spectators. Its text was as follows:

"We, the undersigned, desire to express our admiration for a most beautiful and courageous young lady, name not known, who by removing her hat from her bright golden head, has set the fashion for others, thereby rendering it possible for a delighted audience to witness the details of a stage performance."

The pretty girl cast a radiant smile over her shoulder at the old gentleman behind and, folding the paper, tucked it into the front of her dress like the side of a bunch of pansies. And everybody was very happy.

Kansas Philosophy.

When your ship finally comes in it may be a wreck.

A fool can never sit in a corner; he is all wrong in the middle of the room.

It is not what others think of you that makes you, it is what you think of others.

When you find a man who is fond of staying at home his wife finds fault about it.

People are never at shed. Woman want to wear pant and men do wear dress suits.

People who are fond of dancing ought to learn to play the fiddle and save that expense.

When a man has a sore throat and it hurts him to swallow, he wants to swallow all the time.

A man never feels so bad that he will not feel worse if no one asks him what he is feeling badly about.

When a man reaches 40 he begins to look around for the names of men who distinguished themselves after that age.

If he is not careful, a busy man will do so many things wrong during the day that it would have been better had he not worked at all.

When a rooster clucks, and a rooster runs up instead of a pullet, the second rooster is very apt to think that the worm is mighty small for the amount of noise made.

When a man is sick the women around the house claim they have cured him with washes of salt and vinegar and gargles of onions and honey, and that the doctor had nothing to do with it.—Atchison Globe.

He Took the Hint.

Jack, by the seaside: Look at the beautiful shell I have found!

Jill: It is simply magnificent. It would look beautiful in a ring.

Our Story.

Because He Dared.

Up to her chamber window
A knight-at-arms rides,
And up the stair to meet his bride
Climbers a bold white rose.

I lounge in the ilex shadows,
I see the lady lean,
Unclasp a silken girdle,
The curtain falls between.

She smiles on her white-rose lover,
She reaches out her hand,
And helps him at the window
I see it where I stand.

To her scarlet lips she holds him,
And kisses him many a time.
Ah me! It was he who won her,
Because he dared to climb.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich

MARRIED AT SIGHT.

We had been upon the Mediterranean station for about a year when our commander ordered the ship to head for Marseilles.

I was then a young midshipman, and enjoyed the leave on shore in a foreign port with boyish delight. There were six in our mess, and we managed to get shore leave so as to be together when it was possible to do so. This was the case one fine Sunday in the month of December as mild and summer-like in the south of France as a New England May day.

The singular experience of one of our number I have often told since about the mess table or camp-fire, but have never put it into print.

We were strolling on the square known as Le Cours St. Louis, with its fine old and pretty flower vendors, we were all thrown into a state of amazement and curiosity by the appearance of a young girl of about 17, who rushed among us with a startling speed and who, hardly pausing to regain her breath, said in excellent English:

"You are Americans, and, I trust, gentlemen. Is there one among you who will marry me?"

"We will all marry you," was the instant response, accompanied by hearty laughter.

"Ah, you are in sport, but I am in earnest. Who will marry me?"

There seemed to be no joke after all. The girl was positively in earnest, and looked at one and all of us as coolly, yet earnestly, as possible.

"Here, Harry," said one, who was rather a leader among us, and addressing Harry, "You want a wife," and he gave our comrade a slight push toward the girl.

For some singular reason Harry took the matter much more in earnest than the rest of us, and regarded the new-comer with a most searching, but respectful glance. Approaching her he said:

"I do not know exactly what you mean, but I can understand by your expression of face that you are quite in earnest. Will you take my arm and let us walk to one side?"

"Yes, but I have no time to lose." And taking his arm they walked away together.

We looked upon the affair as some well-prepared joke, but were a little annoyed at the non-appearance of Harry at our rendezvous on the quay. Our leave expired at sunset, and we dared not wait for him, as Capt. D—— was a thorough disciplinarian, and we didn't care to provoke him, and thus endanger our next Sunday's leave.

On board we went, therefore, leaving Harry on shore. When we reported, the question was, of course, asked who is Midshipman B—— was, to which query we could return no proper answer, as we really did not know. He knew perfectly well that we must all be at the boat landing just before sunset.

Harry did not make his appearance until the next day at noon, when he pulled to the ship in a shore boat, and, coming on board, reported at once to the captain, who stood upon the quarter-deck, and asked the privilege of a private interview.

The circumstances connected with the absence of Harry were very peculiar, and as he was one of the most correct fellows on board, his request was granted by the captain, who retired to his cabin, followed by the delinquent. After remaining with the commander for nearly an hour, he came out and joined us.

"What is the upshot of it, Harry?" we asked.

"Well, lads, I'm married—that's all."

"Married!" asked the mess, in one voice.

"Tied for life!" was the answer.

"Hard and fast?"

"Irrevocably."

"To that little craft you scudded away with?"

"Exactly. As good and pure a girl as ever lived," said Harry earnestly.

"Whew!" whispered one and all.

How did old Neptune let you off?" we all eagerly inquired—that being the name the captain went by onboard.

"He is hard on me," said Harry, seriously. "What do you think he demands, lads?"

"Can't say, what is it?"

"If I don't resign he will send me home in disgrace. That's his ultimatum."

Harry told us his story in a desultory manner, interrupted by many questions and ejaculations, but which he will put into a simple form for the convenience of the reader.

Julie Maurice was the orphan child of a merchant who had been of high standing during his life, and who left a handsome fortune to endow his daughter on her wedding day, or, if not married before, she was to receive the property on coming to the age of 20 years. Her mother had died in her infancy, and her father, when she was 10 years of age, placed her in the convent to be educated, where she remained until his death, which occurred suddenly six months previous to the period of our sketch.

After his death Julie became the ward of her uncle, by the tenor of her father's will and the period of her educational course having just closed at the convent, Hubert Maurice, the uncle, brought her home to his family circle. Miss Maurice, it appears, was a scheming, calculating woman, and knowing that Julie would be an heiress she tried every way to promote her intimacy with her own son, who was an uncouth and ignorant youth of 18 years without one attractive point in his character.

Hubert Maurice the uncle of Julie, was a sea captain, whose calling carried him much away from his home. During his absence his wife treated Julie with the utmost tyranny, even keeping her locked up in her room for days together, telling her that when she would consent to marry her son Hubert she would release her and do all she could to make her happy. But to this Julie could not consent, imprisonment even was preferable to accepting her awkward and repulsive cousin.

One day she overheard a conversation between her aunt and her hopeful son, wherein the mystery of her treatment was solved.

The boy asked his mother what was the use of bothering and importuning Julie so.

"If she doesn't want to marry me, mother drop the matter. I like Julie, and she would make me a nice little wife, but I don't want her against her will."

"You are a fool," said the mother. "You know nothing about the matter. Her father's will endows her with a fortune at her marriage, even if it be at 17, just her present age. At 20 she receives the fortune at any rate. Now, don't you see if you marry her we are all fixed for life."

"Does Julie know about the money?" he asked.

"No, of course not."

"It's a little sharp on her," said the boy.

"I'm looking out for you," said the mother.

"Just so," roused the hopeful.

"I am resolved that she shall marry you, and that is why I keep her locked up, so that she may not see some one she would like better. Your father is expected home next week. I want you to be married before he returns. He approves of it but is a little too delicate about pressing matters so quickly. I know that no time is like the present time, so I have been making arrangements to bring this about immediately. I have got a Protestant clergyman who will perform the ceremony first, and then you can be married at any time afterward in the Catholic church to make it valid on her side, for her father was a Catholic."

This was enough for Julie. She understood the situation fully now, and saw that her aunt would hesitate at nothing. The poor child feared her beyond description, and had yielded to her in everything save this one purpose of her marriage with Hubert.

Julie was a very gentle girl—one upon whom her aunt could impose with impunity. She had no idea of asserting her rights, much less of standing up for them. But she was thoroughly frightened now, and resolved to escape at any cost from the tyranny which bound her. No face could be worse, she thought, than to be compelled to marry that coarse, vulgar and repulsive creature.

The next day after Julie had heard this information was Sunday, the gayest day of the week in Marseilles, and, fortunately, Julie succeeded in making her escape from her aunt's house. Still undecided where to go, and in her desperation fearing that at any moment she might be seized and carried back, she had wandered into the flower market, where she came upon us, already described.

As she explained to Harry afterward, she was intent only upon escape, and believed this to be her last chance. When she saw a half-dozen young Americans, who seemed perfectly respectable, the idea that positive safety lay only in marriage dawned upon her, and she actually ran toward us, as we have related, the moment the thought developed itself.

Harry became more and more impressed with Julie's story as they walked along, while he was delighted by her innocent beauty and manifest refinement. It was all like a dream, almost too romantic for truth.

Our "fate" sometimes comes to us in this singular fashion," he thought. "There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." Suddenly he turned to her and said:

"Dare you trust me with your happiness?"

She looked at him thoughtfully with her soft, pleading eyes. Her brain was very busy; she remembered what awaited her at home, what had driven her thence, and then, in reply to his sober question, she put both of her hands into his with childlike trust.

They wandered on. Julie had always plenty of money in her purse, and they strolled into a little chapel on their way where they found a young clergyman, who could not resist their request to marry them, backed by 10 golden Napoleons, and so, though reluctantly and advising proper delay, he performed the marriage ceremony, aided by the sexton and his wife, who each received a Napoleon.

As an inducement, Harry had also told the clergyman that he was just going to sea, and that he must be married before he sailed, that not even one hour was to be lost.

"Perhaps I am saving the girl's honor," said the young clergyman, as he finally consented.

Julie came out of the chapel the wife of Harry B., who went with her to the Hotel du Louvre. From here he sent a pressing note to the American consul, who came to him early the next morning, and by the earnest persuasion of Harry the consul agreed to take the young wife to his own house until matters should be settled as regarded their future course. In the consul's house Julie found a pleasant and safe retreat for the time being.

Whatever might be said with regard to the propriety of the young folks' conduct, it could not be undone. They were irrevocably united as husband and wife. Harry was forced, however, to resign his commission. By the aid of the consul Julie's rights in relation to her fortune under her father's will were fully realized, and she came almost immediately with her young husband to America.

Harry B., by means of proper influence once more entered the navy, the second time as lieutenant, and now wears a captain's epaulets.

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,760,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $218,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly censured to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,864,376	3.07
Confederation	17,574,828	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,056,837	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,817	10.36
North American	5,470,230	10.66
Temperance and General	2,954,972	17.84
Citizens	2,067,266	29.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,723,100	30.12
London Life	1,644,285	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large proportion as 20 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

Death on the Rail.

An unfortunate accident occurred near Foxboro about 4:30 Friday afternoon, says the Belleville Ontario. The Peterborough train was coming along under a full head of steam, being nearly half an hour late. As she rounded the curve approaching the sand-pits at this point, an old man was seen to go up the bank, turning in the direction of the city. The engineer at once gave the usual signal, but the old man paid no attention to the warning, but kept walking slowly on unconscious of danger, in the same direction, without paying the slightest attention, and the driver at once put on the air brakes. Too late, however, for the engine struck the man, who must have been killed instantly. The force of the shock threw the victim from the track into the ditch. His left ankle was broken, and he was otherwise injured, although the body was not mutilated. The victim's name was Wm. Bratt, of Foxboro. He is a laboring man, and has been employed by the McArthur Bros., getting out gravel for the G. T. R. double track. He was totally deaf, which accounts for his death. For some years he has not lived with his wife on account of some domestic troubles. He has a married daughter who lives near Foxboro. When the train slowed up Conductor Stanton had the remains brought to the city, when they were prepared for burial, and taken to Foxboro. No blame can be attached to the engine driver.

Away to the Lakes.

Mr. Wm. Yelland, town, and a party, including Rev. E. Roberts and Rev. J. W. Canham, Uxbridge, and Messrs. Hill and Rundle, of Toronto, are camping at "Pine Grove.

Mr. J. W. Butcher, Mrs. Butcher, Miss Butcher, Mrs. Wyatt, and the Misses Walton, are at Mr. Butcher's island.

Mrs. W. A. Sanderson is occupying her lodge in Boschinck.

Eels' creek is the headquarters for a youthful camping party composed of Ernie and Percy Roper, town; Masters Varcoe, Arnoldi, Duncan McLean and Max. McCord, of Toronto.

Messrs. T. Connal, F. Dumble and H Donnelly are also camping at Eels' creek.

Mrs. Hill, of Toronto, a sister of Mrs. McWhinnie, is stopping at "Pine Grove" with Mr. and Mrs. Brownscombe.

Mr. J. E. Williams, formerly Y. M. C. A. secretary here, is at Mr. Cowan's camp on Juniper Island.

Explanatory.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I regret exceedingly the publication of an article in your issue of Tuesday last, referring to a letter of mine to the Chief of Police, complaining of the disturbance of the Gospel and other services in the Gospel Hall.

The letter referred to was not intended to be made public other than, if necessary, showing it to the leader of the "Salvation Army," that he or she might know that the noise of the bugle and drum did really interfere with our meetings.

There was no desire on my part to stop street preaching,—too little of that being done; neither have I a "quarrel" with the "Salvation Army." I love every dear child of God amongst them. Their zeal I admire, and only wish that more who claimed to be children of God practised it, for there is no question but that zeal even without much knowledge is infinitely to be preferred to knowledge without zeal.

Last of all I have no wish and dislike exceedingly having my name brought before the public on such questions, and feel sorry for the lack of judgment and good taste that would do so without consent, but hope sincerely that the present case will serve as a lesson in the future, and thus avoid causing grief to those who desire to "live peaceably with all men."

Respectively,
GEO. B. STROULE

Who Owns the Greyhound?

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Could you inform me of any person losing a greyhound? A dog of this description followed a man from Peterborough about one month ago, and came to my place about two weeks ago. She is of a light brown, and appears to be young and has a white spot between its front legs. Any person having lost such a dog will find her at my place one mile from Hall's Glen Post Office North Dummer, (fourth concession.)

WM. CARVETH.

Charged with Fraud,

Mr. Edg. Hartley Accused of Obtaining Money Under False Pretences.

At the police court this morning Mr. E. J. Hartley was arraigned on a charge of obtaining the sum of $84.35, under false pretenses, from Mr. Thos. Dunn. Mr. A. P. Poussette conducted the prosecution and Mr. E. B. Edwards the defence.

Mr. Poussette objected to Police Magistrate Dumble trying the case, as he had been counsel for the defendant in a suit in the Division Court last Friday, from which the present case arose. Mr. Dumble replied that he did not intend trying the case in any event, but would simply sift the evidence and, if necessary, send the case up for trial in a higher court.

Mr. Edwards also objected to the information, which was amended to suit him. The exact date of the alleged fraudulent action is not fixed, the information reading "on the day of April, 1889."

Mr. T. Dunn, the complainant, was the only witness examined. Mr. Dunn stated that before the first of January, 1889, he leased a store on Hunter street, in which he carried on the saloon business for about four months, from Mr. Hartley. At different times he paid Mr. Hartley small sums of money on account of rent, sums varying from 50c. to $2 in amount, for which Mr. Hartley gave him each time an "i.o.u. Mr. Hartley told him he was entitled to receive the rent. In April, 1889, he (the witness) returned all the papers and defendant gave him instead a receipt for $84.35, in part payment of account for rent. The receipt was produced in court. Later the defendant disclaimed all right to receive the rent; and in the Division Court last Friday in an action brought by witness against defendant's mother for taxes, he so stated on oath that he had no authority to collect the rent.

To Mr. Edwards witness said the amount mentioned was all given out in cash. There was in addition a bar bill of some $36 against Hartley. Witness could not say whether any of the money received by Hartley was spent over the bar or not. Mr. Edwards asked Mr. Dunn if the words "in part payment on the rent" were not written in afterwards, but the witness was positive the receipt was just as he got it.

This closed the case, and both counsel addressed the court. The magistrate in summing up said he did not think the case could succeed, as there had been no fraudulent intent shown. The receipt of the money was not disputed by the defence. There was no evidence, he claimed that the complainant gave defendant the money on account and in belief of the latter's statement that he was authorized to receive it; nor was there any evidence that the defendant had stated an untruth when he told the complainant that he was entitled to it.

Mr. Poussette held that the defendant's admission in court that he had no right to receive the rent was binding on him.

Mr. Dumble replied that it was not, as it might reasonably be doubted which of his statements was correct. It rested with the prosecution to show that his first statement was untrue, and this the magistrate contended they had not done.

He however reserved judgment till to-morrow.

The Buenos Ayres Revolution.

Desperate Sunday Fighting—The Revolutionists Have the Best of It—The Death Roll a Thousand.

(Special to the Examiner.)

BUENOS AYRES, July 28.—The revolutionary movement continues to spread. The fighting between the government troops and the revolutionists yesterday was desperate. The government forces were defeated. One thousand of them were killed or wounded. The navy has joined the revolutionary movement. Insurgent artillery bombarded the government house and the barracks yesterday. A twenty-four hours' truce has been arranged between the opposing forces. The triumph of the revolutionary forces appears to be assured.

The Rival Timber Policies.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

Nothing serves better to illustrate the methods of the Reform and Tory parties respectively in the management of public affairs than a comparison of the policy of the Ontario Government in dealing with Crown timber lands with that of the Dominion Government. While Mr. Hardy leases provincial timber limits to the bona fide lumbermen who will pay the largest bonuses into Ontario's treasury, Sir John A. Macdonad parcels out Northwest timber limits among such of his camp followers as have "a pull," at merely nominal figures. The result is that while the Ontario government's policy has produced a gross revenue of thirteen millions of dollars from timber limits, the federal government's policy has merely made wealthy men of Mr. Rykert, Mr. Honore Robillard and one or two others. Take the case of the Whitefish Lake Indian reserve. This reserve was included in one of the limits leased by the Ontario Government in 1872. The land was then supposed to belong to the province. The price obtained was $9,000, or about $100 a square mile. The country was at that time wild; there were no railways of which advantage could be taken; the limit was in consequence difficult access; and yet the bonus obtained was $9,000. The Dominion government afterwards discovered that the limit was an Indian reserve, and in 1885, though they knew of the previous sale, they re-sold the limit privately to Mr. Honore Robillard, M.P., without advertising it, and without ever letting the Ontario government know what they were doing. The limit had greatly increased in value between 1872 and 1885. The Canadian Pacific railway had been built near it through it, water communication had been improved and greater facilities for taking out ridge and timber had been provided. But how much did the federal government get for the limit which the province sold for $100 per square mile? Instead of securing a better price than that obtained by the province, Sir John Macdonald gave the entire limit to his supporter, Mr. Robillard, for $316. Three dollars and a half per mile instead of $100 per mile. $316 instead of $9,000 for the limit. Thus were the poor Indians of the Nipissing district, for whom Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Dewdney are trustees and guardians, swindled for the benefit of Mr. Robillard. The latter soon after acquiring the limit sold his interest in it for $15,000, and the territory which the federal government sold for $316 has since changed hands at nearly $100,000. Take again the case of the Hunter's Island limits in the Rainy River region. Hunter's Island was in the disputed territory, but after the final decision of her Majesty awarding the entire territory to the Province of Ontario was given, but while the Federal Government were pressing a bogus claim to the timber and minerals therein, Sir John Macdonald, as Minister of the Interior, partitioned the valuable Hunter's Island among a number of his hungry followers without asking any bonus. The fortunate grantees put the limits on the market at $600,000, and would have got that sum from Chicago lumbermen, but fortunately for themselves, the Chicago men discovered in time that the Ontario Government claimed the island, and they, therefore, declined to pay. Take again the scandalous purchase by Mr. Rykert. That gentleman got at secret sale, without any bonus, a limit for which he and his partner in the transaction almost immediately afterwards received $200,000. Those are but a few examples of the Federal Government's policy in dealing with public timbered lands, which policy would have been adopted in Ontario had Mr. Meredith and his friends succeeded in getting a majority at the recent Provincial election.

Colts vs. Bankers.

An Interesting Game of Cricket on Saturday.

The Colts and Bankers tried conclusions on the cricket field Saturday afternoon, the former winning on the first innings. It is probable another match will be played at an early date, neither team being exactly satisfied with the result. The Bankers are confident that they would have won the match easily if time had allowed, while the Colts are equally confident that they can play much better cricket than they displayed, in the second innings particularly.

The Bankers went first to bat and were dismissed for 42 runs, the Colts following with 57. In their second innings the Bankers did better, the Colts' bowling and fielding becoming demoralized. M. Hamilton and Turnbull made a fine stand, after each had been missed, and when they had run the score up to 99 called their innings and sent the Colts to bat with the expectation of putting the side out for a small score. In this they were disappointed. When time was called at 6.30 only 6 wickets were down for 33 runs, with Goldsmith and Dunsford batting steadily. The colts thus won on the first innings. The score was :—

"Newham."

Haliburton's Hot-Weather Haut Ton(en).

"Newham," the beautiful summer resort in the Highlands of Haliburton, is enjoying to a large degree the fruits of its popularity as one of the most charming summering spots in Canada. Among the many visitors this month may be quoted, Mrs. Dennistoun and her six daughters, also Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, Peterborough; Miss Kirkpatrick, Peterborough; Mr. Mathiew, Paris, France; G. P. Hopkins, New York; J. Haines, New York; G. N. May, Reading, England; Mr. Sinclair, Ed. Dixon, W. Moore, George Muesen, Toronto; W. Trayes, Port Hope. The usual weekly ball was given last Wednesday. The pavilion was crowded with the elite, and all enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

Personal.

Mr. A. Stevenson, of Dennistoun & Stevenson, is enjoying the famous Mackinaw trip.

Mr. Wm. Kelly, son of Mr. John Kelly, arrived in town on Saturday, from Chicago, on a visit to relatives and friends.

Mr. Thomas W. Tebb and Mr. W. E. McCamus leave to-morrow morning for Mackinaw, to spend their holidays.

On account of ill health Mr. J. A. Bennet, of the firm of Bennet & Stenton, butchers, is retiring from business, and, as will be noticed by advertisement elsewhere in this issue, the business is for sale.

Monaghan.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On the fourteenth of July Mr. John Elliott, living on the ninth concession of North Monaghan, was proceeding on horseback west to Springville, and coming to a place in the road where it is almost impassable, the horse sank in the centre of the road to quite a depth. Its feet became fast in a mat. Mr. Elliott being alone, was unable to rescue the animal from its perilous position, and before help could be procured, the animal, in its efforts to extricate itself, broke its leg, and was so completely used up that it had to be destroyed. This state of matters in the highest valued township in the county of Peterborough demands the earnest attention of the ratepayers of the township. In this case we shall have to compensate Mr. Elliott for the loss of his horse, which was a valuable one. If these in office can see fit to bonus agricultural societies and other side-shows of no practical use to any individual ratepayer, it would appear almost time that some of those that occupy seats in the official chairs, exchange with others who will do their duty without exhibitions and tin whistles.

THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION.

Dr. Burt Explains His New Theory to the Chicago Medical Society.

CHICAGO, July 26.—The announcement that Dr. W. H. Burt would explain a new theory on the cure of consumption caused a large audience at to-night's meeting of the Chicago Medical Society at the Grand Pacific Hotel. Dr. Burt's paper was masterly in its exhaustive treatment of the disease. He did not disappoint his audience in the absolute novelty of his theory. Eight months ago, when reading of the wonderful change brought about in the obesity of Prince Bismarck, through his refraining from the use of water and carbohydrates, it occurred to him that an opposite treatment ought to result in the cure of all wasting diseases. His experiments since have justified him in the statement that excessive eating and the excessive use of water will cure 50 per cent. of all consumptive cases in their first and second stages. He explained at length the tonic influence and power in building up tissue possessed by water, which forms three-fourths of the human body, and stated that even in health six pints a day were necessary to meet the water waste, and in disease twelve pints, charged with carbolic acid. The doctor claimed it would give the very life to the system and tissues demanded in consumption. He pronounced the bacteria theory, so popular of late as pure nonsense. In detail his treatment consisted of the free use of water every hour in the day, nine hours sleep, regular and not exhaustive out-door exercise, if possible the sea or mountain air. Above all, the patient must look upon the drinking of water for all time as his life. Heredity was the great danger, and Dr. Burt advocated the passing by Congress of a law forbidding the marriage of consumptives. With this in force, 100 years from now consumption would not exist in the United States.

AGAINST THEIR PRESIDENT.

A Report of a Revolution in Guatemala—War Surmises.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—A telegram has been received at the State Department from United States Minister Misener at Guatemala saying that consternation prevails at that place over rumors that the Government troops had been defeated in an engagement with the Salvadorian army. The Minister's telegram gives evidence that he has not received the department's instructions in regard to the case of the steamship Colina, and steps will be taken to discover the cause of the delay.

Spanish Warships en Route.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 27.—The Spanish Minister here says two Spanish warships have been ordered to Central America. A large amount of counterfeit silver is in circulation here. Several revolutionary bands are marauding near the Mexican frontier in Guatemalan territory. Both Guatemala and San Salvador are trying to mass troops with the utmost haste, but Guatemala finds difficulty in the dissatisfaction of her soldiers. Guatemala despatches claim that the Guatemalan forces so greatly outnumber the Salvadorians that in the present week the tables will be turned.

Another Guatemalan Story.

RICHFIELD SPRINGS, N.Y., July 27.—A cipher despatch received here to-day by an official of the Guatemalan Government says Guatemala accepts the war provoked by San Salvador and will continue it until San Salvador elects a legitimate President in place of Ezeta. The battle fought on July 23, the despatch recites, resulted in the rout of the San Salvadorians, but as Salvador commands the cable to Central America the government only allows despatches favorable to itself to be sent abroad.

The telegram further asserts that the arms taken from the steamer Colina were taken with the consent of the Pacific Mail agent and the American Minister by virtue of article 17 of the Pacific Mail contract. Honduras, the despatch says, will remain neutral for the present, but may join with Guatemala if events require her. Guatemala has 40,000 men under arms and Honduras 6000, while San Salvador has only about 10,000.

Arbitration Out of the Question.

SAN ANTONIO, July 27.—Senor Romero, Mexican Minister at Washington, passed through here yesterday en route to the City of Mexico. Senor Romero said the Central American war was a very bad thing and the rupture had progressed to where arbitration was absolutely out of the question.

Drowned.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27.—Yesterday afternoon a boy named Dennis Tobin, aged 9 years, was on a boom in the river. His mother standing on shore saw him and called him to come away and in trying to do so his foot caught a pin in the boom, he lost his balance, fell in and was drowned in full view of his mother, who rushed out to go in after him but was held back by neighbors

CONTINUOUS FIGHTING IN BUENOS AYRES.

The Minister of War Wounded and the Finance Minister Captured by the Insurgents—The Navy Joins in the Revolt—The President's Residence Shelled.

LONDON, July 29. The Times has the following from Buenos Ayres dated July 27:

Noon. Fighting began yesterday at dawn and ceased at dark, both sides maintaining their positions. Colman a police and cavalry suffered terribly in attacking the civicos and troops. The provisionals were intrenched in an artillery barracks. The city during the night was like a city of the dead, but behind their shutters the citizens were on the alert armed with rifles. After nightfall the civicos advanced two blocks.

The provisionals reopened a heavy artillery fire at dawn to-day on the troops under Vice President Pelegrini.

A terrible mistake occurred during the fighting. The Eleventh regiment, suddenly turning in favor of the provisional government, approached the artillery, and before they could make their friendly intentions known to the insurgents they were mown down within a narrow street.

11 a.m.—Cellman's officials assert that the civicos are treating for a surrender but this is disbelieved. Forty-six cannon have arrived for Cellman's forces, also 1200 troops. The foreign ministers have instructed the commanders of the American, British and Spanish gunboats if the fleet resume bombarding to protest jointly that it is contrary to the rules of war to bombard an open city without notice. Cellman has just arrived at the Government house. He will confer with the Ministers and generals. The polyglot population has almost entirely hold aloof from the fighting. Only some Italians have joined the civicos.

3 p.m.—The Government troops have resumed firing. The streets leading to the Plaza Mayo are blocked with bales of hay. Cellman offered terms to the civicos, promising not to proceed against civilians surrendering and to permit officers supporting the civicos to resign. The troops of the civicos show no signs of yielding. Cellman's troops tried to carry the artillery positions of the civicos but were repulsed with heavy loss.

4½ p.m.—The chiefs of the Union Civica have accepted Cellman's terms. The troops hailed the decision with vivas. Firing has been resumed.

The Minister of War was wounded, the Minister of Finance was taken prisoner, Col. Malmarmendia, Major Campos and many other officers were killed, and the commander of the firemen was shot by his own men.

A short armistice was held at noon and an effort was made to stop the butchery. The armistice lasted one hour. At 1 o'clock the ships began firing on the Government House. Pellegrini having refused to accept the terms of the provisional government. The Civica Union seized 20 tug boats and the gun boats Chacabuco, Mesqui, Cannanondo and Retiro. The British gunboats Beagle and Bramble have arrived to protect the English inhabitants.

3 p.m.—The whole navy has declared in favor of the provisional government. The Patagonia is bombarding the Government house and the Parana is shelling President Celman's residence. Gunboats command the railroads from the North.

4 p.m.—The warships have ceased bombarding. Bulletins announce that the revolution has triumphed. It is certain that the provisionals up to the present hour have got the best of the fighting. Armistice negotiations continue at the Government house. The adherents of Celman are positive that 3000 troops and 40 pieces of artillery are ready when the armistice is over to attack the civicos.

MONDAY, 9 a.m. President Celman's troops have occupied the houses around the Plaza Mayo and have placed light artillery in the plaza. The demands of the Civica Union have been reduced to a request that Celman resign. The fleet has a good way out with steam up. The armistice has been extended until 2 o'clock.

VICTORIES FOR SALVADOR

War News Interdicted By the Guatemalan Authorities.

SAN SALVADOR, July 28.—It is reported here from unofficial sources that the Salvadorian troops have made an advance from Otescatempo on Jutiapa and again met the Guatemalan army with the usual disastrous results to the latter, which had been again badly defeated and was in full retreat on Jutiapa, followed by the victorious Salvadorians. The Guatemalan authorities have interdicted all war news passing over their land wires via Mexico, whether favorable or not to Guatemalan interests. The Mexican minister in Guatemala has protested against the interruption of international telegrams as a violation of the Mexico Guatemala telegraph convention of 1882.

When the first telegrams were forwarded through to the City of Mexico from Guatemala over the land line the Mexican consul general in Guatemala, Senor Diaz de Bonilla, had laid a complaint before the Mexican Government, charging the Guatemalan government with suppressing telegrams of merchants and others, even those which contain no war notes. Senor Bonilla, who is also general agent for the Mexican national telegraph system, has to send his telegrams by mail to this port, and there have them transmitted by submarine cable to their destination at much greater cost than by land line.

Two glorious victories for Salvador have been fully confirmed, one at Chiugo in Guatemala, in the department of Santa Rosa, and the other at Otescatempo, in the department of Jutiapa. Great consternation prevails in Guatemala over the news of these two disasters to her army. Fresh revolutionary outbreaks have been initiated in San Merace, in the Mexican frontier, led by Gen. Daniel Marroquin, who was declared a general by Bonillas two years ago, and who is said to be working in the interest of exiled Gen. Martin Barundidine, and the latter himself is quite close to the Mexico-Guatemalan boundary with arms and troops.

The Salvadorians Advancing.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 28. A La Libertad despatch says the censorship over telegrams only refers to the Guatemalan Government and that other despatches are allowed a free course. The Guatemalan authorities have cut the land lines connecting with the outside.

There is the greatest enthusiasm among the Salvadorians.

A SENATOR BADLY MIXED.

HE CONFOUNDS NEWFOUNDLAND WITH CANADA.

Seizure of the American Fishing Schooner Hattie Evelyn at Bay St. George—How a Yankee Ignoramus Would Retaliate Upon the Dominion.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The case of the seizure of the American fishing schooner Hattie Evelyn at Bay St. George, Nfld., has been brought to the attention of senators by Mr. Steele, president of the American Fishery Union. The statement Mr. Steele has forwarded from Gloucester shows that the schooner went into Bay St. George for the single purpose of purchasing bait. Payment of $16 lighthouse dues was demanded and made under protest.

The captain was then notified he could not purchase bait until he had procured a license therefor at an expense of $65. He protested against this in vain and was compelled to go elsewhere in search of bait. His plea that under the treaty of 1818 he was entitled to purchase bait was without avail.

A senator who has had occasion to look up the law says ample remedy is lodged in the hands of the President. In such a case he is authorized and by implication it is made his duty to close the ports of the United States to Canadian vessels. He should say to those vessels coming to Gloucester with cargoes of fish: "Please stay out until our vessels are permitted to enter your ports for legitimate commercial purposes, in accordance with treaty rights secured by them."

HOW'S THIS, MR. BLAINE?

The Habits of the Seal—The Value of the Fishing Grounds.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—A curious point is suggested by Capt. Bonnet, who during the last administration was at the head of the Revenue Marine Service of the United States, which may have had some bearing upon one of Mr. Blaine's unanswered conundrums. Captain Bonnet suggests that the explanation of the condition of things which seems to puzzle Mr. Blaine may be in the fact that it is only since 1886 that the official knowledge has been obtained of the habits of the seals in Behring Sea to make their capture in transit to the island to their feeding grounds so profitable an undertaking as it is now. It took Pribyloff, the discoverer of the islands which bear his name and which are the chief resort of the seals in Behring Sea, three years to discover and locate the islands, shrouded as they are in perpetual fog; but he knew they must exist, and devoted all his time to finding them.

It is only within the last six years that it has been discovered that there are certain shoals about 60 miles from land to which the seals resort in vast numbers at the close of the breeding season and gorge themselves to satiety on the fish which exist there in inexhaustible quantities. Their capture on these feeding grounds is an easy matter. In fact they are frequently taken by hand as they lie asleep on the surface of the water. The sealing schooners take on board the Inuit Indians with their light canoes, who sometimes harpoon two or three hundred seals a day, or the vessels themselves spread out gill nets and gather them in by the thousands. Before this peculiarity in the habits of the seal was discovered, Capt. Bonnet says, it was not a particularly profitable thing to devote a voyage entirely to seal fishing. It was resorted to rather as an accident. Now vessels which previously thought they were doing well if they brought home a few hundred skins bring them in by the thousand, and the industry is so enormously profitable that the profits of one trip will fit out five or six vessels for the next trip. This perhaps explains the Canadian anxiety to have the open sea seal fisheries continued.

No Cause for War.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The World says: All talk about war with Great Britain concerning Behring Sea difficulties is pure moonshine. It is perfectly true that this country is capable of taking care of its honor, and will not hesitate about going to war when its honor is involved. Any real attack upon the rights of American citizens will certainly be resented to the utmost and no American is afraid of the result.

The country's honor, however, is not involved in this Behring Sea affair. We have no right to the jurisdiction which has been claimed. We might as well, in fact, contend that none but American citizens should fish for cod on the Banks of Newfoundland. Whatever difficulty we are in is due to an unfortunate statute and a worse than unfortunate contract.

The United States do not lack self-respect. They have altogether too much to permit them to engage in a wasteful and wicked war for the purpose of maintaining a company of speculators in the enjoyment of a monopoly. The call to war sounds strangely in these days when arbitration is the first thought of nations which have a difference of opinion. This Republic will fight when the time comes, as it has always fought, but there is happily no sign that the time is near at hand. No human blood will be shed for the account of the seal-catchers. The cause for war must be more dignified than can be forced out of our present relations with Great Britain.

Sealers Have Done Well.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—The schooner Dashing Wave arrived here to-day from Sand Point, Alaska, bringing news of the sealing fleet. The sealing vessels have all done well, having caught from 600 to 1200 seals each. This year sealers rendezvoused at Koniski Island instead of Sand Point. All the sealers, 17 in number, have left for Behring Sea. The British schooner Lily did not appear, and fears are entertained for her safety. The revenue cutter Rush arrived at Sand Point on July 10 and left two days later for Ounalaska.

BRITISH NAVAL OFFICERS' ACTIONS IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

The Legality of the Proceedings to Be Tried in a Court of Law—The Heligoland Cession Bill Passes Its Third Reading in the House of Commons.

LONDON, July 28.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Fergusson said that as the legality of the actions of the British naval officers in Newfoundland will be tried by a court of law, it was not desirable to state under what imperial law of prerogative the Crown office instructions had been framed.

The Heligoland bill passed the third reading in the House of Commons to-day.

The Muenichener Zeitung says Bavarian carriages will meet Prince Bismarck at Kissengin and will be placed at his disposal as in former years.

Martial law has been proclaimed in the Kroon quarters of Constantinople, which is patrolled. Several arrests have been made.

A Terrible Railway Collision.

MANCHESTER, July 28.—A fearful accident happened at 5½, this afternoon in the new Manchester ship canal which will entail heavy loss of life. Two workmen's trains, through some unexplained stupidity of a switchman, collided. Ten workmen were instantly killed and sixty others wounded, of whom at least thirty will die.

According to later advices three men were killed and nine seriously hurt.

Vienna's Beauty Contest.

VIENNA, July 28.—The following directions have been given for those ladies who wish to compete in the International Beauty Contest here: All competitors must send photographs, with their addresses, to the committee. Those who are admitted must attend in evening dress, or costumes representative of the country from which they come. The committee state that should the competitors desire it, traveling expenses and the cost of living here for five days will be paid out of the funds at the disposal of the managers. Each lady who is in the competition will receive a souvenir of the occasion. The total sum to be awarded to the winner is $1200.

The Visit Postponed.

BERLIN, July 28.—Prince Bismarck's proposed visit to England has been postponed. He will go to Kissingen in the middle of August.

Robbing the Dead.

LONDON, July 28.—A sensation is reported from Landshut, in lower Bavaria, over the discovery that the cemetery keepers have been robbing the bodies of the rich dead during the past two years. Clothes, ornaments and even hair have been stolen, while the costly caskets have been replaced by plain pine coffins. General exhumations have been ordered and the ghouls have been arrested.

Brigands Killed.

CANEA, Crete, July 28.—A detachment of gendarmes surprised a number of brigands in a cave on this island and killed and wounded four of them. One gendarme discovered large stores of ammunition and provisions.

MEN OF GREENWOOD.

Canadian Foresters Hold Their Annual Demonstration at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, July 28.—About 2500 Foresters from Toronto, Brantford, Galt, Stratford, London and other points joined the local body to-day in the celebration of the 145th anniversary of the institution of the order. The organization stands to-day second to no other of its kind. On its membership rolls there are inscribed the names of upward of 750,000 members. In its treasury there is stored away $25,500,000, and all over the civilized globe there are found courts of the order. On the membership list are found the names of 36 peers, 14 sons of peers, 5 bishops, 48 baronets, 6 judges, 30 knights, and no less than 221 members of the British Parliament, besides innumerable persons of rank and title in the colonies and foreign countries.

The Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo men were at work to-day filling up the gully and leveling up the line for the three tracks at the entrance to the Bay-street tunnel. There will be two tracks in the tunnel.

At the meeting of the City Council to-night Ald. Ryckman presented a scheme for the annexation of part of the Township of Barton.

Three small boys named Melrose Mandel, John Harris and James Powell were convicted at the Police Court this morning of tapping John H. Kerr's till. Sentence was reserved.

"Prof." Gant preferred a charge against John Meadows and his son of using insulting language. Defendants had called the "professor's" son a "nigger." The Police Magistrate dismissed the case.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Explosion of High Wines The Dominion Rifle Association Meeting.

OTTAWA, July 28. Fire took place in Bates' grocery wholesale store to-day. It occurred through the explosion of high wines. W. Bates, son of T. Bates of St. Catharines, one of the employes, was so badly burned in endeavoring to extinguish the flames that his life was despaired of. He was taken to the Protestant Hospital more dead than alive.

A young man named William Petrie was to-day committed for attempting to displace a switch in the Canadian Pacific Railway yards here.

The Dominion Rifle Association meeting in September will last four days this year, instead of a week, as formerly. The number, both of matches and competitors, will be as large as usual, but the saving in time will be effected by the use of additional target, and by having the marksmen shoot in threes instead of pairs as heretofore. The number of targets has been increased from 25 to 33.

Sad Disappointment for Newport.

HALIFAX, July 28.—It is now stated by the naval authorities here that the war ship Thrush, in command of Prince George of Wales, will not visit Newport, R.I. She left Bermuda this morning for Halifax direct. The flagship Bellerophon, with Admiral Watson and Sir John Rose on board, sailed from St. John's yesterday for Newport, and will be joined en route by the Canada and Partridge, which left this morning. It is said that Prince George had no intention of going to Newport.

REFUSED TO SELL TO NEGROES.

He Was a Negro Himself, but Discriminated Against His Race.

BALTIMORE, July 28.—Secretary Windom has issued an order to Postmaster Johnson to remove George Hughes, a colored man who for twenty years has had a stand on the postoffice pavement, where he sold lemonade and egg flip in summer and other seasonable articles in winter, if the charges made against him are true. A complaint was recently lodged against Hughes by colored men, charging that in the conduct of his business he discriminated against them. Hughes had a very large patronage, members of the corn and flour and the various other exchanges going there. When a colored man asked for a "flip" or a "shake" Hughes generally happened to be out of sugar or lemon or milk. He was quite diplomatic and the discrimination was not noticed until this week, when a large number of laborers were employed in the vicinity digging. Then the colored men became indignant at the refusal to serve them, while the white laborers could get all the refreshments they wanted.

HUNTING THE CLAM PEARL.

How the Villagers of Albany, Wis., Spent Sunday.

ALBANY, Wis., July 28.—The pearl fishing craze has broken out afresh in this little village and 1000 men, women and children, many with large rakes, others using their hands and others diving into the channel of Sugar River, were out Sunday from daylight until midnight in their enthusiastic search for pearl-bearing clams.

The occasion of the excitement was the letting out of the water from the Albany milldam, by which 200 acres of overflowed lands were made accessible to the pearl fishers. The result of the day's work was many wagon-loads of clams, and perhaps $1000 worth of pearls, although it is very difficult to make an exact estimate as to their value, owing to the reticence of the fishers.

The water in the pond is still falling rapidly, and the hunt will continue for several days, until all or nearly all of the clams are taken away. To-morrow it is expected the number of pearlers will be largely increased. A picturesque scene was presented by the pearl fishers. All wore wide-brimmed hats and old clothing; many farmers drove in with their families from the surrounding country to enjoy the holiday and it required but a short visit to the undergrowth to metamorphose the neat country lasses into veritable water nymphs, and they were soon up to their armpits in the mud and water digging clams with the rest.

As fast as secured the clams were taken to the shore and there opened, the finding of a particularly valuable gem being announced by a mighty shout of joy. So far as known no pearls were found having a value of more than $100. Many fables are told of big prices being obtained for these pearls in New York and elsewhere. They have really very little value and have been offered by the bushel to dealers. About one pearl in ten bushels might bring $10. A farmer, John Shafer, two miles from Albany, says he has refused $700 for a pure white pearl found on this farm. Some estimates place the value of pearls sold since the advent of the industry, a year ago, at $500,000. The pearl territory comprises about 30 miles surface.

THE LOTTERY BILL.

A Hard Fight Will Probably Have to Be Made to Pass It.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Although the vote on the substitute bill adopted by the House Postoffice Committee denying the further use of the mails to those engaged in the lottery business for the purpose of forwarding that business was unanimous, an effort was nevertheless made to amend the measure here and there, apparently in the interests of a less vigorous form of procedure against the offenders.

It was proposed, for instance, that the bill be amended so as to except newspapers furthering public lotteries from the operations of the bill. But in reply it was urged with convincing force that the portion of the press accepting such patronage was the agency next only to the mails themselves upon which the lottery companies relied for the successful carrying on of their business.

With the committee's endorsement of a bill, however, the fight has but just begun. The next move must be to secure a day for the consideration of the bill in the House. While a large majority of the House is at present in favor of the bill, the lottery companies are strongly intrenched here, and there is every reason to believe that through their paid agents they will attempt in some way to defeat the action proposed. After the successful purchase of a State Legislature no hesitation will probably be felt about attempting to corrupt Congress. But the situation here, fortunately for the country, is different from that at Baton Rouge, and however active the lottery agents and lobbyists may be their daily transactions can be noted and the proper warning sounded.

Chicago May Have Gas Fuel.

CHICAGO, July 28.—Chicago hopes soon to be emancipated from the abominable smoke nuisance. The City Council has taken up the fuel gas ordinance, so long delayed, and will probably pass it on Monday evening. The measure is backed by the Chicago Economic Fuel Gas Company. The company proposes to furnish fuel gas from Indiana, which will have to be piped about one hundred and fifty miles, and to supply local consumers at from 50 to 60 cents per thousand feet, with a rebate to the consumer for cash payment and 5 per cent. to the city of the company's earnings for the privilege of laying pipes in the alleys. Those in position to know all about the project laugh at the idea advanced by the opponents of the ordinance to the effect that it emanated with either the Standard Oil Company or the old Gas Trust. The laying of the pipes through Indiana is already under way. If the company is given its ordinance fuel gas will be delivered here before Jan. 1.

A BRUSSELS BLAZE.

A Business Block Entirely Wiped Out The Work of an Incendiary.

BRUSSELS, Ont., July 28.—About 5 o'clock Sunday morning a fire broke out in the Halliday clock in Miss Montgomery's furniture store, which resulted in the complete destruction of the entire block. The buildings being composed of wood and the fire having gained great headway before any alarm was given, all hope of saving the block was abandoned, and the efforts of the firemen were directed successfully in confining the fire to its origin and in saving the adjoining buildings. The town fire engine, which did noble service, worked steadily, throwing two powerful streams for over three hours, when the fire was got under control, and but for its efficiency it is safe to predict that the adjoining buildings would have been destroyed.

The losses, so far as can at present be ascertained, are as follows: Miss Montgomery, furniture, partially destroyed, $500, insurance unknown; Thomas Ferguson, stoves and tinware, $1500, insured for $800. William Roddick, loss on building $800, insured for $350; John Halliday, loss on building $1500, insured for $1000; Misses Sample's loss on clothing and contents $500, no insurance. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

A Big Blaze at Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 28.—Fire broke out at 8¾ this morning in Walter Paul's grocery, corner Green-avenue and St. Catherine-street, Cote St. Antoine, totally destroying the grocery and outbuildings. The loss is $50,000.

Plow Works Consumed.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 28.—The plant of the Monitor Plow Works here was burned today. Loss $115,000. The fire caught from a locomotive spark.

A Washington Fire.

TACOMA, July 28.—C. M. Johnson's sash and door factory was burned to-day. Loss $75,000.

SIX HUNDRED HOMELESS.

The Mining Village of Pilley's Island, N.F., Destroyed.

PILLEY'S ISLAND, Nfld., July 28.—A fire, which broke out at 5 o'clock last evening in the woods surrounding the Standard Pyrites Company's mines, has devastated the village and rendered 600 persons homeless. It was only through the brave efforts of the miners and some New York tourists that the powder magazines and the mine were saved. Hundreds spent the night in open boats on the bay or on the small islands.

Burglary at 98. Ilsta.

ST. CATHARINES, July 28.—Burglars broke into W. S. Fletcher's store in King-street Sunday night and got away with about $80 in booty.

Forgot What He was Crying For.

A little boy sat on the floor crying. After a while he stopped and seemed buried in thought. Looking up suddenly, he said: "Mamma, what was I crying about?"

"Because I wouldn't let you go out to play."

"Oh, yes," and he set up another howl.—Birmingham Post.

Cheese Making in August.

Now Is the Time for the Factory Man to Redeem His Reputation Some Notable Notes.

By James W. Robertson Dairy Commissioner

A cheese factory's reputation is largely determined by the quality of its August, September and October output. The beginning of August is a fit time for every cheesemaker who has had only partial success during the hot weather to redeem his reputation and that of his factory. A comparison of the prices realized for the summer cheese of Ontario with the figures reported from the United States market shows that Canadian cheese are in demand at higher rates that American cheese will sell for. That we have gained in reputation and in market favor with British importers and consumers is evident. That this advance and advantage are the result of the applied skill of less than half of our cheese makers is well known to those who visit the factories and handle their products. To reach and to speedily help those who work in cheese factories without any ambition or aspiration for improvement is well nigh impracticable.

However, we desire to make hopeful information not only attainable but unavoidable to such.

In a short time there were numerous cable orders from England calling for "cool August cheese." That brief description implies a mild, rich flavor that may be preserved for the winter trade, a firm, solid body "full of meatiness," a fine outside finish, with clean, bright rinds, free from cracks, and bandages fresh looking and not likely to appear mouldy.

To help the cheese-makers in manufacturing a class of goods that may be satisfactorily shipped on such orders, I call attention to some things, both outside and inside of the factories, which need their immediate and special personal care.

Insufficient or inefficient drainage facilities, unless enlarged or remedied, will show their worst effects during this month. At the cost of only a few hours of labor and a few dollars of expense, the immediate vicinity of every factory can be kept free from the noxious odors that arise from stagnant slop pools. The frequency and foulness of these about the factories in such sections is not only a menace to the permanent prosperity of our cheese manufacturing industry but a disgrace to the men in charge of the factories.

At factories from which whey is drawn back to the patrons' farms in wagons, the leaking and spilling near the whey tank too often leave its vicinity in an almost impassable condition. A few loads of gravel will abate the nuisance and leave the place fit for approach during the succeeding months when the roads become bad.

The shrinkage in the milk supply will leave a shortage in the whey tank. In order that the whey may have more feeding value, the tank should be thoroughly cleaned and washed at least once a week.

At factories where hogs are fed, provision should be made for supplying them with one feed a day of some green fodder, such as clover, oats and vetches, oats and peas or cornstalks. Salt should be fed liberally during this month.

This month seems the one when flies become most numerous and troublesome. Some afternoon after the cheese are in the hoops, it will be a good plan to close up the making-room windows and doors, and to burn a small quantity of sulphur for the purpose of fumigating the place. If a tablespoonful of alcohol be mixed with the sulphur, it will burn more freely. Care must be taken to prevent the fumes from getting into the curing room. The tins of the milk vats and the insides of the sinks should also be washed afterwards before they are used. All vats, presses and utensils should get a thorough quarterly cleaning this month. The use of a solution of borax on the hoops will help to prevent inculdness on the sides of the cheese.

Every cheese-maker should persistently fight untidiness and filth in every form, and he ought to have a woman's passion for cleanliness and a similar antagonism for dirt.

There will be difficulty in curing the cheese made during July at a sufficiently low temperature. Ventilation of the room during the early mornings, as well as during the evenings and nights, will be of benefit. Floors should be sprinkled with cold water morning, noon and evening. While the cheese are being turned on the shelves there should be an abundant admission of light. August is the month when the "skippers" are apt to do damage. A plentiful shaking of fly powder in the room before it is shut up for the day will destroy the cheese flies.

Cheese boxes should not be stored in the curing-room. The odor from the elm wood penetrates the cheese and affects their flavor.

Since the milk is richer and less in quantity there will be an increased temptation to "even up" by the addition of water, or to "even up" by the removal of cream. You will be doing the community moral service, as well as the cheese trade some good, by reminding the patrons that the Dominion Act on adulteration of milk is in force and will be enforced against all discovered delinquents.

Patrons are more likely during this month than at any other times to forget to provide salt for their cows, and to neglect to supply an abundance of pure cold water. Cool evenings are no excuse for the neglect of aeration. All milk should be most thoroughly aired immediately after it is strained.

The making of cheese for exhibitions is usually undertaken during the first two weeks in this month. Send a circular to every patron, making mention of those matters that are referred to in this bulletin, and inviting their co-operation, in order to aid you in the manufacture of cheese fine enough for exhibition and prize-taking. If some patrons pay no heed, and no improvement results, don't get discouraged. Keep right on insisting on a better state of things in their practice.

When the evenings are cool and the milk needs ripening, don't fail to leave it in the vat until it reaches the proper state of maturity, before the rennet is added. Use enough rennet to coagulate mature milk to a state fit for cutting in forty minutes when set at 86° Fahr. Dilute the extract to the extent of one pailful of water for every vatful of milk and then mix it thoroughly by vigorous, rapid stirring.

When you are troubled with greasy curds, allow a development of acid, such as will be indicated by threads from the not iron test a quarter of an inch long, before the removal of the whey. It is a good plan to run most of the whey off at an earlier stage, and to leave only enough whey on the curd to permit a free stirring of it. After the whey is drawn, air the curd thoroughly and make provision for keeping it warm. When a curd sink is used if need be to retain the heat put the curd back into the vat, but let the temperature be kept above 94°. Frequent turning and aeration will facilitate the development of acid, providing the temperature is maintained. After the curd cutter has been used, the curd should be stirred and aired for 15 or 20 minutes before the application of salt. From 2½ to 2¾ pounds of salt per 1000 lbs. of milk should be added to curds that are fairly well dried by the previous stirring. They should be put in the hoops within 20 minutes after the salt has been mixed in.

Pressure should be applied very gradually. The cheese should be bandaged neatly when they are turned in the hoops, within two hours after they are put in the presses. They should again be turned in the hoops some time in the following morning. Where practicable, cheese should be pressed for at least twenty hours.

Endeavour to get anyone who sends milk to your factory, or who is concerned in its management, to try to bring it to the very front in point of reputation for the excellent quality of its product. Work conscientiously for that end, then talk your factory up always and wherever you go, and get your patrons to do likewise. In short, think and work to make your factory and its product worthy of a higher reputation, especially for August cheese.

One Was Enough.

Scene 1—Before arrival of the baby: Aunt Evelyn (spinster)—How glad I am that Lulu has been persuaded to bring the dear baby. I am only sorry she is coming without all four children.

Scene 2—After arrival of the baby: Baby is seated on a table. Lulu placidly looks out of the window, Evelyn enters, rushes to the table, and tries to spread herself all around it. Baby, who is shy, begins to whimper, wriggles rapidly to the edge opposite Evelyn, and falls off. Lulu picks her up and walks the floor, singing to stop the screams: "Did it's auntie fwighten mamma's darling?"

Evelyn—How could you leave the child in such a dangerous position, Lulu? She might be maimed for life.

Lulu (with maternal superiority)—If you had had four, Evelyn, you would know that babies are not so easily broken up. Besides, my children never roll off tables unless some one startles them.

A few moments later baby, pacified by a caramel, is toddling about the room, smearing the chairs, or whatever comes in her way.

Evelyn—Lulu, Lulu, that child will certainly put her eye out on the edge of that bracket. Can't you persuade her to sit in the middle of the floor? I would nurse her myself, but she screams whenever I go near her.

Lulu—The bracket, Evelyn, is at least four inches above the child's head, so I do not think her eye is in any danger. She will sit quietly on the floor if she is allowed to have her playthings, but you used to be particular, so orderly.

Evelyn—Give her anything—anything!

Baby is surrounded by a miscellaneous ring of articles and appears to be innocently employed.

Lulu—As I wrote you, Flora Wyndham is——

Evelyn—Goodness, Lulu, what is that child putting in her mouth?

Lulu (laughing)—Why, it's one of her father's cigars, and she has an old pipe too. She must have picked them up and put them in my trunk. Give it to mamma, baby darling.

Baby gives up her treasure without dispute, but, by way of consolation, sucks the color out of aunt Evelyn's table scarf.

Evelyn—So Clarence smokes, Lulu; I thought he had no habits of that kind.

Lulu—Smoke! I should think so; he smokes in every room in the house. I don't mind.

Evelyn—I beg, Lulu, that you will not allow the child to throw such things about my house. The gentlemen who come here do not smoke. I expect Mr. Selby this evening.

Before long baby pulls the scarf from the table and shatters a hand-painted vase. When she has been pacified Lulu places her again on the floor and she crawls into the next room.

Lulu—As I began to tell you, we——

Evelyn—There's that baby again.

The ladies rush into the next room and find the baby sitting in a black pool. Streams of black run over her face, and she is rubbing her eyes with her fist.

Lulu—She must have seized that bottle of shoe polish off your dressing table. I did not notice that she was carrying it down.

Baby struggles and yells. Lulu tries to wipe off the polish and examine her eyes; and Evelyn, in an agony, suggests sending for a doctor.

Lulu (irritably)—I wish you would not go on so, Evelyn. You are making me quite nervous. There is not the least danger of her being blinded. Jack spilled a whole bottle of ratifia over his face and eyes before he was her age, and I only plunged him head first into a pail of water and he came out all right.

Lulu carries off the baby, and Evelyn sits down in the midst of a wreck of dolls, carts, blocks, broken china, squeezed fruit, and candy.

Evelyn—I don't feel as if a corner of my house belonged to me. That baby has monopolized everything, invaded everywhere. They are to stay six weeks, and this is only the first day. I must either train the child, and, I suppose, antagonize the mother, or get distracted.

Scene 3—Baby has gone to bed, the Rev. Arthur Selby has arrived, and Evelyn has tried to entertain him by a little music, but her fingers have stuck to the keys, and Lulu has audibly explained that baby was at the piano and must have amused herself rubbing it with caramels. Evelyn gives a sigh of relief when supper is announced. The infant can not have left any traces in the dining-room, as the doors have been closed since her arrival.

Scene 4.—At the supper-table. Mr. Selby raises his cup to his lips, tastes, makes a wry face, and swallows his mouthful with difficulty. Lulu puts down her cup hastily and looks at her sister. Evelyn slips, and rings the bell for Elsie.

Evelyn—Elsie, what have you put in this tea?

Elsie—Not a dhrap of anything but the tay itself.

Evelyn—Take it out. Bring me some boiling water and another tea-pot. I will make the tea myself.

Evelyn is nervous, but tries to appear composed. Lulu, not at all disturbed, rattles away in a lively manner. In a few moments Elsie returns, holding a dark, round object between her thumb and finger.

Elsie—Is it wanting me to see is not all pison ed entirely. Thim cigars may be will on one in the saucer, but form a man would I like to dhrink tay in. The baby, I am sure, carried it until my kid [illegible] and made it [illegible] have dhipt it until the pot was [illegible] to go.

Our Story.

A Dream.

My dead love came to me and said:
"God gives me one hour's rest,
To spend with thee on earth again;
How shall we spend it best?"

"Why, as of old," I said, and so
We quarrell'd as of old:
But when I turned to make my peace
That one short hour was told.

—Stephen Phillips.

MARRIED WHILE ASLEEP.

From his youth up, Henry Appleton had been apt with his pencil in bringing out the humorous phases of every incident which came along. Arrived at manhood's estate, he sought a genial field of labor in which his powers found full play, and long since he had achieved a nation-wide reputation as a caricaturist and cartoonist.

A few years ago a very strange thing happened to him. He had a severe attack of brain fever, and in his ravings, for the first few days of his illness the watchers observed that he continually talked of his work. Later on they were surprised to note the fact that, while he did this during the day at night he would change his mood entirely and recite verse after verse of poetry.

The days passed on, and he was convalescent, and finally recovered fully and resumed his work. One morning when he arose he was greatly surprised to find a poem on his table, which, judging from the shirography and the arrangement of the pencils, lamp and paper, was evidently written by himself during the night. But he had no remembrance of having done it, not even the faint recollection of a dream. He was perplexed and could suggest no solution. Somnambulism would not answer the requirements of the case, for in that state only those things are done voluntarily with which the mind is charged during waking hours, and certainly nothing was further from his mind during that period than composing poetry.

A month later he found another poem on the table in the morning, and in addition to this, evidences that he had been up and about on the street during the night. But as the months passed by, and from time to time these strange evidences of a duplex existence revealed themselves to him, he became accustomed to them, and finally began to look forward to their recurrence with great interest if not pleasure. He became convinced that while in this abnormal condition he was in the full possession of all his faculties, controlled by will and reason.

During the past year he became acquainted with Miss Jessie Goldbourd, a young lady who lived across the street from him, and in the course of time pressed his suit, but seemingly in vain. Truly and well, however, the young lady loved our hero, and but for one thing would have snuggled her head against his breast and whispered a decrescendo "yes" at the very first opportunity. For some time past she had at times suffered from hypnotic somnambulism, and as some physicians claimed it to be a disease, she wished to have the trouble removed before consenting to marriage.

But a very strange experience and denouement awaited them both. The physician, instead of curing, seemed only to intensify her trouble, and it came to pass that in her sleep she would walk about her father's grounds and even converse with those she met if spoken to first, being always subject to their will.

One night in June, when the air was balmy and a full-faced moon flooded the earth with a mellow light, he passed into one of his "poetry moods," as he had come to call them. He arose, dressed and started for a walk along the street. In the house across the way a similar occurrence was transpiring and Miss Jessie was donning a street costume in the full unconsciousness of a somnambula-hypnotic slumber. Into the street she went and face to face they met. He spoke just as they were passing, and his voice arrested her steps. He turned and took her arm, and off they walked as if in the full enjoyment of their normal faculties. Instead, however, neither was conscious of any existence, except possibly something latent and undefinable, like the reincarnationist's alleged remembrance of a former earthly career.

As they walked along he talked of flowers, moonshine and finally love.

"I could love you forever," he said.

"I could love you forever," she echoed.

And quite realistic and lover-like he slipped his arm about her and kissed her. And then he spoke of marriage, and at that moment they came to a church, and hand in hand they passed on, and a light was in the study. This he noted, and proposed that they enter and be married at once. Controlled by his will she consented, and soon the studious minister had pronounced the talismanic words which made them man and wife. A marriage certificate was filled out, the minister's wife going as witness, which was given to her. Mechanically she placed it in the pocket of her ulster, and out into the night again they went and retraced their steps. When they arrived at the spot where they met they separated without a word, and returning to their beds, slept peacefully till morning.

He arose next morning, and little dreaming what had occurred during the night, ate his breakfast and was off to work as usual. When she awoke the sunlight was flooding her room. She examined her clothing carefully to discover if possible whether or not she had escaped her dreaded malady during the night. Everything seemed in perfect order, and she was congratulating herself, when she noticed a strange looking paper protruding from the pocket of her ulster. Eagerly she grasped it, unfolded it and read its contents.

Horror of horrors, what had she done! At once she went into a towering rage, and her contempt knew no bounds for the man who had thus taken advantage of her helpless condition, and secured thereby what, in her waking hours, she had repeatedly refused. And then, woman-like, she began to weep, and throwing herself on the bed, sobbed for an hour as if her heart would break. And then, angel-like, she began to seek for some justification of his conduct, and at last excused him on the grounds that, as he could not know of her peculiar trouble, it might never have entered his mind but that she was in her normal condition. That she had given her full consent to the ceremony she did not doubt.

A week passed and he did not call. At the end of another week he came and chanced to meet her in the grounds. He was filled with the eagerness of love, but she was cold and distant. He demanded an explanation and she simply replied, "You know all about it," which only served to further mystify him. He protested ignorance and innocence. At last she said:

"Do you know what happened on the 16th of June?"

"I do not," he replied. "That was just two weeks ago to-day. I remember that I retired at 9 o'clock and did not rise till 6 the next morning."

"Are you not aware that I know better than that?" she exclaimed.

"Well, if so, you know more than I do; I could swear to my statement," he replied.

"Read that," said she, handing him the marriage certificate.

He unfolded it, and, June 16 was the date it bore. He recovered quickly from the surprise, for he took in his side of the situation at once.

"Where were you on the night of June 16?" he asked.

"That paper will give answer," she replied.

"But how came you there?"

"That is what I want you to tell me," said she. "For I like yourself, went to bed early and slept till late. If I was out of my room I did not go of my own volition: therefore how came that paper into existence?"

"There is only one solution of the mystery on my side," said he, and then he told her all about his "poetry mood." And she in turn confessed that she was given to hypnotic somnambulism, and that it was on this account that she had ever refused to be his wife at all.

"And you have known, love," said he clasping her hands in his, "for the last two weeks that we were man and wife and never let me know a word about it."

"Yes, but I thought you knew it too, and had not the manhood to come and tell me in my waking hours what you had led me to do in my sleep."

"But, darling we both know it now," said he, folding her close to his heart.

"Yes, husband mine," she replied, "and I hope we may never forget it, even in our sleep."—L. L. Palmer, in Chatter.

APHORISMS.

Gain may be temporary and uncertain, but ever while you live expense is constant and certain; and it is easier to build two chimneys than to keep one in fuel.—Franklin.

No man is so insignificant as to be sure his example can do no hurt.—Lord Clarendon.

There is an oblique way of reproof which takes off the sharpness of it; and an address in flattery which makes it agreeable, though never so gross; but of all flatterers the most skillful is he who can do what you like, without saying anything which argues he is doing it for your sake.—Pope.

The wheel of fortune turns it-cessantly round, and who can say within himself I shall to-day be uppermost.—Confucius.

Love and esteem are the first principles of friendship, which always is imperfect where either of these two is wanting.—Budgell.

Good breeding is the art of showing men, by external signs, the internal regard we have for them. It arises from good sense, improved by conversing with good company.—Cato.

They Looked Only One Way.

GRAFTON, W. Va., July 27.—William Golden, his wife and three children started to cross the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio road near the Railroad hotel, but seeing a yard engine coming up the road they stopped to let it pass. Mr. Golden was holding his 2-year-old boy in his arms and his wife a month's old baby. While watching the engine a passenger train came along and struck the family, instantly killing the husband, wife and two children and fatally injuring the boy who was in his father's arms. The little fellow died in an hour.

The U. S. Tariff Debate.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Tariff will be the principal theme of discussion in the Senate this week. So far all the Democratic members of the Committee on Finance except Mr. Carlisle have delivered speeches against the pending bill and he is expected to address the Senate Monday. It is impossible to say how long the general debate will last, as almost every Democratic Senator is understood to have a formal speech prepared for delivery.

A Free Trip to Europe.

The publishers of the Canadian Queen will give a free trip to Europe to the person sending them the largest number of words constructed from letters contained in the name of their well known magazine "The Canadian Queen." Additional prizes, consisting of silver tea sets, gold watches, china dinner sets, portiere curtains, silk dresses, mantel clocks, and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit.

Webster's unabridged dictionary to be used as authority in deciding the contest.

This is a popular plan of introducing a popular publication. Every one sending a list of not less than ten words will receive a present. Enclose thirteen 2c. stamps for illustrated catalogue of presents and three months' trial subscription to the Queen. Address, the Canadian Queen, "B," Toronto, Ont. dw

Vigilant Care.

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES,

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,708,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $318,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,664,376	3.67
Confederation	$17,574,828	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,460	10.29
Federal	10,058,837	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,317	10.36
North American	5,470,630	10.66
Temperance and General	2,984,972	17.84
Citizens	2,097,956	29.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,729,100	30.12
London Life	1,644,295	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons is will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

Explanatory.

In yesterday's issue appeared an explanatory letter from Mr. G. B. Sproule. The printer, with his inevitable mania for improving the manuscript, inserted the word "respectively" instead of "respectfully," at the close of the letter. This improvement, in the hurry of the last few moments before going to press, escaped our proofreader's attention. Mr. Sproule had written the word "respectfully" as plainly as it could be written.

A Large Industry in Prospect

A special meeting of the town council was held this forenoon to confer with the representatives of a large manufacturing company Sunday night several town councillors took a trip eastward and interviewed the managers of the company in question, and the result was this morning the manager and secretary arrived in town and were closetted with the councillors for about an hour. The council made a proposition which will be submitted to headquarters, and if accepted the manufactory will be removed to Peterborough. It is an immense concern, and would bring a large amount of money and men to town. It is to be hoped the negotiations will be successful. The gentlemen representing the company are most favourably impressed with Peterborough and its advantages.

Personal.

Rev. J. R. Teefy, B.A., Superior of St. Michael's College, Toronto, preached an eloquent sermon in St. Peter's Cathedral last Sunday morning. Rev. Father Teefy is a graduate of Toronto University, and St. Michael's College is in affiliation with that institution. St. Michael's is in a flourishing condition. It gives a five years' course in classics, taking the student up to the first year according to the University curriculum, and a two years' course in Natural Sciences. It is very well patronized from this town, county and diocese. This year there are four students from Peterborough, two, Messrs. Phelan and Murphy, making a good stand and reflecting credit both upon the town and the institution. There is one student from Dundas, two from Campbellford, one from Asphodel, and one each from Cobourg and Port Hope.

Mr. and Mrs. Trotter, Mr. Bartlett and Miss Acton went prepared to camp on Chicopee Island, opposite "Ivanhoe." They will be joined Saturday night by Messrs. Spott and Lewis and the Misses Acton, also of Toronto.

Rev. John Trotter, of Claremont, and Miss Grundy to-day joined the party at "Ivanhoe."

Mrs. Taber and Mrs. Young will spend a couple of weeks at Stony Lake.

Miss Davidson will stop at Mr. Robt. Hall's lodge.

Mr. W. E. Lech went up for his annual outing to-day.

Stony Lake is to be provided with a barber shop. Mr. Stoneburg went up fully equipped with all the necessary tonsorial apparatus. He will locate at some central spot.

Crushed to Death.

A shocking accident occurred yesterday near the Roman Catholic cemetery, by which the little daughter of Mr Geo. H. May was literally crushed to death. Mr. May was drawing sand from a pit in the neighborhood of his own home, and little Clara, aged 2 years and 2 months, had followed him to his working place. In drawing a load of sand from the pit he had to pass through a gate, and just as the wagon was passing through the opening Mr. May was startled by a cry of pain ascending from beneath the wheels. He was walking by the side of the wagon and had not observed the girl's presence and danger. Promptly raising in the team, he walked around to the other side and was horrified to find his little one lying, crushed and bleeding, on the ground. He was tenderly raising the tiny form when the team started ahead and the cruel wheel passed completely over the body of the child, crushing it terribly. The mangled body presented a sickening spectacle when taken home. There was life enough remaining for the little sufferer to cry at first, but gradually this ceased and death ensued in about an hour and a half after the accident. Mr. and Mrs. May are the objects of the warmest sympathy of their friends and neighbours in their terribly sudden and sad affliction. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Caledonian Games.

Messrs. Chas. Cameron and Geo. H. Noble, President and Vice President, respectively, of the St. Andrew's Society, left town this morning for Toronto and Hamilton, for the purpose of conferring with the Highland and other Scottish societies in the cities with a view to securing their patronage and co-operation in a grand tournament of Scottish games and athletic sports, in connection with the Central Exhibition to be held here in September. Negotiations have been going on between the Executive Board of the Central Exhibition and the Executive Committee of the St. Andrew's Society for the purpose of arranging this additional attraction at our fall show, and should the deputation, which went west this morning, be successful in their mission, it is likely to take place. Such an attraction as this should prove an important factor in bringing to town a larger number of visitors than has ever yet been present at our Central Exhibition. It is the only tournament of the kind as yet announced at any of the Provincial shows, and our local St. Andrew's Society are doing their utmost to attract provincial attention to it. Efforts will be made not only to bring out the best professional competitors in Canada, but also to send out a large excursion from the cities and towns along the different railway lines to attend our show.

French vs. Irish.

A rather amusing case was tried at the police court this morning. John Magee, an Irishman living in the south end of the town was charged by Octave Bauvais, a French neighbor, with having used grossly insulting language towards him last Sunday. When Magee was asked to plead to the charge, he began a fiery denunciation of the Frenchman, and wanted to know what the magistrate would do if his little boy came home crying, with his ears bleeding and face scratched, and told him that a big Frenchman had struck him. A counter charge of assault upon the boy was then preferred against Bauvais, and then both sides of the case were heard. The boy reiterated his statement that Bauvais struck him on the face with his fist, but the Frenchman averred he simply took the boy by the arm to lead him away from his own boys, with whom he was quarrelling. Anyhow, the lad went home crying, and his father came over and gave Bauvais a pretty fair-sized piece of his mind in most emphatic language. A lively altercation ensued in court, to which the magistrate put an end by telling both men they had done wrong. He dismissed both cases and advised them to live in a more neighbourly fashion.

The Charge Not Sustained

Edg. Hartley Discharged No Fraud Proven Against Him.

Police Magistrate Dumble this morning gave judgment in the case against E. J. Hartley, charged with obtaining money under false pretences. In order to understand the case a brief glance over the circumstances leading up to it will be useful. As is already known, Mr. Thos. Dunn rented a store on Hunter street from Mr. Hartley, on which he was to pay the taxes. He only occupied the premises four months, but paid the taxes for the year and then brought action in the Division Court against Mrs. Hartley, mother of the defendant in this suit, for the proportion of tax money for the remaining eight months. Mrs. Hartley put a in counter claim for rent, and at the trial, Edg. Hartley stated that he was not authorized to receive the rent. The judge offset the rent against the taxes and dismissed the Division Court suit. Then on the strength of Edg. Hartley's statement that he had no authority to collect the rent, the charge of fraud was preferred. Following is Mr. Dumble's judgment :—

THE CASE DISMISSED.

THE QUEEN VS. EDGERTON J. HARTLEY:

The information herein charges Hartley with having on the —— day of April, 1889, unlawfully, fraudulently and knowingly by false pretence obtained from Thomas Dunn the sum of eighty-four dollars and thirty-five cents, with intent, etc.

The evidence of Mr. Dunn is that he rented a saloon on Hunter street from Hartley, that he sold liquor there and from time to time he gave Hartley small sums of money, from 25c. to $2, taking on each occasion an i.o.u. for the money; and that afterwards in April, 1889, at his request, Hartley gave him a receipt for the sum of these i.o.u.'s in the words following :—

PETERBOROUGH, April, 1889.

Received from Thos. Dunn the sum of eighty-four dollars and thirty-five cents in i.o.u. acct., part payment on rent.

(sgd.) E. J. HARTLEY.

That Dunn also had an account against Hartley for liquor, amounting to $36; that when Hartley got the small sums of money he said he brought the money to his mother.

That at the sittings of the Division Court held on the 25th inst. Hartley had sworn that he had no authority from his mother to receive the rent.

On this evidence I hold that there is no evidence of any false pretence at the time the receipt for $84.35 was given, nor is there any evidence that on that day any money was obtained by Hartley.

I hold, further, that there is not any evidence that Dunn parted with any money on the strength of his belief in any statement made by Hartley, which has been proved to be untrue.

I, therefore, dismiss the charge.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Police Magistrate.

NOT YET ENDED.

The prosecution are not at all satisfied with the judgment and say they will not let the matter drop where it is.

The Lakefield-Chemong Route.

Its Course and Attractions.

One of the most delightful of the northern lake routes is that from Lakefield to Chemong Park and return, and one which is deservedly growing into popularity. At present the steamer Dawn leaves Lakefield on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, on arrival of the morning train from Peterborough, calling at Burleigh Falls, Lovesick, and Hall's Bridge, and arriving at Chemong in time to connect with the evening train for Peterborough. On alternate days, that is, on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, the steamer will leave Chemong on the arrival of the morning train from Peterborough, passing through the same waters and making the same calls. Ample time will be allowed en route, for landing for dinner. There is no steamer route in the country wherein the tourist may enjoy more delightful and ever-varying scenery, such as characterizes the different lakes and shores through which the route extends—Chemong Lake, Gannon's Narrows, Pigeon Lake, Buckhorn Lake, Deer Bay, Lovesick Lake, Stony Lake, Clear Lake, Lake Katchewanooka and the Otonabee river, from Young's Point to Lakefield. Bright sparkling water, refreshing breezes, tree-fringed shores and tree crowned islands, abound throughout the route. The tourist can leave Peterborough at 8:20, or 8:45 and arrive home by six or nine o'clock according to the route chosen. Small parties can make special terms with the trim, swift and tidy steamer, Dawn, by applying to Capt. Eden, Lakefield.

Building and Loan Associations

Local Board of the Dominion Building and Loan Association.

A local board of the above Association has been formed here, consisting of the following gentlemen, all of Peterborough :—Messrs. McFarlane Wilson, President; W. A. Sanderson, F. J. Bell, F. J. Jamieson, J. J. Hartley, A. E. Yelland, M. D., and Robert Fair. Messrs. Stratton & Hall are the solicitors and Mr. A. V. R. Young, Secretary. Messrs. J. B. McWilliams and J. K. Stratton, M.P.P., are members of the home board at Toronto, which latter board was represented here last week by the general manager, Mr. Stephens, and agent Mr. Pierce.

The mere fact that $20,000 has been subscribed in this town, within a week of the formation of the local board, is evidence of the prosperity of the people and their faith in these associations, which are known to some through their acquaintance with similar ones in the old country, and to others who know of them and their workings in the States. The associations originated in England nearly a century ago and from these were introduced into the United States where now more than 5,000 are flourishing with savings of over $700,000,000; a failure of any one never occurred and could not occur. These institutions are simply co-operative companies where each and every share holder, or member, shares in the earnings or profits. Loans are made only to holders of shares; investors and borrowers alike participating in profits, which arise from the monthly payments of interest on amounts borrowed, plus the interest on monthly payments by each—for interest is compounded monthly—and also the fines and forfeitures. These latter however, are always easily avoidable—there are no lapses—if attention be given to monthly payments, of which notices are given, or by payments in advance on which interest is allowed; or in case of withdrawal by giving notice as is required in almost every financial institution, other than banks of deposit.

It is the small savings loaned promptly, the compounding interest monthly, the local boards obviating the necessity of salaried agents everywhere, for every member of these local boards is personally and peculiarly interested, each holding at least ten (10) shares, on $1,000 each; the absence of heavy expenses, as well as absence of accumulations, the money being loaned out promptly; and the personal interest of every shareholder or member; these are essential elements or features, which make building associations successes.

Moreover these associations inculate a spirit of economy. Twenty cents a day, or $6 a month pays for ten (10) shares in the association and these shares earn enough in seven years to be worth $1,000. In other words $1 the price of one share, with sixty cents thereafter for 84 months will then mature and be redeemed at its par value, $100. The rich and poor are placed on the same plane. Capital is made to labor and from its usufruct the rich and poor share; and, this whether the one or the other be investor or borrower, on both, the benefit is to both Lakefield an Easy Victim to our Cricketers.

An eleven of the Peterborough cricket club played at Lakefield Monday, and secred an easy victory. In the first innings the villagers could not withstand the bowling of Attewell and Stratton, who each got 5 wickets for 10 runs. In the second innings other bowlers were given a chance, and the Lakefielder's score was swelled considerably. Parker secured 3 wickets for 28 runs, Goldsmith 2 for 3 runs, Boucher 2 for 16 runs, Burnham 2 for 14 runs and McGill 1 for 2 runs.

For the home team several good scores were made, as the following will show :—

A Village Almost Destroyed.

Minden More than Half Wiped Out by Fire—The Losses and Insurance.

MINDEN, Ont., July 28.—More than half the village of Minden was completely wiped out of existence this morning. The following is a list of the sufferers :—William Cardwell, hotel, loss $500, uninsured; A. B. H. Carl, general store, loss on stock $5,000, insured for $2,000; M. Brown, shoe shop, loss $650, insured for $400; A. Palmer, saddler shop, stock saved; B. Gadmer, butcher shop, loss light, no insurance; E. Nolen, general store, loss on building $2,000, insured for $700, on stock $8,000, insured for $2,450; Dr. Carry, building, instruments and library, loss $1,200, insured for $4,000; F. E. Carry, drug and book store, total loss on stock $2,000, insured for $800; J. H. Delamere, Echo printing office, loss on building $600, insured for $200, engine, power press and plant, valued at $3,000, almost a total loss no insurance; Mr. Dickinson, of Cornwall, owned the large brick block which was totally destroyed, loss $4,000, insurance unknown; Mrs. McCracken, hotel, building totally destroyed, loss $1,200, insurance $600. The post and telegraph offices were also contained in one of the buildings burnt.

Several narrow escapes occurred during the progress of the fire. Had it not been that several persons that had been driven to the roof of Mrs. Dickinson's block had taken a rope with them they would have had either to jump or roast. A couple slid down and escaped with slightly lacerated hands, but the hands of the others became so badly lacerated after descending varying distances that they had to let go and drop to the ground. None sustained serious injury. Dr. Carry, one of the party besides being severely shaken up, received an ugly scalp wound.

COUNCIL MEETING.—Council met July 21st. William Redpath was allowed four days statute labor for two sons entered on roll as farmer's sons. The west half of lot 31, con. 3, assessed to Michael Garvey, tenant, was ordered to be struck off the roll as it is assessed to Michael and Patrick O'Leary, owner of the said lot. The council adopted the resolution passed by the county council at its last session, to have a vote taken at the next election on the question whether it is advisable to abolish statute labor and have a payment in money in lieu thereof. With regard to the application of Alex. Drummond for compensation for road running through his land, the council refused to grant any compensation. The following accounts were ordered to be paid :—T. Lang, for crossing opposite his shop, $5.40; M. Kennealy, overseeing road work, $3.00; S. Stewart, gravel, $6.86. Poll room, $2.50; P. Conroy, cedar, $2.80, gravel, $2.25; D. Hayes, cedar, $3.21; D. O'Brien, gravel, $3.75; W. B. Stewart, cedar, $2.80; J. Howson, Poll room, $2.50; W. Weir, Poll room, $2.50; W. Girven, Poll room, $2.50; Mrs. McCarthy, gravel, $4.91; R. J. H. Short, gravel, $3.25; Review Co., advertising, $2.00; R. Emmerson, cedar, $3.57; H. Reid, cedar, $2.88; W. Nelson, cedar, $2.65; R. Dickson, gravel, $5.35; E. E. Bowie, scrapers, $41.00; R. Harrison, gravel, $2.16; Indian Department, gravel, $1.50; C. Howson, gravel, $17.25; W. Porter, gravel, $2.64; G. Hatherly, drawing gravel, $4.00; Mrs. W. W. Miller, cedar, 90 cts; G. Cockburn, gravel, $8.00; J. Anderson, cedar and gravel, $20.13; M. Curtis, tile for road, $1.95; R. Evans, gravel, $6.30; P. Fitzgerald, gravel, $2.60; J. Duffis, cedar, $3.78, levelling road gravel pit on road allowance, $5.00; J. O'Leary, cedar, $2.00; Alex. Thomson, cedar, $1.89; D. Knox, gravel, $6.45; J. McDonell, gravel and damages, $7.30; E. Howson, gravel, $6.45. Council adjourned to 15th September.

LORD BOYLE DISCOVERED.

The Long-Lost Heir to An Earldom Turns Up Strange Meeting Between Two Brothers.

NEW YORK, July 27.—The World says: "According to report from Washington, which, it may be assumed, emanates from the British Legation, and which was subsequently corroborated by an English resident of New York, this city was last week the scene of as strange a meeting between two brothers as any in fiction, and one that is surrounded, besides, by an atmosphere of romance and adventure such as the somewhat prosaic conditions of life on the other side of the Mississippi River supply.

"One brother was a young English barrister, fresh from the Inner Temple; the other a leonized and athletic frontiersman, long cut off from the influences of civilization and family life. The frontiersman, according to the authorities quoted, was Viscount Boyle, the missing heir of the earldom of Shannon in the peerage of Ireland, who was thought to have been lost in the western wilds of the United States or Canada, for whom his family have been advertising in American and Canadian papers for nearly a year. His younger brother came to America as a last resort and determined to personally follow the faint trace which Viscount Boyle left behind him. He received intelligence of him soon after he reached New York. Here he anxiously awaited the viscount's arrival and when the long-parted brothers were united they lost no time, but hastened home and sailed hence last Wednesday on the Teutonic.

"The story of the wanderings of Viscount Boyle in Canada and the United States, his cowboy life and adventures in the western country, his mysterious disappearance in the vast unexplored regions of the Canadian northwest provinces before his father died and the historical Shannon peerage descended to him make up a romance such as even the records of houses in British peerage have rarely equalled. From time to time vague and conflicting rumors reached Montreal, New York and London that Viscount Boyle was in California, that he had gone to Alaska and that he died fighting Indians and was buried at Regina, in the Northwest. It seems, however, that the vigorous search which had been kept up, covering, as it did, an area of many hundreds of thousands of square miles of Western Canada and the United States and reaching into unknown or little explored lands and territories, ultimately narrowed down to one clue which, being quickly followed, revealed the missing heir enthusiastically pursuing the adventurous life he loved so well. When he heard that he was Lord Shannon apparently he lost no time in rejoining civilization. Boyle is now 30 years of age and unmarried. His arrival in Ireland this week will undoubtedly be hailed with delight by very many personal and family friends."

The McKinley Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The Republican members of the Senate committee on finance to-day considered several amendments to the tariff bill which will be proposed when the schedules to which they relate are reached in the discussion. They are said to be largely formal. Some of them intend to correct errors in the print; others make slight increases in several schedules restoring the rates named in the bill as it passed the House. A conference of the Republican members will be held shortly to determine upon a policy with respect to the reciprocity amendments pending, also with respect to the resolution of Senator Teller proposing an international bi-metallic arrangement.

HOSTILITIES SAID TO BE ENDED FOR THE PRESENT.

A Complete Victory for the Government Now the Military Insurgents Are to Be Punished—The Citizen Revolutionists Fully Forgiven

LONDON, July 29.—The Argentine Legation in London to-night received the following telegram from Buenos Ayres signed by the Finance Minister:

The Government is completely victorious. The mutineers have capitulated and will deposit their arms in the arsenal. All the rebellious superior officers will be dismissed and separated from the service. The troops will return to their quarters commanded by loyal officers. The forces mobilized by the Government are returning to the provinces. The political situation is thoroughly consolidated. The city and the whole country are quiet.

LONDON, July 29.—This despatch, dated Buenos Ayres, July 28, 2.20 p.m., has been received at the Legation of the Argentine Republic in this city:

Announces that the insurrection is completely subdued. The President of the Republic and the National Cabinet are giving orders from the National Government House. The Finance Minister is at liberty. JUAN GARCIA.

Senor Garcia, the signer of the above dispatch, is the Argentine Minister of Finance. He was taken prisoner by the revolutionists at the beginning of the outbreak on Saturday.

A despatch to The Times, dated Buenos Ayres July 28, 2 p.m., says it is re-asserted that terms of a settlement between the Government and the revolutionary forces have been agreed upon. According to these the civilians who have taken part in the insurrection will not be punished. All captains of the revolutionary forces and all officers above the grade of captain will be deprived of their rank. The artillery of the insurrectionists will be surrendered to-morrow. This despatch is President Celman's version of the situation in Buenos Ayres.

Private despatches received here from that city, dated July 28, 9½ p.m., state there is no change in the situation and no chance for a compromise between the two factions. The matter, despatches say, must be fought out.

PARIS, July 29. The Temps publishes a despatch from Buenos Ayres stating that the Government and the leader of the revolutionary movement have reached a settlement. President Celman, the despatch says, has resigned and been succeeded by Vice-President Pellegrini. Quiet has been restored.

LONDON, July 29.—It is officially announced that the English Government has received a telegram from Buenos Ayres saying the Government has triumphed and the war is over.

Negotiations Proceeding.

LONDON, July 29. In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Ferguson said the British Minister at Buenos Ayres had sent a cable despatch to the Foreign Office stating that President Celman had left Buenos Ayres and the negotiations between the Government and the leaders of the revolution were proceeding.

RIO JANEIRO, July 29.—This despatch has been received here:

BUENOS AYRES, July 29.—Noon. The armistice has been prolonged pending negotiations between the Government and the foreign ministers who are endeavoring to bring about the restoration of peace. Efforts are being made to form a coalition ministry. The Congress has assembled.

The French cruiser Kerguelen has been ordered from Mozambique to Buenos Ayres.

The Latest from the Scene of War.

LONDON, July 30. The Times has the following from Buenos Ayres:

12 m.—The squadron is firing at the Government house. Firing has recommenced in several parts of the city. The Colmanites are evacuating their positions.

2 p.m.—Celman, Roca and all the ministers have left the Government House. The presidential party has kept within the lines of the troops. Celman is deadly pale. Latterly every ship's shot save one has struck the Government House.

4 p.m.—Alem and Lopez have ordered the squadron to cease firing. They are getting their men away quietly as possible. The reason that the victorious Union Civica has practically yielded is because they have no cartridges left. They only had a hundred thousand instead of a million as they had calculated. The men wanted to attack with bayonets, but at the risk of their own lives the Civica Union refused to permit such bloodshed.

6 p.m.—The Union Civica troops are quieter and more disposed to disarm.

Salvadorian Victories.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 29.—Geronimo Pou, agent of San Salvador, says in the eleven battles fought up to date the Salvadorians have come out victorious. The remainder of the Guatemalan army is fleeing in all directions towards the interior and not a single Guatemalan soldier is left on the frontier.

A revolution against Barillas has broken out in the eastern department. Several well-known generals head it and the downfall of the present Guatemalan Government is considered more than probable. Barillas is pleading for foreign intervention in his favor.

A Guatemalan Report.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 29.—A private telegram from Guatemala states that on Saturday the Salvadorians were defeated by the Guatemalans. The Guatemalan loss was very light. The Salvadorians lost 60 killed and 300 wounded, and a large number of prisoners.

A Fortune Under her Pillow.

CHICAGO, July 29. When Mrs. Caroline Glaser, a septuagenarian, suddenly died at her home in Wells-street last night, the valise which was lying under the pillow on her bed was opened and within were found books and papers proving her to be the possessor of a fortune of $50,000, largely in 7, 8 and 10 per cent. mortgages.

There are no relatives in this city to mourn her death; indeed, only one of her kin is known to be living, a sister now in Neustadt or Hasdt, Bavaria. Mrs. Glaser lived alone and deprived herself of the ordinary necessities of life, so saving was she of her money.

PROPOSED RETALIATION.

THE LATEST SCHEME OF THE WASHINGTON CABINET.

Great Britain to Be Forced to Yield in the Behring Sea Dispute by Putting the Screws to Canada. Cleveland's Proposition Revived.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Since the publication of the Behring Sea correspondence the Administration has been seriously considering whether terms cannot be made with Great Britain by prohibiting transportation of merchandise in bond from Canada into the United States and vice versa, thus stopping a very large and profitable trade, and at the same time greatly disarranging many lines of commerce. It is stated on excellent authority that the matter has already been twice considered by the Cabinet. It will be remembered that during the excitement attending the seizure of American vessels on the Atlantic coast by the Dominion's vessels in 1888, and after the Bayard-Chamberlain treaty had been rejected, President Cleveland sent a message to Congress in which he urged retaliation. The message created a profound sensation, and a bill was promptly introduced giving the President power to retaliate. It never, however, became law.

The retaliation proposed consisted in suspending by proclamation the operation of all laws permitting the transit of merchandise in bond across or over the territory of the United States to or from Canada. It is not likely that President Harrison would resort to retaliation of this kind without some such legislation as President Cleveland asked for. A bill of this kind would undoubtedly, however, encounter great opposition. The cutting off of Canadian transit in bond would work a great injury to all of New England and Portland, Me., the home of the speaker, would feel the blow most keenly. The West would suffer fully as much if not more than the East. Indeed it is from the West that the greatest opposition would come. The western farmers are interested in having their produce sent to the seaboard at the lowest rates, and this Canadian railroad competition is in their favor.

In this connection another matter has been suggested to the President and is now under consideration. By the treaty of 1817 neither the United States nor the British Government is allowed to maintain more than four small armed vessels on the great lakes, and no other vessels of war are to be built or armed there. The treaty can be abrogated at any time by giving six months notice on either side. It has been suggested to the President that now would be as good a time as any to give this notice, so that the United States might be in a position in the future to maintain a more formidable force on the lakes. There are members of Congress, however, who do not think the abrogation of the treaty would be advantageous to the United States, as England is much better able to send light draught torpedo and gun boats into the lakes than we are, while, if the naval force in the inland waters is restricted, it will make the conditions more equal.

Slaughter of the Seals.

VICTORIA, B.C., July 2. The following particulars of the catches of Victoria's sealing fleet were received by the steam schooner Mischief, which arrived last night:

Minnie 783, Marvin 878, Sapphire 1378, Viva 436, C. H. Tupper 571, Juanita 340, Beatrice 710, Penelope 378, Sea Lion 81, W. L. Rich 561, Triumph 108, Ocean Belle 396, Taylor 382, Black Diamond 345, Teresa 502, Ariel 340, Favor 1e 396, Annie C. Moore 703, W. P. Hayward 850, Pathfinder 560, Aurora 800, Kate 450, Mary Ellen 1371.

This makes a total of 15,747 skins. Another of the schooners will reach here in about four days. None of the schooners were molested or even sighted by any of the American revenue cutters. They had good hunting weather, and, judging by this half season's catch, the fall catch will be a very successful one. Immediately upon the arrival of the Mischief a courier was despatched to Esquimalt conveying the above intelligence to Admiral Hotham of Her Majesty's fleet.

RUN DOWN ON A BRIDGE

The Terrible Death of Three Little Children at Paterson, N.J.

PATERSON, N.J., July 29.—Five children who had been blackberry picking started this evening to cross the Erie Railway bridge over the Passaic River. The bridge has no rail or foot path. A train approached the western track and they stepped on the eastern track in the way of a fast passenger train. The engine of the latter blew the whistle, but the children, paralyzed with fear, did not stir. The engineer did not apply the brakes for fear the train would go through the bridge. Persons on the river banks vainly shouted to the children, telling them to get between the tracks. In an instant the heavy locomotive struck the little ones and hurled three of them upon the other track dead. The engineer was almost fainting, but stuck to his post and stopped the train as soon as he crossed the trestle. Passengers got out to investigate and were sickened at the horrible sight which met their gaze. Jennie Brewster, aged 13, Nellie Warren, aged 10, and Mattie Warren, her sister, aged 8, were dead. Jane Warren, aged 13, was fearfully injured and their little brother Willie was hurled into the river 50 feet below, where he was found in the water hurt but alive. The two injured children were taken to the hospital. Both will recover. The grief of the children's parents was heartrending.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Obstructed the Police—Fined For Overcrowding a Steamer.

TORONTO, July 30.—Mrs. Isabella Clark was taken into custody for obstructing the police who had a warrant to search her house for liquor. The case was remanded yesterday morning till Friday.

In the Police Court yesterday Capt. Thomas Jackman, master of the steamer John Hanlan of the Island Ferry Company's fleet, was charged by Steamboat Inspector Harbottle with overloading his boat on June 21. The prosecution claimed that the boat carried 342 passengers, while her certificate allows only 179 passengers. The defendant was fined $80 and costs.

The strike of corset girls employed by the Telfer Manufacturing Company was brought to an end yesterday morning by the firm yielding to most of the demands made and the girls went back to work yesterday morning.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

TERRIBLE COLLIERY EXPLOSION AT ST. ETIENNE.

One Hundred and Thirty-five Men Reported Killed—Mr. Chaplin's Charges Against United States Cattle—Cholera Epidemic in Mecca—Russia's Crops.

LONDON, July 29.—Mr. Chaplin, President of the Board of Agriculture, replying to questions in the House of Commons today, declined in the absence of authoritative proof to consider the United States free from pleuro-pneumonia. He said that within a short time animals suffering from the disease have arrived at Liverpool from New York.

Caprivi's African Memorandum.

BERLIN, July 29.—The Reichsanzeiger today published Chancellor Von Caprivi's memorandum of the Anglo-German agreement relative to territory in Africa. It begins by stating that the German Colonial policy coming in contact with English schemes caused disagreeable complications. As negotiations on single points did not avail to complete a settlement, it was decided to deal with the disputes from one standpoint. After giving seriatim the grounds for the concessions in Africa made by Germany to England the memorandum concludes by insisting upon the value of Heligoland, in view of the natural sentiment in regard to the island and of the island's military importance. When the island is occupied by Germany it will be difficult for an enemy to blockade the north-east coast of the empire, and its possession will give more power in the north and render it easier to defend the Baltic Canal.

Cholera Epidemic in Mecca.

LONDON, July 29.—Cholera is epidemic in Mecca. There have been 13 cases, seven of which were fatal.

120 Men Killed by an Explosion.

PARIS, July 29.—An explosion of fire damp occurred in the Pelissier pit at St. Etienne to-day. It is reported that 120 men were killed and 35 injured.

The Russian Cereal Harvest.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.—An official report states that the wheat harvest in the south-west provinces of Russia shows deterioration in quality. The prospects for summer and winter cereals in other districts are very good.

Four Hundred Rioters Arrested.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 29.—Four hundred of the Armenians who took part in the riotous demonstration against the Patriarch in the Armenian Cathedral Sunday have been arrested.

The condition of affairs in Armenia, the Turkish Province in Asia on the borders of the Black Sea, touching the Russian possessions, now resembles that in Bulgaria during the period of the atrocities. In Erzeroum, where recently a hundred Christians were slain in the church, a state of panic prevails, owing to the threatening attitude of the Mussulman population and the excesses of the troops. Hardly a day passes, says a correspondent, but wounded persons are brought in from the surrounding districts. In Erzeroum itself persons disappear and no one knows whither, and dead bodies are constantly found within and without the walls. During the riots a hundred persons disappeared, mostly women who were at the public baths, and are supposed to have been abducted by Mussulmans. The number of wounded is reported at 400, most of them having bayonet thrusts. The profanation of the Armenian Church at the time by the troops rankles in the minds of all the Christians. The Porte has threatened to proclaim martial law in Armenia. The general opinion is that if this is done Christian Armenians will be mercilessly crushed and their cause irretrievably lost. At the back of the Armenians stands Russia, as she did in Bulgaria in 1877.

The Patriarch of the Armenian Church, Monseigneur Nerses, who was mobbed, resides officially at Constantinople, and has the duty of devising measures for the protection of his people. He says that in six Asiatic vilayets—namely, Erzeroum, Van, Sivas, Karpout, Diarbekor and Aleppo—the Armenians number altogether 700,000.

HIS MARRIAGE NOT VOID.

Kleptomania Is Not Sufficient Ground for a Divorce.

ST. PAUL, July 29.—Among the decisions handed down by the Supreme Court Judge this week was one of peculiar interest to husbands anxious to be divorced. It is in the case of John M. Lewis of St. Paul, who applied some time ago for a divorce from his wife, Ella E. Lewis, on the ground that she concealed from him at the time of their marriage in 1882 the fact that she was a kleptomaniac. The husband did not discover that she was so afflicted until 1888, when he sent his wife to an asylum in New York State. He then applied to the courts for a divorce, and neither in the lower courts nor in the Supreme Court did the defendant wife appear. The lower court denied the case, and the husband then took the application to the Supreme Court. Judge Vanderburgh in his opinion says:

The plaintiff applies for a decree of nullity on the ground of his wife's insanity at the time of his marriage, of which he claims to have then had no knowledge. The particular form of insanity alleged was a morbid propensity on the part of the wife to steal, commonly denominated kleptomania. It was not proved, nor is it found by the court that she was not otherwise sane or that her mind was so affected by this peculiar propensity as to be incapable of understanding or assenting to the marriage contract.

Whether the subjection of the will to some vice or uncontrollable impulse, appetite, passion or propensity be attributed to disease and be considered a species of insanity or not, yet as long as the understanding and reason remain so far unaffected and unclouded that the afflicted person is cognizant of the nature and obligation of a contract entered into by him or her with another the case is not one authorizing a decree avoiding the contract. Any other rule would open the door to great abuses. Anonymous 4 Pick., 32; St. George vs. Biddeford, 79 Me., 593; Durham v. Durham, 10 Pro. and Div. 80.

Other authorities are cited where contracts and wills have been upheld by the courts, though the party executing the same was found subject to some peculiar form of insanity or delusions.

The defendant is found to have been subject to kleptomania at the time of her marriage in 1882, but the plaintiff did not discover the fact until 1888. The plaintiff contends that such concealment constituted a case of fraud, and that the court should declare the contract of marriage void on that ground.

Paid a Wife-Beater in His Own Coin.

Last night, at about 9:30 o'clock, the screams of a woman were heard in the house at 96 Bolivar street. In a few minutes a large crowd had congregated on the street, but no one seemed anxious to enter the house. In the meantime the noise inside increased in proportion to the gathering crowd.

Finally Donald Henderson arrived upon the scene and proceeded at once to investigate. Upon entering the house he found a man pounding a woman in pugilistic style. Henderson ordered him to desist, and as no attention was paid him he proceeded to enforce the suggestion by springing upon the brute and giving him a tremendous thrashing. The man begged for mercy saying that the woman was his wife and that the row was only a little love spat. The woman, in open violation of a long established and time honored rule, did not pitch in and help her husband, but stood calmly by, evidently keenly enjoying the spectacle of his downfall.

By this time Patrolman Anderson had arrived upon the scene, and he put the wife-beater under arrest. At the central police station the prisoner gave his name as W. J. Montgomery, and claimed to be a commission merchant doing business at 59 Euclid avenue. He was very penitent, for a worse licked man was never dragged to prison in a patrol wagon. One eye was closed and his face was bruised.—Cleveland Leader.

LADY DUNLO'S STORY.

Her Defence in Court in the Celebrated Divorce Case.

LONDON, July 29.—Mr. Gill, counsel for Wertheimer, the co-respondent in Viscount Dunlo's divorce case, delivered a vigorous address to the jury yesterday afternoon after describing how Lady Dunlo had been hunted by detectives.

He said that when Lady Dunlo tearfully begged her husband to take her abroad with him and he replied that he had no means, she offered to work for them both. Mr. Gill said he did not want to shock this noble family, but he would surely be permitted to suggest that this impecunious scion of nobility might have obtained some employment.

Lady Dunlo at this point entered the witness box. She looked pale and exhausted, but bore the ordeal of a long and searching examination splendidly. She detailed the history of her liaison with Weston, the American, the father of her child, and solemnly declared that she had never been Wertheimer's mistress. After her marriage she begged Lord Dunlo to take her to Australia, as he had promised, but he said if he went alone his father would allow him upon his return to live with her. If he remained in England his father would have nothing to do with him. Dunlo left immediately.

Shortly after Wertheimer returned from America she said she went to live with him in his house, but he never slept in the house during the time she was living in it. She asserted that the detective's story about their struggle near a window was untrue. She told Wertheimer not to enter the house alone, as she was being watched. Wertheimer never kissed her after her marriage, but did once before it, and that was on his departure for America. A young fellow sitting in the rear of the court room sniggered at this admission and was summarily ejected, Justice Hannen remarking with an angry look that he would not allow any expression of levity among the spectators. These were mostly girls and women and they became quieter after this reprimand.

Lady Dunlo said she had never loved Wertheimer, who, she claimed, adored her. Sir Charles Russell failed to elicit any remarkable admissions in the cross-examination. The fair witness denied that while Weston was in jail she rapidly grew more intimate with Wertheimer. She related how they went to Trouville and Paris together. She did not give her name at the former place, where they had their meals together. She said that they did not occupy the same room, but admitted that their apartments communicated. The maid, she added, used to leave the connecting door open, and she often locked it. On returning to London she continued to accompany Wertheimer from place to place, but did not live under the same roof with him. This ended the examination for the day.

Lady Dunlo and her sister Flo, upon leaving the court room, were followed through the streets by a crowd, but there was no display of sentiment. One of the documents handed to the judge, but which was not read, was from Lord Albert Osborne, who took that method of denying on oath the testimony of Marmaduke Wood that he was one of three who tossed a penny to see who should marry Belle Bilton, now Lady Dunlo.

THE BRUSSELS BLAZE.

Strong Suspicions of Incendiarism—An Investigation Probable.

BRUSSELS, July 29.—The conflagration in Brussels, particulars of which were given in yesterday's despatches, is still further suspected to be the work of an incendiary, as some person was seen running up Mill-street, which diverges from the scene of the fire, shortly before it occurred. It was the intention of Postmaster Farrow to move his office into this block, which was an unpopular proceeding, and it is surmised that this had something to do with the fire. The destruction of the block has been long anticipated, as it was the worst old rookery on the principal street of the village. An investigation is anticipated before the insurances are paid.

Losses Caused by Flames.

HAMILTON, July 29.—Fire at 10¼ last night in a frame factory in Cannon-street, owned by the Wilson Manufacturing Co. and occupied by Thomas Mealey as a manufactory for felt, did $3000 damage.

MONTREAL, July 29.—The loss by the fire in the Balmoral Hotel this morning is about $30,000. These are the insurances: On furniture—Western $10,500, Lancashire $5500, Citizens $8000, Phœnix $5000, National $5000, Queen's $2500; total $35,500. On the building—North Britain $15,000, Guardian $15,000, Commercial Union $10,000, Royal Canadian $10,000 Royal of England $10,000, Caledonian $8000, Scottish Union $5000, Ætna $8000, London and Lancashire $5000, Connecticut $3000, Fire Association $5000, Norwich Union $5000; Total $96,000. Henry Hamilton, president of the Balmoral company, says a meeting of the board will be called at once. He thought that as soon as repairs could be made the hotel would re-open.

MUTINOUS CATTLEMEN HELD.

The First Case of Its Kind Under the New Extradition Treaty.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The three men who are alleged to have been the ringleaders of the mutinous cattlemen on board the British steamship Chicago were arraigned before Commissioner Shields yesterday on the complaint of W. R. Hoare, acting British Consul-General at this port. The three men, who will bear the brunt for the evil deeds of the 27 cattlemen, are: Henry Allison, John McNamara and James Tynan. They all claim to be residents of New York. The police allege that they are members of the notorious Eleventh-street gang.

Counsel Hoare's complaint does not allege mutiny on the part of the men, as it is doubtful if they could be considered as bona fide members of the crew, although they signed ship's articles, but charges them with larceny in breaking into the ship's cargo and stealing bottles of beer. The value of the goods stolen is only placed at $1 in the complaint, but that is sufficient to extradite the men if proven. The case is especially interesting as it is the first that has arisen in this district under the new extradition treaty between the United States and Great Britain, which went into effect last July. The examination was adjourned to this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Shipping Silver to England.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Over 1,500,000 ounces of silver bullion were shipped from this country to London last week, and this week nearly as much more has been ordered for shipment. Every summer, it is said, England demands a large amount of silver to pay India for wheat and cotton. This year the demand comes earlier, owing it is thought to the fact that after August 18 the United States Government will be buying increased quantities of silver under the new silver bill.

Committed for Arson.

QUEBEC, July 29.—As a result of the fire marshal's investigation into the cause of the late fatal fire in St. Joseph-street Colonel Noel to-day committed Delamare and his wife to stand their trial at the next term of the Queen's Bench on the charge of arson. The coroner's inquest on the body of their infant child will be resumed at the morgue to-morrow.

The U. S. Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—In pursuance of the understanding reached in the Republican senatorial caucus last night Senator Frye had a conference to-day with the members of the Finance Committee. It was agreed among them that on Friday, Aug 8, the river and harbor bill shall be taken up for consideration and pressed to a determination, the tariff bill to be laid aside until the river and harbor bill is disposed of.

Fraser River Fished Out.

MONTREAL, July 29.—A telegram from Benjamin Young, the salmon king of British Columbia, states that the Fraser River salmon pack is almost a total failure, and that it is doubtful if buyers will receive the fish already bought.

The Daily Examiner.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 30, 1890.

HERE is a problem which the Ottawa Free Press propounds for some of the lightning calculators employed by the federal government to work out at their leisure: If it takes an expenditure of $100 000 of public money upon barbours, wharves, etc., and promises of a further expenditure of half a million more, to secure a majority of nine for the federal government's candidate in a small Tory county like Montmorency, how much will it take to carry the Tory party through the next general election?

THE taxationist papers claim that the tariff is no burden, that they needn't buy goods that pay duty. What, then, will they buy? If a farmer, say, buys $10 worth of binding twine, the duty of 25 per cent. makes the cost to him $12 50. But, then, according to the high taxationist, this serves him right. If he didn't buy the twine he wouldn't have to pay the duty. But the fact is, there is scarcely anything the farmer uses, except what he grows himself, that he would not get cheaper if it were not for the duty. What the farmer wants is Reciprocity, but he will never get it until he puts a Government in power that will try to get it for him.

Lakefield.

Delightful Sunday School Anniversary Excursion.

The 27th anniversary of the Lakefield Methodist Sunday School was held on Sunday, 20th July, when good, appropriate sermons were preached to large and appreciative audiences, by Rev. F. Johnston, pastor, in the morning, and by Rev. S. J. Shorey, of Peterborough, in the evening. The Sunday School, numbering between 200 and 300, is in a very prosperous condition, under the superintendence of J. C. Sherin, Esq., who is also in the 27th year of his tenure of that office. The annual Sunday School excursion per steamer "Cruiser" and palace scow ("Wave Crest", of Peterborough) was held on Tuesday, 22nd. A large number took advantage of the day and the delightful trip to Juniper Island, Stony Lake, where after taking a sumptuous repast, a number took to huckleberry picking, while others dotted the lakes with their canoes brought for the occasion, while others made good use of the "Cruiser" organ, making hill and valley ring with delightful strains, both vocal and instrumental, preaching on the whole a spectacle of gross interest. With our party we had a number of campers, among whom were Rev. Messrs. Roberts of Uxbridge, Cameron, of Whitevale; Anderson, of Norwood and others from Toronto and Peterborough, all of whom enjoyed the trip and beautiful scenery. Capt. Reynolds proprietor of the "Cruiser," was most unremitting in his kind attention to the comfort and convenience of his passengers, and this together with his gentlemanly, genial and affable conduct, called forth a hearty vote of thanks from the crowd, moved by Rev. F. Johnson and seconded by Dr. Burgess, and followed by three cheers for the Captain, that he may have a long and successful career on these waters. After this we glided smoothly into Lakefield wharf singing several anthems and closing with "God Save the Queen." Thus ended one of the most delightful and successful excursions the school has ever held.—COM.

Laying a Corner Stone.

The New English Church at Baillieboro in Process of Construction.

Baillieboro was en fete Monday. When any event of unusual importance occurs to break the dull monotony of village life, the people unite heartily to make the most of the rare occasion. The villagers turned out en masse on Monday to witness the ceremony of the laying of the corner stone of the new Anglican church building, and they were joined by large numbers of people from the surrounding district. The ceremony was a most impressive one, and was conducted with all the pomp and circumstance common to such occurrences.

At three o'clock the people began to gather, and shortly before four the proceedings were begun. A procession, comprising the choir of the church, the clergymen in attendance, and the Sunday school pupils, left the hall and marched to the site, singing appropriate hymns en route. On arriving at the ground the processionists took their appointed places close to the corner where the stone was to be laid, the populace gathering in a circle outside. The walls and derrick were artistically decorated with bunting and evergreens, the whole scene being one of gayety, mingled with a decorous solemnity fitting to the occasion. On the platform were a number of prominent men, including Mr. H. Ward, M.P., and Mr. Clark, Port Hope; Mr. J. B. Collins, Millbrook; Rev. Rural Dean Allen, Rev. W. C. Allen, Rev. Mr. Rooney, and other clergymen. Mr. A. Rutherford, contractor, and Mr. Hayes, stonemason, of Peterborough, were also present.

Rev. Rural Dean Allen laid the corner stone with the usual rites, and was presented with an elegant silver trowel by Mr. Rutherford, on behalf of the congregation. The corner stone was then lowered into place and duly declared "well and truly laid." The usual addresses followed, all of the gentlemen previously mentioned, and several others, speaking. In the course of their addresses, several of the speakers referred in very complimentary terms to the excellent work of the contractor, Mr. Rutherford, who had given every satisfaction. After the ceremony the people were invited to partake of an elaborate supper, spread in the town hall by the ladies of the congregation. These festivities wound up the day's proceedings.

During the ceremony letters of regret were read from Mr. Jas. Stevenson, M.P., and Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., of Peterborough, who had been invited to be present.

The box sealed in the corner stone contained copies of the Peterborough EXAMINER and Review, Millbrook Reporter, Toronto dailies, voters' list of South Monaghan, prize list of last year's township show, the names of the architect, builder, committee, church wardens, etc.

The new church will be ready for opening Dec. 15th. It will be 74x34 feet in dimensions, of red brick, with basement and 11 feet of stonework; with a seating capacity of 300. Mr. M. Hayes, of Peterborough, did a splendid job on the stonework.

A Farmer Speaker.

It is understood that Mr. Ballantyne is to be elected to the office of Speaker of the Local Legislature. He is certainly a very able man, experienced in parliamentary tactics, and exceedingly fair minded, and so he can enter upon his duties with every assurance of success. The Opposition holds Mr. Ballantine in high esteem, and so he will be free of all misgiving at the outset of his official career. In his elevation the farmers will feel especially related. He is a well known authority on agricultural matters, and was talked of as a successor to Mr. Drury. Mr. Awry having been named as Commissioner of Agriculture, however, the Speakership was offered to Mr. Ballantyne, and the choice all round is a happy one. Mr. Mowat has been fortunate in the selection of men upon whom to place the responsibilities of high office. He is meriting the continued support of the people in general, and of the farmers in particular.—Whig.

Hogs.

A correspondent has taken the trouble to put hogs into 12 classes. These classes relate entirely to the two-footed specimens who walk our streets without fear of being impounded. They are:

1. The tobacco-spitting hog.
2. The drunken hog.
3. The blasphemous hog.
4. The vulgar-and-obscene-language hog.
5. The masher hog.
6. The platform-smoking hog.
7. The lighted-cigar-in-the-car hog.
8. The muddy-hoof-on-his-knee hog.
9. The fill-two-seats-in-a-car hog.
10. The umbrella-sticking-out-from-under-his-arm hog.
11. The sieze-the-first-seat-when-ladies-are-standing hog.
12. The loud-mouthed-carousing-on-all-public-excursions hog.

To match such a list another correspondent suggests a few "rules" of conduct for members of the society of hogs when in public places:

Be sure and keep on the left side of the walk, and always go at lightning speed in crowded places, and elbow and push as much as possible.

Be thoughtless of the comfort of others in carrying a parasol, cane, or umbrella; thrust these articles in the eyes and ribs of passers by.

Always point with finger, cane, fan, or other article at persons or objects.

Always smoke, especially cigarettes or pipes, upon a crowded street, on platform of cars, or wherever it may be offensive.

Always occupy more space than is necessary in waiting rooms, railway stations, ferry boats etc.

Drum with fingers and feet, whistle, hold conversation with your friends in reading rooms, concerts, etc., where those wishing to hear would be prevented from doing so.

Always expectorate when in view of others, as upon sidewalks, street cars boat cabins, etc.

Never restore a dropped article to a lady allow her to reach for it herself.

Never raise your hat in greeting or as a parting salutation to a lady.

To be Popular in Society.

To converse well it is necessary that you should have the art of discovering what will interest the person with whom you are talking, and that you will know how to drop the subject when it becomes tiresome, and never to get a special fad of your own, be the subject that you bring up. Learn to be all things to all people—to avoid personalities or very decided opinions on any subject. You don't want to give a tirade against dishonesty to a man whose father died in state prison for forging notes. You don't want to object to divorce laws when the man you are talking to may have married a divorced woman. You don't want to talk about bleached hair to a woman whose hair is pronouncedly yellow, not to discuss how injurious is rouge and powder to the woman who is made up in a most decided manner. In your heart you may object to all these things, but you are not giving expression just now to what you think; you are simply making yourself pleasant to some one whom you have met to-day, and you may never meet again. Talk about Egyptian mummies or French politics, how orchids grow, the last new play or the last new song; but use good English, speak as if you were interested, and then you will gain what you want—a reputation of being a charming woman socially.—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Ocean Undertow.

Doubtless we have heard a great deal about this "undertow," as though it were some mysterious force working from the recesses of a treacherous ocean to draw unwary bathers to their doom, writes Duffield Osborne in Scribner's. As a matter of fact its presence is obviously natural and the explanation of it more than simple. As each wave rolls in and breaks upon the beach, the volume of water which it carries does not remain there and sink in the sand; it flows back again and, as the succeeding wave breaks over it, the receding one forms an under current flowing outward of strength proportionate to the body of water contained in each breaker and, again, proportionate in a great measure to the depth of the ditch. Where this latter is an appreciable depression, it can be readily seen that the water of receding waves will flow into it with similar effect to that of water going over a fall, and that a person standing near is very likely to be drawn over with it, and thus, if the ditch is deep enough, carried out of his depth. This is all there is to the much talked of "undertow" and the numerous accidents laid to its account.

THE LIBERAL LEADER.

HON. WILFRID LAURIER'S HISTORY AND ACHIEVEMENTS.

Born for Public Life.—A Record Unsullied—An Orator who Appeals to the Heart—The Idol of his Followers.

The leader of Her Majesty's loyal opposition in the Federal parliament may without a misgiving commit the task of penning the story of his life to any hands. The most candid Boswell would, I think, fail to discover in it anything that was not creditable to the subject and even to humanity itself. This biographer would find a life of singular purity and of high purpose, both as a private citizen and as a public man. Search as he might he would fail to discover an act that could by any standard that might be applied to it be deemed unworthy. Mendacious malignity itself would find him clothed in an armour that no fairly sped shaft could pierce. This may sound like the language of hyperbole but I write these lines in my calmest and most judical mood and after considerable opportunity of studying the man and his history.

Wilfrid Laurier first saw the light in the village of St. Lin, L'Assomption, Quebec, forty-eight years ago. His father was Carolus Laurier, a public land surveyor of that province. The family from which he is sprung is among the first settlers in New France, so that as the common phrase has it he is a Canadian from away back. He was educated at L'Assomption college. He studied law with the Hon. R. Laflamme Q.C., and was called to the bar of Lower Canada in 1865. Previous to this however he had taken the degree of B. C. L. at McGill University, Montreal. His health having suffered somewhat from his devotion to his books, he left Quebec and took up his residence in Athabascaville where he engaged in the work of editing the Le Fricheur newspaper. Up to this time his liberalism had been merely theoretical but now he had to put it to the practical test of every day politics. There was not much field for a newspaper of that stamp among the primitive populace of Drummond and Athabasca, and after a year or two he gave up the editorship. Nevertheless it cannot be doubted that the experience was a valuable one to the ardent young French Canadian. In no way can a man cross-examine his own soul more thoroughly than by sitting down day in and day out to commit to paper for the perusal of others the opinions he thinks he entertains. In this way undoubtedly Mr. Laurier's political convictions gained clearness, certainty and strength. He returned to Quebec and resumed the study and practice of law. In 1868 he married Miss Lafontaine. With him a public career was not a mere accident. He had contemplated such a course as his life work and had prepared for it accordingly. When, therefore, in 1871 he was elected to the Quebec Assembly as the deputy for Drummond and Athabasca, he entered the arena unusually well equipped. Nor was the house to remain long in ignorance of the oratorical blade which the new member wielded. It required no grey-bearded political seer to prophesy for the young member a notable career in public life. As if to justify these forestellings he became a candidate in the same constituency for the Federal parliament in 1874 and was elected.

The session of 1875 was his first in the Dominion house. He seconded the adoption of the address in reply to the speech from the throne. The [illegible] was an equally promising political [illegible] the sister province—Thomas Mosse, afterwards a judge but who died some few years ago. Mr. Laurier spoke on that occasion in French and quite electrified his countrymen who had the opportunity of hearing him. Even in that earliest utterance on the wide stage of Dominion affairs we find on his lips the word that has since become the watchword and cry of his party—reciprocity. Mr Laurier seems to have at once leaped into importance in his new sphere of action. His eloquence, his moderation and many other statesmanlike qualities marked him out as a worthy successor of Lafontaine and Dorion so rapidly did he come to the front that in two years after the date of his first entrance into parliament he was offered and accepted a position in the cabinet as Minister of Inland Revenue. The Bleus in Lower Canada plainly saw that a powerful leader had suddenly arisen among their traditional foes, the Rogues. It was their bounden duty they thought to clip his wings if possible. Consequently when on accepting office he appealed to his constituents for their endorsation, a notable political battle ensued. The Liberals largely trusted to the influence that the distinction which had just been conferred on the representative, while the Conservatives exhausted every device to secure his defeat. In this they were successful, and for the lack of 36 more votes Mr. Mackenzie's government and the House seemed likely to be deprived of his services. But the young Liberal Tribune was not to be allowed to go down in the night in this way. He a dozen seats were offered him and he chose that for Quebec east, which the Hon. L. Thibaudeau vacated. Here again the opposition was very determined, but Mr. Laurier was nevertheless elected by a handsome majority of over 300. In the year of his acceptance of office he delivered a speech, afterwards published in pamphlet form entitled "Political Liberalism." It was a notable defense of modern French-Canadian liberalism. In it he endeavored to show that their opponents sought to discredit them by informing the people that they were the lineal descendants of the red republicans of France and holding the same revolutionary and irreligious tenets, and liable to end in the same saturnalia of blood. In the course of this address Mr. Laurier used the following words which will be found applicable to the political situation of to-day.

"I certainly respect too much the opinion of my opponents to do them an injury, but I reproach them with knowing neither their country nor their times. I accuse them of estimating the political situation not by what has occurred here, but by what has occurred in France. I accuse them of endeavouring to introduce here ideas which would be impossible in our state of society. I accuse them of laboriously endeavouring and unfortunately too effectually, to make religion the simple basis of a political party. It is the custom of our adversaries to accuse us of rails of irreligion. I am not here to parade [illegible] religious principles but I speak out that I have too much respect for the faith in which I was born ever to make it appear as the basis of a political organization. We are a happy and a free people; we we this freedom to the liberal institutions which govern us and which came to our forefathers and the wisdom of our mother country."

Mr. Laurier was not long destined to enjoy the sweets of office, for on the year following his acceptance of a portfolio there was an appeal to the electors and the Mackenzie administration experienced a crushing defeat. The electors of Quebec East remained true to Mr Laurier however as they have remained true ever since.

The late facts of his career are fresh in the public memory. The part he took in the Riel agitation; his impassioned speeches in parliament on the Northwest rebellion, the Jesuit Estates bill and kindred subjects; his reference to his readiness to carry a musket on the banks of the Saskatchewan rather than submit to injustice and tyranny; his courage in facing Ontario audiences, and his elevation to the leadership of the Liberal party are all occurrences that have not yet faded from the people's memory.

Mr. Laurier stands in the first rank as an orator, and I use the word advisedly. He has not the crushing weight of Mr. Blake's resources of phrase and sarcasm—he has not Sir John Thompson's calm incisive logic that leaves his opponents nothing to stand upon, but he has what neither of them has given evidence of possessing, so far as I know—the power to fill the heart and thrill the spirit of the hearer. He has the power which Demosthenes exercised when the Athenians cried at the conclusion of his philippic "Let us march against Philip; let us conquer or let us die." No one could have heard Mr. Laurier's speeches on the north-west rebellion unmoved and it is on such subjects when his feelings are aroused that the Liberal leader is heard at his best. His words flow from him in a rich torrent of classical English—not the English of colloquial speech but the English where Mr. Laurier has studied the tongue—the English of the Earl of Chatham and Edmund Burke—the English of the palmy days of British oratory. One cannot hear his speeches without realizing that the speaker has been and is still a conscientious student, and could put to shame by his knowledge of English literature the greater portion of the educated Englishmen in the house of Commons. What he has gathered in these excursions through the domain of letters is used sparingly but with the taste and appropriateness of the true scholar.

The personality of the man is striking and attractive. His figure is tall, slight and graceful. His face is noble and full of feeling. His gesticulations when addressing the house is a lesson in that art. To say that the liberals of both provinces respect him would be too weak a word. It would be scarcely an exaggeration to say that feeling is more akin to idolatry. If ever Mr. Blake resumes the liberal leadership it will not be because of defections from Mr. Laurier in the liberal ranks, but because the present leader will require Mr. Blake to resume his former rank.

I know it is sometimes said that Mr. Laurier is not ruthless enough to make a successful party leader. That he is too scrupulous, too gentle, too true. All I can say is that if there is no room in politics for men of courage, courtesy, chivalry and unsullied honor, then is Canadian public life in need of the services of a physician.

This sketch would be incomplete without a mention of the liberal leader's charming wife. Her intensely social spirit as exhibited in her Sessional Saturday nights which she holds in conjunction with Mrs. Mackenzie have done much to rescue liberalism from social atrophy. JOHN A. EWAN.

A Free Trip to Europe.

The publishers of the Canadian Queen will give a free trip to Europe to the person sending them the largest number of words constructed from letters contained in the name of their well known magazine "The Canadian Queen." Additional prizes, consisting of silver tea sets, gold watches, china dinner sets, portiere curtains, silk dresses, mantel clocks, and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit.

Webster's unabridged dictionary to be used as authority in deciding the contest.

This is a popular plan of introducing a popular publication. Every one sending a list of not less than ten words will receive a present. Enclose thirteen 2c. stamps for illustrated catalogue of presents and three months' trial subscription to the Queen. Address, the Canadian Queen, "B," Toronto, Ont. dw

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,709,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business to this country showed a decrease under this heading of $313,304, could not fail to evoke comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how much a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$43,064,376	13.07
Confederation	17,574,828	15.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,055,527	10.25
Sun Life	11,670,817	10.28
North American	8,470,290	10 08
Temperance and General	2,984,972	17.94
Citizens	2,067,956	20.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,723,100	30 12
London Life	1,044,285	20.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

The improvement will tend to give a buoyant tendency to lake travel.

Accident in Smith

Monday afternoon Mr. Ben Davis, foreman for Mr. C. D. Moore, of the 4th concession of Smith, west of the Communication Road, met with a painful accident. He was climbing into a mow, and a pole lying over the beam gave way, and he fell back yard. He fell with his back across a cutting machine, and was then pitched forward, his face striking against the broken end of the pole, which lacerated his nose and badly bruised the flesh about his eyes. One eye is entirely closed up by the swelling and the other one nearly so. Mr. Davis had a narrow escape from total loss of sight and even death. He will be laid up for some time with his injuries.

Games at the Exhibition.

Messrs. Cameron and Noble have returned from their trip to Toronto and Hamilton highly satisfied with the encouragement received from the Scottish societies and camps. Their deputation were warmly welcomed at every point, and the cordiality shown them, warmed up the "auld Scotch cockles of their hearts" as one of them expressed it. A meeting of the Highland and other Scottish camps and societies is to be called as soon as word is received, that a definite understanding with the Central Exhibition Directors has been arrived at by the St. Andrew's Society, when it is promised the matter will be taken up with spirit. The "Kilties" and "pipers" are keen for the event to come off. An authentic tournament would be one of the best features of the fall show.

RESCUE THE PERISHING.

The Great Rescue Work Conducted by Dr. Barnardo.

An Address Explaining the Merits of the Movement—A Philanthropic Work for the Rescue of Children—Canada is not Imposed upon in the Least—An Appeal for Assistance.

DR. BARNARDO
Requests the pleasure of
Mr. and Mrs. ..... Company
AT "HAZEL BRAE,"
On Tuesday evening, 29th July, when an account will be given of the progress of the Lord's work in his hands in England and in this country.
Refreshments will be served from 7 to 8.
The Mayor, Jas. Stevenson, Esq., M.
P., will preside over the meeting at 8 o'clock.
R. S. V. P.

In accordance with this invitation, which was sent out to the leading citizens of Peterborough, a party of about fifty people assembled at "Hazel Brae" Tuesday evening, and were most hospitably received. There were members of parliament, town councillors, clergymen, doctors, lawyers and businessmen, with their wives and daughters. As they arrived the guests were welcomed by Dr. Barnardo, Miss Woodgate and Miss Code, and taken to the refreshment room, where ice cream, coffee, tea and cake were served by the trim young ladies connected with the institution. Then the guests took seats on the verandah or lawn and admired the manifold beauties of "Hazel Brae" and its surroundings. This "home for the homeless" looks charming in its summer dress of flowers and foliage. Dr. Barnardo and all connected with "Hazel Brae" have every reason to be proud of their Peterborough branch.

The evening being pleasant, the meeting was held on the lawn at the side of the building. Seats were ranged about in semi-circles, the speakers using the door step as a platform. It was a happy idea, the holding of the meeting out-of-doors, and the moon graciously beamed down its approval on the occasion, while the audience enjoyed cool, comfortable seats—a decided boon on such a warm night.

As a commencement of the proceedings "Rescue the Perishing" was sung, after which Rev. Wm. Bennet offered up prayer.

THE CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS

Mayor Stevenson then took the chair. In opening he said it afforded him great pleasure to be present to show his sympathy for the great movement in which Dr. Barnardo was engaged. It was one to demand the sympathy and support of all the people. The children sent out here were of an exceptionally good character and reflected credit upon the training they had received. This movement did not involve any expense upon Peterborough, but was supported entirely by old country funds. The children sent out here had been a help to Peterborough and this district. People who had taken some of Dr. Barnardo's children have generally reported most favourably of them, but it must be remembered that some men were very hard taskmasters, and it was almost impossible to please them. Mr. Stevenson pointed out the philanthropy of Dr. Barnardo's work, on which account, if no other, he deserve every encouragement Peterborough had never given him much assistance, and now was the time to do it when they so urgently required it. About $500 was needed to put a new roof on the building, and Mr. Stevenson believed that it would be easily raised among the generous people of Peterborough.

THE ENGLISH WORK.

Dr. BARNARDO said he was glad to have an opportunity of speaking to the people of Peterborough concerning the movement which was entrusted to his care. He would first speak of the general character of the work talent which there had been much misunderstanding on account of the confusion of the English and Canadian branches. In England the underlying principle of their work had been the acceptance of every child which comes to them. For 25 years their doors have been open to all children, no matter what their cases were like; none have been refused. That was the English work—one essentially of the Christian church. In Canada they say, "Ah, you are making our country the dumping ground for all your cripples and criminals." Those were the different views which were taken of the work in the old country and in Canada. Thousands of children, surrounded by crime and poverty, and others who are the orphans of poor people, would perish body and soul but for their help. Dr. Barnardo dwelt upon the dire condition of degradation and poverty in which thousands of children in the old country cities were existing, and pointed out the Christian character of their rescue work among the young. The work in England was marked by several special features; they seek children out in homes where poverty, drunkenness and cruelty were making their lives miserable; children who were living in the streets and making little homes for themselves—children of independent character and honesty, who would make the best citizens if brought to this country. But when their work in England was to receive children of every age, sex, creed and physical condition, it was made a cardinal principle that only children who were healthy, physically and mentally, thoroughly trained in some occation and found to be quite honest and reliable—only these were sent out to Canada. Dr. Barnardo referred to the

for the training of girls, where the most searching examination was held and careful training given. Only the flower of the boys and girls were sent out to this country, and it was an underlying principle that they never lost sight of one of their children after being placed out in Canadian homes. The speaker emphasized this fact, and pointed out that careful enquiries were made as to the character of the people to whom children are given, and the regular visits which are made to ascertain the condition of the children's lives. The children were never abandoned, no matter how many removals or how great trouble they caused, until they reached maturity. It was their object to keep thoroughly in touch with the children, so as to prevent them from falling into evil ways.

It was charged by some people who did not know what they were talking about, that they brought children from the old country—the scum of the cities—and turned them loose here, and these were the men and women who in later years filled our gaols and poor houses. To show that this was not a fact, Barnardo stated that there were only two out of all the children they have brought out who eventually became a burden to the community.

It was true, he said, that some of the children they brought out were failures. What town had not a few children who were failures. Any of their children who were found to be incorrigible, were taken back and sought to be persuaded and influenced for right and eventually made honest and industrious. But further, any children who were shown to be thoroughly hopeless, whether criminally, morally or physically deficient beyond recovery, are sent back to England, so that at least they are

NO BURDEN ON THIS COUNTRY.

Their efforts had been to make the children a credit to the country and themselves. This was the work they had been engaged in for a number of years. There were now in their homes in England 3,450 children, who had to be fed, clothed and housed. They received support from people all over the world; but, Dr. Barnardo said, he was not here so much to ask the people of Peterborough for support as to suggest that there was a very nice opportunity before them to exhibit their generosity and sympathy. The annual expense of the work in Canada was about $20,000. The Hazel Brae branch alone cost $2,200—about $11,000. All this was contributed by English people the world over. Since 1882 they had spent about $200,000 in Canada of English money. But there were some expenses in connection with the local branch which would be extra over the annual cost of maintenance. The roof was in a bad state, they wanted water put into the house, and other important repairs made, which could be done for about $1,500. Peterborough people had been generous to them in the past, giving them this nice Home. Dr. Barnardo said he would not importune his audience but would leave this matter with them for consideration. He felt that Mr. Stevenson would lay it before that generous body over which he presided, the town council, and get a grant from them.

The speaker also referred to the boys home in Toronto and the farm and creamery in Manitoba, which were a great expense also. Dr. Barnardo invited the people to inspect their system and homes and find out for themselves that they were "not such bad people after all." Referring to the changes in the local staff, Dr. Barnardo referred in flattering terms to the late Superintendent, Capt. Annesley, and his wife and daughter, and Miss Sanderson, late Secretary; who were replaced by Miss Woodgate, Superintendent, and Miss Code, Secretary, who would always be pleased to see visitors and become acquainted with the people of Peterborough.

THE MOVEMENT ENDORSED.

Mr. D. W. DUMBLE being called upon expressed his sympatay with the movement and the Christian character of the work in giving these children the advantages of education and correct training. It was the duty of Christian people, he said, to give the poor children of the cities the same advantages as they themselves enjoyed. Fortunately institutions like Hazel Brae were not yet necessary as Canadian institutions, but he thought the request of Dr. Barnardo was a most reasonable one. As a practical suggestion, Mr. Dumble said he thought if collections were taken up in the churches a liberal response would be made.

Mr. Barnardo said he had seen most encouraging fruits of the work since he had come out here. A large number of healthy, happy prosperous boys and girls had called upon him, and some who were married had come to tell him of their happiness. As to Mr. Dumble's suggestion, he expressed his fear of the result, because it would be difficult to reach the clergymen; but he hoped those who were present would bear the matter in mind, as well as all who had heard the appeal.

Rev. Mr. Davidson felt that the criticisms which were uttered against the work were given undue importance to. The public would see that the criticism was unwarranted and unjust, as they should be ready and anxious to help such a good work. As to the appeal from the churches, he did not know of a more suitable means of bringing the matter before the public.

OUGHT TO BE SUPPORTED.

MR. J. R. STRATTON, M.P.P., was pleased to be present. He understood that Dr. Barnardo took the greatest care of his children, and he had on several occasions made explanations through the press of the good work carried on, in order to satisfy the public demand for information. "Hazel Brae" was a benefit to Peterborough, not on account of the large amount of money expended here, though on this account alone the people and town council ought to support Dr. Barnardo's work. Personally Mr. Stratton said he was prepared to give it his practical support and sympathy.

REV. MR. LOCKE was grateful for the entertaining address of Dr. Barnardo, and said he wished to encourage the Doctor in his benevolent and Christian work. He was sure all would wish him hearty God speed. Since he had become acquainted with the great work he was thoroughly and enthusiastically in sympathy with it. It was his wish to become better acquainted with the work here.

In thanking Mayor Stevenson for his kindness in filling the chair, Dr. Barnardo again referred to the Christian character of the work. Dr. Fife seconded the motion which was carried with applause.

In conclusion Dr. Barnardo suggested as a means of carrying out the good resolutions the people had formed of supporting the work, that they send in their contributions before next Saturday to Miss Code, who would inform him.

THE DOCTOR'S THANKS.

Dr. Barnardo wishes to express his thanks to the following friends who so kindly assisted, by contributing gifts and loans, to the social held at Hazel Brae on Tuesday evening:—Mrs. Bell, Miss Davidson, Miss Darby, Nicholls Hospital; Mrs Gardener, Mrs. Halliday, Mr. Adam Hall, Mr. J. Long, Mr. F. Mason, Mr. W. J. Mason, Mr. H. S. Macdonald, Mr. Robinson, Miss Stephenson and the Y.M.C.A.

Hold the Fort.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR.—I wish to show the treatment I have received from one of my nearest neighbours on account of my supporting Mr. Blezard at the last election. I know the man was sadly put out by losing the election. I used to often call at his place as I was passing. I had not seen him for two or three weeks after the election. I thought he had cooled down by that time. I had no idea of saying anything about the election, but lo and behold, as soon as I was in the house, the first thing I heard was, "Mr. Blezard is going to be unseated." Then he continued, saying that Mr. Blezard was not fit for a member of Parliament, and charging him with many things I never heard of before—things I couldn't believe unless on better authority. Then he got angry and called me a "Dogan" because I was with the Catholics. I said I never asked a Roman Catholic to vote my way. I reminded him that he had a great deal to do with the Roman Catholics when it suited his purposes. Only the last municipal election he was canvassing Roman Catholics to oust Mr. Stewart from the receivship. Then she lost his temper completely and said I was a "rotten Protestant." I prudently retired while I had a whole skin. This gentlemen, having lost six elections, has some excuse, I admit, for feeling sore. It seems to me that he has made up his mind that if Bain's supporter, Mr. Blezard, he should not have been elected, and that I was the only Protestant who voted for him. I have known Mr. Bezard for nearly twenty five years. I knew him when he was in the council as deputy-reeve for several years. He was a very popular man, honest and upright in all his dealings. I think I am not asking too much when I ask my neighbour to prove all he has charged me and Mr. Blezard with, or retract it like a man.

I believe in Equal Rights, but I don't believe in a Tory clique—for on the night of the election a certain well known man in Peterborough, cheering for Mr. Kidd under the idea that he was elected, said, "That's one less for Mowat," but the next day, when the full returns turned the scale, they were like the army of old when defeated—every one fled to his tent.

Thanking you for space, I will subscribe myself as an Equal Rights' supporter for nearly twenty years.

The Hamilton Band Competition.

The Fire Brigade Band has decided to enter the competition in the Band Tournament in Hamilton on Aug. 11th and 12th. The competing bands will be classified according to numbers and therefore our band will compete in the second class, in which their are five prizes offered—$300, $200, $100, $60, $40. Each band is required to play a waltz and a selection, overture, or chorus of oratorio. The Fire Brigade Band will compete on the 1st day, Aug. 11. On the evening of this day a concert will be given by the band of the 13th battalion at which all the competing bands will be amalgamated for the purpose of playing a specified selection. All entries must be made before the 4th of August. The Fire Brigade Band has an army of friends in town who will wish them the success the EXAMINER feels certain they will achieve.

The New Telephone Co.

The Board of Provisional Directors of the Peterborough Telephone Co. met Tuesday afternoon. The capital stock of the company was fixed at $50,000, in 2,000 shares of $25 each. Mr. R. M. Denniston, solicitor, was instructed to apply for the charter immediately. Mr. D. O. Frye was appointed superintendent of construction. An offer of the Federal Company of Montreal, to supply 200 telephones and a 300-wire switch for a central office, was accepted. It was decided to purchase the necessary material and begin the work of construction at once.

The Salvation Army "a Stayer."

The Salvation Army recently celebrated its 25th anniversary. An unfriendly critic was prompted to say that the strangest thing about the army was that it "seemed to last," although when it began everybody smiled and said it would go by. It is not difficult to find reasons for its success. The spectacular element is attractive. The idea of adopting the tactics and the terms, the drums and the banners, of an army was a happy one. There is a strain of martial enthusiasm in the average Britisher, and the Salvationists have skilfully turned it to account. Then the religious creed of the army is exceedingly simple and elastic, while in action it is earnest and energetic. These virtues have outweighed the faults of the organization, which are noise, grotesqueness and a freedom in speaking of sacred things and persons which to outsiders looks like irreverence.

FATAL RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Miss Ina Mariatt of Oakville Killed at Burlington—Terrified by Toughs.

HAMILTON, July 29.—A span of horses attached to a wagon, in which were seated six ladies and the coachman, ran away at Burlington yesterday afternoon with most disastrous results. The ladies were: Mrs. Miller of Burlington, Miss Ina Mariatt of Oakville, Miss McKechnie of Dundas, Misses Ida, Lillie and Marion Waldie and the coachman, H. J. Chisholm. The spirited team belonged to Mr. John Waldie, and was purchased in Toronto last week. The party started to drive to Oakville and Miss Lillie Waldie handled the reins. Going down the sloping driveway from Mr. Waldie's residence the neckyoke broke and the startled horses dashed away. When the coachman seized the reins they broke. Then he jumped. Miss Mariatt also jumped, and was followed by the others shortly afterwards. In falling Miss Mariatt struck on the back of her head, and from her injuries died an hour and a half later. Miss Waldie's knee was hurt, and she was slightly cut about the face. Mrs. Miller was picked up insensible. The full extent of her injuries has not yet been determined, but she is suffering from internal hemorrhage and it is feared that she is badly hurt. The others escaped uninjured. Miss Mariatt was a beautiful and accomplished lady of 18, well-known in this city and a general favorite. She was the daughter of Stafford T. Mariatt, formerly of this city.

In the Police Court to-day Gorman, charged with hitting Constable Harris with a stone while the latter was driving the patrol wagon last Friday night, was committed for trial. James Whiteley, an old pensioner, was the principal witness against the accused. Whiteley admitted that he knew who threw the stone, but refused repeatedly to state who, it was as he believed his life would be in jeopardy if he disclosed his knowledge. The magistrate, after several warnings, committed the witness for contempt. After an hour in the cells Whiteley was brought into court and stated he saw the prisoner throw the stone.

The President Stands Treat.

Mr. R. B. Rogers, superintendent of the Trent Valley navigation, Tuesday combined pleasure with business, and generously shared the enjoyment with the bicycle club, of which he is President. Having occasion to visit Buckhorn on business, Mr. Rogers invited the wheelmen to accompany him in his trim yacht "Empire." About four o'clock Tuesday afternoon fifteen members of the bicycle club wheeled to Chemong and boarded the yacht for the run through the lakes to Buckhorn. Ample entertainment was provided, and the boys enjoyed a jolly moonlight sail, returning home about one o'clock.

Equal Rights.

The topic of the day and that which we all want is not only Equal Rights in a political sense of the word, but in many others. Here are people throwing away their hard earned money, with unprincipled houses who do not as much as thank them for it. Why should they do it? Why not call on W. J. FRIVOLITIES.

A small girl, 3 years old, named Cora, the [illegible] Boston, [illegible] years, [illegible] children—parts the other afternoon. After she returned home she said to her parents: "At the party a little girl fell from a chair to the floor. All the other girls laughed—I didn't." "Well, why didn't you laugh?" "Cause I was the one that fell." Boston Transcript.

A Williamsport girl, who in the matter of beauty and affectionate exuberance was not to say fresh at first love and rosy as the dawn, was asked what she did not get mad and run away from a man who had been extraordinarily unkind to her. "Because I pitied him," was the reply. "Well, why didn't you laugh?" "Because I was the one that fell." Boston Transcript.

Miss De Sour—"Who is your new beau, Bessie?" Bessie—"Why that wasn't my beau. I was only a friend. What made you think he was my beau?" Miss De Sour—"Oh, I thought he walked a little bow-legged, that's all." Whitesville Herald.

Young Husband—"Won't you have a cocktail today?" Wife—"Why, what's the matter? Just before the wedding you used to say you wouldn't marry a man who drank." Young Wife (sweetly)—"Ah, yes! I have needed quite a good deal lately."

Friend—"You've been married two weeks and you are looking terribly run down, Mrs. Young. You have no idea of economy in your household affairs. You waste an awful lot of time." Bride—"Oh, I've tackled it in two ways." Friend—"Indeed! What are they?" Bride—"Sitting."

Teacher—"What is the opposite to mouse?" Small boy—"A keyboard." Teacher—"Well, you can tell me." Small Boy—"Please, what time will mouse be coming, pa, and will the house [illegible]." Boston Budget.

"Bertie, you must carry me." "Must I, Ethel?" "Yes, you must. I'm beginning to feel altogether too much [illegible] and dreaming about you." Life Bertie.

"Third Assistant says you and I are engaged, and I said I supposed so." "Then Johnson's account of every spiteful thing about me is correct I think of." Life.

Husband—"I guess we'll stay at the Centre tonight." Wife—"Of course. Anything to oblige." "Then I'll engage the front room." Boston Courier.

SINGULAR SUBJECTS.

In certain parts of Scotland the hard-headed Scotchman drinks from the skull of a suicide for the cure of epilepsy.

It is said that Shawnee County, Kan., has a mother and daughter who are both pupils in the same school, and both of the school age.

The largest rat on record was captured the other day in the city hall at Macon, Ga. Its weight was said to have been fully five pounds.

A lady of Knoxville, Tenn., was somewhat overcome by being made thrice a grandmother, and all on the same day, by each of her three daughters.

A young lady whose pocket had been picked found therein a valuable diamond ring. She supposed the ring to have been dropped by the thief in the act of rifling her pocket.

Parks Ferry, N. Y., has an infant prodigy in the person of Wallace Parks, Jr., who is ten years old, weighs sixty-two pounds and has the physical development of a twelve-year-old boy.

The youngest smoker in the county is an infantile Cincinnatian, about three years of age, who looks with disdain upon the common herd while he serenely puffs the fumes of an able-bodied cigar.

A Philadelphia lady of fashion is accompanied in her travels by a singular pet. It is an automic pug-dog, which, when wound up, goes through many of the movements of a living dog. The lady calls her novel pet "Brook," because she expects it to go on forever.

A small trout with two heads has been discovered recently in the fish hatchery at Ionia, Mich. The heads are each perfectly formed and the bodies unite at the back fin. The little fellow is described as looking like an animated boot-jack, and as lively a wriggler as any fish in the pond.

A novel mode of amusement is in vogue among the Washoe and Piute Indians of Nevada. It is to pit their squaws against each other in a regular go-as-you-please "scrapping" match. While the squaws are tearing each other to pieces, their noble lords squat around smoking and betting.

Gilbert Heal, of Weston, Me., is a very old man for one who has had but twenty-six birthdays, for he was born in George-town, Me., in 1764. But the fact that he was born on the 29th of February easily accounts for his poverty in birthdays. He is in fairly good health, and seems likely to see another birthday.

There is a curious well in Williamsburgh County, S.C. It is about twenty feet deep, and the water on one side of it is all the time bubbling up as if boiling. On the other side the water is continually sizzing and gurgling as though confined in a hot vessel. The noise can be heard some distance from the well. The water is cold and fine.

A novel mode of capturing woodchucks is practiced by a man in Webster County, W. Va. He attaches a ball of wicking to the shell of a small terrapin, and setting fire to to the ball, starts the reptile into the woodchuck's burrow. This sends the animal out at the other hole where the hunter is ready to receive him. The terrapin soon follows and is captured.

At Ithaca, N. Y., the other day a runaway horse entered the room of a house in which were a hot stove and a bed upon which lay a sick girl. After knocking the stove over the plunging animal attempted to get on the bed, but it gave way beneath his fore feet, and the invalid had a narrow escape from being crushed. The horse was finally secured, but left the house looking as if a hurricane had effected an entrance.

A Remarkable Occurrence.

A remarkable occurrence is reported by a native Japanese newspaper. Scientists assign its cause to vacuum due to atmospheric change, while the wagers think it to be the work of devils. Men suddenly fall down while walking in the open air or in a house, when a slit in the flesh from 1 to 1½ inches in length and about 1 inch in depth is found, the place principally attacked being the legs. At the time not much pain is felt, but half a hour afterward the pain increases as the blood begins to flow. The wounds are said to be very difficult to cure.

The Fresh Office Boy Again.

Stranger (entering office)—Is Mr. Eastlake about?

Office Boy—Yes, sir.

Stranger—I'd like to see him.

"But you can't."

"You said he was about."

"Yes sir; about a hundred miles from here.—Massey's Weekly.

POPULAR FOX-TERRIERS.

THEY ARE NOW THE FAVORITE DOGS AND QUITE FASHIONABLE.

Some Characteristics of the Clever Animal—Description of a Good Specimen of the Breed—A Terrier who Ate Spools of Thread.

Every dog has his day, and the fashionable dog of just this present day is unquestionably the fox-terrier.

The great charm of a fox-terrier is that you never can tell what he is going to do next. It is always the unexpected you may be sure. A person uptown owns one that a short time ago suddenly took an unaccountable liking for spools of thread as an article of diet. He would swallow them whole, and his digestion did not seem to be impaired in the least by it. Upon one occasion the thread had become partially unwound before the spool was swallowed, and when the dog was discovered as end was hanging out of his mouth. His owner took hold of the end, and had no difficulty in reeling the thread out, leaving the dog only the empty spool. The operation was not followed by any disastrous results, but the terrier looked as if he had been cheated of some thing, and did not wag his stumpy tail vigorously for some time.

AUGUST BELMONT JR.'S "LUCIFER."

A walk with a fox-terrier as a companion can never be wholly without incident. There will be unless a great amount of care is exercised, at least one fight, and if the owner likes, he can without violent exertion promote several. Whether the dog's antagonist be a mastiff or a tiny toy terrier, it is all the same to him; his disposition being much like that of the Irishman who, hearing a noise in the street, sent his little girl to inquire the meaning and to say that if there was going to be a row her father wanted to be in it. Severe lessons and lacerations seem to be entirely without effect, and the terrier is sure to go a second time at the bulldog who has all but converted him into a corpse.

Like all bold and adventurous spirits, fox-terriers delight in roaming, and one who, if left to himself, would not occasionally go off on a prolonged exploring expedition would be an exception. Like most prodigals they endure all sorts of hardships when from home, and on returning, ten to one commit a good flexible cane instead of the fatted calf. A most confirmed prodigal is a certain Bijou, the property of the son of the late Judge Forsyth, of Troy. Bijou, since puppyhood, has been in the habit of stealing away and remaining "to memory dear" two or three weeks at a time. Upon one occasion his hair was scalded off for the most part, and another time he returned with two broken legs. These unfortunate outings he survived and upon a more recent one was run over by a railway train, his tail being ground belly out off and his skull fractured. Though the indentation in his skull is still plainly visible and he has not his tail wherewith to express joy, he is still able to get about and to make the cats in his immediate vi cinity wish that he had never been born. To one [illegible] that is to [illegible] company a pack of fox-hounds or [illegible] drawing there are [illegible] of which he is more than apt to [illegible] and [illegible] rest of the [illegible] conform to [illegible] and [illegible] aimed at not quite so [illegible] dog as to the ill-bred yourself, and a man accompanied by an undersized dog very rarely appears to undervalue [illegible] Strangers [illegible] may say of him that, not having any [illegible] in his own account, he cannot [illegible] he generally succeeds in valuing [illegible] chasing the deer.

Head: Tar should be flat and made [illegible] by running a bead [illegible] between the [illegible] gral nails becoming invisible to the eye. There is said to be no deception in the position [illegible] in the forehead and too much [illegible] is not [illegible] bound. The ears should be [illegible] should hang forward close to the head, and not flat like those of a fox-hound. The jaw should be strong and muscular, but not too full in the cheeks; it should be of fair length, being neither too long nor too short in any way to resemble the greyhound or modern Englishterrier. There should not be much falling away from the eyes; this part of the head should, however, be moderately thin, but not so as to go down in a straight slope like a wedge. The nose, too, at which the muzzle should slightly taper, should be black. The eyes should be dark-rimmed, small, rather deep set and full of life and fire. The teeth should be level and strong.

Neck: The neck should be clean and muscular, without "throatiness," of fair length and [illegible] [illegible] to the shoulder.

Shoulder: The shoulders should be clean at the points, lithy and sloping. The chest deep and not broad.

Back: The back should be short, straight and strong, with no appearance of sickness behind the shoulders, the loin broad, powerful and only slightly arched. The dog should be well ribbed up, with deep chest ribs, and should not be flat-sided.

Tail (technically "stern"): The "stern" should be set on rather high and carried gayly, but not over the back or curled. It should be of moderate size and strong.

Legs—The legs, viewed from any direction, must be straight, and there should be little appearance of ankle in front. They should be large in bone throughout, the elbows working freely just clear of the sides. Both fore and hind legs should be carried straight forward in travelling, the stifles not turning outward. The feet should be round, compact and not too large, the toes moderately arched and turned neither in nor out. There should be no "dew claws" beyond.

Coat—The coat should be smooth, but hard, dense and abundant. In color, white should predominate [illegible] red or liver markings are [illegible] otherwise this point is of little [illegible] importance.

How They Speak English in Paris.

At a hotel in a busy quarter of Paris the following notice appears: "Ici on parle Anglais, Espagnol, Italien, Allemand, etc." An Englishman recently entered the house and asked, in British French, for the interpreter. The waiter replied that there was not one. "Who, then," the Britisher asked, "speaks all these languages?" The waiter with an innocent smile, replied, "The customers."

THE ARIZONA KICKER.

Western Enterprise Continues to Lead.

We extract the following items from the last issue of the Arizona Kicker.

A QUEER PROCEEDING.—The other night some of the boys came around and routed us out of bed at midnight to go over and see 'em hang Pete Smith. Pete is the chap who killed Col. Williams in a saloon row last fall, and who has had a shot at several other eminent citizens, including ourself. For the last two weeks he has been running the town, and his refusal to take a hint resulted in his being waited on by the vigilance committee.

We reached the grounds to find Pete standing on a barrel with a rope around his neck. He knew his time had come, and was ready to die game, but no sooner did he learn of our presence in the crowd than he began to protest and object and demand that we be run into the scrub. We called his attention to the fact that he had had two shots at us at close range, and that we were the only party on the ground who could dish up his obituary in good English, but the ungrateful rough kept on kicking and would not even argue the case.

A man in this country can't have everything he wants, no matter how big a bluffer he is, and when it was seen how unreasonable Pete was the boys went ahead with the hanging just the same, and Mr. Smith won't sail around our streets with a gun on each hip for many moons to come. We've seen some queer things out here, but the idea of a man like Pete Smith objecting to a man like us seeing him drop off a barrel rather caps the climax. We are charitable enough to believe he was a little off.

A CANARD.—The story in certain Chicago papers that the editor of The Kicker runs a faro room in connection with the newspaper bears the ear-marks of our jealous-pated contemporary. There isn't a word of truth in it.

It was suggested by Col. Kane about a month ago that we give up a portion of our office space during the evening to a poker club of which we are president, and we cheerfully adopted the suggestion, and a game is on every night from 7 to 1', but poker isn't faro—not by a long shot. Our enemies will gain nothing by circulating such absurd stories about our character.

HE STRUCK A SNAG.—On the 1st day of April we started Indian Dick out of town to see how quick he could make a journey around the world. To tell the honest truth, we hadn't ever a ton of confidence in Dick, but he had so much ambition that we gave him a dollar and a half and told him to draw on us for some more when he reached Yokohama. The other day we heard of him up at Overton's ranch, only twenty miles away, and that he had been there ever since the 3d of April. It seemed that he was doing bravely on his trip until he struck Overton's, where an eastern genius is making some sort of whiskey out of cactus roots. The first taste of that liquor nailed Dick right to the spot, and he hasn't moved ten rods since. Under these circumstances all bets are declared off, and all guesses have been turned loose in the back yard to shift for themselves.

DRAWING THE LINE.—Maj. Atwood, of Tombstone, came down the other day to ask a great favor of us. He wanted us to give him one of the bodies out of our private graveyard as a starter in establishing one of his own. While the major has been our friend from first to last, and while he always had a dollar for us in the old days when we were hard up, we must draw the line somewhere. He can have our shirt, our rabbit's foot, our dream book or our fine comb, but friendship ceases when he approaches the graveyard which we have been at so much pains and expense to fit up and make a feature of this section of the country.

DON'T STOP HIM.—Last week we engaged a new arrival from the east to act as local editor of The Kicker. He assured us that his name was Barlow and that he was a close follower in the footsteps of Horace Greeley. After twenty-four hours had he got tight, stole our Sunday mule, gobbled a mule and lit out towards sundown. Don't stop him on our account. The owner of the mule may want to see him, but we don't. Those boots cost us $12, but if Mr. Barlow will only keep away we shall consider it a good bargain. He is about the twentieth disciple of Greeley, Bennett or Raymond we have tried in the last year, and we are tired—very tired.

Lightning Never Strikes Twice.

He had been struck by lightning. As they picked him up, stunned and bruised, he slowly opened his eyes and said:

"Burned of it 'tware't bad!"

"Yes, it must have been terrible."

"But 'tain't so bad as it mought be," he continued.

"No; you might have got killed."

"That ain't what I meant. I'm dum thankful o' that, o' course, but I'm glad it's happened while I'm young, 'cos I'm all right for the rest o' me life, while you fellers are liable ter get struck down any time. Lightnin,' yer know, never strikes twicet in the same place. It's like the measles—get it once, an' yer all right."—Lawrence American.

The Paper Lied.

"Did you see what the paper said about you?"

"No; and I don't want to hear any of their abominable lies about me. You may make up your mind that whatever was said was false."

"I thought as much. It said you were handsome and clever."—Harper's Bazar.

Not His Boots.

A.—Did you hear that the thief and desperado, Buckshot Jack, had been killed?

B.—No. Died with his boots on, I suppose.

A.—No, indeed. He died with another man's boots on. Robbed a shoe-store.—Texas Siftings.

A Little Late.

In Chicago.

He—May I have the pleasure of your company at supper, Miss Breezy?

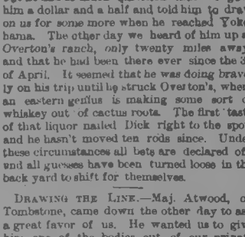
She—You're a little late, Mr. Waldo; I've been down to supper three times already.—Judge.

Escaped from the Pillory.

Mrs. Broadbient—Have you felt slippers, young man?

Very Young Salesman—Not since I've been boardin' away from home, marm.

Overdoing It.



Miss Spowhall—Mistah Johnsing, don't yer squabble me. You is abusin' de liberty ob de press, 'dead you is.—Texas Siftings.

Practical Education.

Old Gunnibags (to applicant for clerkship)—Hm! I believe you know nothing what ever about the shipping business, Mr. Koblitch.

Colly Koblitch (Columbia graduate of 1890)—Nothing, sir, beyond the voyages of Ulysses and Æneas!—Puck.

Taking the Safe Side.

Mrs. Nerfus—I'm sure I heard a noise downstairs. There must be burglars in the house!

Mr. Nerfus—Nonsense! Why should burglars wish to make a noise?—Puck.

Counting the Cost.

Waiter—Champagne, sir? Yes sir. Have it iced, sir?

Guest (Gloomily)—No, I can't afford to have it iced.—N. Y. Weekly.

The Widow Would be Able to Pay.

Young Doctor to Old Doctor—Doctor, I have told you how I'm treating that patient. Do you think I should change the course of treatment any?

"Has he got any money?"

"No, but his life is insured."

"Well, just continue your present treatment."—Epoch.

THURSDAY, JULY 31, 1890.

THE CANADIAN CENSUS.

The last census of the Dominion of Canada was taken in 1881. At that time the population of the several Provinces was as follows:—Ontario, 1,923,228; Quebec, 1,359,027; Nova Scotia, 440,572; New Brunswick, 321,233; Prince Edward Island, 108,891; Manitoba, 65,954; British Columbia, 49,459; the Territories, 56,446; total, 4,324,810. The largest percentage of increase, in the interval between 1871 and 1881, was shown by Manitoba, whose population grew from 18,995, in 1871, to 65,954, in 1881. A census of the three provisional districts in the North-west Territories was taken in 1885 showing a population of 48,362. A census of Manitoba, taken in 1886, showed a population of 108,640. The next decennial census falls in 1891. Any estimate of the present population would be largely speculative, but in the case of Ontario, there is reason to believe that the census will show a considerable increase. According to the returns of the Registrar General of Ontario the population, mathematically calculated, was found, in 1887, to be 2,146,405, which taking the population of 1881, the excess of births over deaths, and the average immigration, according to provincial returns, it would be 2,152,290.

In 1889 the Grand Trunk Railway carried 33 per cent. of total freight carried by rail. The Canadian Pacific came next with 15 per cent and the Canada Southern next with 14 per cent.

THE Port Arthur Herald says:—"There is no reason why we should not find a market for a million tons of iron ore with our southern neighbors. There is no reason why millions of feet of the higher grades of lumber from the Rainy River country should not be marketed in Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and Buffalo." No reason remarks the Globe in the nature of things, certainly. The only obstacle is the determination of the Manufacturer's Association to keep the Canadian market closed against competition. Monopoly suits them, they control the Government, and the Government, with the aid of their money and of the gerrymander and franchise acts, "fixes" the popular vote. Meanwhile young men who would have plenty of work at home if unrestricted reciprocity did nothing more than lead to the development of our iron mines, are obliged to go off to the States. This is what the Tories call building up the country.

The Cholera Outlook.

The Harbour of Safety.

(Canada Health Journal.)

The best informed medical journals, in most recent weekly issues, think there is not much to be feared from the cholera on this continent this year; yet they sound a note of warning, that it will be best to be prepared for it. There is always danger that it may escape the best organized quarantines on the long Atlantic shore, however vigilant the officers may be. Having broken out in a small town of about 700 inhabitants in Valencia in May, it rapidly spread to other towns. In the epidemic of 1885, the deaths in the province of Valencia alone amounted to 25,512, and those familiar with the sanitary condition of the city of Valencia are not surprised at this fatality. The voyage across the ocean is sufficiently long to cause the poison to develop itself in any passenger before reaching our shores, and the cargoes can easily be thoroughly disinfected. Still it is quite possible that the infection may be carried in fumites in the clothing and escape detection at the quarantines.

Should it break out, the measures for the prevention of its spread are of two sorts: public, and private or personal; and with reasonable attention to these there need be no alarm of a wide-spread epidemic.

Of public measures, the most important are to attend to the drinking water wells or other public supply. The last great cholera epidemic in London, Eng., which destroyed 6,000 human lives, was due to the pollution of the East London supply from the River Lee by one family located in one house. The only real safety after an outbreak is to have all drinking water well-boiled just before it is used. The milk and food supply should be well looked after too and the most scrupulous cleanliness enjoined every where. But upon individual means, probably, after all, more than upon anything else, will depend the extent to which the cholera would develop and spread, should it reach Canada. If the bodily fluids be pure, free from worn out waste substances of every sort, the germs of the disease will not be likely to develop and multiply in the body, should they be taken into it in any way. It is, therefore, of the first importance that each and every individual attend well to the bodily condition; keeping all parts in good working order. Perfect physical living in all respects will usually secure immunity from the development of the infection within the body. One chief cause of waste impurities in the body is over-eating—eating more than the nutrient organs can digest, assimilate and dispose of more than is needed for the due performance of the bodily functions; while excesses of all sorts weaken the nutrient functions, overtax the excretory organs and render the organism less able to throw off the waste of the body or other impurities. The United States Consul at Genoa, a year or two ago, stated that the Sunday excesses among the laboring classes there proved a powerful feeder of the epidemic. The strictest temperance in all things is therefore of the first importance.

With a wisely judicious moderation in eating, regularly, plain, digestible but nutritious, pure, sound, well cooked foods, thoroughly masticated, and the careful avoidance of all foods not absolutely fresh and pure; careful attention to the condition of the skin and bowels (by bathing and the use of flannel underclothing), with regular habits as to exercise and sleep, and a tranquil fearless mental condition, no one need have any fear of the Cholera.

THE INTERNATIONAL GOSSIP.

Edmund Yates' Weekly Budget of News About His Royal Friends.

LONDON, July 29.—It is no secret that the Queen would gladly have dispensed with Emperor William's visit, which happens for many reasons to be peculiarly inconvenient. The Emperor is to arrive at Cowes next Monday afternoon and will dine with the Queen at Osborne, where there is to be a family dinner to welcome him. There is no fleet now at Spithead for him to inspect, but he is to spend a day at Portsmouth dockyard, and squadron regattes will occupy another day and probably he will visit the fortifications at the Needles. The Emperor is to leave Cowes on Friday morning for Wilhelmshaven unless he reverts to his original plan and goes to Edinburgh to see the Forth bridge, in which case he would embark at Leith on the Hohenzollern.

The Prince of Wales is going to Hungary toward the end of September to visit Count Festetics and Count Karolyi, and there will be a series of hunting parties on their respective estates. The Prince of Wales' yacht Alix, which is to take part in some of the yacht regattas next week, has undergone extensive refitting at Cowes during the last few weeks and has been fitted with new engines of a new desk.

A great deal of ill-natured nonsense has been talked about Lord Randolph Churchill's speech on Wednesday. Whenever he speaks, it is at once interpreted as a bid for power. This speech was discussed accordingly. No one knows better than Lord Randolph himself that his coming back into office now is not at all likely, and, what is more, he does not desire it. If he came back now it would be on conditions imposed on him by a cabinet not at all anxious to have him, and whose object would be to curtail his influence in every way possible. If he waits till election, he knows how powerful his aid must be to his party, and he would then be in a position to make better terms for himself.

Anticipation of speedy prorogation has been rather retarded by the work of last week. Things are going slowly and members are beginning to wonder whether they can get away before the middle of August. There can be no doubt that what is really wanted is thorough reform of parliamentary procedure. Eventually it will be found that Erskine May's proposition is the only feasible one, namely, to establish the committee to examine the details of finance. At present every small vote is made a peg upon which to hang a speech, while practically the whole [illegible] is sitting in committee of supply. [illegible] Hicks-Beach is sitting in committee of the House of Commons, [illegible] favorite [illegible] and [illegible] of the Irish members. [illegible] Mr. Parnell [illegible] Mr. Dillon [illegible] Mr. O'Brien [illegible] Mr. Sexton [illegible] Mr. Healy [illegible] Mr. Harrington [illegible] Mr. Tim Healy [illegible] Mr. Davitt [illegible] Mr. Redmond [illegible] Mr. Sheehy

Taking The Finns' Census.

"I have come to take the census of the family," said a young man with a portfolio under his arm, when Mrs. Finn opened the door.

"The cinsus, is it," replied the woman in a puzzled tone. Then, remembering that it would never do to confess ignorance, she continued: "Faix, there's never a one was in this house. I'm afther lin' it to Mrs. McCarthy beyant. But if I had it here ye wouldn't get it. Who ant ye after it, anyhow, wid yer stovepipe hat and yer airs?"

"Excuse me, madame. You evidently do not understand. I am an agent of the United States Government come to—"

"An agint, is it, peddlin' bukes. Faith, mon dear, I have no time for Parnill. Wid washin' and mendin' an' milkin' the nanny me time is gone intirely. I know ye poor divils has to live along wid the rist of us, but if ye were to give me the bukes free fur nothin I couldn't rade it, I'm that ignorant o' noilege."

Mrs. Finn stopped to take breath, and the young man took advantage of the break to drive a wedge of logic into the conversation.

"I simply want to know your Christian name, your name in full, and whether you have an initial or middle name?" said he.

"Fwhat's that? Ye want to know me Christian name? Yerra mon, div ye take me fur a mon-o'-sin bin'thin blagyard? D'ye think wud I have any other nor a Christian name in this blessed counthry? G'out."

Mrs. Finn glared at the enumerator and made a step in his direction as he hastily exclaimed:

"Excuse me, but is your name Murphy, or McGuinness, or McFadden—"

"Faith it is not," interrupted Mrs. Finn, with a scornful toss of the head; "it's jist Finn. As dacint a name as iver a woman had, wid no Mac or O'Brin, like two tails to a goat. Biddy Finn, no more, no less."

The enumerator made the first entry and hurried onward with his questions. He thought he had at last got Mrs. Finn into an abbreviating mood.

"Are you a widow, Mrs. Finn?"

"A widdy, is it? Begorra, I have a man as'ud make two like you, me laddybuck. Ye may hav' the l'arnin', but he has the legs and arrums, and a chist on him like the round side of a barrel o' beer."

Mrs. Finn had been surprised into an explicit declaration, and the enumerator began to congratulate himself on an easy victory over the loquacious woman. He continued:

"Of what color is your husband?"

"Shure I forget," meditatively replied Mrs. Finn. "Troth, I think he's the color o' sunny other Irishman. Sometimes when he does be comin' home tired from the quarry he does be white as the wall wid the wakeness on him from the hard work, poor man. But when he has the dhrop in him it rises the blush in his chake like a red rose. I seen him turnin' all colors, wid rage when the goat 'ud be atin' the cabbage. We'd think he'd be a Chinee or a nagur ba't be that black in the face, and small blame to him, fur them goats is divils where there's cabbidge intirely, so they are, and not contint wid grass, which the same is tinder and juicy and makes the nanny give plinty o' milk, glory be to the saints! and when the cow's milk is scarce, the nanny's milk is handy fur to be puttin' in the tay, so 'tis, and if ye'll hold yer whist, me lad, I'll be givin' ye a sup o' the nanny's milk, so I will, that'll——"

"You are the mother of how many children?" broke in the young man upon the smooth flow of Mrs. Finn's monologue. This question had started her fluency in another channel, and, hardly stopping to catch her breath, she started in afresh.

"Well, there's Mickey. Divil a finer lad ye'll mate nor him, sir. It's handy he is at learnin', thricks. Shure lasht night I coteh him smokin' his father's pipe, he's that handy, and he so young."

"Is Mickey the only child you have?"

"He is, God bless him! He had a little sister wanst that's ag wid her father now. It's naight years about childer, sir. Some o' thim'll run around barelegged with nothin' on thim fur shelter from the wind or the rain, and they'll be fat and impidint, so they will like a puck goat, and divil's the harrum 'll come to thim atall. And thin agin there'll be others as'll be whinin' wid the could and crawlin' under the shtove to kape the breath o' life in thim. Arrah, good day to ye, Mrs. O'Brien. Here's a gintleman as is takin' me pedigree and he puttin' it in a little bukes fur it to be shown in the Presidint of Amerikey, fwhile he'll be sittin' in his goold chair wid a nagur to be kapin the flies off him. And d'ye mind the square he has wid the ink in the handle. Wud ye mind showin' Mrs. O'Brien the Yankee invintion, sir. Oh dear, Oh dear, did I ivir see the likes o' that! I spose, sir, ye hav' a weeny ink bottle in the handle?"

While the two women were examining the fountain pen the enumerator managed to put in another question. He was not getting along fast, and hastened to make up for lost time.

"Where were you born, Mrs. Finn?" said he.

"Many t'ousands o' miles from this spot me bucko; many t'ousands o' miles. I wisht I was there now, so I do. Did ye ever hear o' Clahane in Ballyduff, ye lad? Arrah, ye should go to the puck goat fair they have ivery years wid the goat up in a little cage and him wid ribbons round his neck——"

"But, my dear madam," said the enumerator, impatiently, "all this is of no interest whatever to me. I'm not taking the census of the goats in Ireland. Please be kind enough to tell me if you were born in Ballyduff."

"Faith, I was not. Shure I drew me first breath in Kilkerren, about six Irish miles from Currawe, in the county o' Galway, though manny people think Kilkerren is in Connemara. And by the same token, there was a brave docther in Carnan, which the same was an illegent liar. He'd be tellin' ye like 'till ye'd split yer sides wid laughter.' He was always as hungry as Mickey's calf and as thirsty as dhry turf. Gorra, I remember well the sthory he'd be tellin' about the wan legged duck wid the cock eye——"

"Really, Mrs. Finn——"

"And his wan leg was in the middle of his body all the same as it might be he was walkin' on one shtilt, and when he'd dip his head fur a morsel o' corn he was that high——"

"How long have you been in this country?" cruelly interrupted the enumerator, who was now in a state of extreme nervousness.

"Fur many years, sir. More nor ye'd count on yer fingers and toes and more be sides. Mike—that's me husband, sir—kem out afore me, sir, and sint me the money to come afther. If ye'd seen him and he meetin' me at Castle Garden and grabbin' me in his arrums, like the grisly bear I seen in the show, and him cryin' wid the beer, which the same he tuk fur to kape his courage up for fear somethin' happened me comin' over and I trun in the say. Oh, dear, oh, dear!"

"You say you have been here more than twenty years, Mrs. Finn. May I ask how much more?"

"Shure ye may. Ask away."

"Well?"

"It's dacent chap ye seem to be, and it's meself 'ud tell ye; but it's so long ago that I forget it entirely. If ye'll come around in about three wakes I might be able to find out. Ye see, I'll get me little son to write a letther to me sister in Kilkerren and find out fur ye' if that'll do ye."

"Well, Mrs. Finn, you probably think me very inquisitive. But this isn't a personal matter with me. I am hired to get certain facts, and if you will simply answer the questions readily it will greatly oblige me."

"Faith I will, me lad. You're wel for doing it, and why wouldn't I put an odd dollar in yer pocket? Of course it's aisier to be carryin a little buke under yer arrum and askin impident questions nor it is to be workin in the quarries or paddlin fish. But the saints preserve me from harrum if I'll be puttin' a sthraw in yer way, me lad—"

"Arrah, sthop yer blather and give the man the 'nolledge he's wantin'. Troth, ye're as windy as a Galway fishwoman," said Mrs. O'Brien. "Go on, sir, and I'll answer the questions masilf and save time for ye."

"Dade ye will not, thin," spoke up Mrs. Finn, angrily. "Don't be comin' in me own house to ballyrag me, Mrs O'Brien. I know me own business, and it's well for ye I'm kapin me timper."

The young man spoke up hastily to quell the rising storm with another question as to whether Mrs. Finn was suffering from any acute or chronic disease.

"Dis'ase, is it?" was the reply, with a profound sigh. "I'm afeard there's something the matter wid me heart. Whin Mickey fell down the cistern the other day, and I fishin' him out wid a clothes pole, I was that frekened me heart jumped up like as if 'twas playin' l'ap frog in me throat. It went t'ump, t'ump, agin me ribs, till I fought 'twas comin' out o' me body. Thin, whin the weather is wet I have the rheumatis in me two knaes. Shure, I tried everything, mustard wather and vinegar and Dr. Berkins's oil o' gladness, but thare the pain was, like an achin' tooth."

The enumerator could stand it no laager. He arose, bowed, and started for the door. Mrs. Finn cried:

"Come back, sir. There's wan o' the family ye didn't get."

"Indeed! What is the name?" asked the enumerator, lingering on the threshhold.

"Billy Finn."

"Married or single?"

"Married."

"How old?"

"Nine years, sir."

"And you say he's married?"

"Yes, sir. He's the billy goat."—N. Y. Sun.

A Candidate for Office Writes a Test Essay on Influenza.

SIR: As I am requested by your honor to write an essay on influenza, all I can say is that this infernal epidemic, which has fallen on our mother country like a great calamity, is caused by the concentrated efforts of minute bacus of the animalculæ tribe of unforeseen microscopical animal life.

Like the old plagues of Egypt, it is deteriorating in the extreme, carrying its enormous degenerating contamination through every household families, not excepting your humble servant, who has suffered too much the deaths of fever in its augmanted state with a pertinacity that would have done the heart of Esculapalius good to have interviewed.

Notwithstanding, nevertheless I am now all square, your honor, enjoying salubrity of health, hence my ability to write this hard subject matter. Although this infernal, inhuman disease is not dangerous except for the old decrepid one-foot-in-the-grave sort of paralytic people, yet it is fraught with too great after-consequences, such as pneumonia, bronchitis, catarrh, et hux genis omne (you see I am versed in a few Latin terms, causing hereby some care to be taken with ourselves afterward.

It is great pity your honor asked me to write such kind of great difficult, in xperienced task, no B. A. I am sure would be sprightly enough to attempt to undertake such eccentric task without purloining his intellectual faculties to the utmost tennision. Your honor will kindly excuse my writing to a greater length, although I could give much information on the statistic of this great and down-falling disease on bed with all Items of fever and nose running all day and night, my wife is still suffering, but I am earnestly working the oracle with the Gods to minimise the malady by giving alms and all things to poor helpless beggars asking much, from your humble servant who is at present greatly impecunious for want of job, two children besides wife and myself to feed and one more child coming soon yet unborn owing to wife's fault. Hoping to be favored by your kind consideration.—Bombay Gazette.

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,709,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $316,204, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapses.
Canada Life	$48,984,376	4.07
Confederation	17,574,838	8.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,056,837	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,617	10.36
North American	8,470,920	10.66
Temperance and General	2,984,972	17.84
Citizens	2,067,956	23.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,722,100	30 12
London Life	1,644,286	20.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 20 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

The Checkers Remain

A cantonment of Peterborough Canton was held last night, when the question of participating in the grand Triennial Conclave at Chicago next week was discussed. It was decided not to take the trip, as there are to many of the chevaliers out of town on their holidays to make a good representation. The Canton has an invitation to Cobourg decoration day ceremonies in September, which may be accepted.

Kingston Woman's Medical College

The new college building is being fitted up and will be occupied next week in preparation for the college opening in October. The trustees and professors are delighted with their purchase of this building, for its interior accommodation is not second to its fine situation. The registrar is receiving many enquires for calendars, and there is no doubt the movement for woman's education, and the superior staff the college presents, are having an excellent effect.—Whig.

Wanted by the The Police.

Chief Reed has received circulars asking for the arrest of Wm. Gray, who left Huntley, Wis., the night of July 7th with $3,000 belonging to the M. L. S. and W. R. R. He is described as 30 years of age, 5 ft. 7½ in. high, dark and ruddy complexion. The first joint of thumb on left hand missing. Five hundred dollars reward is offered.

The Dangerous Falling Tree

Mr. Alex. Thompson, of Campbellford, narrowly escaped being killed in Dummer township, about two weeks ago. He and Mr. Castaday and another man were working in the woods getting out timber. They were in the act of cutting down a tree, and as it began to move Mr. Thompson shouted to his companions to look out, and just at the same moment noticing that he stood in the line of its descent he dodged, but too late, as he was struck on the right shoulder and hip, and thrown against a stump and injured in the other hip, rendering him helpless. He was conveyed home, and for several days was unable to stand. He is now getting about again, although enfeebled in both legs.—Herald.

A Bandmaster Married.

Last evening Mr. John Miller, shoemaker, and leader of the Y.M.C.A. band, was married to Miss Mary Price. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr Looks at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. John Price, Murray street. Miss Katie Price was bridesmaid, the groom being assisted by Mr. Steve Coveney. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are to be congratulated upon the happy event.

Several Accidents.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Robert Fanning met with a painful accident at the Wm. Hamilton Works. A timber of the brick wall left standing after the recent fire, fell upon him while he was working upon the re-construction of the ruins, and partially buried him. His side and legs were fearfully bruised, but fortunately no bones were broken.

On Saturday while Mr. Stewart O'Shea, employed in the Rathbun mill, at Campbellford, was standing in front of the saw, one of the teeth, that are made to fit into the saw, flew out, striking him on the knuckle of the third finger, severing the cord and cutting a large piece out of the back of his hand. It is a painful wound, and he may lose the power of his hand.

A man named Ferguson, a navvy working at the railway cut in Campbellford, met with an accident on Monday which resulted in a broken leg. He was employed on the "dump," and falling on the track, with a leg on the rail, a car passed over it with the result as stated.

A Railway Pitch-in.

The noon C. P. R. express was several hours late to-day, on account of an accident at Myrtle. A freight train had pulled up at the station, and was standing on the main line waiting orders, when another freight coming close behind pitched into the rear end and a smash resulted. The van and one car of wheat were badly broken up and several other cars were more or less damaged. The engine of the second train was also derailed and thrown crosswise off the track. Fortunately no one was hurt. No great blame is attached to any of the railway men. The approach to Myrtle station is by a sharp curve, and the driver of the second engine, who was, perhaps, advancing at too high a rate of speed, did not see the still train until it was too late to pull up. The express was held on the other side of Myrtle until the line was cleared. An auxiliary was hastily despatched from Toronto to place the derailed cars and locomotive on the track, after which some time had to be spent in repairing the damage to the rails.

It Won't Burn.

A third attempt to burn the old market building was thwarted this morning. Just at four o'clock the employes of the Times office observed smoke and flames ascending from the roof of the structure, and promptly gave the alarm. The fire brigade turned out quickly, and succeeded in subduing the blaze. The fire was evidently the work of an incendiary. It originated in the closet under the stairway, and ascending to the gallery the flames burned through the ceiling and got among the rafters in the roof. It was a difficult task to get at the fire, the verandahs preventing the use of the ladders. The hose was run up through the clock tower and a hole cut into the main building. It would require the expenditure of about $200 to repair the damage. The building is insured for $3,000. A great many jokes are passing around to day at the expense of the incendiary, for having made a bad job of it; the firemen are having fun picked at them for doing their best to help the building to burn and not succeeding; while those who threaten to banish the printers who gave the alarm and spoiled the pyrotechnic display. This is the third, and if any reliance can be placed upon the old saw, presumably the last time that the old market will be fired, but the council ought to dispose of it (after getting the insurance money) or tear it down before the firebugs get another chance.

Up Goes the Price of Drinks.

A Movement to Raise the Price of Whisky at Hotels.

The recent action of the Toronto hotelkeepers, in deciding to raise the price of whisky to 10c. a glass, is taking effect in Peterborough, and already there is talk of calling a meeting of hotelmen for the purpose of considering the question.

A down-town hotel-keeper says that he intends to make the raise whether others join him or not. This action, he says, is rendered necessary on account of the increase of 50 cents a gallon imposed by the distillers, who are obliged, by recent government regulations, to keep all whisky in bond for two years before selling it, and, being thus put to the extra expense of keeping a large stock of liquor on hand, take this means of saving themselves from loss. The increase came to force July 1st, and when the stocks now on hand in the local hotels are exhausted, they will be obliged to raise the retail price or suffer loss. There is very little money, he says, made on it anyway.

Beers and wines are of course not affected. These will remain at the same figure.

The hotel-keeper whose views are mentioned above urges other arguments in favor of the increase. If liquor continued to be sold at 5c a glass, it would have to be diluted if any money was to be made, and the cause of temperance would be greatly injured by the sale of adulterated liquor. For 10c. a glass the pure two-year old article could be profitably disbursed, and the tippling public would get their money's worth just the same.

A number of the town hotelmen are in favor of the raise, while others think it would cut off a large part of their trade. The agitation may nevertheless result in a meeting being called for the discussion of the subject.

News Nuggets.

—Campbellford's civic holiday is August 20th.

—A petition is in circulation for hydrants on Gilmour street.

—The plank road proposition will be urged in the Campbellford district.

It is probable there will be another practice match on the cricket grounds on Saturday.

Some Port Hope grocers are threatened with prosecution for "setting up" "hard cider" for their customers.

The Toronto cricket club plays Campbellford on Aug 19th—that is, if they keep their engagement.

There was no meeting of the cheese board in Campbellford on Wednesday, the cheese having been otherwise sold.

—The Waterworks Company are at present extending their mains northward on Park street, from Charlotte to Hunter.

A shipment of 100 boxes of cheese, weighing 15,452 lbs., was made from the Keene factory last week.

—Port Hope Oddfellows are making rich rate preparations for Decoration Day. A special chorus will assist in the decoration ceremonies at the cemetery.

Latest advices gives assurance of excellent crops in East Durham this year. The hay crop is the most abundant for many years.

—A dry goods house in Port Hope has inaugurated the custom of closing shop on Wednesday afternoons during the hot weeks to give their employes a half holiday. Not half a bad idea, when the heated term reduces business almost to nil.

One Thousand Killed.

Terrible Results of the Revolution in Buenos Ayres—Two Days' Bombardment.

(Special to the Examiner.)

BUENOS AYRES, July 31st, 1890.

During the insurrection here the ironclad fleet which joined the revolutionary movement, bombarded the city for two days. Serious damage was done to many buildings, especially those in the vicinity of the Plaza Victoria. One thousand persons were killed and five thousand wounded. The shipping in the port sustained no damage.

Y. M. C. A. Camp, Stony Lake.

Opening of the Annual Camp—Services To Be Held.

The Y. M. C. A. annual camp is now open at Stony Lake.

Last Sabbath services were held at 11 a.m. when R. J. Colville, General Secretary, Peterborough, gave a short address from Matt. 20 28. The attendance from neighbouring camps was good, singing hearty, and all felt it was uplifting and refreshing to have the privilege of worshipping God in the beautiful grove under the canopy of blue sky on the Lord's own day. In the evening at a song service, which was both helpful and enjoyable, the attendance was much larger than in the morning. Mr. T. S. Cole gave a stirring gospel address on "What we are Saved to," which made a marked impression on all. During the service Mrs. Dr. Sinclair and Richard Dancy, of Toronto, sang very appropriately a sacred duet, "Cast thy Bread Upon the Waters." It was a season of much blessing, and as the large crowd dispersed in their canoes to their several camps, singing praises to God, the camp fires on the jacks sending light to all, it was a scene long to be remembered. It is gratifying to see how these Gospel services are so largely attended, and we thank God for what He has done, and will do, for us during our outing up in this health-giving resort.

The camp proper will open on Sabbath next, when Rev. Messrs. Walter Roger, London; B. Canfield Jones, D. Reddick, Port Hope; John Trotter, Claremont; Messrs. G. E. Williams, F. B. Utley, T. S. Cole, and other Christian ministers and laymen will take part in the services. There will be services at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. next Lord's day. During the week Bible readings will be given each day, and camp fires in the evening. All campers are invited to attend these meetings, which will prove both interesting and profitable.

Election Petitions.

Twenty Six Protests Filed to Date, Against Seven In 1886.

Up to yesterday 26 protests had been filed against members returned at the recent Provincial election, and there is still time for more, and talk of more. Last election there were only seven all told. The names of the constituencies, petitioners and respondents are as follows:—

Constituency	Petitioner.	Respondent.
Essex, N.	Donald Coutts	Sol White, C
Renfrew, N.	T. H. Moffatt	Arth. Dunlop, C
Norfolk, S.	B. Birdsall	W. A. Charlton, L
Frontenac	J. C. Sears	Hugh Smith, C
York, W.	A. F. Stevenson	J. T. Gilmour, L
Middlesex W.	John Raymond	G. W. Ross, L
Lincoln	J. M. Neater	James Biscott, C
Wentworth, S.	D. D. Pore	Nich. Awrey, L
Hamilton	M. J. Patterson	T. H. Sidne's, C
Middlesex, E.	John O'Sullivan	Richd. Tooley, C
Perth, N.	Hugh Campbell	Alfred Emmanuel Aberes, L
Grey, N.	Wm. Jas. Hewitt	Jas. Cleland, L
Essex, S.	Ja. her Grasley	Wm. Douglass
Prince Ed ward	W. H. Orser	B. Flourt, C
Durham, E.	T. B. Collins	J. A. Segsuo, L
Welland	Ezra Fillore	Geo. Campbell, C
Kent, W.	Hy. McPhillmor	Wm. McLeary, C
Ontario, S.	John Lauder	James Claney, C
Bruce, N.	C. M. Bowman	John Dryden, L
Kingston	S. W. Jay	John George, C
Elgin E.	J. K. Burdis	J. H. Metcalfe, C
Algoma, W.	D. T. Ferguson	H. T. Godwin, C
Muskoka	John L. Hanes	Jas. Conmee, L
Algoma, E.	Thos. Hawkins	G. F. R. Marter, C
Renfrew, N.	Thos. Hawkins	A. F. Campbell, C
Hastings, E.	Arunoh Dunlop	Thos. Murray, L
	Thos Doyle	W. F. Hudson. C

It will be seen that fifteen of the protests are against he return of Conservatives. Of the other ten, nine are against the returns of Liberals elected, one of which, however—that of Prince Edward is invalid by reason of the non-deposit of the necessary $1,000; and the tenth is the counter petition deposited in the case of North Renfrew by the elect member against the defeated ex-member, a Reformer.

The Wage System.

Rev. Dr. Lyman Abott in the Forum: Here, then, is the wage earners' indictment of the wage system: Every man has a right, because he has a duty, to earn his daily bread by the sweat of his brow. The wage system denies this right to myriads of willing workers. In America, the workingman's Eldorado, nearly 1,000 000 willing workers were thrown out of employment in 1885. 'Inforced idleness', says Carlyle, 'is the Englishmen's hell.' That system cannot be right which turns 1,000,000 of willing workers in rich America into this hell and locks the door against them. Every man has a right to the product of his own industry; under the wage system the greater part of the products of industry go into the hands of a few tool-owners. The wealth of this country has increased during the past quarter-century from fourteen billion, to forty-four billion. A careful statistician estimates that the wages of 5 200 000 unskilled laborers, were in 1884 less than $200 a year, while the average wages of workmen engaged in manufactures, including skilled laborers, were but $346 a year. That system cannot be right which gives the profits of industry to the few and compels the many to live always, praying: "Give us this day our daily bread."

THE SACRED OIL WELL.

Good Fortune That Has Given Birth to a New Doxology.

The Forest Grove Presbyterian congregation is in luck, and all its members promise to become rich through a strike in oil made on a few acres of ground surrounding the rickety old chapel called a church. The site is located about eleven miles from Pittsburgh, and is right in the centre of the new Grove oil fields.

For years Deacon Beacom has been pastor of the congregation, and it took the combined receipts from a few acres of farming land, the district school, and the offerings of the small congregation to keep the good man alive; but by good fortune this is all changed.

Three good oil producers have been struck during the past week, with an average output of about 1,000 barrels a day. This gives the church people a daily income of $125 from royalties, in addition to a cash bonus.

Two new wells are being sunk, which will increase the church income to $7,500 a month. One of the new wells has been dubbed "Old Hundred," because of the following revised version of the familiar hymn which one of the drillers has tacked upon the derrick:

Praise God, from whom all blessings flow,
Praise Him for putting oil below,
Praise Him, ye drillers give hearty thanks,
Praise Him for the overflowing tanks.

Mixed Chronology.

Jimmy—How old are you now, Tommy?

Tommy—I dunno; on the railroad I'm always under twelve, but when dad hired our flat I was fifteen.—Judge.

Too Select.

Guard to passenger on platform, who hesitates about entering the cars—Why don't you walk in? There's room for two inside.

Passenger—True, but yonder in the corner sits my tailor. (Jumps off.)—Humoristicke Blatter.

Dipping the Line.

Mrs. Cobwigger—Do you believe all you read in the papers?

Mrs. Brown-Yes, except when they say the peach crop is a failure and that no fire crackers will be allowed on the Fourth.—Epoch.

The Modern Bathing Suit.

Brother Tom—There you are. Mab, Everything is packed and now for a brilliant opening in the play of seaside engagements."

Mab—"Yes, but that horrid man hasn't sent me my bathing suit."

B. T.—"I guess it's coming now."

M.—"Do you think so?"

B. T.—"Yes, there's a message boy coming up the avenue with an envelope."—Boston Courier.

HOW A MAN KEEPS A DIARY.

The Task Beautifully Illustrated by an Actual Experiment.

Wandering down Fifth avenue yesterday I picked up a dainty little book bound in Russia leather, and as I thought, the unmistakable property of a lady. I was still further confirmed of this fact when I read "Diary, 1890," on the cover. Why! Well, while I suppose men have been known to keep a diary it is certainly not a common occurrence—and what man ever kept up any kind of a journal for six months! I was so sure that the book belonged to a lady that it was with something more than astonishment that I read on the first page, Mr. H. L. B. It is certainly "very rude and coarse," as our esteemed friend Mr. Nye would say, to give the contents of a private journal to the public, but thinking that possibly the quotations may serve to "points moral, if not adorn a tale," I copy the contents, at the same time begging the writer's pardon. If this letter should meet his eye, and he wants his book, he can have it by proving property and, I had almost said, paying for this advertisement.

January 1—Have determined to make the coming year a "banner one." When not engaged at the office shall devote myself to my family. Shall rise early, get to business in good season, and while not being totally abstemious, shall only drink occasionally, smoke moderately and be extremely economical, putting down every night my daily personal expenses, and try and have none that are not absolutely necessary. To put the matter in a nutshell, I shall lead a temperate, regular life. So here's to be the "New Leaf" and the "New Year."

January 2—Well, by Jove! It pays to get up early. No more "rounding" for me. I declare, I feel better than I have for weeks. Jolly little game of euchre Kate and I had, and I don't know when I have passed a pleasanter evening.

Car fare	10
Lunch	50
Boots blacked	10
Papers	07
Total	77 cents.

January 3—Up at seven; office eight-thirty. Did a good day's work and feel splendidly. Hurrah for the new leaf.

Car fare	$0 10
Lunch	1 30
Cigars	1 00
Total	$2 40

January 4—Busy day. Will dropped in—just back from the other side. Wanted me to go out with the boys to-night. I couldn't see it. No more of that for me. He didn't like my refusal. We lunched together and I told him to drop in to-morrow and see me.

Wine	$5 00
Cigars	2 00
Cab	2 00
Total	$10 00

January 5, Sunday—Home all day. Rather slow. Will didn't show up. Wonder what kind of a time they had last night. Glad I didn't go. Must look Will up to-morrow; want to know about those stocks.

Koh-i-nur.

Koh-i-nur is the name of the finest diamond in the world — which flashes in the front of the Queen's crown, and Koh-i-nur is the name of the finest tea in the world the Koh-i-nur brand, found only at the store of Hawley Bros. Teas have different qualities,—some have strength—some flavour and some other qualities. The Koh-i-nur is a blend of different teas, that combine in one sample all the best qualities of several brands. Try the Koh-i-nur, the finest, best and cheapest, and most satisfactory tea made. At Hawley Bros., 370 George street. You will be agreeably surprised and delighted with the trial. 2d23w31

Equal Rights.

The topic of the day and that which we all want is not only Equal Rights in a political sense of the word, but in many others. Here are people throwing away their hard earned money, with unprincipled houses who do not as much as thank them for it. Why should they do it? Why not call on W. J. Morrow, where you are received courteously, your money placed to a good advantage and you are placed on a solid basis in future for buying cheap groceries. dw

Good Form in Dress

Social usage imposes certain rules as to dress which are carefully observed by men of good breeding and good sense.

Dress is not the most important object in life, but due observance of the rules of dress adds much to the comfort and refinement of life, and to a considerable extent, marks the difference between gentlemen and those who are not gentlemen.

Good form of dress is of course a matter of fashion and fashions vary. Should you ever be in doubt as to what is suitable call on us and we will give you safe advice on many controverted points, and on new fashions in attire that usually call for a good deal of consideration and caution. Therefore,—

DON'T go to extremes in your dress. Dress quietly. Overdressed men are always despised as frivolous.

DON'T be slovenly in your dress. Neatness is a duty you owe to society.

DON'T disregard that "good form" in dress which custom has fixed. Conformity to social usage in dress as well as in morals and manners is part of good manners.

DON'T wear a silk hat with a sack coat. It is a social crime.

DON'T above all things order your clothing until you have seen our stock. We show every desirable Fabric, Broadcloths, Cheviots, Dee kins, Tweeds, Fine, Plain and Fancy Worsteds, and as to Patterns—well, we can give you what you want, no matter what it is.

RIVAS TURNED TRAITOR.

AND STORMED THE BARRACKS OF SALVADOR'S CAPITAL.

Fighting Still Going on in Central America —The Situation at Buenos Ayres Improved The Banks Again Doing Business But the Bourse Still Closed.

LA LIBERTAD, Ju 31.—It is reported that General Rivas, who was recently re-called from Honduras by the Salvador Government to raise troops around Cojutepeque and join the main army operating against Guatemala on the frontier, turned traitor after having had a handsome reception in the capital. When he was supposed to be on his way to the frontier he turned back his forces of 2000 Indians towards the capital and stormed the barracks. There fighting has been going on two days, but no details have been received, as communication has been interrupted since. General Rivas started the revolution against the Menendez Government some months ago, but was defeated. He then fled to Honduras.

Fighting Still Going On.

LA LIBERTAD, July 31.—It is reported fighting continues in the capital. It is believed many have been killed, but communication being interrupted no authentic information has been received.

Quiet at Buenos Ayres.

PARIS, July 31.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres says: The banks are open, but the Bourse is still closed. A press censorship has been established. The formation of a cabinet of coquillation is under discussion. The city is tranquil.

LONDON, July 31.—In the House of Commons Sir James Ferguson announced the Government had received a despatch from Buenos Ayres stating that everything was settling down and affairs were resuming their normal aspect. Street traffic in the city had been resumed.

BUENOS AYRES, July 31.—Disorders continue in the agricultural districts. The Great Southern Rosario Railway has been torn up in places. Troops have been despatched to protect the workmen repairing the road. Traffic is suspended. The chambers are in session. The report that it is intended to establish a forced currency is denied. Exchange is falling. The gold premium is 250.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Times' Buenos Ayres despatch says: Financial chaos and anarchy prevail. A bill postponing the payment of bills one month has passed the chamber. It requires the President's signature to become a law. Notaries refuse to protest bills on the ground of the existence of a state of siege. Great pressure is applied to compel Celman to resign.

A BRUTAL FIGHT.

Woodstock Men Chew Each Other's Noses and Fingers.

WOODSTOCK, July 31. A disgraceful fight took place in the west end last night in the vicinity of the waterworks pumping house. The facts as related to The Standard are: Griffin, who drives a coal cart for McIntosh & Griffiths, had instructions to allow no one to ride on the wagon besides the driver, and for some time boys have been in the habit of jumping into the wagon, although warned not to do so. Thomas Sackrider's son was one of these, and yesterday Griffin told him to get off, but he refused. Then he threw the whip over his shoulder and struck the boy.

In the evening the father of the boy met Griffin and challenged him to fight for striking the boy with the whip. The Standard's informant states that a disgraceful fight then took place between the two men, who fought in true John L. style for 25 minutes. It was a square "stand off," until both contestants became so weak that they fell down and then began biting—one having the other's nose between his teeth, while the other was chewing on his antagonist's thumb. Finally a neighbor, named Tripp, was awakened, and he separated the pugilists, but not before they were terribly exhausted. The police were then telephoned for, when the men left. The case will be aired in the Police Court.

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

A Building Boom Change in the T., H. & B.'s Route. A $200 Haul.

HAMILTON, July 31. In the month of July permits were granted for buildings, the estimated cost of which aggregates about $300,000. The Bank of Hamilton's building, of course, tops the list, representing one-third of the entire value. George E. Tuckett & Son's factory comes next, $75,000, alterations to Hon. W. E. Sanford's residence come third, with a cost of about $20,000, and A. Gartshore's place in Robinson-street fourth, $10,000. In all over thirty permits have been granted.

The T., H. & B. people intend to run the line through the canal. The route from Carroll's Point across under the Grand Trunk has been abandoned. The adopted line runs under the cemetery and around through Coote's Paradise, then along the Desjardins Canal and across to Carroll's Point. This line will cost far less money than the other route. The tunnel will answer for the Toronto and Brantford branches, forming a junction at the west of it.

Mrs. Sarah Finn, King-street west, reported to the police yesterday that $200 had been stolen out of her house.

Killed by a Falling Tree

GUELPH, July 31. Word was received in the city at noon that Mrs. William Geddes of Eden Mills had been instantly killed by a falling tree near the village about an hour before. It appears that Mrs. Geddes and children, Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Duffield and others set out in the morning for picking in Mr. Austen's swamp, about a mile from the village. The party here separated, Mrs. Geddes and children taking one path and the others a different direction. They had hardly ridden each other adieu and gone their several ways when Mrs. Geddes' children came running back with the news that their mother had been struck by a tree. The other ladies hurried to the spot and found Mrs. Geddes lying beside the overturned tree quite dead. The tree was not resting on her, but it was evident it had struck her in its fall. Word was at once sent to Guelph, and Dr. Herod and Constable Elliott went out this afternoon to hold an inquest.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL AS A COMMON SCOLD.

A Singular Case Under an Old Statute. Mrs. Pope May Be Sentenced to Be Ducked—A Pitch-in on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—At the Police Court yesterday Earl Pearson, who was arrested a few days ago for perjury in swearing that the girl Miss Minnie Moore, to whom he was about to be married, was of age, was discharged, the prosecution failing to establish the exact age of the child bride.

Arthur Chester was arrested yesterday on the strength of a telegram from Peterboro, charged with malicious injury to property.

In the Police Court yesterday Richard Diddy for assault on Michael Powell was fined $21 and costs.

Harry Fennell, a striking moulder, for assaulting Zeph Blaine was fined $50 and costs.

At Osgoode Hall yesterday William Brophy, who was assaulted by James Frawley, the saloonkeeper, some months ago, caused a writ to be issued against Frawley for $5000 damages for injuries resulting from the assault in question. Frawley is serving a term in the Central Prison.

A living illustration of Shakespeare's shrew was arraigned at the Police Court yesterday. If the stories of the witnesses are to be believed. The woman is Mrs. Annie Pope of 40 Price-street, and her neighbors charge her with being a common scold. The charge is laid under an old act, and reads as follows:

For being a common and turbulent brawler and sower of discord among her quiet and honest neighbors, so that she has become a public nuisance to her neighborhood by her scolding, quarreling, inciting strifes, controversies, quarrels and disputes among Her Majesty's liege people, against the peace of Our Lady the Queen, her Crown and dignity, to the common nuisance of divers of Her Majesty's liege subjects.

About a dozen of the woman's neighbors, including Mrs. Jane E. Hutt, Mrs. E. Tench, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Annie Lawrence, Mrs. George W. Ensminger, Mrs. Catharine Manning, Messrs. Tench, Earnest and Ensminger, testified that from early dawn to dusk she was continually abusing them, making disagreeable remarks anent new dresses or hats which the ladies purchased and making herself a nuisance generally. Among the choice expletives which she was continually discharging like chewed paper from a boy's pop gun, one missile propelling another, were these. "You've a born devil," "a red-headed sinner," "a dirty liar," "I'll smash you with a block," "I'll break your neck," "If you didn't drink so much beer, you would have more money to go to bargain day."

The evidence was very strong and the Magistrate committed the woman for trial. She was released on bail, her husband furnishing the necessary security.

The punishment for the offence is the treatment of the ducking stool so popular in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

No. 3 C.P.R. express from the east, due at the Union Station at 8.50 last evening, was delayed 4½ hours in consequence of a pitch-in on the road at Myrtle Station. An eastbound freight had stopped at the tank to take water, when another freight following pitched into the rear. The engine was badly damaged, and the caboose and a car loaded with dressed beef on the first train were demolished. The train was running at a slow rate of speed and the trainmen had plenty of time to jump. The accident is said to have been due to the carelessness of the engineer of the second train, who did not stop, although the semaphore is alleged to have been against him. The track was blocked and the passengers and baggage on No. 3 had to be transferred to a special sent out from the Junction.

Inspector Johnston has returned from Berlin, where he has been holding an investigation into the affairs of the Waterloo registry office. The investigation will be continued in Toronto to-morrow. The testimony thus far adduced tends to show that there has been $13,000 short in the returns of the office during the years in which the books have been examined, and that the registrar owes the county $4000.

CUT OFF MISS GATELEY'S HAIR.

She Was Taking a Walk When Two Women Came Up Behind With a Pair of Shears.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Mamie Gateley, a pretty 16-year-old girl, sported a beautiful braid of dark chestnut-colored hair when she left her home, No. 206 Sixth-street, Jersey City, Monday evening. She was taking a walk and was accompanied by her younger sister and Mrs. Brackner, a neighbor. Mamie returned home crying, and when asked the cause of her grief showed her mother where her pretty hair had been severed with a pair of sharp shears.

"We were coming home," said Miss Gateley in telling the story, "and had crossed Erie-street, just below our house. Two women were standing on the corner. They were dressed in grey, and my sister noticed that they looked at me sharply. I hardly noticed them at all, but went on towards home. Suddenly I felt somebody grab my braided hair and heard a snipping noise. I nearly fainted when a pair of cold shears touched my neck. It was impossible for me to move or cry out until the wretches ran away. They dropped my little top braid behind them and I found it on the sidewalk. I have no idea who the women were."

The Walking Delegates' Work.

NEW YORK, July 31.—A general strike was ordered to-day on all the public schools now being repaired. There are only three contractors objectionable to the Board of Walking Delegates, but this general movement is ordered to compel the Board of Education to get rid of them. About 1200 men are out and there is serious doubt about the public schools being able to open Sept 9.

The First Case Under the Treaty.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The three cattlemen John McNamara, Henry Allison and James Tynan, who were the ringleaders in the riot on the steamer Chicago and who broke into the hold and stole liquor on the voyage, were to-day held for extradition charged with larceny. This is the first case under the new treaty with Great Britain on which larceny on shipboard is made an extraditable offence.

Fall in Edison Stock.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The fall in the price of Edison general electric stock to-day was due to the dissolution of the syndicate formed to purchase the stock. A syndicate outsider released the stock and some owners of the stock sold out.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

THE RUSSIAN PERSECUTION OF THE JEWS.

Cruelty of the Recent Edicts—The Porte's Demands upon the Armenian Patriarch—Turkey Claims to be Friendly to the Czar.

LONDON, July 31.—Civilized Europe is shocked at the receipt of the full details of the Russian prosecution of Jews. The Russian edicts are of the most cruel character. The first edict says: "No Jew is any longer permitted to own or lease farm lands." All Jewish land-owners, farmers and agricultural laborers are thus expelled from their village homes. Unless they have saved means enough for their sustenance they will be reduced to beggary. To intensify the severity of this edict the Government officials have included hundreds of small towns in the category of country villages, and expelled Jews from them by tens of thousands who will thus be rendered homeless. These laws, known as the May laws, were promulgated in 1882, but never enforced until now.

The second edict provides that all Jews, numbering many thousand families, settled outside the sixteen specified counties shall be expelled. An equally large number of the artisan class will be rendered homeless by the enforcement. The third edict withdraws permission for them to reside outside these sixteen counties. All Jews are precluded by the fourth edict from holding mining shares or connecting themselves in any way with the mining industry, and the fifth still further restricts their participating in the educational advantages. The Jewish scholars in the past were not allowed to exceed 5 per cent. among the students at the universities, and this proportion is now further reduced, the result being their wholesale expulsion from the higher institutions.

The sixth edict imposes upon the Jewish students another disability by closing the legal profession against them, while the seventh edict excludes them from the engineering, naval and medical professions and from all government offices.

The cruel part of these prohibitions is that an enormous proportion of the Jewish population are skilled agriculturists, artisans and professional men, who were all adding largely to the wealth of the empire. All these will now be ruined. It is estimated that nearly a million people will be expelled from their homes under these most tyrannical and reactionary new laws.

Porte and Patriarch.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 31.—The greater number of the Armenians arrested for taking part in the assault upon the Patriarch in the Armenian Cathedral Sunday last have been realeased. Twenty-five of them, however, are held for trial. They will be arraigned before a military council sitting at the Taraklevate. The Sultan's secretary has ordered the Armenian Patriarch to send a circular to the churches advising the people to abstain from demonstrations. The Patriarch in the future will be held responsible for disorders like those in the cathedral and will be considered as accomplices of the rioters. The Patriarch was also ordered to address a letter to the Sultan asking that severe punishment be inflicted upon the rioters held for trial and expressing gratitude for the aid rendered by Turkish soldiers in quelling the disturbances. A council consisting of six Armenian bishops and several Armenian notables will meet at the patriarchate to deliberate upon the character of the reply to be made to the note.

Funeral of the St. Etienne Victims.

PARIS, July 31.—The funeral of 75 of the victims of the fire-damp explosion in the Pallisier pit at St. Etienne took place to-day. The coffins were covered with garlands of flowers. Some of the coffins bore the inscriptions: "To the martyrs of labor," and "To the victims of capitalist exploitation." The whole mining population of the district attended the funeral. M. Ives Guyot, formerly Minister of Public Works, delivered an oration over the coffins, which were arrayed in a line. After the bodies had been interred the local leaders spoke upon the demands of the Socialists. The Chamber of Deputies has voted 300,000 francs for the benefit of the families of those who lost their lives in the pit.

Lost by Three Votes.

LIMERICK, July 31.—At a meeting of the Limerick Corporation to-day, a motion censuring Bishop O'Dwyer in connection with the case of John Dillon was lost by three votes. An immense crowd outside the hall hooted at the members who supported the motion.

A Fatal Explosion.

BERLIN, July 31.—An explosion occurred in the Unser Fritz mine at Gelsenkirchen today. Eight men were killed and several were injured.

Turkey and Russia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 31.—M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador here, has obtained a 2-months' leave of absence. In taking farewell of the Sultan to-day he repeated the protest contained in the note of the Russian Foreign Minister against the berats of investiture granted by Turkey to the Bulgarian bishops. The Sultan denied that this action indicated hostility toward Russia.

Emin Fighting his Way.

ZANZIBAR, July 31.—Emin has had severe fighting at Maisai and Ugogo. He killed many natives by using the Maxim gun. He seized 1200 head of cattle. He defeated the Ugogus with great slaughter.

Ravages of the Cotton Worm.

CAIRO, July 31.—The ravages of the cotton worm are increasing in the Nile districts.

A Hundred Years of Invention.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—One hundred years ago the first mechanical patent was issued by this Government. It was granted to Samuel Hopkins for making pot and pearl ashes. The total number of patents issued during the century was 453,482.

More Gas Near Kingsville.

RUTHVEN, July 31.—Gas was struck by the Citizens' Gas Company at Ruthven last night stronger than Coste Well No. 1. Crowds of people from the surrounding villages are arriving to witness the scene, and great excitement prevails. Real estate has taken a jump and everything is booming.

An Illinois Village Wiped Out.

WALNUT, Ills., July 31.—The business portion of this village was swept by fire early this morning, 56 buildings being destroyed. Sixteen families are homeless. The losses aggregate $126,000.

Red City Flour Output.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 31.—The Northwestern Miller says: The output of the Minneapolis mills the past week was the heaviest in two years. Nineteen mills were running grinding 170,180 barrels.

Excitement in Gotham's Corn Pit.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Sensational reports about damage to the corn crop by dry and hot weather caused an excited opening in the corn pit this morning and the fluctuations were wider and more violent than they have been for years. September, which closed Wednesday at 51¾c, opened at 54¾c and at once sold at 56¼c. The only buying, however, was by shorts. After the demand from them was filled holders attempted to unload and the price of September fell to 52¾c. The rest of the options moved within about the same range. Notwithstanding the sharp movement in prices the volume of business was small.

Sunk in a Collision.

CLEVELAND, July 31.—Early this morning the schooner Charger, with 16,000 bushels of wheat for Buffalo, collided with the steambarge City of Cleveland at the head of Lake Erie. The Charger sank within ten minutes in four fathoms of water. The captain and crew of eight persons escaped and were taken to Toledo by the City of Cleveland.

Severe Storm in New England.

BOSTON, July 31.—From different sections in New England reports come to-night that the intensely hot weather of the past two or three days was followed this afternoon and evening by severe thunder and wind storms

FOUND HIM AT LAST.

How A Man Waited Twenty Years for Revenge and Got Licked.

We were sitting on the verandah of a hotel at Niagara Falls, when I noticed the man on my right looking sharply at the man on my left, says the New York Sun, and presently he got up in an excited way and walked about. After a bit he halted before the other man and asked:

"Isn't your name Grabauf"

"Yes, sir," was the prompt reply.

"Didn't you used to teach school at Elmira?"

"Yes, sir."

"In 1873?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you remember a boy named Godkin?"

"Very distinctly, sir."

"Do you remember that he put a package of firecrackers under his desk and touched them off?"

"As if it happened only yesterday."

"And you licked him for it?"

"I did. I licked him until he could hardly stand, and I've always been glad to."

"You have, eh?" said the other breathing fast and hard. "Do you know that that boy swore a terrible oath?"

"I presume he did, as he was a thorough going villain."

"He swore an oath that he would grow up and hunt for you and get even with you within an inch of your life."

"But I haven't heard from him yet."

"You hear from him now! He stands before you! I am that boy!"

"Well!"

"Prepare to be licked! My time has come at last!"

He made a dive for the old pedagogue, but the latter evaded him, made a half turn and hit him on the jaw, and Godkin went over a chair in a heap. Then the ex-school-master piled on to him and licked him until he cried "Enough," and it did not take him over three minutes to do it. Then he retired to get on another collar and replace some buttons, and I helped Godkin up and observed:

"You didn't wait quite long enough, I guess."

"Say! That's where I made a miscue!" he replied. "I see now that I ought to have held off until he had got to be about one hundred and fifty years old. The old devil is all of seventy now, but he licked me right off the reel, and I'll never have the sand to stand up to him again. Here's thirty years of waiting for vengeance knocked into a cocked hat in three minutes."

Incendiarism at Sarnia.

SARNIA, July 31.—Fires have occurred in Sarnia so frequently of late, many of which are believed to be the work of an incendiary, that the Mayor has issued a proclamation offering a reward of $500 for information that will lead to the apprehension of the guilty parties. The immediate causes for issuing the proclamation were two incendiary fires which broke out on Sunday night. The first originated in a lumber pile in Robert McKenzie's lumber yard at 1 o'clock, and was extinguished by James King and Robert Turner. One of the boards was found to be saturated with coal oil. The incendiary, evidently determined not to be baulked, next ignited a wood pile in the rear of the Presbyterian Church. This time the fire alarm was given, and the firemen put out the flames before any damage was done.

Disabled by a Bird.

ST. CATHARINES, July 31.—Mr. Fred Fitzgerald, says The Journal, when at the 16-mile creek on Monday evening shot and winged a monster hawk of what is known as the whistling owl species. The bird was brought to the city yesterday and Mr. W. Chalew undertook to place him in a coop in the wine cellar of his store. When descending by the elevator the voracious bird grabbed his custodian by the wrist and almost chewed it off, nearly ruining his sword arm.

Montreal a Dumping Ground for Vice.

MONTREAL, July 31.—If the generally current belief that Montreal is the dumping ground for the products of vice of the whole province needed any confirmation it would be proved by the figures given in the mortality statistics for last year just published by the Department of Agriculture. That publication shows that in the 12 months ending Dec. 31 last there were 480 deaths of illegitimate children in this city, against 413 in all the rest of the country, a somewhat alarming state of affairs on its face. In Toronto but 35 were reported.

A Chapter of Accidents.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31.—Saturday last will be a day long to be remembered by many, a list of accidents having occurred. A boy named Tobin was drowned among the sawlogs; Stewart Shea was seriously injured by a saw; Miss Crowthers lost her finger in the woolen mill; John Roney was injured coupling cars; another youth who was working on the steam shovel had a leg broken.

A Stratford "Move On" Case.

STRATFORD, July 31.—Lieut. Hunt of the Salvation Army was arrested the other day for being disorderly and refusing to move on when told to do so by the police. The police spoke to the lieutenant and asked him to desist from making such an unearthly din, as there was a person very ill in the corner block. The noise continued with unabated fury for two days and the aggressor was locked up and subsequently bailed.

Lightning's Doings.

SHELBURNE, July 31.—John Smith, living in the township of Mulmur, had his stable destroyed by lightning this forenoon and one horse killed. There were two other horses in the stable at the time. In taking one of them out it kicked a son of Mr. Smith in the face, injuring him badly. There is no insurance on the burned stable.

The Kent Election.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 31.—The election to the seat for Kent in the House of Commons, made vacant by the resignation of Judge Landry, resulted in the return of Layer by about 200 plurality. There were three candidates, all of whom were Government supporters.

A CANADIAN LOCHINVAR.

This Young Couple Disregard Parental Objections and Elope.

GUELPH, July 31.—The village of Oustic and neighborhood, says The Mercury, was somewhat excited on Sunday over the flitting of a young couple. It appears that Miss Tillie Blanchfield of Eramosa and Mr. Thompson McLellan of Belwood had conceived an affection for each other, the intimacy having grown while the latter was in partnership in the hotel business in Belwood with Miss Tillie's brother. The authorities at home, it seems, did not look favorably on the match, and so plans were laid for a runaway dash. The young lady on Sunday morning took her accustomed place in the choir of the R. C. Church of Oustic and joined in the devotions. During the service, however, she went out, cleared a low stone fence, ran across a field, called to her lover who was waiting for her on a stoop near by, "I'm ready," and the young pair quickly got into the buggy and were off. Her flight was not discovered till service was out and pursuit was made as far as Arthur, but without avail, and the young couple are no doubt safely married by this time.

Jottings From Windsor.

WINDSOR, July 31.—Magistrate Bartlett was kept busy all yesterday hearing charges of timber stealing preferred against a number of Colchester farmers. Daniel Mahew and James Waters were found guilty and will have their trial at the fall assizes. William Ford did not make an appearance and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest. Sidney Cornwall settled his case out of court.

Mr. Hiland, Canadian Pacific agent at Belle River, has disappeared. Railway officials in Windsor do not know how he stood, but it is thought his accounts are all right.

A prominent gentleman connected with the Lake Erie & Detroit Railway denies the report that the road is about to be sold to the Grand Trunk. He says there is too much money behind it this road to necessitate any such proceeding.

CANADIAN HISTORY.

The Hamilton Times, in an article on Canadian history, writes the following:—"The study of history in the schools should be very useful as a training for electoral duties. Many of the problems now confronting Canadians have been worked out in England. The rivalry between Protestant and Catholic was stronger in England in the reign of Jas. II, than it is in Canada to-day. The tariff discussion in England in the forties was much more bitter than it is now in Canada. The extension of indirect taxation—customs, excises, protective duties, and the rest—gradually blotted out the small yeoman farmers in England, and concentrated the lands into large estates, with tenants for workmen, just as similar causes are covering Canadian farms with mortgages, to be followed by foreclosures and sales, tenancies and large holdings, the development of a landlord class, and a consequent diminution of the rewards of labor. "Latifundia Italiam perdidere," wrote the old Roman; "Large estates have ruined Italy"—let Canadians learn to know and avoid the danger.

Canadian children should be taught the history of the settlement and development of their own country, whether any mention of its battles are made or not. Such facts and incidents as are recorded in Cassiff's "Settlement of the Bay of Quinte," Carroll's "Case and his Contemporaries," Ryerson's "Story of My Life," and Davin's "Irishman in Canada," supplemented by the personal recollections of our Van Wagners, Durands, Ketcheseons and other old Canadians, could be condensed into a very useful book for the rising generation. A record of the manner in which the land was bestowed upon the old soldiers, politicians and their relations, the Canada Company and other grabbers would be most useful. The story of the Clergy Reserves and the Seigniorial Tenures could be amplified. A computation of the amount of wealth that has been paid over by Canadians to forestallers for permission to live and work on the land of Canada would be interesting and instructive. The effect of public improvements, such as canals and railways, upon wages and upon the price of land respectively, is a fair subject of historical research. By all means let the children be taught Canadian history, but let us not mistake the story of a few battles for history."

HON. C. F. FRASER has returned home from the fishing grounds of Muskoka and is once more comfortably settled at Union Park, Brockville. His health has improved.

THE Parliament of Great Britain allows only £5,000 a year in grants to local institutions in supporting agricultural or dairy schools—a sum not greater than is granted by the Legislature of Ontario for the support of our Agricultural College.

THE Educational Department will assemble all the teachers in training in Toronto from the 19th of August to the 1st of October at the Training Institute, where they will have the opportunity of receiving instructions in the science of education developed in several series of lectures by skilful educationalists. The programme indicates that these lectures will prove of great benefit.

THE value of the sawn lumber exported from the Ottawa consular district during the fiscal year 1889-90 was $2,687,000 The average rate on duty collected by the United States government upon Canadian lumber is about twenty per cent. Thus one fifth of the total value of our lumber exports, or $537,400, went to pay toll to American customs collectors for entrance to the United States market. If we had reciprocity the $537,400 before mentioned would have been distributed among our lumbermen, merchants, farmers and tradesmen instead of going to swell Mr. Windom's troublesome surplus.

THE BLYTHE MILLIONS.

Florence Wins Her Suit After 1 1-2 Years of Litigation.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31. The celebrated Blythe will contest, which began Jan. 15, 1889, ended to-day in Judge Coffey rendering a voluminous decision in favor of Florence, illegitimate child of Thomas H. Blythe, the deceased millionaire, awarding her the bulk of the estate of a total value of about $4,000,000. The contestants included the plaintiff Florence Blythe, Alice Edith Dickson, alleged widow of Blythe; the Williams heirs of Liverpool, the Blythe Company, the Gipsy Blythes, the Savages of London, the Scotch Irish Savages, James Witt Pearce and William and David Savage. The court's opinion held that according to the laws of the state Florence had established her claim to Blythe's paternity, the latter orally and in writing having acknowledged her as his child. In the case of the alleged widow the court says the contradictions in the case of this claimant are irreconcilable and cannot be reconciled on the basis that decedent and defendant were man and wife.

GREAT WAS THE FALL THEREOF.

Collapse of a Foundry Roof—Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, July 30.—An accident occurred at an early hour this morning at E. & C. Gurney's stove foundry, John and King William-streets, which caused the idleness of two score moulders. All was apparently safe when the men quitted work last night. When they arrived at 7 o'clock this morning it was seen that an enforced holiday lay before a number of them. In one of the oldest of the workrooms of the firm, where twelve moulders are regularly employed, there was a large amount of debris, the result of the displacement of an immense beam, one of the four supporting the roof. Great had been the fall thereof, and lesser supports and auxiliaries, brick and timber, shared in the downfall. The machinery was damaged and there were additional admissions of daylight from each side of the building. For about a dozen yards the main roof had sagged, leaving the superstructure in a precarious position.

The ladies who were injured in the runaway accident at Burlington on Monday evening are all recovering, excepting Mrs. Miller. That lady is dangerously ill, and as yet the doctors cannot say how badly she is hurt. At present she is suffering with internal hemorrhage.

John and Edward Counsell and Peter Crerar were upset in the Bay this morning, but clung to their capsized craft and were rescued.

TWO COWBOYS ROB A TRAIN.

Success Attends a Pair of Dare Devils in Nebraska.

OMAHA, July 30.—A Bee special from Valentine, Neb., says: "As Conductor Nelson of the Fremont, Elkhorn & Mission Valley Railroad entered the day car to collect fare between Long Pine and Arabia last night shortly after dark two young men, wearing cowboys' hats and with handkerchiefs tied over their faces, stepped from the closet, each holding two revolvers levelled at him. They then marched him ahead of them towards the front of the car. One of the men had a small bag swung by a strap from his shoulder, and into this the passengers were compelled to throw their valuables and money. A brakeman who entered the car was ordered to "hold up," but instead of doing so dodged back and a bullet was sent after him. The bullet went through the door of the sleeper and broke a mirror in the smoking room. All the passengers in the day coach were relieved of more or less money, although as none of them were searched and there was no grumbling as to the size of the contributions, the aggregate was pretty nearly not great.

The robbers entered the smoker, the conductor still leading. At first the passengers were disposed to consider the affair a joke and played with the robbers, who thus lost some time. The brakeman who had been driven from the car pulled the bell-rope and the robbers, feeling the train slow up, jumped off, taking a firing shot at the brakeman. It was a bright moonlight night and Conductor Nelson, who had in the meantime secured a Winchester rifle, attempted to shoot them as they clambered up a high bank beside the track. But as he did not know how to load the weapon from the magazine it refused to go off and the robbers escaped. The road has offered a reward for their arrest.

IT WAS 10-CENT WHISKY.

Several Persons Injured by Flying Hoops and Staves.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., July 30.—The explosion of a barrel of whisky at the corner of Grape and Adams-streets startled the neighborhood at 3 p.m. to-day, frightened many people and resulted in the injury of three persons. Windows in the vicinity were broken by the concussion and by flying splinters.

James Fayle keeps a wholesale liquor store on the corner and left a cask partly filled with whisky on the sidewalk in the sun for several hours. The day was very warm, and it is supposed that the heat caused gas to generate in the barrel. Mr. Fayle was standing near the cask and was struck over the left eye by a piece of a stave. Another piece struck his ankle and sprained it and a third fractured his wrist. A nurse and an infant in a baby carriage were piled up in a heap and suffered some slight injuries.

Fayle's family live over the store and one child was cut by broken window glass. The explosion caused great excitement, and for a time it was believed the saloon had been wrecked by dynamite. Pieces of the barrel were picked up half a block away and hardly a sign of the liquor could be seen about where the cask stood.

A SEALER SEIZED.

But This is a Family Matter, the Schobner Hailing from Seattle.

VICTORIA, B.C., July 30.—News has been received of the seizure of the Seattle schooner Georges R. White by the United States customs agent at Ounalaska, which, like the Hettie Dyer, neglected to keep a copy of the bond filed that she would not take firearms into Alaska.

The Victoria schooner Ariel is reported to have been boarded by the cutter Rush and warned to keep out of Behring Sea. A copy of the formal proclamation was given to the captain.

BY REASON OR BY FORCE.

THE STRUGGLE FOR CENTRAL AMERICAN UNITY.

Bloodshed, Turmoil, Intrigue That About Sums Up the History of the Five Republics for Many Years Past—Results of a Suppressed Despatch.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 30. The days have now only lengthened into weeks since the Pan-American Congress closed its deliberations at Washington, yet, although the chief result of its sittings was the adoption of a resolution for the settlement of all disputes by arbitration and the consequent banishment of war with all its horrid ills from the lands this side the Atlantic, the fierce flames of fratricidal strife have been kindled in the group of states comprising the connecting link between the continents, and a revolution with terrible scenes of bloodshed and desolation has broken out in the most civilized and enterprising of the Spanish republics.

NATIVES OF CENTRAL AMERICA WHO PRINCIPALLY COMPOSE THE ARMY.

Mr. Blaine's ambitious schemes, to the consideration of which he invited all the people of the Western Hemisphere except the Canadians, and the sole purpose of which was the commercial aggrandizement of the United States, have fallen to the ground, and the prospects of extended trade relations between the United States and the Spanish American republics are suddenly darkened.

On the last day of February, 1885, the late President of Guatemala, Gen. Justo Rufino Barrios, issued his famous proclamation declaring a union of the five Central American republics, "by reason or by force." President Barrios' proclamation was unanimously approved by the Guatemalan Congress and Barrios at once set about to carry his beloved project into effect.

United States Minister Hall was at that time the almost constant companion and adviser of Barrios. Mr. Hall had told Barrios that President Arthur's administration approved of the Central American union and that he had no doubt that the new administration of President Cleveland would follow out the same accustomed policy. Barrios, upon this assurance, made all his preparations for a campaign. Enlistments were made into the army of Guatemala, arms and ammunition were distributed among the troops, and, what was much more important, a war loan of $1,000,000 was subscribed in less than three days wherewith to pay the troops and carry out the successful achievement of the union.

Toward the middle of March, 1885, General Barrios and his army were ready for action, and the former, to make sure that he was taking no false step, again consulted Minister Hall. Mr. Hall said that he had cabled to Secretary Bayard for instructions, and that the reply had been that "the United States of the North would be pleased to recognize and welcome the union of the Central American States."

Barrios, highly elated, went on to battle, where he lost his life while facing the enemy at Chalchuapa on April 2, 1885.

It was only several months afterward that the truth leaked out that Barrios had never been made aware of the full tenor of Secretary Bayard's despatch until several days after he had been on the battlefield and had gained two or three important victories. He then received a copy of the full text of the despatch, which reads as follows:

A Partially suppressed Despatch.

"The United States of the North would be pleased to recognize and welcome the union of the Central American States, if such union can be peaceably arranged. But the United States can never become party to the recognition of a union acquired by bloodshed in opposition to the desires of the people. You will inform President Barrios of this determination on the part of the United States Government."

Barrios wrote an eloquent and reproachful missive to Hall, saying that it was too late for him to retreat, and died on the field of honor.

GENERAL M. L. BARILLAS, PRESIDENT OF GUATEMALA

Barrios was buried with great pomp and on April 6, 1885, General Manuel Lisandro Barillas, the second Vice-President of the Republic, became President. The entire Barrios Cabinet resigned and a new one was chosen. With this new cabinet the nucleus of the present disturbance in Central America was formed. President Barillas, though a professed follower of Barrios, saw that it was folly to continue the struggle initiated by the latter, especially as the Guatemalan troops were being constantly defeated by the Salvador troops, through having lost heart and courage with the death of their leader.

Barillas therefore withdrew his troops and proceeded to make peace with Salvador on the best terms he could. This treaty was a secret one, in which Guatemala agreed never to interfere again in Salvador's politics. Barrios partisan in the latter country, Dr. Zaldivar, having been summarily deposed.

General Figueron of Salvador, an ally of Zaldivar, attempted to gain supreme rule over that country, but he was opposed by General Francisco Menendez, who after three months' hard fighting, came out victorious, and was popularly chosen as President of Salvador. General Menendez was a valiant soldier and a thoroughly honest man, and was universally liked throughout Salvador in every respect save that he was too set averse to the duties of Guatemala and our President Menendez. This the people of Salvador did not like, and conformed President Menendez, who in turn did all he could to convince his compatriots that his love for their native land would be paramount over all outside influences.

Guatemala, upon Menendez's accession to the Presidency, began a series of intrigues, which are all more or less connected with the present rupture between the two countries.

While this was going on in Salvador the Guatemalan Constitutional Congress convened on Oct. 1, 1887, and so reformed the constitution that Barillas was to retain his presidency for six years instead of four.

A revolution broke out while the Congress was in session under the leadership of General Vicente Castaneda, the vice-president of the republic and secretary of war during the regime of the "Legales." Castaneda was captured near the frontiers of Mexico, together with all his troops, and he was then conducted to the department of San Marcos, where he was tried by court martial, sentenced and shot.

Castaneda was distantly related to President Barillas, and when he was chosen as first vice-president of Guatemala, two years before, he was invited to take the portfolio of minister of war.

In connection with Castaneda's death a story was set afloat that the execution had been hurried to avoid a father's revenge. Upon Castañeda's arrival in Guatemala he, together with his wife and beautiful daughter, Isabella, became an inmate of the presidential mansion. Rumor had it that Barillas was over-attentive to the charming daughter. Young Colonel Celso Ruano, who was the accepted suitor of Isabella, was sent on duty to a distant post on the Mexican frontier, and some six or seven months afterward Isabella Castaneda was married to a young Spaniard and received a dowry of $40,000, together with a finca, or farm, as a token of friendship from President Barillas.

The recent sudden death of President Menendez is attributed by many to Guatemalan emissaries, who desired his overthrow in order to pave the way for the election of Alvarez.

Menendez was a plain, outspoken man and a thorough soldier and did all he could to make his country happy and prosperous. He leaves a wife and daughter, Senorita Teresa Menendez. The latter, while one of the belles of society in Salvador, was at the same time the confidante of her father and counselled him in many of his State affairs. She is a brunet, tall and handsome, with sparkling dark eyes and a profusion of black, wavy locks.

Buenos Ayres Still Disturbed—Celman's Resignation Demanded.

BUENOS AYRES, July 30. 12 p.m.—The city is quiet. Business is reviving.

RIO JANEIRO, July 30, 5 p.m.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres states that the leaders of the revolution have accepted the Government's terms.

PARIS, July 30.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres says all is quiet there, and the banks and the bourse will resume business to-morrow.

LONDON, July 31. The Times' special from Buenos Ayres says: The Union Civica still has the upper hand of the administration in the Government. Some empty, instead of full as heretofore, books are said to be the deception and the report to that effect is circulated in the way that has caused the failure of the popular risings.

The publishers of the Canadian Queen will give a free trip to Europe to the person sending them the largest number of words constructed from letters contained in the name of their well known magazine "The Canadian Queen." Additional prizes, consisting of silver tea sets, gold watches, china dinner sets, portiere curtains, silk dresses, mantel clocks, and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit.

Webster's unabridged dictionary to be used as authority in deciding the contest.

This is a popular plan of introducing a popular publication. Every one sending a list of not less than ten words will receive a present. Enclose thirteen 2c. stamps for illustrated catalogue of presents and three months' trial subscription to the Queen. Address, the Canadian Queen, "B," Toronto, Ont. dw

Sixteen Ugly Sores.

Inflammatory rheumatism, through wrong treatment, left me with stiff joints and ugly running sores on my limbs, and for seven years I could not walk. When I commenced talking Burdock Blood Bitters I had sixteen sores, but they are all healed save one, and I can now walk with crutches. MARY CALDWELL, Upper Gaspereax, N.S. 2w30rd

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,709,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $315,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how much a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,984,376	13.07
Confederation	17,974,223	15.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.23
Federal	10,086,537	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,317	10.36
North American	8,470,220	10.68
Temperance and General	2,984,972	17.94
Citizens	2 097,206	29.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,722,100	30 12
London Life	1,644,226	30 61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 20 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

The Harwood Mills Started

A correspondent writes to the Cobourg World as follows :—The Dickson Lumbering Company's mill started to run on the 25th inst., and is working faster than it ever did before. About 60,000 feet were cut on Saturday afternoon. There is a large raft of logs here now and a lot more coming. Mr. Humber has built an extension to the mill and put in a large circular saw, which works well. The lumber is nicely cut and is of superior quality. Mr. Hazlitt is making great improvements in the mill property. He is repairing and fitting up the houses in splendid style. The boarding house, a fine building, has been very much enlarged. Two large tanks have been erected on the hill to hold water in reserve to supply the boilers and protect against fire, and as soon as possible the railway company will complete the branches into the mill. The yard will have more room for lumber than it had before. Nearly all the old hands are employed again, which helps to account for such a successful start. Mr. Hazlitt is well pleased with the work done so far.

Salvation Army Spellers.

At the Salvation Army barracks last night a unique departure was taken. Salvation Army officers are ingenious at devising schemes to attract public attention and retain the interest of the soldiers, and last night's "spelling bee" was one of the latest soul-saving inventions. The captain selected a passage of Scripture especially prolific of jaw-breaking words. Each soldier was given a word to spell, and was afterwards to take that word as the theme of a short address. The innovation was interesting and amusing to the audience, but at times rather embarrassing to those of the hallelujah lads and lasses who could not boast of dictionary intelligence. As is always the case in spelling matches, the simplest words sometimes proved to be puzzlers; but if a Salvationist made a mistake he did not turn red in the face and sit down with a crestfallen air. He joined the others in the laugh against him, tried again, and again, and generally ended in accepting the assistance of others in accomplishing the task. The idea was new to the Peterborough corps but it appeared to "take" well.

Malicious Injury.

Chief Rossel went to Toronto last night and returned to-day, having in custody a young man named Arthur Cheshire, who was arrested in the city yesterday. He is charged by Mr. W. H. Robertson, of the Times, with doing malicious injury to property. Cheshire worked at the Times office, and it appears got into a dispute with his employer. As an act of vengeance Cheshire, it is claimed, cut and slashed a large composition roller, and rendered the press with which it was connected useless for the time being. The trial will take place at the police court to-morrow.

It Bothers Them.

There is much quaking and shaking among the old topers and regular bar customers in consequence of the announcement that the hotel-keepers intend to charge 10c. a glass for whiskey. They are the men that put a five-cent piece down on the counter and fill their glass to the brim with the fiery liquid. To supply them with a pure quality of liquor at half-a-dime rate would mean a dead loss to the hotelkeepers—and the prospect of having to pay 10c. is none too obearing. Some of the best houses in town are already charging a dime for whisky, but those which get the poorer class of trade will have some difficulty in persuading their patrons that it is necessary they should raise the price to ten cents also. The hotelmen and saloon keepers appear to be determined to do so, however, and probably in the near future tipplers will have to pay a dime a glass—but they will get the "simon pure" article, which they don't now at five cents.

Stony Lake Notes.

Mr. R. J. Lee, mother, and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Haisley, of Toronto, went out to Stony Lake this morning. A party of young people, comprising Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stock, Mr. and Mrs. John Crease, Mr. F. Barrie, Miss Phœbe Barrie, Miss Cook, Miss Bolton, of Toronto, Miss Brundrette, Messrs. A. Clegg, E. F. Mason and W. Crosby, will camp on Otter Island. A majority of the party went out to-day, and others are to follow to-morrow.

A strange story of destitution and want comes from Stony Lake. Some voyageurs called at a camp located at the mouth of Jack's creek the other day, and found the occupants, three young men from Peterborough, without a morsel to eat—and they had been without food for several days. A couple of loaves of bread were left with them, and in a trice the staff of life disappeared. These disciples of Tanner had been waiting day after day for the wind to change around to the east so that they might sail down the lake in search of provisions, but the wind persisted in blowing from the west. Of course, paddling was out of the question—with them; and had it not been for the strengthening effect of the juices extracted from the canteen, it is almost certain the young men would have perished before succour arrived.

The Prevention of Summer Diarrhœa.

In preventing summer diarrhœa in young infants there are practically two special points to attend to: First, absolute cleanliness in relation to the food, bottles and other vessels used in preparing the food, &c., with the free employment of heat, in the form of hot water and steam, for sterilization; and, second, to avoid over-feeding. The greatest danger is from hand or bottle feeding, and, as pointed out in this journal last month, milk rapidly deteriorates in hot weather and becomes actually poisonous to the delicate stomach of the baby. When it cannot be fed while yet quite fresh, direct from the cow, after proper dilution—as the mother's milk is taken direct from the breast, it should be boiled and kept at nearly the boiling temperature for half an hour, or steamed, as in an ordinary cooking steamer, for a like period of time. Any so sterilized and not immediately fed, may be kept in a cool place in one or more bottles, stopped with pledgets of cotton. Six or eight small bottles, for the day's feeding, may be thus prepared every morning. We repeat, use boiling water or steam, or both, freely and often on all the vessels; look well to the inside of the bottles and nipples, turning these often, and avoid rubber tubes.

Over-feeding is a constant cause of diarrhœa. One of the most distinguished physicians of the last generation, Dr. James Jackson, of Boston, wrote, in his published Letters to a Young Physician, that a certain intestinal ailment of infants had often puzzled him in the first years of his practice. It was characterized by the occurrence of green and unhealthy frequent stools, showing imperfect digestion. After observing a considerable number of infants that had such evacuations, and learning the mode and frequency of their feeding, the truth gradually dawned upon him that the unhealthy stools resulted from over-feeding. By diminishing the amount of food given at each feeding, and lengthening the intervals between the feedings, these infants were soon cured when medicines had failed to give relief.

In a late number of the Dietetic Gazette, Dr. J. Lewis Smith, of New York, said :—In December last, I attended an infant of four months that had been very fretful and with insufficient sleep for weeks. The wet-nurse who had charge of it has apparently the proper requisites, such as health, youth robustness, and a well-developed breasts, which seemed to furnish sufficient milk, and of good quality. But the infant, though fairly nourished, had so little sleep and was so fretful, crying so much during the night, as well as day, that the whole household were deprived of their needed rest. The nature of the baby's ailment was soon detected, for its stools presented the appearance indicative of indigestion and intestinal catarrh. They contained numerous whitish masses of casein, mixed with mucus and thin fecal matter. Pepsin preparations, with bismuth, were at first employed, without any marked result, but improvement began at once when the infant, instead of being frequently applied to the breast, as had been its practice, was allowed to take it over every third hour, and was fed nothing in the intervals. It had been simply overfed.

Some infants, Dr. Smith continued, if over fed, regurgitate the surplus food, but others do not, and the part which is not digested undergoes fermentation, and acts as an irritant to the stomach and intestines. Acids, as the butyric and lactic, and gases, which distend the stomach and intestines and cause colicky pains, form from the fermentation. An infant thus suffering from over-taxed digestion, and from the presence of irritating acids and gases in the stomach and intestines, is usually fretful, and its sleep is disturbed and broken. The cause of its restlessness is often misunderstood by the mother, who thinks that it may be due to insufficient nutriment, and, accordingly, it is applied more frequently to the breast, or, if bottle-fed, it is given the bottle more frequently.

Personal.

Mr. Irvine Frederick, of Campbellford, and Mr. Jos. Armstrong, town, went to Toronto this morning. Mr. Frederick is taking a holiday trip to Toronto, Rochester and other cities.

Mr. W. F. Cooper, accountant in the Port Hope branch of the Bank of Toronto, has been removed to the London branch, under W. R. Wadsworth, formerly manager of the Port Hope branch.

The Millbrook Reporter says: A well-known former resident of Cavan, Mr. Wm. Fair, is going to return to this township, having bought Mr. David Donelly's fine farm. The transaction will take place about November.

An excursion party from Port Hope, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Williamson, Miss Soper, Mr. J. G. Williams and Miss Barr, New York; Mrs. Barnes, Philadelphia; Mrs. John Helm, Mrs. J. H. Helm and Mr. H. M. Rose, left on Tuesday for Parry Sound and the French river, and will be absent for a fortnight.

Mr. J. H. Ketchum, the popular public school music teacher, of Peterborough left this morning for Toronto to attend a summer school of music in the Normal school building. A series of lectures covering a week will be delivered by Prof. Holt, of Boston, the time being entirely devoted to the study of methods of teaching as applied to music in public schools.

GARUTIA IS A LEPER.

RICH, YOUNG AND CULTIVATED, BUT ISOLATED FROM HIS FELLOW MEN.

Brought to New York from Yucatan to Complete His Education, He Finds That He Is a Victim of a Dreadful Disease.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Manuel Garutia, rich, cultured and young, is under sentence of death by a disease from which no victim has ever recovered. The sentence and the manner of its execution are as diabolical as any invented during the darkest days of the Inquisition. Its principle is that of torture. It is an insidious, lingering death, advancing by almost imperceptible stages, but always advancing: a gradual dissolution of the body which the unclouded mind observes with despair, from which the soul recoils with loathing. There is no momentary reprieve during which the one under sentence may meet his family and friends, to hear their voices and take them by the hand, for their love has been extinguished by fear and the victim is doomed to exile, where he and his associates linger on, a community lost to hope.

There is a word that has not been breathed in the ear of young Manuel Garutia. The merciful physicians have spared him that. That word is "leprosy."

Has Garutia whispered that word to himself? No one knows, but yesterday when Dr. Dillingham visited him and proffered his hand cordially in greeting the unfortunate youth did not respond at once, but looked enquiringly in the physician's face. The sympathetic hand was not withdrawn, and as the young man seized it a smile lighted his calm face and tears dimmed his eyes.

The disease, as manifested in Garutia, consists in lesions of the skin and flesh on different parts of the body and limbs. These spots are scarcely distinguishable to the eye, but they are dead to pain. A sharp instrument may be thrust into certain places in Garutia's breast and he will not be sensible of the fact unless he sees the act. A joint of one finger is missing and the end of another, including the nail, is gone, though in both cases firm flesh has grown over the wounds. Both of Garutia's hands are slightly shrunken and the tendons of the fingers have already begun to contract, giving the hands that claw-like appearance so common to lepers.

Dr. Dillingham and Dr. Edson declare that there is no ground whatever for the report that another boarder at the same house was similarly afflicted.

Manuel Garutia's case is peculiarly pathetic because of his youth, his intelligence and the combination of circumstances which seemed to promise him a long and happy life. To the medical mind his case is only of ordinary interest, for the reason that for a great many years New York has not been without one or more cases of leprosy. The hospitals have contained as many as six or eight at a time. There are now two or three, one a Chinaman, in the Charity Hospital, and it is not denied that one or two private institutions are dealing with the disease. Dr. Bryant of the Health Board remembers the case of a leper in Bellevue Hospital. This man left the hospital after a while and has been seen upon the streets. Contagion from leprosy is not nearly so much dreaded by physicians as by the public at large. Dr. Dillingham does not hesitate to shake hands with Manuel Garutia, though leprosy has robbed him of a finger joint. To contract leprosy of the anæsthetic variety frequent and close contact with the person or clothing of the leper is essential. The disease is dangerous really only to the person who has it, and to him it means certain death.

Manuel Garutia is a Spanish-American, 20 years old. His family is one of the wealthiest of many old and wealthy families, whose homes for generations have been in that torrid Mexican peninsula called Yucatan. Manuel lived in a country where outcasts from all the countries of the earth are in the habit of traveling in the hope of meeting a change of fortune, but the gulf which separates the rich from the poor in Yucatan is even greater than in most other places, and the son of the rich Garutia was safe from all possible contact with the low grade of humanity which produces the majority of strange and terrible diseases.

When Manuel Garutia was about eight years old he slightly wounded the end of one of his fingers. The flesh was torn and the nail broken. The boy had always enjoyed good health, but this trifling injury gave him a great deal of trouble. The wound was a long time healing. It never bled, but the raw flesh remained without a covering of clean skin for several weeks, and when at last the finger was apparently sound, there was no nail, and the end of the bone pressed against the skin. Neither Manuel nor his parents were alarmed, and the young man desiring to learn the English language, it was arranged that he should enter a military school at Chester, Pa., of which a favorable report had been brought back by a neighbor's son who had been a pupil there. Before he had been many weeks at Chester Manuel discovered a spot on his breast which seemed dead to feeling when he rubbed himself with a towel after bathing. Then he discovered similar spots on other parts of his body. There was only a slight discoloration of the skin, so the matter was half forgotten until an incident occurred which caused him to remember the slow healing of his sore finger in Yucatan.

While playing ball one day Manuel received the unyielding sphere on the tip of an outstretched finger. The joint was misplaced, but neither the accident nor the surgeon's setting of the bone caused Manuel much pain. The finger became numb, and the skin and flesh at its end shrunk until one day the injured joint dropped off, painlessly and without the loss of a drop of blood. It seemed as though in getting rid of this joint the finger gained new life, for in a few weeks new skin had covered the wound. In telling the physicians of his symptoms Manuel does not confess to having been worried over the incident just described. He was young, rich and full of the joy of living. His parents came to New York and wrote to him to join them here. Shortly after his arrival here he consulted Dr. Theodore Wiggin of No. 66 West Forty-sixth-street. He asked to be treated for the numbness in his hands and in other parts of his body. Dr. Wiggin told him to call again, and immediately notified the Health Board of his suspicions. It was on July 20 that Manuel was examined in Dr. Wiggin's office by Dr. Dillingham and Dr. Edson of the Board of Health. They decided that the case was one of genuine leprosy.

Good Form in Dress

Social usage imposes certain rules as to dress which are carefully observed by men of good breeding and good sense.

Dress is not the most important object in life, but due observance of the rules of dress adds much to the comfort and refinement of life, and to a considerable extent, marks the difference between gentlemen and those who are not gentlemen.

Good form of dress is of course a matter of fashion and fashions vary. Should you ever be in doubt as to what is suitable call on us and we will give you safe advice on many controverted points, and on new fashions in attire that usually call for a good deal of consideration and caution. Therefore—

DON'T go to extremes in your dress. Dress quietly. Overdressed men are always despised as frivolous.

DON'T be slovenly in your dress. Neatness is a duty you owe to society.

DON'T disregard that "good form" in dress which custom has fixed. Conformity to social usage in dress as well as in more essential matters is part of good manners.

DON'T wear a silk hat with a sack coat. It is a social crime.

DON'T above all things order your clothing until you have seen our stock. We show every desirable Fabric, Broadcloths, Cheviots, Doeskins, Tweeds, Fins, Plain and Fancy Worsteds, and as to Patterns—well, we can give you what you want, no matter what it is.

DEATH AT THE GRADE.

THREE LIVES SACRIFICED IN THE QUEEN CITY.

Ontario's Grain Crop. A Heavy Yield Assured Two Attempts at Suicide, One of Which Results in a Three Months' Sentence. A Park Preacher in Trouble.

TORONTO, Aug. 2.—Three lives were sacrificed at the Brock-avenue crossing of the Canadian Pacific Railway yesterday. Patrick Dowling, the driver of the Sunnyside Home wagon, had been collecting goods obtained by one of the Sisters of St. Joseph in North Parkdale and was returning to the Home on College avenue. When the goods were gathered two boys, Peter McLaughlin aged 15, and Charles McNeilly, aged 13 years, who accompanied the Sister to carry the goods to the wagon, got into it by her instructions to return to the house. Approaching the railway crossing the attention of the occupants of the wagon was apparently diverted by a freight train, as they seemed utterly oblivious of the approach of C.P.R. express train No. 10, Engineer Greenshields, due at 11.47 a.m., which came thundering along, as eye-witnesses say, at a speed of 10 to 12 miles an hour. Although brakes were put on and whistle sounded the driver of the horse was paralyzed with fear, as apparently the wagon seemed to stop directly on the track. The vehicle was smashed to atoms, the driver struck by one of the rods of the locomotive and hurled mangled and bleeding on the pilot, and he was dead when the train was brought to a stop. The boys were thrown to one side of the track, and both were killed almost instantly. The concussion must have been terrific, as fragments of the wagon were scattered fifty feet from the scene of the accident. Dowling came from Ayton, Grey County, and was 68 years old. An inquest was begun and adjourned until Aug. 6.

It is now almost beyond doubt that Ontario will harvest a big grain crop this season. Reports from various sources are so unanimous as to its fine appearance that a heavy yield for 1890 may be accepted as a fact. All that is necessary now is fine weather for harvesting. Mr. A. Blue of the Ontario Bureau of Statistics said yesterday that although complete reports would not be to hand till the middle of the month, intelligence received so far was of a very encouraging character. From all he could learn, he said, fall wheat would be a fair average crop, and other grain would average well with the exception of oats, which would be poor. Some kind of a blight, the exact sort of which had not been ascertained, had struck the oat crop and had inflicted much damage. Hay, however, was very heavy.

Elizabeth Ridges, aged 33, residing at 356 Euclid avenue, had been despondent for some time and yesterday morning took a dose of laudanum. She then told what she had done and as the quantity swallowed was not large, the physician who was summoned had little difficulty in pumping her out. She was taken to the hospital in the ambulance.

Elizabeth Robinson, the woman who tried to drown herself in the Don, was brought before the Police Magistrate yesterday and sentenced to three months' imprisonment in default of $50 fine and costs. Her husband testified that the woman, who had made two previous attempts to expedite her exit from this world, had been drinking.

At the Police Court yesterday "Jumbo" Campbell, the park preacher who attacks the Church of Rome in his speeches, pleaded not guilty to six distinct charges of using insulting and obscene language in Queen's Park Sunday afternoon. The cases were enlarged.

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

Attempted Suicide Struck by a Train—Alleged Breach of Promise.

HAMILTON, Aug. 2.—Thomas Baine, who for many years kept a hotel here, but whose license was recently canceled, it is said attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat and wrists. Blaine's son denies the story, and says the wound is a mere scratch made by a broken bottle.

A 15 year old youth named Daniel Graham sustained serious injuries while walking on the Grand Trunk track at the Ferguson-avenue crossing. He was struck by a train, the result being that his shoulder blade and right arm were fractured. It is thought he will recover.

The inland revenue receipts at this port for July were $41,985, an increase over 1889 of $3615. The customs duties collected were $57,143, a decrease of $12,645.

Senator Sanford has received a letter from the Earl of Aberdeen, who is to be his guest, stating that his four children and eight servants will sail from Scotland on Aug. 8, and that Lady Aberdeen and himself will sail on Aug. 14, by the steamers Oregon and Parisian, respectively.

There is an interesting breach of promise suit entered for trial at the Fall Assizes. The lady is young and pretty, and her name is Miss Annie Howell. She wants $2000 to square her lacerated affections. Charles Edward Rading is the lacerator, and both parties hail from Ancaster.

John Gorman, who hit Constable Harris with a stone the other night, got off with a month's imprisonment.

A ROYAL CITY SENSATION.

MRS. BRYDGES RUNS AWAY WITH "JIGGER" HENRY.

GUELPH, Aug. 2.—Quite a sensation was created here yesterday when it became known that James Henry, a noted local baseball player familiarly known as "Jigger" Henry, and Mrs. Brydges, wife of Joseph Brydges, an honest, hard working man, had eloped in broad daylight. Tickets were bought for Port Huron and the couple are now undoubtedly over the border. The heartless woman who had been infatuated with Henry for some time, took an infant with her but left three small children at home. Henry became acquainted with Mrs. Brydges about two years ago and had boarded with the Brydges until last spring when the husband became suspicious and ordered Henry out of the house, but he has been an almost daily visitor during the day when the husband was at work.

Yesterday morning Henry brought over a big trunk to Brydges' house and remained there till near dinner. After Brydges had gone back to work he returned again and the work of packing the trunk was completed. The woman put in glassware, crockery, bedding, cloth ng, and other smaller household stuff, and this and another smaller box were taken to the Grand Trunk Rail way station on a lorry. Miss Henry is said to have been at the station and seen the woman off and to have stated that her brother was not there. However, he was seen in the car as it passed Bell's factory.

When the husband returned at 6 he found things scattered round and at length got from the little girl, who had been frightened into silence by her mother, the particulars of the day. He found a long letter upbraiding him and telling him he could get a divorce as soon as he had money enough. The note was written in a determined manner, stating that she could no longer make him a good wife or live happily with him. The only regret she expressed at parting was the leaving of her three children behind, and requesting him to be kind to them. She also mentioned in the letter that she had taken bedding, knives, forks, spoons, etc., with her and that they were her own property.

Before leaving she kissed the little girl and said she would come back and get her. She also gave her the wedding ring to give to her father.

Both Henry and Mrs. Brydges have been watched for some days, and it is said also that the family living next door left on account of Mrs. Brydges' carryings on. Both managed to get away, however, and they will not be followed. Henry's people did not know he was gone for certain until they went to his room and found his trunk gone and all his clothes.

It is presumed they are heading for Chicago, as the afternoon G. T. R. express would take them as far as Port Huron, to which place Mrs. Brydges said that her ticket was bought. She answered any enquiries on the platform c lmily and with little perceptible nervousness.

"Jigger" Henry was a character of some note round the city, being quite a baseballist up to a year or so back. He was a worthless, dissolute fellow, but was a good workman. It is understood that he drew over $100 on his contract for plastering Mr. E. Cunningham's house and took it away with him, without paying the three men who were working for him, one of them being his father.

Mrs. Brydges belonged to an Tramosa family, and her parents are now retired, living near Detroit. Mr. Brydges says the woman did not take any money with her, unless she collected the rent of some of his houses, and pocketed the money without his knowledge.

On Thursday she sent her three children to a photograph gallery in order that she might carry away their photos. The three children left were aged respectively 9, 6 and 3 years.

TOO BUSY TO TALK.

Prince George Arrives at Halifax on Board the Thrush.

HALIFAX, Aug. 2.—The warship Thrush was moored at the dock yard shortly after her arrival and Prince George reported his arrival to the commander of the Comus, who is senior in command during the absence of the Admiral and flagship. The Prince then returned to his ship, and on an effort being made by newspaper men to see him he sent word from his cabin expressing regret that he was too busy to be interviewed.

NEWPORT'S NAVAL GUESTS.

The British Squadron Arrives, But Without Prince George of Wales.

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 2.—The booming of guns at an early hour was an evidence that the British fleet was approaching, and later on the New York yacht squadron, bearing very sad news, came to anchor in the harbor, already well filled with sailing craft of all kinds.

The British North American fleet, comprising the flagship Bellerophon and the cruisers Canada and Partridge, from Halifax, dropped anchor at 9:30 in the outer harbor. The fleet is commanded by Vice-Admiral Watson, the Bellerophon's commander is Charles C. Drury, the Canada's Capt. Dowding and the Partridge's Captain Noel.

Sir John Ross, Commanding General of Her Majesty's forces in Canada, and his son are guests of Vice-Admiral Watson on board the Bellerophon, and Capt. Jenkins of the British army, Sir John's aid, is a guest on board the Canada.

Suppressing Tolstoi's Book.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The Postmaster-General has issued an order prohibiting Tolstoi's "Kreutzer Sonata" from being received at any postoffice in the United States for transportation through the mails. Assistant Postmaster John J. Gayler said yesterday that the order to exclude the "Kreutzer Sonata" from the mails had been received early this week. He said he did not know on whose complaint the order had been issued, but that the book had been submitted for examination to Assistant Attorney-General Tyner as to the propriety of allowing it to go through the mails, and he had decided against it.

Fatality at Pembroke.

PEMBROKE, Aug. 2.—About 2 p.m. yesterday Leonard, son of Walter Beatty, was found dead under a pile of boards of the mash and door factory. The boy, who was 7 or 8 years of age, was last seen about 10½ a.m. An uncle of the child's, on going to the pile of timber, noticed part of his clothing, and removing boards, found the child, who had evidently been strangled from pressure of boards on the neck. Apparently in trying to climb the boards they had fallen on him.

The United States Tariff Debate.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—In the Senate four pages of the tariff bill were disposed of today and the Senate at 6 p.m. adjourned till to-morrow at 10 a.m., after a statement by Mr. Blair that the bill would be disposed of at the present rate of progress by Dec. 26.

KEMMLER'S COMING DOOM

PREPARATIONS COMPLETED FOR HIS ELECTROCUTION.

The Westinghouse Company May Again Interfere to Prolong His Worthless Life—He Wishes That It Was Over—Monday Probably the Day.

AUBURN, N.Y., Aug. 2.—The final preparations for the electrocution of William Kemmler are being made. C. F. Barnes, city electrician of Rochester, arrived in town yesterday and immediately went to the prison, where he was closeted with Warden Durston. Mr. Barnes will have charge of the death-dealing apparatus and will probably be the one to push the fatal switch.

The switchboard and other mechanical appliances for controlling the current have arrived from Dannemora Prison, where they were sent for the execution of Chapleau. They have been placed in position in the death chamber, together with the chair in which Kemmler will receive the electric shock. Everything points to a speedy execution of Kemmler's sentence. Although Warden Durston is silent on the subject it is generally believed Kemmler will die next Monday night. The condemned man's appetite is gone and it is only occasionally that he is induced to indulge in some delicacy procured by the prison chaplain.

The invitations to be present at the execution have not yet been sent, but it is understood Warden Durston will send them to-morrow. The same persons who were invited in April will be here next week, and the list includes the following names: District Attorney Quinby and Lawyer Hatch of Buffalo, Drs. Spitzka, Rockwell, McDonald and Brill, Major John J. Jones and Mr. Matthew Byrnes of New York city; Drs. Ward and Nellis and Mr. Henry L. Smith of Albany; Drs. Fall, Daniels and Southwick of Buffalo; Surgeon-General Hungerford of Stamford, Conn.; Attorney-General Hogan of New York, General W. F. Lansing of Middleville, Herkimer county, N.Y.; City Electrician C. F. Barnes of Rochester; Dr. Argue of Corning and Michael Conway of Albany.

There is a rumor afloat that the Westinghouse people will procure an injunction to restrain Warden Durston from using their machine to kill Kemmler, using as an argument the fact that the dynamo was purchased under false prstences, and that the State is not possessed of a clear title.

Kemmler Has Weakened.

AUBURN, N.Y., Aug. 1. The utter abandonment of hope and his realization of his lost condition never came to Kemmler, the murderer, with such terrible force as last night. All night long the vision of his impending fate rose before his sleepless eyes, and as he tossed and tumbled on his narrow cot he cried aloud in despair, "I wish it were over." He moaned time and again and his utter lack of power to control his fears was pitiable to behold. The cause of this sudden despair was the noise of preparation in the adjacent room of execution, with which a doorway connects his cell. In the chamber of execution men were making a test of the death dealing apparatus. This mogning Kemmler had not recovered from the shock and he utterly refused to partake of any breakfast, and no manner of delicacy could tempt his appetite. Kemmler has weakened.

ALBANY, Aug. 4.—Warden Durston of Auburn Prison passed through the city to-night on his way to Newark. He said he was ready for Kemmler's execution, which will occur during the week beginning Aug. 3.

THE PULSE OF TRADE.

No Special Gains Reported to Bradstreet's This Week.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show no special gains within a week though there is some variation in conditions. The wheat crop has not improved any. Indian corn has had bad weather owing to dry weather in Eastern Kansas and Nebraska, where rain is badly needed, but rice promises the largest crop on record, and cotton crop advices are quite favorable. Our own crop advices from Eastern Kansas yesterday are, in brief, as compared with one year ago: Potatoes one-fifth. Indian corn one-fourth, wheat not quite one half. Corn and oats are worth twice last year's prices at primary markets; wheat, flour and tame hay one-quarter more, and potatoes three times as much. Rain would help corn and potatoes and double the bean crop. Weather very warm, poor prospects for rain, prices advancing.

The Monetary Outlook.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Dun, Wimau & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade will say: Heavy exports of gold, $4,000,000, having been engaged for Saturday and the advance of the Bank of England rate from 4 per cent. have altered the monetary outlook for the present. Large realizing sales by foreign holders of securities materially appeared and caused weakness in stocks, notwithstanding the agreement of western trunk lines upon advanced rates for live stock, dressed beef and provisions. The Treasury circular inviting offers to sell silver bullion has been issued and the price has been rapidly advanced to 50-56 pence at London, though of late there have been large exports from this country. As the new supply of silver notes is the chief reliance at present to compensate for the outgoes of gold, the offers and the action of the Treasury upon them will be awaited with interest. On account of the South American disturbances the demand for gold is likely to continue, and the state of foreign trade is not such at present as to promise an early arrest of the movement. Prices of commodities tend steadily upward, with the expectation of abundant money, and have risen half of one per cent. during the week and this movement, if prolonged, will tend to cause shipments of gold instead of products. At almost all the interior money markets, as here, the rates have been moderate thus far and the supply ample, however, and reports of slow collection, though a little more frequent than of late, are comparatively rare. The accounts of trade are almost uniformly satisfactory. For the midsummer season the state of business is better than usual. The iron business appears rather more confident, though no change can be observed in prices. The wool manufacture changes but little; the tone is not satisfactory. The boot and shoe business shows no weakness, both leather and hides being firm and higher in price. Fears of injury to wheat and corn are caused by numerous reports from the central Western States, though estimates of a yield of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat in the Dakotas and Minnesota appear well supported by detailed railway reports. The conflicting local accounts and estimates helped speculation to a sharp advance in corn and wheat, but in both reaction has since appeared and wheat closes 3½c lower than a week ago, corn about 5c higher, and oats unchanged. Heavy western packing causes some weakness in pork products, and the fine crop reports from the south help to lower cotton a shade.

In general the speculative markets show the influence of anticipated currency expansion, but reaction would be natural if outgoes of gold at the rate of $4,000,000 in a week should continue to overbalance expected purchases of silver at the rate of 4,500,000 ounces in a month. For some time to come the monetary outlook will therefore be watched

GEN. RIVAS SHOT.

San Salvador's Traitor Captured and Executed—Hundreds Shot.

LA LIBERTAD, Aug 1.—The news of the defeat of Rivas by Government troops under General Antonio Ezeta is confirmed. Rivas escaped from the capital last night but was pursued and taken prisoner a few miles outside the city this morning. He was publicly shot in the back and his corpse was exposed on the plaza Armas. It is reported many prominent persons are compromised and a strict enquiry is being made regarding the Rivas conspiracy. The siege lasted 40 hours. The Capital suffered considerable damage. Hundreds of men were shot dead on the streets. The Government forces who took part in the overthrow of Rivas can now return to the frontier if necessary.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The Times' Buenos Ayres special says: The situation here is unimproved. National and other banks are taking advantage of the law, postponing payments and will cash only the smallest bills. The financial crisis may force Celman's friends to forcibly compel him to resign.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 1.—The people are greatly discontented with the agreement of the revolutionists with the Government according to which they exchanged their arms.

LOVE THAT LED TO SUICIDE.

A Wife Reveals the Secret that Caused Her Husband to Seek Death.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Theodore Lugislands, who shot himself in the left breast in the presence of his wife and children at his residence, No. 12 Central-avenue, Brooklyn, late on Wednesday night, was still alive yesterday in St. Catharine's Hospital, but is not expected to recover.

His motive in ending his existence was made known to the police yesterday by his wife. Lugislands, until a year ago, resided happily with his wife and four children. A younger sister of Mrs. Lugislands came to live with them, and Lugislands fell in love with her.

Mrs. Lugislands caught her husband kissing and embracing her sister not long ago, and there was a stormy scene. During the latter part of June the young girl gave birth to a child, and in her delirium she accused Lugislands of being its father. Lugislands admitted the accusation. Mrs. Lugislands at once consulted a lawyer and began divorce proceeding against him. This seemed to disheartenLugislands. He made every effort to bring about a reconciliation, but without avail. He told some friends on Wednesday afternoon that he was tired of life and before many days he would be at rest.

A few minutes before he shot himself he sat on the kitchen lounge and watched his wife caring for the children. He suddenly drew the revolver from his pocket and, placing it to his left side, discharged it. When the ambulance surgeon reached his side he muttered feebly a desire to die.

MISS CURTIN USES A WHIP.

Young Men Who Gossip are Called to Account With a Rawhide.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 2.—During the last few days numerous complaints have been made to City Attorney Dailey by young men who have been publicly horsewhipped by an enraged young woman.

The trouble dates back two months ago, when a young man named Frederick Miller and a young woman named Julian Curtin, whose sister is the wife of Miller, appeared before City Attorney Dailey and asked for a warrant for the arrest of William Brennan on a charge preferred by Miss Curtin. The parties interested in the case all reside in the vicinity of Oak and Broadstreets. The City Attorney refused to issue the warrant for Brennan's arrest, but advised the parties to try to come to some agreement.

Brennan learning that a warrant was sought for his arrest suddenly left town. Since Brennan's flight a number of his friends have attempted to settle the case, but to no purpose, as Miss Curtin would accept no settlement except marriage.

Miss Curtin heard that slanderous stories were circulated about her, and on Thursday night last "Beck" Miller, a chum of Brennan, was standing in front of St. John's Church when the girl, accompanied by her brother-in-law, appeared, and without a word of warning the girl drew a raw-hide from under her cloak and slashed Miller across the face. When Miller tried to defend himself the girl's brother-in-law interfered and held Miller while Julia lashed him.

Miller then went to the city attorney for a warrant for the arrest of the girl and her companion, but Mr. Dailey told him he had received what he deserved.

John Gallagher, another young man who had circulated stories about Miss Curtin, was also vigorously whipped last Saturday. The girl asked Gallagher why he had been talking about her. The reply was not exactly satisfactory and she struck out with the whip and raised a heavy welt across his face. When Gallagher attempted to resist she drew a revolver and Gallagher ran away in short order.

Miss Curtin threatens to cowhide any other persons who circulate damaging stories about her.

Wealthy But Wicked.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—Young Masson, heir to all the Masson estates, who has acquired a bad notoriety by his vagaries, is again before the courts. He married an estimable French girl while a minor, was then interdicted for drunkenness, and all this time was mixed up with actresses and their affairs. Some time ago Judge Wurtele delivered judgment against Masson, ordering him to pay to his wife $150 per month as an alimentary allowance. This has not been paid and now a suit is taken against the young man to compel the estate to pay the allowance granted her by the court.

A Farmer's Hard Luck.

DUTTON, Aug. 3.—John P. McLean has been served with an injunction by the Huron & Erie Loan Company, preventing him from reaping his wheat. As the injunction was obtained at London ex parte, and as the motion to make it absolute will not be argued till 10 days after service, the wheat will be absolutely ruined. Mr. McLean recently sold for a sum in excess of that due to the Loan Company. Mr. McLean thinks he is being hardly dealt with, as he still has possession of the farm, but is not allowed to reap the reward of his labors, but must stand by and see his wheat destroyed.

Death From a Teacher's Strap.

PONTIAC, Aug. 2.—Frank Cooke, 11 years old, died yesterday from the effects, so it is alleged, of a brutal flogging by his school teacher, Jennie Webb, two months ago. The teacher is under heavy bonds to appear before Justice Webster. Excitement runs high in the town.

Drowned in the Niagara.

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Aug 2.—Two ladies were drowned Thursday in the river at Youngstown, N.Y. Mrs. Reesor, her sister Mrs. Anderson and Mr. Reesor were bathing and the two ladies got beyond their depth and lost their lives. Mr. Reesor is a schoolteacher near Woodstock. They were visiting Mrs. Reesor's father at Youngstown. The accident was caused by the swell of the Chicora, which passed at that moment. The undertow drew the ladies out into a depth of fifty feet of water and they were drowned before assistance could be rendered. They had been bathing in shallow water.

Drowned Herself in the Surf.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Schurig of New York, a guest at John Hull's hotel in Bridgehampton, L.I., was drowned in the surf at that place on Wednesday. It seems she deliberately walked into the ocean with the intention of ending her life. She was fully dressed.

Disfigured Her for Life.

QUEBEC, Aug. 2.—A disgraceful scene was enacted a day or two ago at Cacouna by an irritated father. A gentleman from Ontario is now passing the summer here in company with his daughter, who, it is said, is a beauty. The young lady got acquainted with a young gentleman whose attentions were not appreciated by the lady's father and he forbade her to meet the young man any more. She, however, shortly after infringed on the parental injunction and the father set upon her, beating her brutally and disfiguring her likely for life.

Knocking Out the Bottoms Will Do.

OTTAWA, Aug. 2.—Responding to complaints of cigar dealers respecting the hardship of having to destroy empty cigar boxes, the Inland Revenue Department has consented that knocking out the bottom shall be considered destruction of the boxes.

A Light Sentence.

OTTAWA, Aug. 2.—John Cooligan, aged 55, was yesterday sentenced to six months' imprisonment for committing an indecent assault upon an 11-year-old orphan girl named Mary Morency, a few days ago.

Senator Pelletier's Kidnappers Committed.

QUEBEC, Aug. 2.—Judge Murray, at St. Anne la Pocatiere, has committed the 34 persons accused of the false imprisonment of Senator Pelletier, to stand their trial at the next term of the Criminal Court. The prisoners were released on bail.

The Daily Examiner.

SATURDAY AUGUST 2, 1890.

On Wednesday the 27th election petition was filed at Osgoode Hall—against the return of Joseph Sharpe, (Liberal) Parry Sound. At the last Provincial election seven petitions in all were received, including one cross petition. They were Dundas (Liberal) and cross petition. East Northumberland (Conservative;) Lunnox (Conservative;) West Kent (Conservative;) West Peterborough (Liberal, withdrawn;) West Durham (Liberal). Of this election's crop of petitions only one constituency so far, that of West Kent, was protested at last election. In the last Dominion election there were 26 petitions in connection with Ontario constituencies, including eight cross petitions against unsuccessful candidates.

The pestilent potato bug has earned a variety of bard titles. He is, in his sphere omnivorous and apparently omnipresent, and also immortal. Reverently speaking he exemplifies the resurrection of the dead. In the fall after feasting on the leaves of the Solanum Tuberosum to the great detriment of the farmer's crop in this tuber, the bug stands on his head, digs his way to his grave, buries himself for the winter, and, in the spring, rises as fresh as a daisy, takes his stand on some prominent clod and patiently waits the appearance of the first potato sprout. The potato bug is popularly supposed to die from the effects of an intemperate use of paris green as a seasoning for his food, but it is not so certain that he does die, at any rate he never disappears from the face of the earth except during the winter season, and then he is only lying low for the summer operations. The potato bug does not seem to be a very fly sort of bug, but he has a very effective way of circulating, which the average newspaper editor would be glad to get the secret of, and a recent experiment shows that he can get up in the world in a way the politician envies: An amateur scientific student at Wakefield, Massachusetts, planted a potato in a little dirt on the top of a factory, 40 feet from the ground, to see if the potato bug would find the plant. He found it, and now the place that knew that potato vine knows it no more. Now the question confronts the scientist—is the potato bug a bird or a fly or only a perennial pest.

Unfair Treatment.

(Norwood Register.)

Last week we referred to the unfair and invidious treatment of this journal, the Norwood public and the pupils most concerned in the result of the examinations, in the matter of giving publicity to those results. We felt warmly and expressed ourselves warmly upon the subject, and we are not surprised that this is not the only occasion on which the Inspector has shown his partiality in some quarters and his hostility in others. It seems that there is general complaint of incompetency, favouritism and discourtesy, against the Inspector. We notice by the EXAMINER that the results of the examinations were furnished to a Peterborough paper for which he has a partiality, or, at least, no hostility. In a matter of such general public interest, the Inspector, whose salary is paid by the people at large, irrespective of newspaper preference, it is demanded that he shall not indulge his personal spleen at the expense of the people whose servant he is by virtue of his position. We have reason to believe that a strong undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the methods of the Inspector prevails throughout his jurisdiction, but we hear less of it publicly, for it is at a personal risk, or at the risk of the standing of the school, that a teacher makes a complaint. With an unscrupulous official a subordinate is forced to submit to a considerable degree of injustice and annoyance. It is time the members of the county council looked into the matter. Though no specific complaint may have been formulated, it seems to be their duty to see that the duties of the Inspector, for the proper and impartial discharge of which the council are ultimately responsible, are so discharged. Our school interests are too momentous to be thrilled with or injuriously affected by perfunctory or partial performance of the duties of an official. A public official, as such, has no right to the exercise of personal feelings, personal prejudice or personal enmity. All that we demand, in the public interest, is that the duties of a position held in the public interest, should be efficiently and impartially discharged. An official should be an official, not a partizan.

The Farmer's Platform.

The farmers of Nebraska seem to be in earnest in taking a hand in politics. The People's Independent State Convention has nominated a full State ticket, and nearly every county in the States is represented. Members of Farmer's Alliance predenomination with a goodly following of the Grange, the balance being Knights of Labor and union labor adherents. The platform declares in part that "our financial system should be reformed by the restoration of silver to its old time place in our currency, and its free and unlimited coinage on equality with gold; that land monopoly should be abolished, and alien ownership should be prohibited; that railroad system as at present managed is a system of spoliation and robbery; that the General Government should own and operate the railroads and telegraphs and furnish transportation at cost. We demand that our State and national system of taxation, including the tariff, shall be so adjusted that capital will bear its just burdens, instead of our farmers, laborers, merchants and mechanics being compelled to pay as at present by far the largest portion of the public expense. We demand the adoption of the Australian ballot system, and that eight hours shall constitute a legal day's work except for agricultural labor."

The New Weapon of Warfare.

A Noiseless, Smokeless Rifle that Doesn't Kick.

An English correspondent says:—Yesterday afternoon, July 17, in the presence of a distinguished company, a public trial was made of the Giffard gun, in which liquified carbonic acid gas is substituted for gunpowder. The display took place at the headquarters of the London Scottish Rifle Volunteers, Buckingham Gate, where the inventor, M. Paul Giffard, whose name is indissolubly connected with the Giffard injector and the pneumatic tubes in use in English and continental postal services, demonstrated the practical character of his latest invention. Col. Tracey, C.B., commanding the Scots Guards, attended on behalf of the War Office. M. Giffard, having explained the nature of his invention, fired the first shot. Excellent practice was subsequently made with the weapon, sighted at 600 yards, by Mr. Majoribanks, a famous Wimbledon marksmen, Col. Saunderson, Col. Tracey and Lord Grimston. The verdict was on all hands of a highly satisfactory character. The discharge of the rifle is noiseless, smokeless, and without recoil.

AN OVATION TO LADY DUNLO.

Sister Flo's Song and Dance Act—The Viscount's Lineage

London, July 31.—The crowd that greeted Lady Dunlo when she stepped from the court after the verdict in her favor yesterday numbered fully 3000 people, who waved their hats and hurrahed as though it were a reception to a royal personage. Lady Dunlo bore herself with great dignity and bowed right and left as she entered a hansom, to do which the aid of half a dozen policemen was necessary in clearing a passage. When in the carriage sister Flo perched herself on her husband's knee, and thus the party proceeded to the Cafe Royal with the attendant mob howling out its congratulations on the sidewalk. Last evening the party attended the performance at the Royal Music Hall, Holborn. Lady Dunlo and Mr. Seymour occupied a box, the former sitting with her back to the audience while her sister Flo appeared on the stage in a song and dance according to the terms of her engagement. Loud cheers rang through the house when Her Ladyship was recognized.

The former music hall singer, Belle Bilton, thus becomes, without further hindrance, Lady Dunlo, the legal wife of Viscount Dunlo, the heir to the Earl of Clancarty, who is Viscount Dunlo of Dunlo and Ballinasloe, Baron Kilconnel, of the peerage of Ireland, a peer of the United Kingdom as Viscount Clancarty, and Baron Trench of Garbally, and Marquis of Heusden in the Netherlands, and No. 204 in the order of precedence of British peers. The Clancartys, whose family name is Trench, are of ancient French extraction, said to have formerly been lords of the seigneurie of La Trenche in Poitou. They are related to Lord Ashtown of the Irish peerage, to which family Archbishop Trench of Dublin belonged.

The ancestor of the family, Frederick de la Trenche, left France in 1575 and removed to Ireland in 1631, where he purchased the lands and castle of Garbally. William Power Keating Trench, born 1741, member of Parliament for County Galway from 1768 to 1797, was elevated to the peerage of Ireland in 1797 by the title of Baron Kilconnel. He was created Viscount Dunlo in 1801 and advanced to the Earldom of Clancarty, County Cork, in 1803, in consequence of his descent from Elena MacCarty, wife of John Power, daughter of Cormac Oge MacCarty, Viscount Muskerry, and sister of Donough MacCarty, Earl of Clancarty in the time of Charles II. The second Earl of Clancarty, Richard, was created a peer of the United Kingdom as Baron Trench in 1815 and raised to an English viscounty as Viscount Clancarty in 1820. In 1813 he was Ambassador to The Hague and was created by the King of the Netherlands in 1818 Marquess of Heusden.

The present Earl of Clancarty was born in 1834. His son, Viscount Dunlo, the present plaintuff, was born Dec. 29, 1868, and will, if he lives long enough, become Earl of Clancarty, and Lady Dunlo, the heroine of the divorce suit just ended, formerly Belle Bilton, the eldest of the sisters Bilton, of London music hall fame, the mother of two children by an American named Weston, who was implicated in the great frauds on the London and Westminster Bank some years ago, at one time "protected" by Isidor Wertheimer, the son of a London bric-a-brac dealer and formerly in the clothing trade in New York, will be the Countess of Clancarty.

The Three Bachelors.

Three bachelors slept in their shuttered room
In their shuttered room when the sun shone high
Not one of them felt he must rise till noon
Or take his breakfast till by and by.
For single men may happily sleep—
A pillow is good and breakfast will keep
Till ten o'clock in the morning.

Three fair maids smiled on these bachelors three
On these bachelors three when they came to town:
They waltzed, they sang, they made high tea
And had their accomplishments quickly known.
For it matters not if bachelors sleep,
The maids are awake quite soon in the week,
And sometimes rise in the morning.

Three married men jumped when the sun arose,
And left their pillows in swift dismay,
They felt for their boots, they grabbed their clothes,
And thoroughly realized it was day.
For women will never let men sleep
When there's breakfast to get and a wash for the week,
Though it's five o'clock in the morning.

Libbie A. Sams Turner, in Judge.

MY TYPEWRITER.

For the last few days I have been a much injured and much enduring man. Some persons when crushed beneath a mass of circumstantial evidence, readily accepted by the tribunal which in more senses than one is sitting upon them, take a pride in knowing they are innocent, and, virtute sua involuti, await the future acquittal or free pardon, of which they feel certain, with tranquil minds, actually in some cases finding enjoyment in the sensation of martyrdom. I am not one of them, for I have not felt at any time sure of my acquittal, and even now, when it should be practically secured, it is possible that I shall not leave the dock altogether without a stain on my character. Beside which, even innocence may be a matter of regret to one who has suffered for a crime, or, let us say, an act of indiscretion, without having enjoyed the pleasure of committing it.

It happened in this way. Some few months ago I had occasion to require in my business the services of a typewriter, and I made my want known. As a consequence I was visited by no fewer than forty-seven candidates in person, without counting the hundred-odd who applied by letter. Of the forty-seven thirty-six were of the weaker sex, and as these demanded a slightly lower wage than their male competitors I decided for that reason, and that only—to employ one of them. Now, the thirty-six had all brought samples of their work, and, as all possessed the needful qualifications and one typewritten letter is precisely like another, I did what every other man would have done under the circumstances and chose the best-looking one. She was a very handsome girl and a charming one, too. I say it in spite of the trouble she brought me.

For a time she was a complete success. Apart from the fact that I had to dictate to her continually it was obviously undesirable that she should sit with my male clerks. Some of them, I know, are frivolous, and, as a married man, I had a sense of responsibility; so I allotted her a corner in my own room and she set up her machine there.

It was pleasant to have some one to talk to when one was not busy, and Miss King being of a lively disposition interested me much with accounts of her experiences as a beautiful and meritorious young woman fighting the battle of life in London. Some of her adventures were almost romantic enough to have interested the readers of the Family Herald to which, indeed, I believe she had contributed. Others might have amused students of a more frivolous class of literature, but, except to account for the interest I still feel in her, they have nothing to do with the present narrative. I am not in the habit of taking the office home with me and worrying my wife with "shop," so naturally I never mentioned my typewriter in the domestic circle. That simple omission has been thrown in my teeth many hundreds of times during the last two days. I begin to fear it always will be.

My typewriter, as I have said, worked admirably till within a fortnight ago, when she became restless, melancholy and abstracted in manner. For a time I took no notice of it, but last Saturday, business being dull, I called her to me as I sat at my table, and placing her near a window looking over old Broad street far below, where I could get the light on her face and observe her expression, began to interrogate her in a kindly way, as an employer should interrogate his clerks if he thinks they are in need of his help or advice. While I was doing so the one o'clock post came in. I did not look at my letters for a moment, as I was saying to my typewriter:

Gertrude—(I make a rule of calling my younger clerks by their Christian names, and as a rule in my office is a rule I was resolved from the first to make no exception in her favor)—Gertrude," I said, "there is something on your mind; you are anxious and distressed."

"It is nothing," she answered.

"Nothing be hanged!" I said in my friendly way. "Nothing does not make a girl pale, and absent, and silent for ten days at a time. I simply do not believe you."

"I can not help it."

"My dear Gertrude," I said (I am not sure that I ever called young Bob Smithers, my junior clerk, "my dear Robert," but circumstances alter cases), "I want you to try and let me help it, or help you, in any way I can."

"You are very kind," she said.

"Then tell me what is the matter."

"You have not opened your letters; there is one marked 'Immediate.'"

I knew she was only trying to put me off, as my clerks as a rule do not dictate to me in such matters. However, as I could see the girl had tears in her eyes, I took up the envelope she spoke of and opened it, to give her time to recover from her evident emotion. At a glance I saw, to my surprise, that the letter was a note from my wife, whom I had left at home in the Cromwell road at 9:30 that morning. It ran as follows:

"DEAR CHARLES.—I want to take you to the shop in the city where I saw the seal skin I was telling you about. I have decided I must have it at once, as Mrs. Carruthers has just got a new one. I know the shop closes at two on Saturday, but if you can leave your office with me when I call for you, a little before 1:30, we can do it. Your affectionate wife,

"ELIZA JOHNSON."

"P. S.—Have your check book in your pocket."

Now why, in the name of fortune, Mrs. Charles Johnston, who, as her letter shows, is a woman of decided purpose when it suits her, could not have made up her mind to have the sealskin before I left home that morning, and why she should have grudged sixpence for a telegram, I do not know. I have spoken to her about it, and all she says is that in future she shall visit me without any warning at all.

I read her note, and at once grasped the fact that my wife might come in at any moment. The presence of a stranger, even of my wife, who is really in her way a very kind woman, would of course have been unwelcome to my typewriter in her distress, so I said, without looking up

"I will not press you further to-day, Gertrude. Let us resume our conversation on Monday. I am expecting some one here on important private business, so you may go at once."

She made no answer, and I could hear her breath coming in short, quick pants. I turned to look at her. She was standing with parted lips and widely-staring eyes, her tear-stained face tightly pressed against the window pane. I took her by the hand: then she turned, uttering a cry:

"Charlie, Charlie, my darling!"

At the moment she did so—in fact, before the words left her lips—I was conscious of the door opening, and that my wife was there and must have heard her with as much surprise as myself, and even more horror. But before another word could be said there was a rush across the room, an ink-pot, a pen or two, a sheaf of letters and a typewriter (the machine) were lying overturned upon the floor, and a typewriter (the operator) had dashed into a small closet where she kept her hat and cloak, seized them, and, almost upsetting my wife in her flight, vanished down-stairs, her little heels clattering in a wild tattoo on the stone-flagged stairs. Then a scene took place which was only the prelude to the ordeal I have spoken of. It was useless for me to argue and aver that I was innocent myself, and as unaware of any passion for me indulged in by my typewriter (a mere clerk as I repeatedly said) as I was of any insanity in her family or in her individual constitution. Now I suppose the worst of my misery has been practically put an end to by the following letter—not typewritten—which I have just received at the office and am taking home to show my wife:

DEAR MR. JOHNSON: I hope you did not think me quite crazy when I left you so abruptly Saturday, especially after your very kind conversation with me. The reason of my anxiety and sadness was that the man I had been engaged to for two years was coming home from Australia, and his ship was much overdue, owing to the gales. He never let me know he had arrived, but went straight to my home and followed me to the city to find your office, where I saw him from the window, which was the cause of my hurried exit. I shall not have to typewrite any more, and I dare say you have discharged me, but you have been so very kind to me, that I must come, with him, that we may both thank you personally, and also remove the remains of the typewriter I think I shattered in my flight. When I do come I shall be Mrs. Charles Webster. Thanking you again and again for your great kindness and sympathy, yours truly,

GERTRUDE KING."

Well, there is her letter, it speaks for itself, and I must show it to my wife and convince her of my innocence. But I do wish it said a little less about my kindness; in this censorious world natural humanity is liable to misconstruction.—St. James Budget.

175 Families Homeless

PITTSBURG, July 31.—This afternoon fire broke out in a Hungarian settlement in the east end of Braddock, an iron town nine miles up the Monongahela River, and in a short time 38 houses were consumed. Among these were some dozen brick residences owned by Americans, but the remaining were frame houses of two stories occupied by Hungarian laborers. These 38 houses contained 175 families, embracing 656 people. The loss will amount to $100,000, chiefly on buildings.

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,709,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $616,304, could not fail to evoke comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how much a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$45,954,378	13.07
Confederation	17,674,285	7.31
Ontario Mutual	13,971,400	14.29
Federal	10,068,287	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,917	10.38
North American	8,470,220	10.66
Temperance and General	2,954,972	17.84
Citizens	2,087,926	20.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,723,100	20 12
London Life	1,644,226	20.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 20 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

A Scotch Elder.

The San Francisco Wasp, the Grip of the Pacific coast, in its last issue contains a double page illustration, in colours, entitled "Representative Scots of San Francisco." The central figure of the group is Mr. John Elder, Vice-Royal Chieftain of the Scottish Thistle Club of San Francisco. Mr. Elder is represented clad in full Highland costume, and standing on the top of a bloom of Scotch Thistle, his left hand grasping a scroll and his right hand uplifted in oratorical pose. Grouped around him are the other "representative Scots of the occidental city. Accompanying the Wasp was a programme of the "Eighth Annual Games and Picnic of the Thistle Club," and Mr. Elder was chairman of the reception committee. Mr. Elder's many Scotch friends in Peterborough will be delighted with the evidence of the interest he takes in keeping warm the memories of the "mither lan' and with the high position he takes in the estimation of the Scotchmen of his adopted home.

At the recent midsummer examination for teachers' certificates there, Mr. Graham stood highest on the list of 90 candidates for the highest teachers' certificate granted by that State, gaining 12⅞ of marks above those required for pass, and receiving the thanks of the examiners for the very readable papers which he sent in to them When Mr. Graham knew the result of his examinations, he applied for the principalship of Pasadena High School at a salary of $135 per month, and, as application having been accepted, Mr. Graham, B.A., will soon enter on his duties. From what the EXAMINER knows of Mr. Graham as a teacher, we may be assured that the High School Board of Pasadena, Cal., have been fortunate in securing him for their principal.

Ho! For Belleville.

The F.B.A. and C.M.B.A. of Peterborough will run a joint excursion to Belleville, by special train, on civic holiday, Thursday, August 14th. The committee have secured the splendid agricultural grounds for the day, where a complete programme of athletic sports will be carried out, and a baseball match will be played between the Nimble Nine, of Belleville, and the Peterborough team. A spacious pavilion will also be erected and provided with music for dancing. Excursionists may also enjoy the pleasure of a sail on the Bay of Quinte; boats leave the city every hour for Massassaga Park. Train leaves Peterborough at 7 a.m. sharp, calling at Hastings 8.15 a.m., Campbellford 8.45 a.m. Returning, train will leave Belleville at 7 p.m. Fare from Peterborough for round trip $1 00; children under 12 half price. Tickets from Hastings, 80c.; Campbellford, 75c. Tickets may be procured from any member of the committee in town; P. Brennan, Hastings, and M. Galvin Campbellford. dtf Range and Rifle.

The weekly contest in the Rifle League series took place at the ranges Friday. The scoring was poorer than usual. A sort of mirage was formed around the target as a result of the intense heat, which rendered it indistinct to the marksmen. The scores were:—

	200	300	600	Tl
Capt. R. M. Dennistoun	26	31	24	81
Capt. W. H. Hill	26	24	25	75
Pte. J. B. Peutland	27	22	20	73

Pte. C. Curtis	27	24	10	61
Pte. Geo. Fitzgerald	30	20	8	58
Pte. J. Campbell	26	15	14	55
				689

This was the sixth match of the series, and but one more remains to be shot. The last contest will take place next Friday. The regular monthly match of the local association will also be held in connection therewith. It is probable the annual regimental matches of the 57th Batt. will be held civic holiday.

St. John's International Fair.

We dont mind giving the St. John's, New Brunswick, Exhibition—"Canada's International Fair" a free advertisement because it is a live undertaking and promises to be a credit to the go and energy of one of the briskest cities in the Dominion. The exhibition is open to the world, and will be held on Sept. 24th to Oct. 4th. Twelve thousand dollars will be distributed in prizes. St. Johns is a city worth visiting, apart from the attractions of the exhibition. It is the occidental terminus of the C.P.R. It is situated on the St. Johns river, which has the "scenic glories of the Rhine and the beauties of the Hudson combined." The beautiful "city of magnificent proportions, solid business blocks, and immense trade," is a monument to the indomitable pluck of a people. The fair committee are very profuse in advertising. The EXAMINER has to acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of a patriotic song, "My Own Canadian Home." The stirring martial music and the sturdy patriotism of the words doesn't very strongly support the rumours of secession charged by some upon our Maritime brethren. Of course there will be reduced fares to St. Johns' next September. There could hardly be a more pleasant holiday trip than the run down the St. Lawrence, through the rapids and the sea like exparse of its lower course.

Drowned in Stony Lake.

A Strong Swimmer the Victim of Cramps —Rev. Mr. Baughman, of Bowmanville, Drowned.

The camping community of Stony Lake was startled Friday by the report of a drowning accident which occurred near Eel's creek. A young clergyman, married less than a year, became a victim to the water, in spite of his strong swimming abilities.

Rev. J. W. Baughman and wife, of the Christian Church, Bowmanville, went out to Stony Lake last Tuesday to camp with the family of Mr. J. B. Fuller, of Toronto. They located on a small island near Eel's creek, just east of Mr. Grubbe's lodge. There were twelve or fifteen persons in the party, including a number of children belonging to Mr. Fuller's family. Friday morning after breakfast Mr. Baughman started out for a plunge in the lake, and donning his bathing suit walked a few yards along the shore to the water's edge, taking with him little Nettie Fuller, whom he intended teaching the art of swimming. They entered the water and for a few minutes all went merrily. Mr. Baughman gave Nettie some lessons and finally took her on his back and swam along close to the shore. Suddenly the little girl felt herself thrown off Mr. Baughman's shoulder by his own exertion, and with a scream she fell into the water. Another girl standing on the shore watching the sport rushed to the rescue, and as the bathers were only about four feet out in the water she had no difficulty in seizing Nettie and bringing her safely to land. Different however, was the fate of the strong man, who was credited with being an unusually good swimmer. As the two girls watched him, he and he shouted hoarsely, "reach me the pole." A jointed fishing rod lay on the ground close at hand, and the elder girl promptly seized it and held it out to the drowning man. He grasped it, and had the pole been a bamboo or of any solid wood, he would have been saved. But unfortunately the rod parted at the joints, and the next moment, holding a half of the stick in his hand, Mr. Baughman sank and never rose again.

The alarm was at once sounded, and the entire party rushed down to the fatal spot. All were greatly excited and fearful, but Mrs. Baughman, the young wife of the drowned man, became wild with grief and frantically plunged into the water. She too would have been drowned but for the intervention of those about her.

Then the sad task of recovering the corpse was begun, and about nine o'clock the body was raised to the surface at the end of Mr. Baughman's own trolling hooks, which were dragged along the bottom until they caught in his clothing. Upon looking at the body it was at once apparent that of Rev. Mr. Baughman's death. His toes and legs were twisted and doubled up as if he had died in the greatest agony. No doubt he felt the cramps seizing him while little Nettie was on his back, and tossed her off in time to save her life. He drowned in twenty-one feet of water. A ledge runs out from the shore at this point about four feet, on which the water is shallow, but beyond that the rock breaks off and takes a precipitous descent of twenty one feet. Of course the depth of the water had nothing to do with the drowning. Disabled as he was by the fierce cramps which attacked him, he would have drowned in three feet of water just as easily.

The body was prepared for interment by Mr. Chapin, undertaker, of Lakefield, who happ ned to be on the lake and arrived at the camp soon after the accident. Accompanied by the entire party, Mrs Baughman brought the body of her husband to Lakefield on the steamer Mary Ellen, Friday afternoon, and arrived in Peterborough in the evening. They stopped in town last night, and this morning proceeded to Bowmanville, where the burial will take place

The accident has cast a gloom over all the summer residents of Stony Lake, while in town also there are many sorrowing expressions heard. Rev. Mr. Baughman was 28 years of age, and was married but eight months ago to the young woman who is now heart-broken over the terrible fatality. Mr. Baughman was an American, but had charge of the church of the Society of Christians, Bowmanville.

He was a splendid swimmer. Only the night before his death, while out trolling with Mr. Fuller, he stripped and dived to the bottom of the lake and released the hooks which had caught on a stump and could not otherwise be dislodged.

Accidental Shooting.

Another Mishap at Stony Lake Fortunately It Does Not Result Fatally.

A case of accidental shooting occurred at Stony Lake Thursday evening. A party of four Toronto boys are camped on Fish Island, opposite Mt. Julian. They are provided with all the implements of sport, and a small pea-gun which one of them carried was the means of disabling one of their number, Frank Nicholson, of Parkdale. Thursday evening about seven o'clock Nicholson and another young man crossed over to the main land in search of berries and adventure of any possible sort. They were walking along a log lying on the shore, Nicholson in advance, his companion with the rifle trailing arms. The weapon suddenly and inexplicably exploded, and young Nicholson received the 22 calibre bullet. It entered the fleshy part of the thigh from behind, and became deeply imbedded. The wound bled freely but was not painful. Nicholson was paddled over to the store, and at ten o'clock Mr. T. W. Robinson and Arthur Piper began the journey to Lakefield with the wounded man in their canoe. They reached Lakefield in three hours, and took Nicholson to the office of Dr. Fraser, who probed for the bullet but could not locate it. He advised the young man, who was able to walk slowly and look after himself, to start at once for Toronto where he could get surgical attendance at his own home. A horse was hired and Mr. Robinson drove Nicholson to town, reaching here in ample time to catch the early morning train for the city.

The wound is simply one of the flesh, and with proper attendance and care, no serious consequences are anticipated.

The other boys have remained in camp on Fish Island.

It is conjectured that the accident was caused by the trigger of the rifle catching in a twig, the explosion resulting from the jerk.

Police Court.

An Old Warrant Executed—Charged with Malicious Injury to Property.

There were three occupants of the grand stand "forniost" the magistrate's desk this morning.

A Hiawatha Indian named George Cow was charged with driving at an imoderate rate. It was an old offence. On the 25th of March last Cow came to town, filled up with beer or something stronger, and gave vent to his exuberance of spirits by lashing his horses and endangering the public safety. He got out of town before the police could arrest him, but a warrant was made out and Cow was sent for a number of times and advised to come and settle and save further costs. But he remained away, and this morning was assessed $11. Constable Stewart has been spending a week's holidays among friends in the country, and on his way home went round by Hiawatha and brought Cow to town last night. The prisoner pleaded guilty and was fined $2, and $9 costs.

"Labouring Jack" Sullivan was picked up by the police on Hunter street yesterday afternoon helplessly drunk. This morning, despite his time-worn plea for one more chance, he was sent up to gaol for ten days, in lieu of payment of a $2 fine. This is the third time Sullivan has been before the court in about a week. He had some money, with which he "blew himself" as long as it lasted, and will now have a term in gaol to recuperate his shattered nervous system.

SLASHING A ROLLER.

The boy Arthur Cheshire, charged with doing malicious injury to the property of W. H. Robertson, of the Times, was punished this morning. Mr. Hatton, of Hatton & Wood, conducted the Crown business, and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun the defence. The prisoner elected to be tried summarily, and, through his counsel, pleaded guilty. Mr. Dennistoun asked the leniency of the court, as the boy had been in gaol for two days and had expressed contrition and regret. Mr. Robertson, he understood, did not want to prosecute further if the damage done was made good, but did not wish such a deed to pass altogether unchallenged.

Mr. Robertson was heard. He stated that the damage to the roller amounted to $5, and T. Dunnan, pressman, said the press had been thrown out of gear also, the presumption being that Cheshire had tampered with it.

Mr. Denniston said that in pleading guilty the defence had reference to the roller. All connection with the press was denied. The prisoner also stated that he did not touch the press.

The magistrate said he would take the prisoner's word for it, as there was no proof to the contrary. He further said the prisoner's action was a mean one, and he would impose a penalty that should have the effect of making employes treat their employers more fairly and not strike back at them by doing injury to their property.

Cheshire was fined $5, damages were assessed at $5, and costs were saddled on him—in all about $25. The money was paid. The alternative was a month in gaol.

Simpletons.

Which Fair?

On the return trip of the steamer from Niagara last week two ladies had to notice the efforts of two young men to attract the ladies' attention, evidently bent upon a flirtation. These, not at all ill-mannered, attempts, by the not ill-looking young men, were properly ignored by the ladies until the steamer reached the dock at Toronto. Then the apparent gentlemanly persistence for recognition by the good looking and well-dressed young men, and the young ladies' nearness to home, embolden the latter to give a smile and nod, indicative, at least, of the existence of the strangers. This was so slight as seemed hardly to warrant a nearer approach of the parties, and, none was attempted, until just as the ladies were boarding a street car for home, one of the young men politely enough stepped up, and, extending a handkerchief to the lady, said, "You dropped this, miss."

With thanks, supposing, of course, it was her's, she seated herself next to her companion, and the ladies then discovered the linen was the property of one of the young men. Neither of the ladies had lost this. Attached to it was an engraved card—it might be printed, it was so well executed—with the address in Buffalo of the owner or donor.

After much talk over the incident, with commendation of the conduct of the other party, the ladies concluded to say nothing to their respective mammas, but agreed that one of them should write a brief note of thanks, return the handkerchief, and await a response; the note to be signed fictitiously, with the address of one of the ladies whose parents are on the eve of changing their residence to a distant suburban home.

The response came quickly, on the day the family were moving, "written in grate haste" says the writer. So much amused, aye, and, disappointed too, were these young ladies over their first flirtation, "that, as they expressed it, "they had to tell, so it reached me, but not, however, until after a promise that the incident would not be given to any Toronto paper.

Inter alia the Buffalo beau wrote:—

"Youre pretty foot what first catched my eye when you leead over the ralin of the boat and Jim he saw the uther girl may be you be the other who wrote to Jim and sent back my hankurchef he said I must answer. Jim is that bashfull that he wodn't go up with me to speak to you after you tuk notice like of us and I just beged him to git in the horse car that you 2 tuk but no go he is bashfull sure. I had 2 pockit hankurchfs and says I to meself like, this is a go, and you got my uther pockit hankurchef and then sends Jim youre letter."

The above is a fair excerpt of the style and strain of four pages the Buffalo gent wrote to the lady by her assumed name to her former address. No answer being vouchsafed the pair may, upon another excursion to Toronto, try to find these ladies, it will be a marvel if they succeed. PIERCE.

CUT HIS THROAT WITH A RAZOR.

Even the Ingenious Medical Student Couldn't Save His Life.

GRAVENHURST, Aug. 2.—A. Q. Bethune, who has been running a sort of shebeen, called the Dew Drop, about two miles from here on the Muskoka road, has lived a drunken life for many years. His supply of liquor failing and being also very sick, he committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor while in bed yesterday morning. He lived for about six hours, although he had completely severed the wind-pipe. The doctor not having a silver tube, nothing could be done for the man to breathe through till an ingenious medical student, who had accompanied the doctor, suggested breaking off the neck of a castor oil bottle, which was used till a proper tube could be procured.

The Time Approved at Rome.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—Rev. Father Paragis, who has been the guest of Recorder De Montigny at Belle Fleurs, Long Point, left yesterday to explore certain districts in the Ottawa region, where he has already labored as a missionary, in order to obtain the best place [illegible] to form a new colony upon a plan approved at Rome. He was accompanied by several young men, and the trip will extend over a couple of months. Large sections are to be set aside for colonization purposes, but the plan is not yet divulged.

Go On Strike To-day.

CHICAGO, July 31.—A paper here says: To-morrow morning will inaugurate the sailors' strike, involving every species of sailing craft on the lakes system. The prospective strike is due to a demand on the part of the Seamen's Union for an increase in wages and that every man on shipboard under the rank of captain shall be a member of the union.

Good Form in Dress

Social usage imposes certain rules as to dress which are carefully observed by men of good breeding and good sense.

Dress is not the most important object in life, but due observance of the rules of dress adds much to the comfort and refinement of life, and to a considerable extent, marks the difference between gentleman and those who are not gentlemen.

Good form of dress is of course a matter of fashion and fashions vary. Should you ever be in doubt as to what is suitable call on us and we will give you safe advice on many controverted points, and on new fashions in attire that usually call for a good deal of consideration and caution. Therefore,

DON'T go to extremes in your dress. Dress quietly. Overdressed men are always despised as frivolous.

DON'T be slovenly in your dress. Neatness is a duty you owe to society

DON'T disregard that "good form" in dress which custom has fixed. Conformity to social usage in dress as well as in more essential matters is part of good manners.

DON'T wear a silk hat with a sack coat. It is a social crime.

DON'T above all things order your clothing until you have seen our stock. We show every desirable Fabric, Broadcloths, Cheviots, Doe kins, Tweeds, Fine, Plain and Fancy Worsteds, and as to Patterns—well, we can give you what you want, no matter what it is.

THE MONARCHS' MEETING.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S RECEPTION AT OSTEND.

The Socialists' Expected Hostile Demonstration Fails to Materialize Belgium to be Taken Into the Triple Alliance as a Silent Partner.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—When the German imperial yacht Hohenzollern entered Ostend harbor to-day immense crowds, including a host of German and English visitors, lined the quay. King Leopold, accompanied by the Count of Flanders, went on board the Hohenzollern and effusive greetings were exchanged between the King and Emperor William and Prince Henry. The two monarchs then retired to the saloon of the yacht, where they conversed for half an hour. Afterwards the Emperor went ashore, and after inspecting the guard of honor from the garrison, received the Belgian Ministers and the staff of the German legation. Later the Kaiser and King Leopold drove to the summer palace, followed by Prince Henry and the Count of Flanders. The whole route was densely lined by spectators and the cheering was incessant.

Warnings have reached the Berlin police that the anarchists of Liege, who are affiliated with the French socialists, meant to make a hostile demonstration, and if possible to attack the person of the Kaiser. This information caused extra precautions to be taken, and a force of German private police assisted the Belgian police. Nothing, however, marred the enthusiasm of the welcome.

At the palace the Belgian Prime Minister, Foreign Minister and Minister of War had talks with the Emperor. Ostend was everywhere en fete. To-night there was a torchlight procession comprising military bands from Ghent, Antwerp, Namur and Brussels and 1,000 soldiers bearing Japanese lanterns and other illuminated devices. Balls were given and there was a universal frolic until early morning. The Emperor's visit to Ostend will terminate Monday.

Official expectation here is that the interview between the monarchs will result in Belgium becoming a sleeping partner in the triple alliance. The political character of the meeting is undoubted. No conference with a ruling monarch that the Emperor has projected has been a mere courtesy. The progress of Gen. Brialmont's plans for a chain of frontier fortresses and the relations of the Congo State and German East Africa will engage the attention of the monarchs. King Leopold, who is debarred from actual adhesion to the triple alliance, is as strongly biased thereto as the Belgian policy permits. He knows that if disaster befal Germany in a war with France Belgium would have small chance of being spared by the French. The personal esteem of the monarchs added to the cordiality of their meeting.

Family meetings will be held at Osborne to determine the question whether Prince Waldemar of Denmark or Prince Oscar of Sweden shall be placed on the Bulgarian throne. Emperor William favors Prince Oscar as the better choice on the ground of his personal qualities. The Czar, hitherto opposed to having his brother-in-law the ruler of Bulgaria, now assents. The Greek royalties strongly object to Waldemar. King George has written to friends in the Danish and English Courts that the election of his brother to the Bulgarian throne would raise a feeling of jealousy among the Greeks and would imperil the Duke of Sparta's succession to the throne of Greece. Diplomatists who are watching this embroglio attribute the Czar's choice of Waldemar to a desire to keep the Balkan states fermenting.

Orders have been sent to the frontier customs ports and to the railways in Poland to watch for the threatened migration of Jews from Russia. The new Russian regulations, though not expressly aimed at expulsion of the Jews, will tend to drive from the country vast bodies of artisans and the poorest farming Jews who are largely settled in the frontier provinces. The leading Jewish firms in Berlin, Hamburg and Frankfort have communicated with representative Jews in London for the purpose of preparing relief for distressed Hebrews. Letters from Rabbis in Russia mention September as the period for enforcing the regulations. The dread of wholesale transportation to Siberia for failure to observe the edicts will impel the flight westward of many thousands of Jews.

The Russian papers announce that transportation to Siberia will shortly be abolished as a judicial punishment. They omit to mention that it will be maintained as now without a judicial sentence.

The latest notable instance of this kind is the case of the celebrated novelist Glyeb Uspenskiy. He was arrested at night, being taken from his bed, and was confined for a month in a secluded prison. His knowledge of his whereabouts was refused his friends for a long time. Finally they were told he had been sent to Sartov pending the pleasure of the police. It is supposed his offence was writing a letter to the Czar in support of the memorandum sent to His Majesty by Madam Izebrikova. Uspenskiy holds a high literary position in Russia, where he is as prominent as is Daudet in France or Howells in America. He was, however, treated as a common criminal.

A medical scientific exhibition in connection with the International Madical Congress opened here to-day. A host of delegates to the congress were present. Dr. Lassar made the inaugural address. He dilated upon the advantages of the exhibition, which made the results of scientific research the common property of humanity. A number of American delegates attended yesterday's centenary of the Berlin Veterinary College. They were introduced to Chancellor von Caprivi and Minister Herrfurth.

SHOT BY HIS MISTRESS.

A British Columbia Murder The End of Illicit Love.

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 3. It was reported here this morning that murder had been committed during the night at Cobble Hill Station on the Island Railway between here and Nanaimo. The victim was a rancher named Joseph Dougan, who was shot through the heart by a woman with whom he had been living for some time. Particulars of the crime were not obtainable other than that the shooting was fatal and the result of a drunken quarrel.

Mrs Routledge, the murderess, has several times before attempted to kill Dougan, for whom she deserted her husband a few years ago, and she has been arrested.

An inquest was held to-day, the jury returning a verdict of manslaughter.

KEMMLER'S LAST WEEK.

THE DATE OF THE EXECUTION NOT YET ASCERTAINED.

No Newspaper Representatives Except the Managers of the United and Associated Press to Be Admitted No Interference Now Will Avail.

AUBURN, Aug. 2.—As the time for the execution of the murderer Kemmler draws near interest in the case is renewed. Kemmler still takes great pride in his personal appearance and dresses himself with care and deliberation. Of necessity his habits are regular, as everything is done at the prison on time. Since his incarceration he has lived on food from the warden's kitchen and is healthy and robust. In fact, he has never been sick enough to require the attention of Dr. Sawyer, the prison physician, although he was indisposed about a week ago, suffering from a cold and stomach trouble. He has fully recovered from the effects of the cold and Keeper McNaughton says he never was in better health than at present.

Warden Durston said yesterday that he had not seen the condemned man in 10 days and Mrs. Durston had evidently relaxed her labors with him, as she says she has not visited him in several days.

It is probable that the execution will be managed very differently next week than it would have been if the murderer had been electrocuted under his previous sentence. Warden Durston says there will be a change in the personnel of the witnesses and he will take every precaution against the admission of any representative of a newspaper, but personal invitations will probably be sent to Walter P. Phillips, manager of the United Press, and William Henry Smith of the Associated Press. These gentlemen will not be permitted to name substitutes, and the scheme arranged by The New York Sun, which would probably have resulted in the admission of two Sun men as representatives of the associations, cannot be worked this time.

Warden Durston says there will not be as much mystery about the affair next week as there was in April, and it is probable that the hour of electrocution will be known by the representatives in advance. It is not probable that the execution will take place before Tuesday and it may not occur until later in the week.

The death dealing apparatus is not yet in place, in fact it has not been taken from the box in which it was brought back from Dansemora Prison, where it was taken to kill Chapman, the Plattsburgh man, whose sentence was commuted. The work of putting the machinery in position is not much, however, and can be done in a fraction of a day. The execution will take place in the room next to Kemmler's cell.

No Interference Now Will Avail.

ROCHESTER, Aug. 2.—C. R. Barnes, who is to assist Warden Durston in preparing the electric apparatus for the execution of Kemmler, says that the Attorney-General has advised Warden Durston that if the Westinghouse Company enjoins him from using their dynamo for the execution he should give bonds and then go on and use the dynamo. The operators who are to witness the execution are to be invited to appear at the prison on Tuesday morning, but Superintendent Barnes will not tell when the execution is to take place.

No Reprieve Yet Asked For.

ALBANY, Aug. 2.—Many rumors are flying about concerning Gov. Hill's interposition in behalf of Kemmler, but the Governor denies that he has had any interview with Warden Durston or that there has been any recent application for pardon. At the same time it is known that Warden Durston is anxious to see the Governor and it is supposed that a reprieve will be asked for at least.

Wants To Live as Long as Possible.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Tribune's Auburn special says: Kemmler passed a quiet Sunday in his cell, eating little and speaking only when spoken to. He has asked to be allowed to live as long as possible and is worrying lest there be any hitch in the working of the electrical apparatus which will cause him torture. There is, however, no danger of that, for the last test showed a tension of 1,200 volts. Kemmler has turned against Warden Durston, Mrs. Durston and Keeper McNaughton, whom he formerly liked so well. The impression has got abroad that the execution will take place early Tuesday morning, but the Warden has given no sign that it is true, and most people believe it will not take place till Thursday.

ENGLAND INTERESTED.

A Demand for Reform Dreadful Execution of a Girl in Madrid.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The subject of the Kemmler execution excites great interest in England, where there is a general demand for the reform of some of the antiquated methods of criminal procedure. At present a prisoner in a capital or any other criminal case is not allowed to testify in his own defence. Mr. Justice Mathew, in opening the Belmain assizes, said that it was a singular thing that they had been dealing with questions of life and death for centuries without acting on the maxim of hearing both sides. The proposed change would benefit innocent prisoners, and he doubted that it would be of advantage to the guilty. The abolition of the death penalty is also being agitated, but without any prospect of such a radical step, although a more humane method than hanging might be adopted, should experience elsewhere recommend it. English executions have, for some years past, been free from horrible incidents, although death has not always been as swift as might be desired.

Madrid, Spain, was the scene the other day of a sensational execution, a servant girl being put to death in public for the murder of her mistress. About 30,000 persons attended the spectacle, the criminal sitting on a wooden bench before a post, against which the neck was pressed and broken by an iron collar. Perhaps as severe as death itself was the preliminary requirement of Spanish law, by which the convict was shut up for 30 hours before death with friars and priests saying masses and prayers. It is no wonder that the woman was half insensible when taken to the scaffold.

Seized to Have a Railway.

FORT BERWELL, Aug. 2.—Vienna, Fort Burwell, Bayham and Houghton people are bound to have a railway. They have taken hold of the situation with a determination which shows that they mean business. Last Thursday a deputation went to Fort Burwell to talk bonus. They were met by all the leading people, headed by the band, and the village was decorated with all the flags that could be found. A meeting was held in the afternoon, when several gentlemen made speeches all greatly in favor of the scheme.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN TALKS AT BIRMINGHAM.

Lord Stanley, Speaking on the Behring Sea Dispute, Says British Subjects Must and Will be Protected the World Over —Cholera's Ravages.

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 3.—Joseph Chamberlain in a speech here last night said the Government had made a tactical mistake in introducing the Licensing bill during a session crowded with business. The intentions of the Government were good and their proposals were reasonable and beneficent and the Government had been balked by the unexpected hostility of temperance fanatics and above all by the unexpected development of a party spirit that sought every occasion to damage the Government in power. He questioned the sincerity of the Gladstonians and Parnellites in the stand they had taken on the subject and said he saw nothing to discourage the Unionists. The Government, he asserted, had conducted its administrative work with singular good fortune and success, and said it had raised England's influence higher than it had been for many years. The Opposition did not dare to impugn the foreign policy of the Ministry. He ridiculed Mr. Gladstone for raising a "No Popery" cry regarding the mission of Gen. Simmons.

British Subjects Will Be Protected.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The agitation over the Behring Sea dispute has subsided. Great Britain, having declared her attitude, is apparently not anxious to say any more about the matter. The Times asserts that "Behring Sea, outside the three-mile limit, is just as free to all the world as the English Channel or the Mediterranean; nor can any attempt to restrict that freedom be viewed otherwise than an usurpation of well-established rights." So far as war and rumors of war, nothing more is heard or intimated; but the British squadron, recently gathered at Equimalt, will remain in the North Pacific, prepared for such action as the American cruisers may give occasion for. It is certain that the Canadian sealers will be protected as long as they keep three miles away from American and Russian territory. "We have no quarrel with the United States," said Lord Stanley of Alderley at a dinner last Thursday evening, "but British subjects must and will be protected the world over in the exercise of their lawful rights." A prominent city merchant in the fur trade said, on the same occasion, that it was an attempt of a company holding an American monopoly to use the American Government for the purpose of compelling Her Majesty's subjects to submit to that monopoly.

Tortured by Turks.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—A special correspondent of The Daily News has succeeded in obtaining admission to the Turkish prison at Uskub, Macedonia, a town of European Turkey. He found that the building contained 140 cells, which were occupied by 1811 prisoners, or over twelve to a cell. As a rule the unfortunate victims are sent there to be confined from one to ten years each, but so great are their sufferings arising from the barbarity of their keepers and the total disregard by the latter of all sanitary laws, that one rarely outlives five years. In one cell, 2½ yards square, the correspondent discovered nearly a score of poor wretches panting for air and starving for food, having in the way of the latter nothing but bread and water. The greater number were stark naked and chained by the ankle and wrist. As if the jailers were unable to inflict tortures enough on their victims in the dens already described, the correspondent found a series of underground cells, said to be reserved for the worst prisoners, where, reeking in total darkness, were those whom Turkish tyranny had singled out for special barbarity. In order to force confessions, which confessions would have proved useful to those in power, the aid of the ant is called in. These insects are kept in small boxes for this purpose, and 50 of them are placed at one time on the naked body of the prisoner whom it is desired to torture. It is also customary to chain men all day in the scorching sun in such a way that they are unable to move.

Lady Dunlo as Venus.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Belle Bilton, or Lady Dunlo, in an interview confirmed the report that Viscount Dunlo had had an interview with her since the recent decision of the divorce suit in her favor. She says that the noble youth seems disposed to "do the proper thing," but that his father refuses to continue his allowance if he lives with his wife. The idea of his supporting her, earning money through his own exertions, is of course not conceivable. There is little prospect of the couple maintaining domestic relations, therefore, until Lord Clancarty dies or undergoes a change of heart. Lady Dunlo declares, nevertheless, that she will never compromise her rights nor relax her efforts to enforce their recognition. She denies the rumor that the Viscount is going on a hunting trip to Africa. Lady Dunlo will make a tour of the provinces, appearing in the character of Venus.

The Sportsman says Lord and Lady Dunlo were reconciled through the efforts of friends. Wertheimer shook hands with Lord Dunlo and occupied a box with the latter and his wife at the theatre Saturday.

Cholera on Portugal's Frontier.

LISBON, Aug. 2.—Cholera has appeared in the Spanish province of Badajos on the Portuguese frontier. A rigorous cordon has been established on the frontier by the Portuguese authorities.

Increasing in Valencia.

MADRID, Aug. 2.—The cholera is increasing in Valencia. Several cases are reported in Liorna in the Province of Badajos. The Portuguese Government has forbidden Spanish trains to cross the frontier until lazarettos have been established on the border line.

400 Deaths in a Day at Mecca.

CAIRO, Aug. 2.—The cholera is increasing at Mecca. Yesterday there were over 400 deaths from the disease.

MECCA, Aug. 3.—Five hundred deaths from cholera were reported here to-day.

Died After 43 Days' Fast.

WINDSOR, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Rodrigo Vallinere of Tecumseh is dead after having fasted 43 days. She took sick in January, and the doctors said she had dyspepsia. She grew worse, and for the last 43 days had refused all food.

FASTED 42 DAYS AND LIVES.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Jacques, the French soldier, has completed his fast of 42 days. He has been on exhibition at the Aquarim during the fast.

Peru's New President.

LIMA, Aug. 3.—Colonel Morales Bermudez has been proclaimed president of the republic, vice General Caceres, whose term has expired. Colonel Bermudez will take his seat Aug. 10.

Fatal Interference With Lovers.

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 2.—At Martin's Ferry yesterday Ann Newland, one of the most beautiful and popular young ladies of this city, shot herself through the heart with a revolver which she had borrowed from her lover. Miss Newland was engaged to marry Hally Woods, a prominent business man, to whom her parents objected on account of his religion. Thursday night they forbade Woods the house, and failing to persuade the girl to marry him at once, Woods told Miss Newland that he would leave the city. The action of her parents and the impending departure of her lover drove the girl to take her own life. Woods is nearly insane from grief, and Miss Newland's mother is prostrated.

Settled by Killing the Negro.

RALEIGH, N.C., Aug. 4.—Julian Jones, colored, had a difficulty with a white man on the principal business street here to-day and knocked him down. Policeman Hogue called on William Utley, a well-known newspaper man, to assist in quelling the disturbance. Jones knocked Utley down, and in a scuffle with Officer Hogue got his club and was about to use it when the officer drew a pistol and fired three times at Jones, the last shot proving fatal. One shot struck a clerk in a neighboring store in the leg. Some feeling was exhibited among the negroes at the killing of Jones.

A NEW ENGLAND SEAPORT.

The Canadian Pacific Seeking It Through the New York, Boston & Providence.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—It is rumored that the Boston & Maine is after the New York, Boston & Providence. The most startling feature of the contemplated deal is the published statement that the backers of the Boston & Maine are the Canadian Pacific. This line desires a New England seaport terminus whence a line of steamers could be run to New York. As the Boston & Maine now reaches to Worcester over the old Worcester & Nashua, the Providence & Worcester division of the New York, Providence & Boston, could it be obtained, would furnish the Canadian Pacific uninterrupted communication between Montreal and Providence.

The Providence & Worcester, together with the Concord and some western roads, have long been members of the Canadian Pacific despatch line. The merging of the New York, Providence & Boston in the Boston & Maine would mean the control of the Stonington Steamship Company's fine fleet by the latter corporation, as the road owns a controlling interest in the boats.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Killed While Coupling Cars Died in An Operating Chair.

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—Yardman Lawrence Mahon was killed while coupling cars in the Grand Trunk yard near Brock-street early yesterday morning.

Thomas Butler died in Dr. Walwin's operating chair last night while being treated for a local disease. He had been despondent for some time and it is supposed he took a dose of pium with suicidal intent. An inquest will be held.

Oddfellows in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Arrangements are complete for the Oddfellows' demonstration which will begin here to-morrow. A grand stand has been built in the lake front park, which is nearly a half mile long and will seat 40,000 people. In the park are long avenues of poles on which hang hundreds of electric lights. When the great spectacular celebrations occur Wednesday and Thursday nights at the conclusion of the ceremony of the decoration of chivalry the generalissimo will place his foot upon a switch in his tent and the electric lights will instantly be put out. By pressing another switch he will send the electric current through the wires that fire the first piece of the great pyrotechnic display, causing a mighty eruption of fire from the shore of the lake and sending hundreds of shells into the air. Twenty-five thousand dollars will be distributed in prizes. It is estimated there will be 50,000 Oddfellows in Chicago by Tuesday. Governor Fifer and staff will take part in the parade Thursday.

Losses Caused by Flames.

FARINA, Ill., Aug. 2.—Fire broke out in the Farina Hotel last night and before it could be extinguished had consumed two blocks in the business centre of the town including the Farina Hotel, Broom's Hotel, Switzer's Opera House, Masonic Hall and 13 stores with most of the stocks of goods. Loss $50,000.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 2.—The Lincoln Woolen Mills were burned to-day. Loss, $70,000; insurance, $15,000. S. G. Mitchell was struck by a bale of goods and knocked out of a second-story window and received serious injury.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 3.—Fire broke out in Hon. David Mills' residence about 4 o'clock this morning, badly damaging it. Loss covered by insurance.

An Unknown Man Found Dead.

LINDSAY, Aug. 2.—An unknown man was found dead the other day on the Scotch Line, near Bobcaygeon. There was nothing on the body by which he could be identified. He wore two suits of clothes an had two purses, one of which contained $1.35. He had also a slate and pencil, which suggested the idea that he was a mute, but there were parties who said he told them he was from Fort Perry and others he told he was from Port Hope. He was evidently a tramp.

It Was His Last Jump.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—This afternoon Charles McCaffrey, the Canadian bridge jumper, jumped from the Shears at the Atlantic Works, East Boston, into the water, a distance of 150 feet. He struck on his stomach and was killed. He had been giving exhibitions here and said this was to be his last jump before going to New York to jump from the Brooklyn bridge.

Scared but Not Hurt.

GREENPORT, L.I., Aug. 3.—The steamer Sunshine, plying between Hartford and New London and Greenport and Sag Harbor, L.I., struck on a rock off Orient Point, L.I., at 6.30 p.m. yesterday. She had 200 passengers aboard and the wildest confusion prevailed for a time. Nobody was hurt.

The Dominion's Merchant Marine.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—The report on shipping just issued by the Department of Marine shows that the total number of vessels remaining on the registry books of the Dominion Dec. 31, 1889, including old and new vessels—sailing vessels, steamers and barges—was 7153, measuring 1,040,481 tons registered tonnage, being an increase of 11 vessels and a decrease of 49,161 tons register as compared with 1888. The number of steamers on the registry books on the same date was 1348, with a gross tonnage of 205,632 tons. Assuming the average value to be $30 per ton, the value of the registered tonnage of Canada, Dec. 31 last, would be $31,213,430. The number of vessels built and registered in the Dominion of Canada during last year was 280, measuring 31,346 tons registered tonnage. Estimating the value of new tonnage at $45 per ton, it gives a total value of $1,545,570 for new vessels.

MONDAY, AUGUST 4, 1890.

THE Atchison (Kan.) Champion, one of the oldest and most influential Republican papers in Kansas, came out on July 31st with a free trade flag at its masthead. It says that protection has so impoverished the farmers of the West and enriched the manufacturers of the East that nothing can bring a cure except free trade.

WOODSTOCK city fathers are about to take a popular vote on an important waterworks by-law, and propose to do so without giving the public the terms through the press. The peculiar stupidity naturally causes no little adverse criticism. In Woodstock the city fathers are blamed. In Peterborough, under similar circumstances, the newspapers are blamed if they do not boom such a by-law to the extent of several columns, without of expense on the part of the corporation or the interests to be affected by the vote on the by-law.

JUDGE Ermatinger, of St. Thomas, has given judgment in the appeal of the Bell Telephone Company against assessment on personal property. The Telephone Company claimed that it should be assessed only on the income of the office at St. Thomas, while they were assessed $5,000 on poles, plant and income. The judgment declares the wires and poles exempt, as being on the street, but that the company should pay taxes on the instruments and income. The company admitted a net income of $480, but are required to give proof as to the value of the instruments and the amount of income. On the same day County Judge Fralick, of Belleville, ruled that all insurance companies doing business in that city shall be assessed on their net income. Also the personal property of the water works company, such as hydrants and stand pipe. The appeal of the gas company against assessment on real estate was thrown out.

EXPORTS from Ontario to the United States amounted in the fiscal year 1889 to no less than $23,449,000. Of this, however, $838,704 worth was not the produce of Canada. The aggregate value of Canadian products sent to the States was $22,611,000; the value of her Ontario exports then was only $1,390,264, a falling off equal to $135,129. The principal decrease appears in apples, barley, cattle and eggs. The decrease in barley alone amounts to $78,000. The principal items are: Barley, $602,296.99; eggs, $158,180 25; horses, $84,583.50; household goods, $112,583.52; sheep and lambs, $51,221.15; wool, $130,095.48. There is an increase of $49,272,86 in wool. There will be a decrease in the agricultural products sent to the States. The duty on barley will be increased from 10 to 20 cents per bushel. It will affect eggs, which are now free, as under the bill the duty will be 5 cents per dozen. It will affect live stock and horses, the duty being increased from 20 to 30 cents.

Big Oddfellows' Demonstration

Grand Conclave of Oddfellows at Chicago – First Triennial Parade of Oddfellows and Grand Cantonment of Patriarchs Militant.

The largest Oddfellows demonstration that has ever occurred will take place in Chicago, August 3 to 10, when 50,000 members of the order will be in the city. The occasion is the first triennial Oddfellows' Parade and Grand Cantonment of the Patriarchs Militant, the military branch of the order that was founded five years ago and that already numbers 25,000 uniformed members. Of these from 12,000 to 15,000 will be present to take part in the competitive drills, the dress parades, the grand review on August 7, and other ceremonials. Cash prizes amounting to $25,000 will be distributed among the various contestants. Prizes aggregating over $6,000 will be awarded among the Subordinate and Rubekah lodges. The $25,000 prize money, and $25,000 additional, to be used for the legitimate expenses of the undertaking, is already in bank in Chicago as certified by the president of the bank.

The celebration will be noteworthy as being the largest gathering of a secret society ever held, and also as the most brilliant pageant of modern times. The paraphernalia of the Patriarchs Militant is richer than that of any other similar body of men. The uniforms are resplendent with ornamentation. The banners, flags, plumes, etc., will make a perfect sea of brilliant colours—such as has not been seen, perhaps, since the pageants of the old chivalric days. The Generalissimo's staff will consist of 150 mounted officers, while a squadron of Hussars and another of Lancers will swell the number of mounted men to several hundred, all on gorgeously caparisoned horses. In addition to the Patriarchs Militant, there will be thirty or thirty five thousand Oddfellows of the subordinate lodges in line, all uniformed, when the grand parade and review occurs.

One of the most attractive events of the celebration will be the decoration of chivalry, when the degree of knighthood will be conferred upon a number of candidates. This will take place at night, in the open air, in a brightly lighted park, and will be attended with elaborate ceremonial.

The city authorities of Chicago have granted the exceptional privilege of the use of the Lake Front Park for all these performances. Here is to be one of the sites of the World's Fair. The park is a beautiful level lawn, bounded on one side by Michigan Avenue, and on the other by Lake Michigan. On the border of the Lake there will be several exhibitions of fireworks that will be in keeping with the general magnitude of the enterprise. The Park is to be enclosed with a wide-meshed wire fence, that will not cut off either the air or the view. Reviewing stands will be erected, capable of seating the great crowds that are expected to attend the celebration.

The railroads leading to Chicago have made cheaper rates than ever before offered.

In Chicago the hotels have shown an appreciation of the numerical success of the cantonment, and have made rates that are little more than nominal. In consequence of the reductions 200,000 people will visit Chicago to see the great demonstration.

The Oddfellows are the richest and largest secret organization in the world. Including the Manchester Unity of England, the parent body, the number 1,400,000; in America, they are 700,000. The Order extends into Australia, New Zealand, the Sandwich Islands, Germany, France and other European countries. Japan, Cuba, Mexico, Chili and Peru. The Patriarchs Militant were organized by Gen. Jno. C. Underwood in 1885, under authority of the Sovereign Grand Lodge. The unit of organization is the canton, or company, of which there are 500. The further organization is based upon that of the European armies. The men are well drilled and finely officered. The founder of the degree, Gen. Underwood, is the Generalissimo of the Army. He is also the Grand Sire of the Oddfellows of the world.

Mightier than the Sword.

Just received at the Peterborough Bookstore a magnificent consignment of gold pens of all sizes and degrees of pliability, and gold pencils in great variety. These goods are artistically perfect in design, excellency of material and beauty of workmanship. Eminently suitable for wedding, birthday and other gifts. A magnificent stock at very reasonable prices at the Peterborough Bookstore. Drop in and take a look at them.

He Lost a Sale.

An icebox on which a sign "For Sale" stood in front of a Brooklyn grocery store the other day, and when a woman stopped to examine it, a man, with his hands and overalls showing grime came out and said:

"Madam, dot vhas der beegest bargain in dis whole county. I paid $18 for dot icebox, und now I sells him for—for—vhell, I make der price so sheap dot it pays you to shplit him oop for firewood."

"Been in use a long time," she observed as she looked inside.

"Madame, I gif you fife tousand dollar if I doan' buy him only last year."

"What's the principle on which it works?"

"Der best principle in all dis worlds, madame. It vhas by der oopright, horizontal, rotary principle, und nobody can beat it. My son he runs dis grocery for me while I runs my boiler und engine shop. Dot makes me know all about ice boxes."

"A boiler isn't an ice box," she remarked, as she looked into it again.

"Shust so, madam, but der principles vhas der same. Dis vas a ten-fine ice box, mit a return draught. She vhas seex-inch strokes, patent cut-off, tested oop to 180 pounds, und vhas feerzel oop mit a low-water indicator und all der latest inventions. If dat ice box explodes on you I gif you one million dollar, und any shild can run him."

"Explode! Mercy on me, but I don't want anything around to blow me up! It must be some new fangled arrangement."

"Madame, I gif you my word he vhas as safe ash a trunk oop in der garret. He consumes his own smoke, vhas provided mit a check-draught of der latest style, und——"

"I don't want it!" she said with a decided snap in her voice, and hurried away as if she feared an explosion.

At that moment a young man came out and asked:

"Fadder, doan' you make a sale?"

"No."

"Vhas you tell her?"

"I say to her dot it vhas by her oopright, horizontal, rotary principle, mit return flues, seex-inch stroke, patent——"

"Fadder, you go avhay and leaf me to sell him. You vhas too scientific. So mooch talk makes people afraid. I shust tell 'em dot it vhas for sale by a family who vhas going to Europe for der summer, or to wind oop an estate, und before to-morrow he vhas sold. You vhas all right on engines und boilers, but you vhas way off on ice boxes. All der principle about him vhas to sell him for $10 cash."

A Promoter of Temperance.

Magistrate—Did you ever see a man intoxicated by beer?

Saloon-Keeper—Oh, yes; lots of times.

Magistrate—In your saloon?

Saloon-Keeper—No, sir; men never get intoxicated by beer in my place.

Magistrate—How do you manage it?

Saloon-Keeper—I draw my beer into the Coney Island beer glass.—Racket

How Uncle Jerry Went Back on the Crowd.

Every boy of us in in the village knew Uncle Jerry Crawford. He was a dried-up old man, and never seemed to get any older, although always complaining. The form of salutation was invariably this:

"Hello! Uncle Jerry!"

"Yaw, yaw."

"How you feeling?"

"Wretched, wretched, thank ye."

I've heard that at least one thousand times, and never knew a deviation but once. A drummer who used to come up occasionally from St. Louis got on to it, and one day when a dozen of us sat on the steps of the drug store Uncle Jerry was seen coming up the street.

"Don't that old Crawford," asked the drummer as he shaded his eyes with his hand.

"Yes."

"He's the man who always replies that he's pretty well, praise God!"

"Oh, no. He's the man who always replies that he's wretched, thank ye."

"I may be mistaken, but I don't think so."

"Of course you are."

"Well, I hate to give in. I'll bet $20 that when he comes up and you ask him how he is he'll reply as I said."

There was seven of us there, and all we could raise was $16. We handed that out fast enough, however, and it had been covered when Uncle Jerry came along. We were on the grin as the drummer called out:

"Hello! Uncle Jerry!"

"Yaas, yaas."

"How you feeling?"

"Pretty well, praise God!" replied Uncle Jerry, as he passed on.

It was about two minutes before we could get breath, and then the drummer had gone with the stakes. An hour later I asked Uncle Jerry what he meant by such conduct, and he replied:

"Took me all day to learn it, and the feller gin me two big dollars."

Koh-i-nur.

Koh-i-nur is the name of the finest diamond in the world — which flashes in the front of the Queen's crown, and Koh-i-nur is the name of the finest tea in the world the Koh-i-nur brand, found only at the store of Hawley Bros. Equal Rights.

The topic of the day and that which we all want is not only Equal Rights in a political sense of the word, but in many others. Here are people throwing away their hard earned money, with unprincipled houses who do not as much as thank them for it. Why should they do it? Why not call on W.J. Morrow, where you are received courteously, your money placed to a good advantage and you are placed on a solid basis in future for buying cheap groceries. dw

Late Return From Evening Church,

"What kept you, my daughter, at service so late?
Sweet Imogene's father said.
"Whenever you go with young Reprobate
You never get back to our garden gate
Till every one's gone to bed."

"The sermon was tedious," his daughter replied;
"The preacher was dull and grim.
Till the end of the service we had to bide.
But the longest wait"—and sweet Imogene sighed,—
"Was caused by the parting him."

MAKING A RECORD.

Mr. Van Funk Scores His Ninth Rejection Without Opposition.

"Please do not say anything more, Mr. Van Funk," protested the young girl. "I must not listen to you."

"Don't refuse to hear me, Miss Fetherbridge!" he exclaimed as he looked about the room as if to find a hassock to kneel on, but seeing none, he stood upright, looked intently at the ceiling, and proceeded rapidly, in a high-pitched voice.

"Doubtless you will say, Miss Fetherbridge, that you never have given me any encouragement. You will think I am presumptuous in venturing to address you thus. But it must occur to you that a young man has no other way of ascertaining in what light he is regarded by the object upon whom he has fixed his hopes of earthly happiness than to—to try it on, you know. Therefore, Miss Fetherbridge, to come to the point at once (for in matters of this kind it has always been my custom—or, as I was about to say, in matters of this kind it is always best to be direct and explicit), let me ask you, without any preamble, prologue, or introduction, whether you could——"

"Mr. Van Fund, I am sorry to——"

"Whether you could make up your mind to consent to link your fate to that of a young man whom you never may have regarded in any other light than that of a friend, but of whose entire devotion you may be assured, and who long has entertained for you feelings that——"

"You will oblige me, Mr. Van Funk, by——"

"Feelings that he may not have suffered to escape him hitherto. In short, Miss Fetherbridge—for the question is simply one of the heart, and need be occasion for the fewest words only—may I ask you whether, after mature deliberation and——"

"What are you trying to ask, Mr. Van Funk?"

"I am trying to ask you, Miss Fetherbridge if you will marry me."

"Then there is no need of any more words, I am sorry that I cannot give you a favorable answer, but—"

"Do I understand you to refuse?"

"I certainly do refuse."

"You reject me?"

"If you must have it in the plainest possible words, Mr. Van Funk, I reject you, though I am sorry to say anything that gives you pain."

The young man took a note book from his pocket and made a mark in it with his pencil.

"You will not deny," he said, "that I have asked you whether you would marry me?"

"Certainly not."

"And you have said you would not?"

"That is what I have said."

"That's right. Check."

And he made another mark in the note book.

"You are the ninth young woman who has given me the same answer since last Thursday," he said briskly. "I'll get over the pain, Miss Fetherbridge. I'm trying to make a record. That's all. Good morning."—Chicago Tribune.

She Agreed with Him.

Emerson Waldo (of Boston)—I do despise petty personal remarks. There are so many lofty and elevating subjects on which cultured minds may converse—literature, art, science, and the broad field of metaphysics. Don't you agree with me, Miss Platte?

Miss Platte (of Omaha)—You bet I do, Mr. Waldo. But do look at Mrs. Laker over there; she walks as if she had corns.—Light.

Applicant (to farmer)—"Can't you give me employment, sir?"

Farmer—"What do you know about farm work?"

Applicant—"I was once the editor of an agricultural paper."

Farmer—"Can't hire you. Must have some one who knows how to milk and hoe potatoes, at least."—Figaro.

Sixteen Ugly Sores.

Inflammatory rheumatism, through wrong treatment, left me with stiff joints and ugly running sores on my limbs, and for seven years I could not walk. When I commenced talking Burdock Blood Bitters I had sixteen sores, but they are all healed save one, and I can now walk with crutches. MARY CALDWELL, Upper Gasperaux, N.S. 2w30rd

Mothers and Nurses.

All who have the care of children should know that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry may be confidently depended on to cure all summer complaints, diarrhœa, dysentery, cramps, colic, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, canker, etc., in children or adults. 2w30d

There is more fun in a sheet of sticky fly paper than in the average negro minstrel. Watch the kitten playing with it on the new carpet; the latter is ruined for ever; the kitten goes into a fit and all the women and children rush out of the house in terror. If you want to rid your house of flies, buy Wilson's Fly Poison Pads, and use as directed. Nothing else will clear them out thoroughly. Sold at 10c. by all druggists. dw

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of assurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,709,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $916,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$43,694,376	3.07
Confederation	$17,974,328	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,068,337	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,817	10.36
North American	9,470,620	10.65
Temperance and General	2,894,372	17.84
Citizens	2,097,966	28.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,722,100	30.12
London Life	1,644,285	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

The procession was accompanied by the Citizens and 16th Battalion bands. There were about 250 in the procession, which made a fine showing. There must have been not less than 3,000 in the cemetery to witness the solemn ceremony of decorating the graves of the deceased brethren.

Barns Burned by Lightning.

During the electrical storm of Sunday afternoon—about 3 30 o'clock, the barns of Mr. John Stewart, ninth concession of Smith were struck by lightning and fired. The barn with its contents was burned. The latter consisted of the season's crop of hay and barley. The loss will be considerable. There were two barns, one a new one just completed, and a stable. All were destroyed. The downpour of rain only saved the house from sharing the fate of the other buildings. Loss about $3,000. There was a small insurance.

R. T. of T.

The friends who failed to attend the Gospel Song Service yesterday afternoon, in the Royal Templars Hall, missed an address which would have greatly helped them in their work. The Rev. Mr. Sylvester, of Toronto talked for about twenty minutes, of the past, present and future prospects of the great temperance movement and urged all who are taking part in the struggle, to hold fast to God, who ever gives courage and strength to those who fight for the uplifting of fallen humanity. The Song Service was led by Mr. and Mrs. W. Fitzgerald.—COM.

Sunday's Storm.

Sunday's double storm was wide spread and severe. The reports, so far, of its ravages, show that considerable damage, happily, generally of a minor character, was done. In the country, of course, fruit on the trees was disturbed. In Monaghan, at Scott's corners, a second growth elm tree was struck by lightning and shredded like rops waste. Two persons, who were driving past it at the time, were stunned and one of the horses knocked to the ground. But no serious injury was suffered by man or beast. In Smith and on Stony Lake the storm raged with great severity, fuller particulars of which are given elsewhere in these columns. In town there was a good deal of minor mishap. Fences were blown down in some quarters, and many a fine shade tree had its top twisted off, and others were uprooted loodily. The storm and the hot weather in town caused a marked diminution in the congregations of the several churches.

Struck by Lightning.

During Sunday's storm, the house of Mr. Robert Hall, 83 Westcott street, was struck by lightning and considerably shattered. The thunder bolt struck the chimney at one end of the house, knocking the bricks in all directions. It then passed along the ridge board, and about the middle of the roof line, took a sudden turn, passing down the roof, ripping up the shingles on its way to the eave trough and thence to the ground. Mr. and Mrs. Hall were sitting in the house at the time. Both were stunned. Mrs. Hall the more severely. The damage done amounts to about $75. Insured in the London and Lancashire, (Mulholland & Roper agents). A large tree not far from the house was also struck by lightning and shattered.

The Fifty-Seventh Band.

The Fifty-seventh Band are well pleased with its prospective visit to Hamilton. They are especially gratified at the arrangements made for judging, which ensures each band being judged on its merits. Only one judge is selected, and, it will be from New York and entirely unassociated with any of the competing bands, he will not be biased in the verdict he may give. All our boys want is a "fair field and no favour." The boys will go up to Hamilton in good style. Each band is requested to appear in the parade from the city to the competing ground with some distinctive mark to show what band it is. The Peterborough band has secured a canine equipage—the huge mastiff of Master Snowden has been engaged. He will accompany the band in the march drawing his carriage and driven by his young master. The carriage will be provided with a cover, on which will be painted the name of the band and its local habitation. The music books of the band will be carried in the vehicle.

Me! For Belleville.

The E.B.A. and C.M.B.A. of Peterborough will run a joint excursion to Belleville, by special train, on civic holiday, Thursday, August 14th. The committee have secured the splendid agricultural grounds for the day, where a complete programme of athletic sports will be carried out, and a baseball match will be played between the Nimble Nine, of Belleville, and the Peterborough team. A spacious pavilion will also be erected and provided with music for dancing. Excursionists may also enjoy the pleasure of a sail on the Bay of Quinte; boats leave the city every hour for Massassaga Park. Train leaves Peterborough at 7 a.m. sharp, calling at Hastings 8.15 a.m., Campbellford 8.45 a.m. Returning, train will leave Belleville at 7 p.m. Fare from Peterborough for round trip $1 00; children under 12 half price. Tickets from Hastings, 80c.; Campbellford, 75c. Tickets may be procured from any member of the committee in town; P. Brennan, Hastings, and M. Galvin Campbellford. dtf

Millbrook Nuptials.

A Millbrook correspondent writes the Guide:—There was quite a stir in our village on last Wednesday evening, the cause of which was the consummation of courtship that ended in a wedding. The contracting parties were Mr. Paschal E. Metheral, merchant, of Garden Hill, a young gentleman formerly of this place, and Miss Alice Evans, an estimable young lady, youngest daughter of Mr. James Evans. They were married at 6.30 p.m., at the residence of the bride's father, who lives in the west end of the village, by the Rev. Wm. Burns, Methodist minister, in the presence of a large number of friends, who showed their appreciation of the highly esteemed couple by the many valuable tokens of regard which they presented to the bride. Shortly after the ceremony and partaking of a sumptuous dinner the happy couple were accompanied to the station, where they were greeted by the music of our band, who had previously serenaded them at the house. A large number of persons came to witness their departure on the 9.30 train to their future home in Garden Hill, with the good wishes of their many friends and the melodious strains of music on the balmy air of the beautiful moonlight night with which the Lord favored the occasion, and whom we trust will scatter many temporal and spiritual blessings on their future pathway through life, and finally by His grace lead both them and all of us to mansions in the skies.

Scottish Games at the Show.

The Central Exhibition Directors Make Satisfactory Arrangements for a Grand Tournament of Scottish Games and Athletic Sports.

At a meeting of the committee of the Central Exhibition held in the Morgan House on Saturday evening, a satisfactory agreement was reached with the Executive Committee of the St. Andrew's Society for holding a grand exhibition of Scottish games and other first class athletic sports, on the second day of the Central Exhibition.

There were present at the meeting, Messrs. H. C. Winch, A P. Morgan, J. A. Davidson, Geo. Elliott, and the Secretary, Wm. Collins, in behalf of the Exhibition Directors, and Messrs. Chas. Cameron, President, Geo. H. Noble, Vice-President, R. M. Dennistoun, Treasurer, W. Battesby, and W. Menzies, Secretary, in behalf of St. Andrew's Society.

In the absence of President Rutherford, Mr. Winch acted as chairman during the evening and called upon the St. Andrew's deputation to state their case.

The deputation then recited the details of their visit to Toronto, and the satisfactory result of their interview with the various representatives of the Scottish societies for securing the attendance of Highlanders, pipers and others who usually take part in Scottish games throughout the Province. The secretary also read the following letter, which he had received since the return of the deputation, from J. M. Wingfield, Grand Chief of the Grand Camp, Sons of Scotland:—

GRAND CAMP, SONS OF SCOTLAND,
OFFICE OF GRAND CHIEF,
TORONTO, 1st August, 1890.

DEAR SIR,—Your favour to hand regarding a Scotch day during your exhibition. Since your president was here I have seen some of our pipers and others who usually take part in our games, and they say if the prizes are liberal they will go; and if a cheap trip can be arranged from Toronto on the day, you will have a great many from this city. I will do what I can to encourage our men, as opportunity offers, to take in your games. I feel some interest in your town, as I think you ought to have a camp of the Sons of Scotland.

Wishing you every success in your undertaking.

I am, sir, yours very truly,
J. M. WINGFIELD.

After some further talk the exhibition committee expressed themselves unanimously in favour of securing this additional attraction to the fair, and, on motion, a resolution was passed closing with the terms proposed for the same. An agreement was then drawn up and signed by the respective secretaries of the two bodies, after which the deputation withdrew.

Sunday Storm on Stony Lake.

Wind, Rain, Lightning Mr. W. A. Sanderson's Cottage Struck by Lightning—The Occupants Slightly Injured.

The thunderstorm that visited the town on Sunday afternoon was particularly violent at Stony Lake. It was terrific in its intensity. The wind overturned tents and rudely disturbed the Sunday siestas of campers. At Hall's the lightning struck a tree "shivering its timbers," and another tree was set on fire by the electric fluid. At Mr. W. A. Sanderson's lodge the lightning was terrible, one bolt struck a tree crushing it to splinters and the thunderbolt entering the rock split the solid granite as though it were cheese leaving a gaping rent. Another bolt struck the lodge. The timber at the corner where it struck was splintered and several window panes broken by the concussion. Mr. Sanderson was close to the corner of the building down which the electric current ran, kneeling and soaking up water driven under the door. The storm was accompanied by a fierce gale and the most tremendous downpour of rain that ever fell on the lake. Mr. Sanderson had a very narrow escape. The shivered scantling was only a few inches from his head. For several minutes he was completely deafened and did not recover his hearing entirely till Monday morning. Mrs. Sanderson and her brother, Mr. Hilliard Watson, also felt the efforts of the shock, which were a violent headache, and partial deafness. Picnic and excursion parties at many points on the lake were caught by the storm and thoroughly drenched.

Peterborough Defeats Lakefield.

A return match was played on the Ashburnham grounds on Saturday between a Lakefield and a home eleven. Peterborough went first to bat and piled up the respectable score of 135, Lakefield following with 106. In their second go-in, the home eleven put 146 runs together. Lakefield's second venture netted only 57, leaving the home team victorious with a majority of 119. It was the batsman's game, big scores being the order of the day. Following is the score:—

Baseball.

The Burly Benedicts Beat the Brisk Bachelors.

An exciting game of baseball, between nines selected from the Lock Works employees, representing, respectively, the married and single men of the establishment, was played on Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. There was quite a large attendance of spectators. There was no regular battery on either side, several different persons being in the box and in the cage as the fortunes of the game demanded. The play was lively, and some individual plays of merit were made—the married men being credited, as was proper, with triplets twice—triple plays. Though it is to be assumed that the married won, as they did win by a score of 10 to 8, because they played better, yet there is no doubt that they have a more winning way—they have won wives, whereas the single men have failed so far, to do so. One crusty bachelor of the defeated men asserts that the married men played to win because they "had to". Their wives told them to win and asserted that if they didn't beat those miserable single men they would "catch fits" when they got home. The umpire, W. Sharp is a bachelor, but the opinion seems to be prevalent among the singles that he is on the eve of deserting the bachelor ranks or he wouldn't have allowed the benedicts to win. Following is the score as recorded:—

News Nuggets.

—The band plays in the park to-morrow night.

—There will be a meeting of the town council next Monday night.

—There will be a regular meeting of the School Board to-morrow night.

—Reports concerning the summer ducks in Bay of Quinte, this district are highly favorable.

—Some members of Mr. Paterson's camp Stony Lake, caught a porcupine. It was a very large specimen—weighing some 30 lbs.

—Mr. Henry Fee, of Cavan, last week sold his fine team of draught horses, for $450, and this is considered a low figure for such a team.

—Persons outside the Kingston penitentiary are willing to pay 25 cents to get in. There are scores of persons inside who would pay twenty-five hundred dollars to get out.

—A woman in Kingston, says the Whig, keeps a baby farm and uses the infants badly. Alarming reports of her cruelty have been circulated by her neighbors.

—Mr. John Lake pleaded guilty to the charge of running the steamer Annie Gilbert on Sunday last, contrary to the Lord's Day Act. He was fined $20 and costs.

—There will be a meeting of the Street and Bridge Committee to-night to consider the matter of telephone poles on the streets. The regular meeting of the town council will be held on Monday night next.

—Dr. Davies gives another organ recital in St. John's Church on Thursday evening, August 7th. The programme is of a miscellaneous and popular nature, and contains many items of special interest, including Beaugeaing or bride-song of Adolphe Jensen, and the Cheour Seraphique, by Guilmant. Heretofore the public have evidenced a very kindly interest in these recitals, and it is hoped this interest will not be diminished, as they are both musically entertaining and musically educative.

Personal.

Dr. Barsardo preached in Dr. Wild's Church in Toronto Sunday.

Smith.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. W. T. Milburn of the second concession of Smith has erected a fine two story white brick dwelling house. The main part is 26x36, with kitchen wing 20x24 and large brick wood shed and summer kitchen 23x30. The contractor is Mr. J. G. Jopling of Bridgenorth, who does the carpenter work; Mr. T. McFadden did the brickwork. The plastering was done by Mr. S. S. Delong, and he deserves special praise for the excellent job done. The contractor was so well pleased with his work that he at once gave Mr. Delong the job of plastering the Fourth Line Baptist Church.

Lakefield "Chronicles."

A Chapter of Accidents—Narrow Escape from Drowning.

On Wednesday morning Constable Campbell, of Lakefield, left for Toronto, by the morning train, with Mr Richard Parker, who will be placed in the Toronto hospital for care and treatment.

On Friday evening, what came near being the first drowning accident of the season at Stony Lake, occurred opposite Hurricane Point. Mrs. Jas. Cox and her son were out on the lake for a paddle, when by some means or other the canoe was capsized. The mother was kept above water by her little son until assistance was rendered, when she was taken ashore in an exhausted condition.

On Monday evening the steamer Mary Ellen, on bringing down her scow for the Warsaw Foresters' excursion, ran into a snag left by one of the drives on the main channel near the Three Islands, damaging the scow to such an extent that they were compelled to run it ashore. Boatmen claim the buoys have been removed by the lumbermen from the main channel, thereby rendering navigation both dangerous and difficult, especially so at Henderson's narrows. This should receive the attention of the superintending engineer of the Trent navigation works.

Thursday afternoon an accident happened to the 12 year old son of Mr Jno. Noyes, Lakefield. It appears the boy was playing on one of the railway sidings whilst cars were being shunted by the men employed in loading them. The little fellow was caught between the buffers and badly squeezed. Medical aid was called in and his injuries attended to. At present it is difficult to say what the result may be, as it is feared the internal injuries are more serious than the external.

Thursday afternoon as Mr. Gerald Fitzgerald, of North Smith, was driving to Lakefield accompanied by two ladies, the horses became unmanageable, running away, and completely smashing the rig and seriously injuring the occupants.

On Wednesday afternoon as Mr. Saml. Wallace, Lakefield was leaving his barn yard with one of his horses attached to a stone boat, the horse took fright and run away. In endeavoring to stop the flight of the horse Mr. Wallace was knocked down and badly bruised. He will be confined to the house for a few days.—Chronicle.

Explosive Sawdust.

Two gentlemen who were fishing from the deck loads of barges moored in Broeson's dock, at the end of Bay street, Ottawa, last evening, says the Ottawa Free Press, give particulars of a somewhat alarming sawdust explosion which they witnessed. They were fishing for channel catfish, which had been biting freely, when suddenly the nibbling ceased. Presently the water commenced to boil up, and gradually rose to a height of about three feet. Huge cakes of sawdust, some of them ten feet square, were thrown, and after floating forty or fifty feet, sank again. Logs were tossed about in the rough water like matchwood, and the barges were rocked to and fro in the heavy swells. After continuing for about half an hour, the water quieted down and resumed its normal condition. A boat crossed the river a few minutes afterwards. Had it done so earlier, it would have certainly been swamped and its occupants perhaps drowned.

Stewart's, Otonabee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

CROPS.—The crops in this vicinity are ripening very fast and farmers are very busy harvesting. Barley is very light and also late oats, which have been injured by frost; fall wheat is a fair crop and peas are extra good. Mr. Stewart cut 26 acres of fall wheat last week with one of Mr. P. Hamilton's binders, and the verdict of the here is that these binders can't be beaten.

Mr. John Deyell has erected a new barn, the frame work of which was raised on July 22nd. Things went along very slow until some ladies came along and then the boys spread themselves, and when Mr. Graham gave the word "lift" that barn went up in short order.

PERSONAL.—Mrs. Breese, of Rochester, N.Y., is visiting friends here and renewing old acquaintances. Miss Campbell, of Peterborough, is also spending a couple of weeks here.

Good Form in Dress

Social usage imposes certain rules as to dress which are carefully observed by men of good breeding and good sense.

Dress is not the most important object in life, but due observance of the rules of dress adds much to the comfort and refinement of life, and to a considerable extent, marks the difference between gentlemen and those who are not gentlemen.

Good form of dress is of course a matter of fashion and fashions vary. Should you ever be in doubt as to what is suitable call on us and we will give you safe advice on many controverted points, and on new fashions in attire that usually call for a good deal of consideration and caution. Therefore.—

DON'T go to extremes in your dress. Dress quietly. Overdressed men are always despised as frivolous.

DON'T be slovenly in your dress. Neatness is a duty you owe to society.

DON'T disregard that "good form" in dress which custom has fixed. Conformity to social usage in dress as well as in more essential matters is part of good manners.

DON'T wear a silk hat with a sack coat. It is a social crime.

DON'T above all things order your clothing until you have seen our stock. We show every desirable Fabric, Broadcloths, Cheviots, Doeskins, Tweeds, Fine, Plain and Fancy Worsteds, and as to Patterns—well, we can give you what you want, no matter what it is.

NATURAL GAS GUSHERS.

THE PROVINCIAL COMPANY'S EXTENDED OPERATIONS.

The Wells in the Niagara Peninsula Immense Output from the Completed Bores. What a Well is Like. Future of Natural Gas.

PORT COLBORNE, Aug. 4. The Provincial Natural Gas, Light and Fuel Company limited, has exclusive drilling rights over 40,000 acres of 75 square miles of land in the southern and eastern parts of the county of Welland. Although operations were commenced scarcely more than a year ago there are now 10 wells completed, with a combined capacity of 22,000 feet per day. There are also two wells approaching completion and another about to be commenced.

Of the ten wells which have been drilled eight are good producers. The wells are about a mile apart. The centre of the group is 11 miles from Buffalo, 13 miles from Niagara Falls, 10 miles from St. Catharines, 47 miles from Hamilton, and about 60 miles in a straight line from Toronto. The cost of piping is about $7000 a mile. An important factor in conducting gas great distances is the pressure it has at the well. So far the gauge has shown a rock pressure of over 500 feet to the inch.

The company commenced drilling in July, 1889, in the township of Bertie, on the farm of Philip Zavitz. The well was continued to a depth of 846 feet, when a flow equal to 1,500,000 cubic feet per day was obtained, with a rock pressure of 525 pounds. The second well, which is about half a mile north on Elmon Zavitz's farm, was not so successful. Drilling was stopped at 831 feet below the surface. This well produces 400,000 feet a day, and has a rock pressure of 540 pounds. About a mile to the west, in the township of Humberstone, the third well was sunk on Jonas Zavitz's farm. The capacity of this well is 700,000 feet per day. It has a rock pressure of 540 pounds, and is 826 feet deep. The farm of J. A. Ram den was chosen as the site for the fourth well. Better results were obtained here. The capacity of the well is 2,000,000 feet. It was continued to a depth of 856 feet and has 550 pounds pressure. This fifth well is a "gusher." It is in the township of Bertie, on the farm of Daniel T. Zavitz. The output of this well reaches the enormous figure of 7,000,000 feet per day, more than three times the total daily consumed in Toronto. It is a remarkable fact that the rock pressure of this well is lighter than some of the less productive, being 510 pounds to the inch. The depth is 842 feet. To compensate for this success the next well was a total failure, and has been abandoned by the company. The seventh, which is on the farm of Adam Smith, Humberstone, produces 2,500,000 feet, and has a depth of 830 feet. A second failure occurred on the farm of J. A. Barnhardt, Bertie, and the well was abandoned. The ninth well, situated on Daniel Noer's farm, Humberstone, yielded 2,000,000 feet at a depth of 850 feet. Well No. 10, the last that has been completed, is another "gusher." It blows 6,000,000 feet a day from a depth of 872 feet. Drilling is now in operation on the farms of C. Bitner, Bertie, and Trout Brothers, Humberstone. Both these wells are nearing completion. The thirteenth well has been located on the farm of Abram Michael, and drilling will be commenced shortly.

The average gas well in this region is a hole in the ground 5 inches in diameter and about 850 feet in depth. Through a close fitting iron casing to a depth of 650 feet, and a heavy rubber packing at the outside edge of the lower end. The casing and rubber packing are inserted for the purpose of preventing water in the upper strata from finding its way into the well. There is inside of the casing an iron tube through which the gas is conducted to the surface. This tube varies in size according to the capacity of the well. The whole is anchored down by means of heavy cross beams fitted in to the rock near the surface. The time occupied in drilling a well is about a month. The work is done by steam power generated in boilers which use natural gas for fuel. A derrick 73 feet high affords support for an immense walking beam. Attached to this is a rope which passes over a pulley and lifts the drill, a bar of steel forty feet in length. The work is carried on night and day. The average progress is 25 to 35 feet per diem, according to the nature of the strata penetrated.

Not only in Canada, but the world over, may the development of natural gas be said to be in its infancy. In the initial stages of the industry there has been much loss of labor and waste of gas, which experience is showing to be unnecessary. The chief drawback is the uncertainty as to the life of a well. Although it has been pointed out that a well at Port Colborne has been flowing gas for twenty-six years, it must be borne in mind that the flow has decreased very considerably since gas was first tapped. It is believed by scientists that there is an abundant supply for many years to come in the gas fields now known, should proper restrictions be adopted.

A FREE FIGHT.

Italians at Round Brook (N. J.) Engage in a Fatal Quarrel.

ROUND BROOK N.J. Aug 4. A terrific fight occurred in the Italian settlement known as the "gravel pit," in the outskirts of Round Brook, yesterday. Several years ago an Italian girl came to this country and began to work in the Round Brook mills. She was engaged to a lover in Italy, but in a short time was married to one of the Round Brook Italians. Yesterday a brother of the jilted lover visited Gravel Pit and met the faithless woman, who carried a child in her arms. He struck her over the head with a bottle. The husband interfered, and in a moment the two men were fighting. A free fight followed. The occupants of the shanties all turned out and fought viciously. All sorts of weapons, including heavy pieces of split railroad ties, spades, shovels, pickaxes and knives, were used. In a few minutes the ground was covered with bleeding and moaning victims. During the night two of the wounded men died in great agony. Others are in a dying condition. Five arrests were made.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

TURKESTAN'S RAPIDLY DEVELOPING COTTON TRADE.

The Approaching Russian Military Manœuvres—The Proceedings at the Medical Congress in Berlin—Measures to Prevent the Spread of Cholera.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 3.—General von Novsky, Minister of War, is increasing the means of transportation on the Caspian Railway. The rapid development of the cotton trade of Turkestan has resulted in a complete blockade of the depots along the line, the railway not having the facilities for transporting the cotton.

Over 100,000 troops will take part in the military manœuvres to be held before the Czar in Volhynia in September. Emperor William will arrive at the Peterhof Aug. 24. He will remain for three days and will return by sea to Germany.

The Doctors at Berlin.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—Professor Virchow, president of the Medical Congress, made the opening address. He expressed the Emperor's sympathy with the objects of the congress and said Germany would devote herself to science and humane effort. Two thousand four hundred Germans and 2500 foreign doctors, including 500 physicians from America, are present. Herr Von Boetticher made an address welcoming the delegates on behalf of the German States and Dr. Von Gossler welcomed them on behalf of the educational department. An address welcoming the delegates to Berlin was read by the burgomaster.

Another Mine Explosion.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—The mines at St. Etienne, at which the explosion occurred to-day, first took fire and the explosion followed. Twelve men were injured. The pit is known as the Ville Bœuf pit.

To Check Cholera.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—The Senate to-day voted 100,000 francs for establishing frontier posts to prevent entry of cholera into France.

France's Ultimatum

PARIS, Aug. 4. France has sent an ultimatum to Dahomey demanding the cession of Kotonou and Whydah. If the demand is rejected an expedition to be composed chiefly of Senegalese Arabs will start for Abomey in October.

Kaiser and Queen.

LONDON, Aug. 4. After luncheon the Queen and the Emperor had a long private interview. The Queen's dinner party, besides the Emperor and members of the Royal Family, included only Count von Hatzfeldt, the German Ambassador at London.

A DON JUAN'S FIVE WIVES.

Dozens of Women Victims of His Blandishments Revenge At Last.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Charles Loring, locked in the Court House jail here on a charge of bigamy, is accused of having five living wives, and the full list includes the names of a dozen women who have fallen victims to his blandishments. Thirty years of age, well educated, handsome and of excellent family, Loring has made a record scarce second to that of Don Juan.

He met Esther E. Bateson, a beautiful, dark-eyed Jewish maiden, who lived in Brighton, England, and in 1884 he married her. She is in Chicago now, intent on his punishment. She tells how she met Loring and married him in opposition to her parents' wishes. He told her he was in the employ of the telephone supply company and possessed a fortune of $150,000.

Loring then became entangled with a young woman in St. Paul and left his wife. He came to Chicago and secured a position with the Lake View Electric Light Company and established his wife in a comfortable home in that suburb. Just around the corner lived Aurelia Anderson, a handsome and accomplished blonde, with whom he eloped. They were married on Aug 11, 1889. About the same time the Lake View Electric Light Company missed $1500 which had been in Loring's hands.

Mrs. Loring No. 1 heard nothing of her husband's whereabouts. She was penniless, and managed to secure a position where she makes a comfortable living. Meantime Loring tired of his second wife, and one day last fall left her without warning, or means of support. He returned to Brighton, England, where he married Miss Bateson.

Here he met Miss Eurenta L. Winfield, a prepossessing young lady. He fascinated her and her parents with his captivating manners and tales of great wealth, and finally on the day Miss Winfield's brother was married Loring, and his latest love, after acting as best man and maid of honor, were themselves married.

She prepared to accompany him to America, but at the last moment it was discovered that the expected draft from Loring's American partner had not arrived. The new father-in-law pawned his jewelry for $150 and loaned the amount to Loring, who, with his bride and a ten-year-old girl, sailed for New York.

For a time they stopped at the best hotels and revelled in luxury, but finally Loring struck a streak of bad luck. His wife No. 3 pawned her wedding ring and a charity organization supported them. He subsequently left her destitute and fled to Denver.

Meanwhile Mrs. Loring No. 1 got on her false husband's track. She discovered his escapades with Miss Anderson and Miss Winfield, and also discovered that he had a family in Wheeling, W. Va., and another in Montana. Neither of these wives has been definitely located.

Through Loring's father his whereabouts were discovered, and Mrs Loring No. 1 concocted a scheme to have her revenge. Wife No. 3 was sent for and came to Chicago. Then a despatch was sent to Loring saying that Polly (No. 3) was dying, and having inherited some money, wanted to give it to him. Polly's deathbed was located at the corner of School and Forty-third-streets, where Loring sought her. There he was told his wife was in the hospital, where the lady of the house agreed to accompany him. He was then arrested.

Drowned at the Beach.

HAMILTON, Aug. 4. While bathing at the beach Sunday afternoon Max ("Slick") Bradt got beyond his depth and was drowned. He was an employe of Contractor Nicholson on the Grand Trunk spur line, and at the time of the drowning was with a son of his employer. Neither of the men could swim. The drowning occurred not 25 feet from shore. Capt. Armstrong recovered the body. Bradt has relatives in St. Catharines. He was married, his wife being on a visit to Buffalo.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

MONEY BYLAWS TO BE PRESENTED TO RATEPAYERS.

Fined for Kissing a Girl—Charged with Indecent Assault—The 28th Elections Petition—A Grand Trunk Conductor Killed—Robbed on the Empress.

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—There are seven bylaws to be presented for the endorsation of the ratepayers of Toronto to-morrow, aggregating a total of $729,353, outside of the University grant, $200,000. The three more important are the Waterworks Improvement, $329,770; General Permanent Improvements, $160,233; and the Parks Improvements, $79,240. The other items are $10,000 for the Howard memorial, $30,000 for Boys' Industrial School and $80,000 for Girls' Industrial School.

At the Police Court yesterday Thomas Rossiter, aged 57, giving his address as 26 William-street, was charged with indecently assaulting a young girl named Effie Pearl, who resides with her parents in the same house. The offence consisted of defendant putting his arms around the child's neck while meeting her in the passage on Sunday morning and kissing her against her will. Col. Denison told the accused that he must be taught that the law forbids any person, old or young, kissing little girls against their will, and fined him $1 and costs or 30 days.

William J. McLeod, laborer, was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with indecent assault. It appears that McLeod took Lilla, the 7-year-old daughter of his landlady, Mrs. Porter, 334 Front-street, to the Island with him, and while there induced the child to accompany him to a secluded spot, where he attempted the outrage. The child's screams attracted the attention of people in the vicinity and he was handed over to P. C. Wallace.

The 28th election petition was filed at Osgoode Hall yesterday in the shape of a cross-petition against David Porter, the Reform candidate who was defeated by John George. Mr. George's election was petitioned against some time ago.

Conductor Walter Powell, one of the oldest employes on the Grand Trunk, met with an awful death yesterday afternoon at Little York. Mr. Powell was attached to the Kingston mixed which leaves Toronto for the east at 12¾. His train reached Little York about 1 o'clock, remaining there five minutes. Conductor Powell, as the train slowed up, jumped from the rear coach toward the west end of the platform and walked along between the rails to the station for orders. He did not perceive the pilot engine, which was passing east at a rapid rate, behind him. Powell took a slanting walk towards the platform, and the moment he placed his foot across the rail, the engine struck him, cutting him in pieces.

Police Magistrate Denison has written to Mayor Clarke saying that he will refuse to accept any portion of his salary until he is paid in full.

A Louisville (Ky.) lady was relieved of $60 and her tickets on the Empress of India last night.

Coroner Powell yesterday afternoon, at M. McCabe's undertaking establishment, opened an inquest on the body of Thomas Butler, who died suddenly in the office of Dr. Wallwin the preceding night. Mr. Robert Fraser was foreman of the jury.

The only evidence taken was that of Vincent T. Bero of Queen-Dundas-streets, brother-in-law of the deceased; Dr. Wallwin, in whose office deceased died, and Dr. Primrose. The result of the post-mortem was not made public, but the coroner announced that Drs. Teskey and Wilberforce Aikins, who conducted it, and who had made a thorough examination, had informed him that all the organs were in a healthy state and there was no apparent cause for death discovered.

It was decided to adjourn the inquest until Monday, Aug. 11, and Coroner Powell will meantime submit the facts to the Attorney-General's department, with the request that the stomach be analyzed.

The burial certificate issued by Coroner Powell ascribed death as being due to narcotic poisoning, the testimony leading to this deduction.

The remains will be taken to Cobourg for interment via G.T.R. this morning. Deceased was only 21 years of age.

ONE MORE DAY.

Kemmler's Electrocution Probably Fixed for Wednesday Morning.

AUBURN, N.Y., Aug. 4.—This afternoon the Associated Press representative asked Warden Durston if it would be safe for a correspondent to absent himself from the vicinity of the prison two or three hours. "Why, certainly," was the response, "and I will say to you frankly that there will be nothing of importance within the next 24 hours." This was said at 4 o'clock this afternoon, hence the warden is authority for the statement that the death bolt will not be loosed at least until 4 o'clock to-morrow.

The execution will probably occur Wednesday morning.

A delicate point of law was to-day suggested here by a gentleman deep in legal lore. This suggestion was not the outgrowth of any personal interest, but is the outcome of careful perusal of the statute under which Kemmler has been sentenced, and of the form of the sentence that directs Kemmler shall be killed in the week beginning Monday, Aug. 4. Here is the point raised: That the week beginning Aug. 4 ends with Sunday. The warden has arbitrary power to defer the execution until Sunday, Aug. 10. On Sunday it is held that the general law would intervene to prevent the killing on that day upon the ground that any execution of legal processes upon Sunday is not legal.

Directly at this point the case is touched by that general principle of law that, if the sentence under which Kemmler is expected to be killed is void in part, it must be wholly void. Brought to a close application the assumption is that if it is illegal to kill Kemmler on the seventh day of the week designated, then it would be illegal to kill him on any other day of the week designated. The situation, it is held, would be different if Sunday intervened as part of seven days, because it would then run with the week and be a part of the seven days constituting the week.

As the case stands the week in which the sentence is to be executed will not be legally complete, because the week ends with a day void in law. Unless there is some general law which may bridge this point which is raised, the entire sentence, it is thought, might be declared null and void.

Garment Workers in Council.

ROCHESTER, Aug. 4.—The fifth annual convention of the garment workers of the United States and Canada was opened at the New Osborne House in this city this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A Strike Nipped in the Bud.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—The firemen on the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company's steamer Corsican struck work this morning upon their demand of an increase from $35 to $40 a month being refused. Under threat of arrest they returned to work before the firemen of the other ships joined them.

Fired by Lightning.

BEAVERTON, Aug. 4.—About 2½ this afternoon during a thunderstorm a barn belonging to John J. McRae, lot 15, 3d concession Thorah, was struck by lightning and consumed together with its contents. The premises were occupied by Henry Dawson, whose loss is about $250, no insurance. The barn was insured in the London Mutual for $400, which does not cover the loss.

The Carpenters' Convention

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America met in biennial convention here to-day with over 300 delegates present. President D. P. Rowland of Cincinnati occupied the chair.

Joe Medill's Summer Resort.

THE ARGENTINE CRISIS.

Portfolios Refused Under Calman—England Protests German Interests.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 4.—General Roca and Senor Costa, to whom were offered the portfolios of the Ministry of the Interior and the Ministry of Education respectively, have declined to accept office in President Celman's cabinet.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—At the request of the German Government England has ordered her men-of-war at Buenos Ayres to protect the interests of Germans.

Sullenly Refused.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 4.—Celman offered the city practical autonomy, which was sullenly refused.

Celman's Predicament.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Times' despatch from Buenos Ayres says: Vice-President Pellegrini threatens to resign. Celman has offered every post in the Cabinet to opposition leaders, but each has declined the offer. The officers of regiments recently opposed to each other now fraternize and declare that henceforth the troops will be united. The naval officers have resumed their commands. Policemen and firemen defend Celman's house against a surprise by the army.

The Central American War.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 4.—A San Salvador despatch says Gen. Trungarny at the head of the Guatemalan revolutionists has taken Chiquimula, near the capital, and this has obliged the Guatemalan Government to concentrate troops toward the capital. A Guatemalan despatch denies that an attempt was made to assassinate President Barillas and says the revolution is unimportant. It also says Minister Mizner's correspondence has not been tampered with and the Minister for days has been in free communication with the United States Government. A special from Guatemala says: The diplomatic corps has offered to negotiate in the interests of peace. The offer has been accepted and it is expected a peaceful settlement will be arranged within a few days.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets At Home And Abroad.

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—The wheat and corn crops do not promise to be as large as those of last year, but the prices will likely be at such a point that farmers will do better this year than last. In 1889 corn sold at 44c a bushel in New York, and now the price is 52c. Wheat sold at 85c this time last year, and now it sells at 96c. Last year oats were 28c and now they are sold at 38c.

There is a fair demand for flour, but prices are little changed. Extra is quoted at $4.20 to $4.25, and straight roller, $4.40 to $4.50, Toronto freights.

Wheat is in good demand; white 95c on Northern, spring, 93c to 95c on Midland.

The supply of eggs has not increased and prices are about as formerly quoted. From 15 to 17c, is the average, the former price being paid and the latter asked.

The supply of butter is fair. Round lots of good tub are bought at 12c, and sold at 14 and 15c.

The supply of pork is scarce, and $6.50 to $7 is paid per cwt.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Little Falls reports: There was a liberal sale of cheese yesterday and the market is in fully as good shape as a week ago. The shrinkage of milk is represented to be nearly one-third from the flush of the season and the cheeses are sold off to about July 12. Transactions were: 38 lots at 7c, 7 lots at 7¾c, 30 lots at 7¾c, 5 lots at 7¾c, 3 lots at 8c, 1 lot at 8¼c, 14 lots on commission. There were also 1635 boxes of farm dairy cheese sold at 7c to 8c, mostly at 7¾c to 7¾c. Sales of 34 packages of creamery butter were made at 17c, and 14 of farm dairy at 16c to 17c.

Utica reports: The cheese market yesterday recorded another decline, and the salesmen are inclined to feel blue regarding the prospects. There appears to be no active demand at present, and there seems to be no likelihood of improvement in the immediate future. The dry weather of the past several weeks has affected the pastures, and there has been quite a shrinkage in the production of milk. Transactions: 12 lots, 1208 boxes, at 7c; 70 lots, 7038 boxes, at 7¼c; 22 lots, 2237 boxes, at 7¾c; 31 lots, 3638 boxes, at 7¾c; 9 lots, 880 boxes, at 7¾c; 2 lots, 300 boxes, at 7¾c; 9 lots, 880 boxes, at 7¾c; two lots, 300 boxes, at 7¾c; 18 lots, 1957 boxes, on commission. Total 163 lots, 15,984 boxes, ruling price 7¾. Transactions same day last year aggregate 17,923 boxes, ruling price 8c.

BIRCHALL'S DEFENCE.

Eminent Counsel Retained by Benwell's Alleged Murderer.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 4.—Mr. George T. Blackstock, Q.C., has been retained as senior counsel for the defence in the Birchall case, says The Sentinel-Review. Messrs. Hellmuth & Ives of London will act as second counsel. Messrs. Fitzke, McKay & McMullen of this town have also been retained for the defence. A cablegram was are sived from Mr. Blackstock from Brighton, Eng., on Saturday night, signifying his acceptance of the retainer. Detective Bluett will remain in town until the trial is over.

CRICKETERS FOR ENGLAND.

America's Best Representatives to vie With the Britishers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—An American cricket team will visit the British Isles next year to contest for the supremacy of the grand old game. Ernest H. Crowhurst, representing The Philadelphia Inquirer and The New York World, is now on his way to England as America's representative. Mr. Crowhurst carries with him letters of introduction from officers of the local cricket clubs and committees, and also from the most prominent cricketers of this city and New York.

An outline of the proposed tour shows that the team will be away all of next season. Mr. Crowhurst has been instructed to arrange a full series of matches such as is now being played by the Australians. This includes three matches with All-England, two with the Gentlemen of England, two with the Players of England, two each with the North and South of England and with the Marylebone Club and one each with the counties of Yorkshire, Nottingham, Surrey, Gloucester, Middlesex, Sussex, Kent, Lancashire and the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. Matches will also be played with Lord Sheffield's and Lord Londsboro's elevens and with the Gentlemen of Ireland and Scotland. The tour so far as arranged will occupy about twenty weeks.

Monday Baseball.

Carlyle's Corrections.

Among the authors of the century Carlyle was one most exasperating to the printer. One day he went to his printer to rate him for some delay. "Why, sir," said the typesetter, "you really are so very hard upon us with your corrections. They take up so much time, you see." Carlyle replied that he was accustomed to that kind of an excuse—that he had had works printed in Scotland and—"Yes, indeed, sir," interrupted the printer, "we are aware of that. We have a man here from Edinburgh, and when he took up a bit of your copy he dropped it like a red-hot cinder, exclaiming, 'Oh preserve us! Have you got that man to print for? Gracious only knows when we shall be done with all his corrections.'"

The Daily Examiner.

MONDAY, AUGUST 4, 1890.

THE San Francisco Chamber of Commerce has declared itself strongly in favour of commercial reciprocity on the lines advocated by Secretary Blaine. Senator Plumb, of Kansas, though a Republican, assailed the tariff bill vigorously in the Senate at Washington on Friday.

MR. Alexander Begg, Colonization Commissioner of British Columbia, is en route for England to make arrangements for securing the settlement of between two and three thousand families of Scotch fishermen, crofters and mechanics. The Imperial Government is expected to advance £150,000 to assist in their emigration, British Columbia agreeing to guarantee to repayment of the advance.

THE Department of Agriculture has received information confirming the news respecting the distressful state of affairs in Western Dakota. The state of things there is so bad that a deputation was sent to Regina within a few days. As a consequence the Minister of Agriculture has authorized and directed the local immigration agent at Regina to proceed to Dakota in order to convey information as to the state of things on the American side. The deputation intimated that a very considerable number of immigrants, many of them misled Canadian-Dakota settlers, would come back with him.

SURPRISE is expressed in some quarters because Quebec newspapers seem more concerned about the Dominion debt than about the debt of the province. But remarks the Ottawa Free Press, there is nothing to be surprised about. Quebec owes fifteen millions of dollars of net debt on provincial account, but its share of the Dominion debt is about seventy-five million. The people of Quebec owe probably ten dollars per head on provincial account, but they owe fifty dollars per head on Dominion account. Hence it is reasonable that they should be more concerned about Dominion than about provincial indebtedness.

The Grain Crop.

The crop reports from Manitoba and the North-West are of the most favourable character. The weather during the past week appears to have been all that could be desired for ripening the growing grain. Here and there in Manitoba, small parcels of wheat have been cut, but newspaper estimates given of the crop in different districts are, to a large extent, mere guesses. While the straw may look well and every indication be favourable now, the weight of the grain can only be determined after threshing, the result of which is often disappointing. If the grain has the right sort of weather during the three weeks before cutting it will be plump, otherwise it may be the reverse; it is, therefore, too early to make any reliable estimate of the number of bushels. Again, should the present condition be satisfactory, there is still possible frost, a very serious factor in estimating value. However, as we have already said, thus far the indication is one full of promise. In Ontario there is excellent promise of wheat; indeed much of the wheat and barley in the southern portion has already been cut, with apparently satisfactory results. The oat crop in this Province appears to be short; it shows signs of blight in many places. In the Province of Quebec, too, this crop is a poor one, and the fact has already occasioned a marked advance in price. Hay appears to have given an abundant yield in both these Provinces. Potatoes are disappointing in a good many localities.

Millions in Trees.

The Forests of Ontario and How They are Preserved.

(London Advertiser.)

An Advertiser reporter lately had an interview with Mr. Phipps as to the state of Forestry in Ontario, and commenced by asking him what had been done in the matter.

"As you know," Mr. Phipps replied, "the Ontario Government some years ago, wishing to arouse an interest in the preservation of what bush land yet remained among our farms, commissioned me to do what I could in the matter. I was chosen, as I had for years back, at my own expense, endeavoured to move in this direction, by the publication of letters and articles, advocating as best I could the preservation of some of our forests. Since then I have issued annual reports, giving all information I could secure on forestry. I have also sent numbers of letters to the Ontario press, some years publishing 500 of them in different papers; and I have addressed a great number of meetings on the subject."

"And do you find," asked the reporter, "that these efforts are meeting with success?"

"Most decidedly," answered the Forestry Commissioner. "Not only once, but I think I may say in hundreds of cases, people have said to me that the windbreaks or small plantations they were planting would not have been attempted but for the literature I had circulated, and which they had read. Moreover, the lectures have an appreciable effect."

"Is the Ontario Government," asked the reporter, "doing much to preserve the timber forests?"

"You will frequently see," answered the Forester, "attacks in the Opposition press on the Local Government for doing nothing to preserve the forests. But the fact is that, of all the Provinces and States of North America, Ontario is doing the most to preserve the forests. Government pay every year a large amount for a force of fire rangers (the lumbermen paying an equal sum). These men, numbering 60 or 70, patrol the forests in all directions, and prevent a great number of fires which would undoubtedly otherwise occur. As far as I can discover, this is done in no part of North America except Ontario. It is also the business of these men to inculcate carefulness in campers-out and settlers in putting out fires, and no doubt the knowledge that they are at hand has much influence in producing greater care in this respect, as it is always possible that prosecutions may follow."

"And do these precautions," asked the reporter, "secure the desired effect?"

"People who look at this from the outside," answered Mr. Phipps, "appear to think it a very easy thing for a Government to preserve the forests, but when they understand a little more about it they can better appreciate the difficulties. Suppose a dissatisfied employe of a lumberman determined, in spite, to burn some of his employer's limits, it is doubtful whether the fire-rangers could prevent him. Or, as has, it is said, happened, suppose a squatter, hard up needs work. He has obtained it by firing the bush, for the owner must then secure hands to save what logs he can before the borer (a very destructive insect) fills them with round holes. But, nevertheless, it is very much better than when there were no rangers, for there is always now the possibility of detection. Then, as to camping out of sportsmen or lumberers, there is nothing to prevent the fire ranger following and fining them if they leave fires burning; and in this way I have no doubt much good is done."

"What is the general effect," asked the reporter, "of all this?"

"I think," answered the Forester, "that you may say we have aroused public opinion. I know this, that long ago, when a young man, engaged in clearing farms for myself, had there been such forestry literature available as the Ontario Government now circulates, I should have acted in a very different manner. But we had then nothing of the sort, and we committed much injury in clearing land we had better have left untouched. I have no doubt, therefore, that good is being done now."

"What else?" asked the reporter, "is being done?"

"Years ago," said Mr. Phipps, "the Ontario Government passed an act promising to pay a certain sum (25 cents, in fact,) for each tree planted in rows, 20 feet apart and in a good state in three years, conditionally that a township council should adopt the act, and pay one-half the expense. Many thousands of trees have been planted by reason of this act."

"What is there in the statement," asked the scribe, "that the Government are selling off the timber lands recklessly?"

"The recklessness is largely in the statement," said the Forester. "These lands cannot be said to be sold. The right to cut is sold, but each stick cut must pay its dues when it is cut. Many of these lands sold, as it is called, a long time ago, still pay a yearly revenue to the Government."

"What further steps could you suggest?" was next asked.

"I have no doubt," was the answer, "that in time to come America will, as they do in much of Europe, plant yearly as much forest as she cuts down. I would like to see it done now; but it is too advanced a step. In the meantime, I should like to see a forest reservation, from which timber might, with certain ease, be sold when mature; but from which settlers and their cattle should be excluded, formed near the head waters of some of our rivers, say up in the Nipissing territory. It would need fifteen or twenty townships, and no one would lose thereby, as much of it would be far better in the forest than in farm, while we have plenty of land for settlement elsewhere. Then I would like to see a large nursery established to give farmers young forest trees on condition that they care for them properly. This is done in some countries with good effect. I have no doubt both these things will be done in time; but in the meanwhile time is lost. It is, however, impossible to move far in advance of public opinion; but this is rapidly becoming educated on the subject, and will soon be ready for more energetic action."

FATAL RUNAWAY.

A Little Girl Killed and Several People Hurt by a Runaway at Hagersville.

HAGERSVILLE, Aug. 2.—Yesterday at an early hour as Mrs. Lynch, wife of one of our leading merchants, together with her four little girls and her two sisters, the Misses Murphy of Cayuga, were driving into town, from the last named place, the horse, becoming frightened, shied to one side, tipping the carriage over into a deep ditch. The horse, finding himself unable to rise, began to kick. Mrs. Lynch and two of the little girls received several blows about the head. One little girl, Zita, aged 3 years, received a severe kick just over the left eye and died in a few minutes. The rest of the party, although badly shaken up, are in a fair way toward recovery.

Cut Almost in Two, Yet Lived

GREENSBORO, N.C., Aug. 2.—A negro named Schofield Gault was killed on the Richmond & Danville Railroad here yesterday. His body was cut almost completely in two at the waist, only a shred of muscle holding the two parts together. The wheels of two cars and a tender passed over him, yet when the train stopped he told the hands how to take him out. He was laid on a sled and lived and talked calmly and rationally of his injuries for an hour. Occasionally he would glance at the mutilated parts of his body. The first of his relatives to reach him was his aged grandmother, who dropped dead after looking upon his injuries.

Crushed in a Coal Shaft.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Aug. 2.—John O. Boyle and Charles Mulhern were killed to-day in the shaft of the Packer colliery. The engineer lowered instead of hoisting the cage, and the miners were crushed in the bottom.

Boy Cut in Two by a Train.

PATERSON, N.J., Aug. 2.—Frank Tamber, aged 15, was cut in two by an Erie train at the River-street crossing in this city to-day. The fatality occurred within a short distance of the spot where five children were run down Tuesday last, three of them being killed. Tamber's death was seen by about 30 persons.

Kicked by a Horse.

DUNDAS, Aug. 3.—Rev. W. J. Connor of the English Church met with a painful accident a few days ago. His horse had broken loose from the stable during the night and was found in the road in the morning. In attempting to drive the animal in, Mr. Connor received his hands, and at that moment received the full force of a kick in the mouth. A doctor was called at once, and it was found that three teeth were broken out in the upper jaw, and two hanging loose in the lower jaw, which were pushed back. The under lip was cut through, and had to be stitched, while the upper jaw was fractured. The reverend gentleman will be laid up for some time.

ROBERTSON AND GIBSON.

GRAND AND DEPUTY GRAND MASTER OF THE FREEMASONS.

Short Sketches of Their Careers—Both are Canadians and Distinguished John Ross Robertson is devoting his life to the interests of the Order.

The head of the order of Freemasons in this province to-day is John Ross Robertson of Toronto. At the recent meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Masonic fraternity in Kingston, Mr. Robertson was elected to fill the coveted position of Grand Master. Without a doubt he is truly worthy of the honor conferred upon him. This can be seen at once in the manner in which he was elected, which was almost unanimous. John Ross Robertson has been identified with the Masonic body in this country for over a quarter of a century. He has risen step by step until he can hardly go any higher. As early as 1867 he received the sublime degree of a master mason in King Solomon's lodge Toronto. This was his first step towards the high pinnacle of the grand mastership. In four years time in 1871—he was elected to the mastership of his lodge, and about the same time received the same honor from Mimico Lodge at Lambton Mills. He attended grand lodge for many sessions, but not until 1880 did he become an office bearer.

The first position he then occupied was that of grand steward. In 1882 he was elected grand senior warden. Since that date and up to last year he held the position of Chairman of the Committee on the condition of masonry, one of the most important offices in the lodge. In 1886-7 Mr. Robertson superintended the 11th (Toronto) Masonic district. He was also chairman of the committee on redistribution of districts. This work entailed many months labor, but was carried out in an eminently satisfactory manner under the guidance of the able chairman. In 1888 by an unanimous vote Mr. Robertson was elected Deputy Grand Master. Last year he was re-elected.

Mr. Robertson was initiated into the Royal Arch Chapter King Solomon, No. 8, as early as 1868. For two years subsequently he held the position of the first principal. In 1881 he was elected grand superintendant of the Toronto district. Ever since this date he has been chairman on the condition of capitular masonry. He has also held the office of grand scribe, N., and is a member of executive council of the grand chapter up to the present time.

JOHN ROSS ROBERTSON.

In 1876 he joined the Knights Templar body in Ode de St. Amand Preceptory, Toronto, and later occupied the position of eminent preceptor of the same. He is also a member of Geoffrey de St. Aldermar Preceptory. In 1885 he was elected provincial prior for Toronto district and for six or seven years has been chairman on the condition of the Templar order and a member of the grand council.

In Cryptic masonry he occupied the chair of Adoniram council of Royal and Select Masters, No. 2, and was inspector general for the Toronto district and subsequently for two years was grand master of the Cryptic rite in the dominion and at present is the grand recorder.

In the A. A. Scottish rite the grand master is a member of the Toronto lodge of Perfection, and the Rose Croix chapter, and the Moore Sovereign Consistory of Hamilton, 33°.

He has been grand master of the order of Rome and Constantine and grand master of the degree of Royal Arch Mariners, as well as holding office in the Order of the Rosicrucians.

Mr. Roberston is also the honorary deputy grand master of the Sovereign Priory of Victoria, Australia. He has made many valuable contributions toward the literature of the order, and is one of the foremost masonic historians of this country. For many years Mr. Robertson has been collecting masonic literature, and he already a vast collection of records and manuscripts relating to the craft in years gone by. Many of these he has caused to be published in the Toronto Telegram. His published works so far are "History of the Cryptic Rite in Canada" which appeared some time two years ago, and "History of the Knight Templars in Canada" which has only just been issued. Mr. Robertson has in preparation a history of Royal Arch Masonry.

The subject of this sketch is a son of the late John Robertson, wholesale dry goods merchant of Toronto. He was born in the Queen City on Dec. 28th 1841. He received part of his education at Upper Canada College. Immediately on leaving his studies he entered the journalistic world. He had already showed great aptitude for this profession having issued a small monthly college paper during his schooldays. For some time he acquired the stock as a compositor in his father's office. He commenced reportorial work on the staff of the Daily Leader. After this he went to the tribune and here filled the editorial, or the position of city editor for a few years. He then attempted to start a paper of his own, the Daily Telegraph, but it was a failure, and died a natural death in 1872.

Four years later, however, he founded the present Evening Telegram which has been a great success ever since its birth. Mr. Robertson although owner of probably the best paying investment in the province seems to devote more and more time to his masonic work than to his journalistic duties.

To him in a great measure, can be attributed the unqualified success in the various offices of the distinguished and world wide order.

DEPUTY GRAND MASTER GIBSON.

Colonel John Morrison Gibson, late provincial secretary in the Ontario Cabinet has been chosen as right hand to Grand Master John Ross Robertson. He was elected to fill the second highest position in the grand lodge, that of Deputy Grand Master, Col. Gibson has been a prominent mason for many years. He was the first master of Temple Lodge, Hamilton. He was also master of Strict Observance Lodge, Hamilton, and is a past first principal of St. John's Royal Arch Chapter. He is a past grand superintendant of the Hamilton district of the grand chapter of Canada and a past district deputy grand Master of the Chapter of Canada. He has also been commander-in-chief of the Provincial Consistory of the Scottish Rite and is a member of the Supreme Council of that Rite in the Dominion. He has occupied many other important positions in the order. Col. Gibson is a son of the late William Gibson, who emigrated to Canada in 1827 from Scotland. The son was born in the township of Toronto, Peel County, Jan. 1st 1842. He was educated at the Hamilton Central School and Toronto University. He graduated in 1863 with high honors, taking the Prince of Wales' prize and a number of medals. He studied law and was called to the bar in 1865. After taking the University law course, the degree of L. L. D. was conferred upon him and he also secured the gold medal of the Faculty in 1869. Col. Gibson has all his life time been identified with the militia of Canada. He saw active service both in 1861 at the Trent affair and in 1866 during the Fenian raid. He has risen from the grade of private to that of Lieut-Colonel. Col. Gibson has a very high reputation as a rifleman and has represented the Dominion four times at Wimbledon. In 1879 he carried off the Prince of Wales prize, second only in value and honor to the Queen's prize. He has commanded the Canadian rifle team both at Wimbledon and at Creedmoor, when the American team was defeated. Col. Gibson has been President of the Ontario Rifle Association, a member of the Executive Council of the Dominion Rifle Association and President of the Victoria Rifle Club Hamilton for several years. He has also been chairman of the Hamilton Board of Education. Senator of Toronto University and Examiner in the Faculty of Law. He has been a shining light in provincial politics for many years, and suffered defeat for the first time at the last general elections. Col. Gibson has been married three times. His election as Deputy Grand Master at the recent session of the Grand Lodge was a very popular one. Without a doubt he will fill the office, and that of Grand Master, which he will in a year or two be called upon to take as he has done the many high and honorable positions he has occupied during his useful lifetime.—C. H. T. Byng-Hall.

LIEUT. COL. J. M. GIBSON.

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,709,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $218,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how much a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,684,376	3.07
Confederation	17,874,828	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,056,537	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,917	10.36
North American	8,470,230	10.66
Temperance and General	2,894,972	17.94
Citizens	2,087,956	23.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,722,100	30.12
London Life	1,644,286	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 20 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

The Stolen Revolvers.

Chief Riddel received a letter this morning from the chief of police, Perth, stating that three tramps had been arrested at that place for burglary, and that there were found on their persons several revolvers corresponding to these stolen from Muckleston & Co's hardware store about the end of June. It is probable that one of the employees of the firm, Mr. Loucks, will go to Perth to identify the goods.

The Late Hugh Quirk.

Intelligence has been received of the death of Mr. Hugh Quirk formerly of this town, at Barrie on Saturday, his death resulting from the effects of an attack of la grippe. Deceased was a former resident and business man of Peterborough, and a member of Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows, and also of the Masonic Order, Peterborough I. dge A. F. & A. M. The former instructed the Barrie Lodge of Oddfellows to undertake the funeral. Mr. Quirk was insured in the Confederation Life for $2,500 of which his widow and two or three small children get the benefit.

Ontario Telephone Company.

A meeting of the Street Committee was held at the council chamber last night, at which the superintendent of the Ontario Telephone Company (the title of the new organization) was heard. He produced a map of the proposed route through the town. After the matter had been discussed, a motion was passed by the committee allowing the telephone company to erect poles on the route as shown on the map produced, which, was ordered to be passed on file. A meeting of the directors of the company was held at the office of the solicitors, Messrs. Donelstown & Stevenson, to consider details of preparation for beginning active operations

Ashburnham Council.

There was a regular meeting of the Ashburnham village council last night. The reeve presided. Not much business demanded attention. A number of accounts were passed. A motion was agreed to, for the removal of gravel from Euclid avenue for placing on the adjacent streets. The clerk was instructed to draw the attention of the authorities of St. Joseph's Hospital, to the condition of the surface drain from the building which flowed upon Elizabeth street to the detriment of its condition. The council adjourned till the 18th when they will meet to strike the rate.

Handicapped.

The Central Iron Bridge Works, are compelled to reduce their staff largely and may perhaps have to shut down entirely. The works are thronged with orders, but material ordered from Glasgow, failing to arrive, necessitates the suspension of work. It is a serious matter to the some hundred hands employed, that their horny hands have to grow soft in enforced idleness when there is plenty of work for them if they only had material. And it shows there is something wrong in our economic affairs when a large factory, employing so many hands has to suspend business temporarily on account of lack of material, when there is enough iron lying undeveloped in the mines a stone's throw from Peterborough, to keep a dozen bridge works employed a hundred years. O yes; the protective tariff is a great thing for the workingman.

Chemong Park Notes.

Mr. Robertson, auditor of the Pullman Palace Car Co., Chicago, was the guest of Mr. Lewis last week. He succeeded in landing some very fine lunge from Chemong Lake. Mr. Robertson returned to Chicago Saturday, well pleased with his outing.

The Campbellford excursion goes to Chemong Park 20th August.

A large brick hotel will be erected in the Park ready for next summer's business.

Mr. Thos. Rutherford caught some large lunge last week opposite the Park.

Mrs Geo. Clexton hooked a beauty in the bay, near the Park, Friday evening.

Mrs. F. Brignall and two daughters, of Belleville, are the guests of Mrs. Alex. Elliott.

Scott's stage coach is crowded every day, and the Park is booming.

The cottagers do not neglect their religious duties. A religious service is held in one of the tents every Sunday morning. A movement is on foot to build a chapel. At an informal meeting, after Sunday's service, $20 was promised.

Hot For Belleville.

The E.B.A. and C.M.B.A. of Peterborough will run a joint excursion to Belleville, by special train, on civic holiday, Thursday, August 14th. The committee have secured the splendid agricultural grounds for the day, where a complete programme of athletic sports will be carried out, and a baseball match will be played between the Nimbie Nine, of Belleville, and the Peterborough team. A spacious pavilion will also be erected and provided with music for dancing. Excursionists may also enjoy the pleasure of a sail on the Bay of Quinte; boats leave the city every hour for Massassaga Park. Train leaves Peterborough at 7 a.m. sharp, calling at Hastings 8.15 a.m., Campbellford 8.45 a.m. Returning, train will leave Belleville at 7 p.m. Fare from Peterborough for round trip $1 00; children under 12 half price. Tickets from Hastings, 80c.; Campbellford, 75c. Tickets may be procured from any member of the committee in town; P. Brennan, Hastings, and M. Galvin Campbellford.

Best and First on the List.

It is a well known fact. Therefore it need not be any great surprise to the citizens of our town to know that the best on the list of excursions leaving our town on Civic Holiday is bound for Belleville under the joint management of the C.M.B.A. and E. B.A. Societies. Kindly remember that the excursion goes by special train at seven a.m. sharp, leaving Belleville at seven p.m. You must also bear in mind that your ticket is good for two days. All those seeking a good day's sport should procure their tickets at once. All they cost is just one dollar for return trip. Everybody can rest assured that the price is exceeding low, and you can have a train load of sport. Ball match and other good amusement. Or if you prefer sailing or fishing you can secure a boat and have as good a place for either as there is in Ontario. The committee has made all arrangements for the comfort of our patrons. Everybody is going, so I might as well be with them, because one dollar is not much for such a trip, I tell you. You can procure tickets from the following members of the committee: D. Brennan, Ed. O'Neil, W. J. Devlin, Dr. Molloy, John Donovan, O. H. Giroux, Dr. McGrath P. McHugh, M. C. Collins, John McGrath, Jas. Drain, J. J. Lynch.

Personal.

Rev. Father Smith, of New Jersey, of the Carmelite Order, is preaching a retreat to the Sisters of St. Joseph at the Hospital. He preached in the Cathedral on Sunday.

Mrs. Percival A. Hunter, of Fort Gratiot, Mich., who has been in attendance on her mother, Mrs. Francis Pothick, who has been very ill in St. John's hospital, Toronto, has returned home after a five month's stay. She has left her mother rapidly recovering at her home in Smithtown.

There is quite a colony of Peterborough people at Parry Harbour. Mr. G. G. Gladman and family and Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald and family are permanent residents, and the temporary residents are Miss Stapleton, Mrs. H. C. Stapleton, Miss Gladman and Miss V. Gladman. Mr. J. L. Gower, manager of the bank of Toronto, here, is staying at the Thompson House, Parry Harbour. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Rubidge, and Miss Schultz, of Chicago, returned to town last night after a fortnight's visit to Parry Harbour, where they were the guests of Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald.

Police Court.

AUGUST 5th, 1890.

P. M. Dumble on the bench. George Wheeler, charged with being interested, was fined $2 which he paid.

Thomas Carruthers, a former employee of the Peterboro Laundry, Graham & Co., was charged with larceny under two counts. The first was the theft of a pair of kid gloves from James Graham. The second charge was the larceny of articles from the Peterboro laundry where he had been working in the erection of new machinery. On Thursday he finished his work and on Monday started for Toronto, and had his box at the station. Several articles having been missed, Chief Rossel went to the station and arrested Carruthers. His trunk was searched and in it were found a lot of articles, consisting of four silk handkerchiefs, one linen handkerchief, nineteen collars, eight cuffs, five white shirts, two flannel shirts, one silk shirt, four undershirts, one pair drawers, one night shirt, and three pairs of socks. Carruthers was arraigned at the police court this morning and pleaded drink in extenuation or, rather, excuse of his guilt which he admitted. Carruthers is a very decent appearing young man, and comes from Toronto. Mr. G. W. Hatton conducted the prosecution. The prisoner was undefended. Sentence was deferred till to-morrow morning.

Personalty and Income Taxes.

Toronto Globe.

Toronto business men seem to favor the proposal to substitute a business tax proportioned to rent for the present tax upon merchandise. Not only is it difficult to assess personal property with accuracy, but the difficulty is especially great in the case of a merchant's stock. In fact a true assessment cannot be made, except by a person conversant with the business. A stock of dry goods, groceries or hardware can be valued only by a person who has himself bought and sold those commodities. An ordinary assessor must either content himself with guesswork or rely upon the word of the merchant. The more honest the merchant is the more heavily he is taxed, and thus a premium is put upon dishonesty. Moreover, the business man often dislikes to reveal his financial position to the world, and thus as Mr. Hugh Blain says, merchants in Toronto "have paid taxes on a large assessment when they were really insolvent rather than appeal against the assessment and expose the condition of their business."

The objections of unfairness and uncertainty which are urged against the tax on personalty hold also against the income tax. This tax is favored by some distinguished writers on finance; but they assume that the amount of incomes can be accurately ascertained, and that the tax shall bear more heavily on the rich than on the poor; some of them even going so far as to advocate that the rate of taxation upon large incomes shall be higher than upon small incomes. In Toronto none of these conditions are fulfilled. The only persons whose incomes can be or in practice are ascertained are those employees whose names appear on pay-rolls—all persons of moderate means. Incomes running from $700 to $1,500 are taxed without mercy, while the larger incomes escape. A few years ago the Globe published a list of the income taxes paid by leading lawyers and other wealthy men in the City of Toronto, and it was shown that the assessment was a perfect farce. The amount of income now assessed in the City of Toronto is a little over five million dollars, and the revenue derived from it is so small that it abolition would make little disturbance in the civic finances.

Where the Money Goes.

Figures That Will Stand Careful Investigation.

(Belleville Ontario.)

Ald. L. W. Yeomans, in discussing the sums of money spent by Belleville and other Ontario cities of the same size for similar service, brought out the following figures which will prove of interest to the thoughtful, calculating ratepayers of our city, and will help to explain why taxes are so high:

From auditors report 1889, for lighting the following cities:

	Population	Cost of Lighting
Brantford	13,000	$5,677 70
St Thomas	10,000	4,046 26
Stratford	10,000	3,477 38
Woodstock	9,000	3,356 36
Peterborough	10,000	3,398 34
Average cost in above places		$4,089 40
Belleville, 1889		10,000 00

The city treasurer, R. Tannahill, Esq., furnished the following statement of six years expenditure for water and gas:—

Coal Water and Gas	$5 151 34
1885 " "	5,709 18
1886 " "	5,496 46
1887 " "	7,212 02
1888 " "	7,253 98
1889 " "	7,451 53

The expenditure of 1889 must be added the sum of $146 06 now charged to fire dep't and $185 charged to market, both of these items being included in general expenditure prior to 1887. Making the expenditure of 1889, $8 055.59 against $5,433.33 average of '84, '85 '86.

In the foregoing tables it will be seen that Belleville has a long lead on the other cities.

Last April Ald. Yeomans submitted a statement to the council, showing the salaries paid clerks, treasurer, solicitors, assessors, collectors, street surveyors, engineers, fire chief and assistants in St. Toumas, Peterborough, Guelph, Stratford and Woodstock, and Belleville was again ahead. The total sum paid in salaries to these officers are as follows:

St. Thomas, $4 200; Peterborough, $3 675; Guelph, $3 225; Stratford, $3,044; Woodstock, $2 775; Belleville, $5,800.

It would seem from these figures that a good share of the burden of taxes that the people of Belleville complain so bitterly about are caused by the way the affairs of the city are managed. No doubt the aldermen have done the best they know how, but the result of bad management has cost the city many a dollar and will continue to be a burden until the people are awakened to the necessity of putting capable and honest men in the council. It will cost no more to elect good men than to elect figure heads, so far as the expense of the election goes, but a body of capable men would soon reduce the running expenses, and lessen exorbitant local taxes.

THEY PAWHIDED THE COUNT.

Mrs. Price and Her Sister Beat Gallant Achille Vidal.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Count Achille Vidal, who two weeks ago was nearly pounded to death by Sol Price and the latter's burly brother, received a vigorous cowhiding last evening. The punishment was received at the hands of Mrs. Price and her sister. The Count, who is a notorious gallant, received a daintily written note, signed Marie, making an appointment at 8½ o'clock. He was on hand to meet the fair unknown, when he was confronted by the two women, who began to lay on the rawhides. With a shriek of pain Vidal beat a hasty and ungraceful retreat, closely followed by the women.

A few weeks ago the Count was compelled by Sol Price to take a mikair jump from a second story window and later had his beauty disfigured in a fight. Until yesterday the Count had disappeared from public gaze. So had Mrs. Price, whose friskiness had caused all the trouble. Mr. Price sued for a divorce from his wife the day after he forced the gay Count to jump through the window, but it would seem that he has since patched up the difficulty with the gay Mrs. Price, and she has been restored to her old place in his affections. This rawhiding may have been Mrs. Price's affidavit that she is no longer in love with the Count.

DESTRUCTIVE HAILSTORM.

It Is Estimated 100 000 Acres of Manitoba Wheat Are Ruined.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 4.—Fuller accounts of the damage done by the storm on Friday night have been received, and show the loss to the wheat crops to be greater than at first reported. At Deloraine, 200 miles south of Winnipeg, the hail belt is said to have been four townships wide, narrowing down to a mile and a half as it proceeded east, leaving destruction in its wake. Mr. Ogilvie's manager here says that 100,000 acres of wheat have been totally ruined. So far reports have only been received from the principal towns along the Canadian Pacific Southwestern Railway, and it is impossible to say yet just how extensive the damage is, but certainly it is very serious.

A Boissevain despatch says: Yesterday about 13 o'clock the sky darkened like a total eclipse. Half-an-hour later a severe lightning storm began. There was a deluge of water which continued to 22 o'clock. In town glass was once more badly wrecked and the Ryan House was unroofed. Crops are badly damaged south of the track. Very little is destroyed north.

Mr. Shaughnessy's Estimate.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4. Mr. T. G. Shaughnessy, assistant president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, estimates on the basis of recent telegrams that the Northwest grain crop will amount to 17,000,000 bushels, of which 12,000,000 will be for export.

INCENDIARISM SUSPECTED.

A Mysterious Fire at London the Loss—The Loss Estimated at $10,000.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 4.—Another mysterious fire occurred this morning, which was most disastrous in its results. The watchman at Minhinnick's old oil refinery noticed a blaze proceeding from the roof of Lawrason's lard oil manufactory about 5 o'clock this morning and telephoned to both fire stations and the brigades were promptly on hand, but they were unable to do anything but save adjoining buildings. The proprietors place their loss at about $10,000. They are at an entire loss to account for the fire unless it was incendiarism.

THE NEW BISHOP OF LONDON.

Dean O'Connor of Sandwich Appointed to the Vacant See.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The Catholic Union has the following cable from Rome:

Rev. Dennis O'Connor of Sandwich, Ont., Superior of the Basilian Fathers, has been appointed Bishop of London, Ont., to succeed Most Rev. John Walsh, who was made Archbishop of Toronto last year.

By decree of the Holy Office the faithful will be allowed the use of fresh meat on Friday, Aug. 15. The dispensation is granted in honor of the feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin.

A Terrible Storm.

HAMMOND, Ind., Aug. 4. Yesterday's downpour of rain was the heaviest in the history of this section. The damage in the town is great. Huge trees were torn up by the roots and carried away, fences were swept out of existence, orchards obliterated and everything in the path of the tempest destroyed. The rotary velocity of the wind was terrific, and it progressed forward at the rate of sixty miles an hour. The west wing of the building leased by the Chicago Ax Company was blown over and completely destroyed. The roof of the Lutheran church was badly damaged by a falling chimney. The ice house at Wolf Lake, two miles from here, was lifted from its foundation and destroyed, and it is reported several people who sought shelter there were killed and injured. A man named Fisher was struck by flying timbers and had his leg broken and is internally injured.

The Windsor Boodle Investigation.

WINDSOR, Aug. 4.—Judge Horne's chambers were crowded this morning with citizens who came to hear evidence in the Dougall-avenue boodle sewer investigation. The charges are to the effect that John Harman and Patrick Egan, councillors of the town of Windsor, together with Joseph Begurse, town engineer, and R. G. Davis, a town employe, conspired and agreed together to obstruct and defeat the awarding of a contract to Contractor Mangan by intimidation of bondsmen, and that they were actuated by corrupt and improper motives. Several witnesses gave their testimony to-day. The investigation will occupy several days.

Equal Rights.

The topic of the day and that which we all want is not only Equal Rights in a political sense of the word, but in many others. Here are people throwing away their hard earned money, with unprincipled houses who do not as much as thank them for it. Why should they do it? Why not call on W. J. Morrow, where you are received courteously, your money placed to a good advantage and you are placed on a solid basis in future for buying cheap groceries. dw

Direct From Glasgow.

Just received direct from Collins, Sons & Co., Glasgow, Scotland, five cases of stationery goods and books, containing a splendid assortment of the latest and most complete editions of English Church hymns and prayer books. Good Form in Dress

Social usage imposes certain rules as to dress which are carefully observed by men of good breeding and good sense.

Dress is not the most important object in life, but due observance of the rules of dress adds much to the comfort and refinement of life, and to a considerable extent, marks the difference between gentlemen and those who are not gentlemen.

Good form of dress is of course a matter of fashion and fashions vary. Should you ever be in doubt as to what is suitable call on us and we will give you safe advice on many controverted points, and on new fashions in attire that usually call for a good deal of consideration and caution. Therefore,—

DON'T go to extremes in your dress. Dress quietly. Overdressed men are always despised as frivolous.

DON'T be slovenly in your dress. Neatness is a duty you owe to society.

DON'T disregard that "good form" in dress which custom has fixed. Conformity to social usage in dress as well as in more essential matters is part of good manners.

DON'T wear a silk hat with a sack coat. It is a social crime.

DON'T take all things order your clothing until you have seen our stock. We show every desirable Fabric, Broadcloths, Cheviots, Deerkins, Tweeds, Fine, Plain and Fancy Worsteds, and as to Patterns—well, we can give you what you want, no matter what it is.

PROBABLY DIES TO-DAY.

KEMMLER'S EXECUTION EXPECTED BETWEEN DAWN AND DUSK.

The Doomed Man's Parting With Mrs. Durston Electrician Barnes to be Examined for Talking to the Newspapers The Warden's Secrecy

AUBURN, Aug. 5. Kemmler's execution has been postponed until to-morrow forenoon, or possibly to-morrow night. The doctors who have been in consultation have returned to their rooms at the hotel and gone to bed.

By exercise of an absolute discretion the prison warden has added two days to Kemmler's life and the second day has closed with clouds and rain. No one besides the warden and his guests, and not all of them, at twilight could tell when Kemmler's death should come. The invited guests have been arriving by train at intervals during the day, the first being the Buffalo contingent, and it is a large one. Al. Smith, Lead was for, A. P. Southwick, who drew the jail under which this electricizing is to be done. Dr. C. F. McDonald, chairman of the State Lunacy Commission, came during the forenoon. At 11 o'clock most all the witnesses had gone to bed and there was no one around except a few stragglers and the newspaper correspondents.

When the first mail was delivered this morning a letter carrier went to the jail with a letter addressed to "William Kemmler, Auburn Prison, Auburn, N Y." The envelope bore a special delivery stamp. It was taken to Kemmler and read to him. This letter was from his brother in Buffalo and may be the cause of preventing an autopsy on the body of the murderer after his death. It was a short letter and wound up by asking Kemmler to formally direct that his body be turned over to his relatives immediately after his death. It is said that a letter was received by the warden, also from Kemmler's brother, formally demanding the body immediately after death.

The arrangements of the newspaper reporters here are very complete, and almost everywhere the warden goes he stumbles on a newspaper man or some telegraphic arrangement for getting the news out of town.

The parting of Mrs. Durston and Kemmler last evening brought out more strongly than anything else the stability and barrenness of the man's mind. Though Kemmler's crime put him without the pale of ordinary sympathy the warden's wife has throughout shown a deep interest in him and has sought to lead him into the light of religion. In the soft twilight last evening she went down the iron stairway for the last time to see the man whose last friend she had been. Outside the cell door she stopped a moment and viewed the implement of death, the switch board, the chair with its numerous straps and the cruel-looking wires that soon so small and yet are capable of being charged with such a death-dealing power. Before her eyes shall behold them again they will be famous as having caused the first legal death by electricity. After viewing these things a moment, she stepped into the room where the two men, Kemmler and Fish, are confined.

"I was afraid you would not come to bid me good by," said Kemmler, "and I was watching to see you go to the depot. How nice it looks outside." Gazing through the little iron barred window, the view was lovely. A fountain playing its cool spray upward, a sweep of green lawn, vines and flowers, and over all the heaven glowing with the last light of day.

Mrs. Durston spoke to him of the beauties of faith, of the better life which he had entered on since coming to the prison and brought him to be brave. Kemmler shed no tears and was calm while the Warden's wife talked of other matters. He promised that in all things he would be true to her teachings. Then she took the doomed man's hand and simply said: "Good-by, be brave, be strong and everything will come right."

What a contrast the two presented. The woman arrayed in soft white garments, and the man in black. She to go out to a world of pleasure, and he to count the few hours until he is called out to die. What man with broader views of life than he that would not shrink under the thoughts that such a parting would awaken. But Kemmler showed no emotion. A little later Mrs. Durston went through the gateway and walked to the depot. Kemmler watched by the window until the train steamed away and then turned to Daniel and remarked: "I am hungry now and want a good supper."

Electrician Barnes of Rochester, who has been working so hard here at the prison on the electrical machine, will not be admitted to witness the execution. This was decided on to night chiefly because of an interview published in The Rochester Post Express in which Barnes said the man who would pull the lever lived in Auburn.

The generally accepted time for the execution is 6 a.m. Wednesday.

It is now certain that the execution will not take place before morning and may be deferred another day, but this latter is not considered probable.

The Very Latest.

AUBURN, Aug 6, 4 a.m. Kemmler's execution will not take place before 5, but it may occur between 5 and 9 o'clock this morning.

THRASHED BY WOMEN.

An Ohio Editor Drubbed for Publishing Scandals.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 5.—Two large, muscular women, Sue McDonald and Louise Snyder, thrashed Editor E. T. Commins of The Springfield Budget last night. Saturday's issue contained an article reflecting rather severely on the two women named. They saw the article last night, and boiling over with rage went to Commins' office. Finding him in they hesitated not. Commins is a small man, and in their hands was manipulated as easy as if he were a baby. They stood him up in a corner, and while holding him belabored him with their doubled-up fists. They quit when his face was almost like raw beefsteak and his clothes were covered with blood. When released he drew a revolver, expecting a further attack. They went away and left him, however.

To Colonize Negroes in Mexico.

ST LOUIS, Aug. 5. Attorney J. Milton Turner left for New York to-day to arrange for colonizing negroes in Mexico. He says the plan is being promoted by a firm of coffee dealers in New York who have a capital of $5,000,000. The purpose of the firm is to put negroes to raising coffee and sugar.

A NIAGARA MYSTERY.

SUPPOSED SUICIDE OF A BRANTFORD MAN.

A Coat, Vest and Hat Found in Prospect Park Cigar Manufacturer Jacob J. Kirschner's Cards and $163 in Money in the Pockets.

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 5.—About 6 o'clock this morning Officer McMullen found a brown checked sack coat, a black vest and a Derby hat on the bank of the river in Prospect Park about 300 yards above the American falls. In the pockets were found $163 in money, several small articles and a nickel watch attached to an oxydized silver chain. There were also found four cards bearing the address.

JACOB J. KIRSCHNER.
Dealer and Manufacturer of Cigars,
Brantford, Ont.
Presented by Geo. Kirschner.

Several letters in the pockets were addressed to Jacob J. Kirschner. A letter head of the Palmer House, Toronto, had this memoranda of notes coming due: Nov. 3, $100; Dec. 3, $83.44, Jan. 3, $100. The hat bore the mark of George Glass & Co., Brantford, Ont.

D Littlefield of the Park Lunch House states that a man wearing the coat found was in the lunch house yesterday and asked for a drink, stating that he was broke. A drink was refused and the stranger said he was going over the falls.

SEARCHING FOR HIS MOTHER.

The Cloud Removed From a Young Man's Name After Many Days.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5. The members of the Board of Trade have been discussing to-day the romantic story of Claude Rosaire. He is a young man of 27, wealthy and cultured, and has for three years held a position in the Chicago Board of Trade. When a boy he lived with a well-to-do Canadian family in a small town in Southeastern Michigan, never doubting that he was one of the family. In a fit of anger four years ago his supposed father told him that there was a cloud upon his birth, and that night Claude left his home never to return.

An anonymous letter written in French was delivered to him last Thursday, purporting to come from one who was about to die. The letter contained a circumstantial account of his movements after he left home four years ago, showing that the unknown author was familiar with Rosaire's life. The writer then informs him that his grandmother's mother was the Duchess de Saint Allaize of Normandy, who was unhappily married. The duchess and her daughter fled to America and entered the convent of the Ursulines at New Orleans, where five years later the duchess died. The child Victoria remained in the care of the Sisters until the age of 18, when she was allowed to temporarily leave the convent to complete her musical education. She soon met and loved a soldier in the Confederate army, and on Oct. 6, 1863, was married to him and immediately went with him to Canada.

The writer of the anonymous letter says that he never forgave them, for it seems he also loved the convent girl. He says he followed them as would a hunting dog. Three weeks after the birth of their child, which occurred the next year, he stole the babe from his nurse and carried him to the south of Ontario, among a colony of Canadian Friends. The father, crazed with grief, committed suicide. The mother suddenly and mysteriously disappeared, and no trace of her could be found.

The letter declared that Claude Rosaire was the stolen child and inclosed the original certificate of the marriage of his parents.

Mr. Rosaire will make every effort to find his mother and will search all Catholic convents through the country. His interest in the authorship of this letter is overshadowed by his desire to learn the whereabouts of his mother and of the resting-place of his dead father.

The Newfoundland Cod Fishery.

ST JOHNS, Nfld., Aug. 5. It is, of course, too early to form an estimate of this season's cod fishery, but up to this date the news, taken as a whole, is unfavorable. There are, as usual, localities in which the catch has been fairly good—a few in which it has been very good; but the intelligence from the great majority of the fishing centres is anything but encouraging. The Bank fishery up to this date has been on the whole unsuccessful. From Labrador the news is meagre and only applies to the small portion of the coast south of St Lawis Bay, in which traps and seines had done fairly; hook-and-line men had got nothing. From all the great northern bays the news is bad. To the south of St. Johns there has been a greater amount of success. The caplin season has gone—the best of the summer and the squids are now appearing. Much anxiety regarding the results of the season's labors is felt and expressed, and some fear that we shall have a failure. To add to our anxiety, the lobster fishery, on which so many are dependent, is far below that of last year. Of course there is still a portion of the season remaining in which much may be done, but at present the prospects are not bright. Crops have improved greatly since the warmer weather set in.

Riot at an Anarchist Picnic.

ELIZABETH, N.J., Aug. 5.—A desperate fight occurred at the picnic of the Arbeiter Turn-Verein here last night, nearly 100 men taking part. Six policemen were badly handled by the infuriated Anarchists, one of whom, Emil Vogt, was locked up. During the riot an American flag floating from a staff at the entrance to the grounds was torn down and trampled under foot. Warrants are out for a dozen of the rioters, who will be severely punished.

Aylmer Votes a $30,000 Bonus.

AYLMER, Aug. 5.—The voting to-day on the bylaw granting a bonus of $30,000 to Hay & Co. of Woodstock, that company agreeing for the above consideration to operate a furniture factory in this town for at least ten years, resulted in the bylaw being carried, 344 to 1. The factory is to employ 25 men the first year, 32 the second year and for the following eight years not less than 35 hands.

SALISBURY CANNOT INTERFERE WITH THE CZAR.

Many Monks Perish in the Flames on Mount Athos—The Parnellites to Be Attacked in Their Own Fortresses—Precautions Against Cholera.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Fergusson said the British Government could not interfere with the Czar's treatment of the Jews.

Queen Victoria this evening left Osborne House for a drive to witness the yachts' squadron parade at Cowes. Her carriage had to cross a steam ferry on a pontoon. A too sudden letting down of the platform on which the carriage stood caused an inrush of water which partially submerged the pontoon. The Queen and the spectators were for a moment panic stricken, but the pontoon soon righted and floated free. The Queen was then conveyed safely to her destination.

To Be Attacked in Their Stronghold.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The Parnellites are going to be attacked in their own fortresses in the south and west of Ireland, which have been left too much in the hands of the Nationalists, and the local patriotic union has now determined to cover Ireland with political organizations directly hostile to the league. The National League will be fought in every district, and it is expected that a large amount of Unionist feeling, now lying suppressed or intimidated, will be called forth. The Parnellites will not be allowed a walk-over at the next election. They are to be attacked in every seat, and it will probably turn out that even in the south and west the Unionist minority will be large.

The Foresters' High Court.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The High Court of the Order of Foresters has refused to agree to a proposal to expunge the paragraph of the Investigating Committee's report stating that freedom of action having been granted in the matter of graduated contributions to American courts, an obstacle has been removed which has hitherto impeded the progress of the order in America.

The Chief Forester announced that the total membership of the order was 700,000. He also made a statement of the financial condition of the order, showing that the total amount of funds in the various treasuries amounted to £4,500,000.

The Cremation Conference.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—The International Cremation Conference to-day sent a telegram to Emperor William asking him to espouse the cause of cremation. All the American delegates signed the telegram.

Precautions Against Cholera.

CAIRO, Aug. 5.—The Egyptian Government has adopted the severest measures by quarantine and surveillance to prevent Jeddah pilgrims from bringing cholera into Europe.

Great Mt. Athos Aflame.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Despatches from Athens announce a most disastrous fire upon the celebrated Mount Athos, the Holy Mountain of the Greek Church. The fire has destroyed the largest part of its wonderful forests. Of the 20 Greek monasteries which have been located upon the mountain for centuries, most have been completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at 5,000,000 francs. Twenty monks and hermits have perished in the flames.

The mountains of the district of Mount Athos, near Salonica, are covered with vast forests of pine, oak and chestnut. They are 6000 feet above the level of the sea, and during the Middle Ages were dotted over with hermitages and monasteries, 20 of which still remain. The monks dwelling in the mountains are said to number about 9000, from Greece, Bulgaria, Roumania and Russia. No females are permitted to enter the peninsula. The monks are ruled by an administrative assembly composed of delegates chosen for a term of four years. Some of the monasteries had rich libraries and old and beautiful manuscripts. Several of the latter have been photographed and deposited in the Museum of Moscow.

An Explanation Demanded.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—It is reported that King Leopold has signed a treaty with Germany securing to the Germans forts on the Meuz as a basis of operations in case of war with France. The French Foreign Minister will be asked in the Chamber of Deputies whether the French Government has obtained from Belgium an explanation admitting of no equivocations.

The Patriarch's Protest.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 5.—The Greek patriarch here has resigned as a protest against the Porte's disregard of the Greek church.

Fatality Near Princeton.

PRINCETON, Aug. 5.—This afternoon Chauncey Capron of Paris left Harney Bros.' brick yard with a load of brick. He called at a store in the village and purchased a lunch, then went on to the 2d concession of Blenheim, where he was seen by B. Howes and C. Coster of Princeton. Returning again about 6 p.m. they saw his team standing still on the road, and on reaching it found him lying just behind the wagon, dead, the wagon having passed over his arm and chest, breaking the arm and crushing in several ribs.

HE WANTS JUSTICE.

A Bracebridge Man Kept in Jail 72 Hours Without Food or Water.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—A man named McCord, who comes from Bracebridge, has been here for the past two or three days waiting to lay his case before the Minister of Justice or his deputy. To-day he had an interview with Mr. Sedgewick, Deputy Minister of Justice. According to McCord his grievance is a somewhat novel one. He had a dispute with a female relative. Anything but complimentary remarks were exchanged and McCord was brought before a magistrate, charged with abusive language. At any rate the result was that McCord was sent to jail. By some oversight the jailer forgot all about McCord's incarceration, and for three days and three nights the prisoner was left, so he says, in his cell without either food or water, and now his visit to Ottawa is to lay this matter before the justice department so that the jailer may be punished. If justice is to be had in this country McCord is determined to have it. He is somewhat erratic in his talk and his statements are therefore given for what they are worth.

Love's Illusions Dispelled.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5.—Patrick Thomas Gleason has had a quarrel with his fair one which led him into a curious quandary. He had lavished presents upon her in the days when they lived for each other, but the quarrel caused him to regret that he had squandered so much money, as he now thinks, foolishly. He wanted to regain possession of those presents and accordingly took advantage of her absence at church to invade her boudoir and appropriate them. He was arrested for this, but the girl's father refusing to prosecute he was allowed to depart.

Attempted to Desert.

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 4.—Twenty-four British sailors attempted to escape from their ship here to-day, stealing the ship's boat. A crew sent in pursuit shot one, cut another's finger with a cutlass and captured all but three in the act of landing.

Two Men Drowned.

NEW YORK, Aug 4.—It is now stated that four of the crew of the government Dredge Advance, which was sunk in the harbor yesterday by the steamer Norje, are missing, two of whom are known to be drowned. The others are supposed to have escaped by climbing aboard the steamer.

The Leary Raft.

NEW YORK, Aug 5.—The great Leary raft arrived at Hempstead Bay at 6 p.m. It left Jacquin, N.S., nearly two months ago and originally contained 11 sections, each 100 feet long, 32 feet deep and 32 feet wide.

THE ARGENTINE RESO.

Dr. Celman Resigns the Presidency—Is Succeeded by Dr. Pellegrini.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—A despatch from Buenos Ayres says the Foreign and Finance Ministers have resigned.

VALPARAISO, Aug. 5.—The President of the Argentine Republic, Dr. Juarez Celman, has presented his irrevocable resignation to Congress, giving as his reason the political and financial difficulties through which the republic is passing. He has been succeeded by the vice-president, Dr. Pellegrini.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—A Times despatch from Buenos Ayres says: President Celman, abandoned by Pellegrini, Roca, Pena and Garcia and completely isolated, has been forced to present his resignation at a joint meeting of the Chambers. As Celman's partisans still form a majority his resignation is possibly a trick. The Chambers have a constitutional right to decide whether the reasons given for the resignation are sufficient for its acceptance. The populace threaten to shoot any deputies who vote not to accept the resignation. A secret session is being held and the crowds that were surging back and forth in the lobbies have been ejected. A committee of deputies is trying to reconcile Celman and Roca and Pellegrini. The President, however, declares his resignation is irrevocable.

LIGHTBURN CLAIMS HIS BRIDE.

He Left Providence With Nineteen Dollars and Returns a Millionaire.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Aug. 5.—Six years ago Benjamin W. Lightburn, a poor young man from Virginia, graduated from Brown University with just $19 in his pocket. He had supported himself in college by cleaning the city lamps and by keeping a boarding house. During his university course he became engaged to Miss Della L. Carpenter of North Main-street. They parted till such time as Lightburn could earn enough money to support a wife.

He went to Kansas City with his $19, entered a lawyer's office, saved his earnings, invested in real estate and struck it rich. He has sent enough money to Miss Carpenter to enable her to obtain an education.

The second year he was away he sent her a five hundred dollar gold watch, and has since presented her with diamonds. Lightburn has now arrived in Providence to claim his bride, who persistently refused to name the wedding day till she had become "accomplished." He is reported to be worth $1,000,000.

The wedding will occur in the old First Baptist Meeting House, and President Andrews of Brown University, it is said, will officiate. Mr. Lightburn has built an elegant house in Kansas City, to which he will take his bride.

AN EMBEZZLER NABBED.

License Inspector Rae of Minneapolis Caught at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5.—One of the cleverest and quietest pieces of detective work ever done here was put through this morning and the prisoner left for the west by the 9 o'clock train. Some days ago License Inspector Rae of Minneapolis, Minn., arrived in Montreal with his wife and two children and stopped at the Albion Hotel. He had with him $2 000 of embezzled money. He then took a house in Philip's-square, one of the semi-up-town fashionable quarters, where he lived with his family. Detective Howard from Minneapolis was on his track, aided by a local man, and on Sunday evening they effected the arrest as Rae was standing in front of his own door. In his possession was found $20,000. He was privately guarded that night and yesterday was taken before Police Magistrate Desnoyers, where he waived extradition proceedings and left for home to-day in company with an officer. The affair was kept so quiet that it was only at 2½ this morning it began to be suspected and even yet a knowledge of it is confined to less than half a dozen people here.

A DOUBLE DROWNING.

Two Young Men Perish While Booming Logs at Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 5.—While booming logs at the Vancouver Company's mill Joseph Ouillet and Isaac Green fell into the water and were drowned. Ouillet came here from St. Johns, Que., about a year ago. Green came from Hillsboro, Wellington county, Ont., where his people are evidently, from what can be made out from his letters, well-to-do people. His cabin was comfortable and from all that could be discovered by the search of his trunk, and by the report of the men at the mill, he was a sober, steady and industrious young man, who had come out to the coast with the determination to make his way. There was evidence that he was in possession of several lots in the city, on which he had been paying instalments and that he took care of himself and his earnings. Several cards of invitation to social events and lectures at the Y.M.C.A. were found in his trunk, and a number of letters from his people in the East which breathed warm affection for him. He had no money either on his person or in his trunk, although his roommate asserted that he had been paid some money that day.

Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, Aug. 5.—Andrew Kennedy, a laborer, was turned out of a house in James-street north, and having no place to go he and his wife and two children have been camping out, sleeping wherever they could. Inspector Hamilton investigated the matter, and discovering the condition of the people he had a warrant issued against them for vagrancy. Kennedy, his wife and two children were arrested this morning and are now in the cells. An effort will be made to have the children put in the home.

The collection of tolls on the York-street road, which has been free for a year on account of the road being out of repair, will be resumed to-morrow.

Miss Haight, the new head nurse at the hospital, is a graduate of the Toronto Training School.

Strange Disappearance.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 5.—James Sackrider, who is supposed to be insane, left his daughter's place, at Currie's, on June 1 and has not been heard of since. His relatives are anxious about him and have done everything in their power to learn his whereabouts, but without success. Mr. Sackrider is worth about $5000, and has only one child, Mrs. E. Tucker of Currie's Crossing. Mr. John Sackrider of Burgessville is a brother of the missing man. The following is a pretty accurate description of the man: He wore a light suit of clothes, cap and a full beard tinged with grey. He has a scar on his nose and another on his forehead, is 5 feet 8 or 9 inches in height and his left hand is partially paralyzed. Shortly after leaving home he was reported to have been seen in company with an Indian near Brantford.

The French Shore Question.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Aug. 5.—There is no change in the attitude of affairs connected with the French shore question. Sir William Whiteway is in London with the other Government delegates, but we have no news of their movements. Sir James Winter arrived here yesterday by the Allan steamer. There is no doubt that the delegation to England, of which he was the leader, have done splendid work on behalf of the colony. Their efforts have been successful in bringing the whole matter before the British public and in enlisting the sympathies of the people on behalf of our wronged and suffering population. There are now the strongest grounds for believing that our wrongs will be redressed, and that we shall, if true to ourselves, be able to throw off the French yoke. Sir James Fergusson's attempts at fencing in regard to the illegality of the doings of naval officers, when questioned on the subject in the House of Commons, afford much amusement here, where the real state of the case is known. These officers have acted without any warrant of law, and the British Government will have to pay the damages.

A PROMISING RAILWAY PROJECT.

A short time ago the EXAMINER published as an item of news the application for a charter to build a new railway from some point on Lake Ontario along the coast of Northumberland county, through Peterborough and Bobcaygeon and up through Parry Sound District to Sault Ste. Marie. Naturally the first consideration is the benefit such a railway will be to the town of Peterborough. Though we are at present well served with railways, the proposed line will tap the traffic resources of a rich district on each side of the town in its route. The southern terminus of the new line will be, according to the most obvious indications, the town of Brighton, which has a capital harbour, better naturally than either Port Hope or Cobourg. From this point the line, as proposed, would run through the county of Northumberland, a district entirely unserved by railways running north, excepting the Cobourg-Harwood line. This district would afford a large local traffic, and attract a large trade to Peterborough. On the other side, the railway would serve a county which is now sadly in need of railway facilities. Bobcaygeon would then have direct railway communication with this town, and the road would serve the wants of the northern townships of this county. Now, all this northern region that has railway service to the east and west, has its connections with towns on the lake front, Peterborough getting the go-by. With the new railway constructed, a wide area country, rich in traffic possibilities would be made tributary to the town. Further north, the line would pass through the Parry Sound District, very rich in timber and minerals, a district now destitute of railway service, except a fringe on the east, served by the Pacific Junction, under the control of the Grand Trunk. Therefore, the projected line would be a most important factor in the development of the resources and the colonization of the Parry Sound district. In this event the Ontario Government would be apt to regard with favour the granting of a substantial subsidy to a railway that would tend to promote the development of their colonization policy. The merely local feature of this line is not its most important one. It has a wide claim to general support and encouragement. The settlement and development of the illimitable north-west has only begun. And the whole of the immense existing and prospective traffic must find its way to the seaboard by the directest route. And this road would furnish not only the most direct but the shortest route to the seaboard. No doubt the policy of enlarging our eastern system of canals to ocean steamer and vessel capacity will be carried out. In this event the Presque Isle terminus of the proposed line will practically be the seaboard. We have now two or three railways with a fourth in contemplation, centering from the great north-west, both to the north and south of the international boundary, as at the Sault, the northern terminus of the new line. This line will be 365 miles in length, one hundred miles shorter than any other line. Now if this line were built it would secure the lion's share of the traffic from the great north-west, which would pass through Peterborough. With this north west traffic in a state infancy the existing lines, the C.P.R. and the Sudbury, line are inadequate to the task of moving it. How inadequate will they be when this traffic increases as it will assuredly do, in the near future, a thousand-fold. There can therefore be no doubt of the new line having a paying through freight and passenger traffic. But few, it will develop a very large traffic in districts now unserved by railways. It will be of incalculable benefit to the town, the district, central Ontario and the great North West generally. Though the project is in the stage of incubation, it is in good hands, which will leave nothing undone to bring the scheme to a successful issue. It should have a hearty local support from our neighbours in Northumberland county. The southern terminus of the line may count on being an important city within a very few years after the line goes into operation.

"THERE is one pauper in every thirty-seven inhabitants in England and Wales. Free trade seems to be a great national panacea for poverty, doesn't it?"

Thus maunders the Hamilton Herald, apparently unmindful that in some parts of Dakota, under the most tyrannical system of protection in the world, everybody is a pauper—a square mile of farm doesn't furnish a square meal.

Hints for the Heated Term.

The combined heat and humidity lately were almost insufferable. No cases of sunstroke are reported, but altogether the days were the most trying that has been felt in recent years, and that heat prostration did not occur seems somewhat remarkable.

An erroneous belief prevails that in order to get sunstruck the victim must expose himself to the direct rays of the sun. Experience of British soldiers in India and Egypt has shown conclusively that heat apoplexy, or sunstroke, results at least as much from saturated atmosphere at high temperature in the shade as from prolonged exposure to the sun's rays in less humid air. In this climate people are more apt to suffer from simple heat prostration, accompanied, perhaps, by severe palpitations.

The great question for the masses on such occasions is how to tide over the hot spell with the least possible discomfort. Hard work in itself does not seem to have any injurious effect. The abundant exudation of perspiration should be encouraged, not checked; it is Nature's method of reducing the temperature of the body.

Liquids should be consumed in moderation. There is nothing positively hurtful in the moderate use of alcohol to those accustomed to it—though on such a day as yesterday they are better without it—but those who habitually abstain from indulgence in it at other times of the year will derive no benefit from it during very hot weather. Iced water, not ice water, should be drunk. The greater cold produced by mixing water with finely divided particles of ice is purchased at the cost of several possible dangers, both immediate and remote.

Eastern travellers have derived great benefit from the use of iced tea. The infusion is a wholesome stimulant. But our natural reliance here must be on iced drinks, which are natural refrigerants. The most convenient of these is the fresh acid juices of fruits. This acidity is due to varying proportions of citric, malic, tartaric and other acids. When fresh fruit cannot be had, lime juice will be found a most efficient substitute. The mixtures grandiloquently called by druggists "acid phosphates" and "orange phosphates," are also useful and harmless.

People should eat little in hot weather. The system does not require much. A minimum of flesh food is demanded. Farinaceous food and ripe, but not too ripe, fruit and vegetables are the most healthful form of food for this season.—Hamilton Herald

BATHING IN JAPAN.

Both Sexes Bathe Together—No False Modesty.

An important cooling recipe of the far East is the bath and the hot bath is taken by the Japanese several times a day. The bathing is done in the public bath rooms or in the private tub and no soap is used. Many Japanese are now parboiling themselves in water raised to 120 degrees fahrenheit and the whole family bathes in the same tub. There is a model of one of these tubs at the national museum and the average Japanese bath tub is about three feet high, oval in shape and it has a little furnace with a stove pipe running up above the top of the tub set into one end of it. A board keeps this stove pipe from touching the skin and a few moments will heat the bath to boiling. The Japanese have no false modesty as to the showing of their person, and it is not an uncommon thing in a Japanese house to see a lady at her bath, or if you be a guest to have one of the female servants come in and offer to rub you down. Carter Harrison, of Chicago, was much surprised at this during his stay in Japan, and he scalded the flesh off of his fat calves in jumping into the bath to get out of the way of the almond-eyed beauty who came in to assist him. I know a wealthy man in Washington who was traveling in Japan the same time that I was who could not get enough of these hot baths, and who made a number of trips into the interior of the country in order that he might have them with all their old Japanese flavor. In many of the public bath houses of Japan both sexes bathe together and on a hot day of July or August they splash and play with one another as innocent as our parents were before the fall. In Tokio and the other large cities of the empire the foreign influence has produced an order against this common bathing of the sexes, but in the villages where such an order has been made all the people have done is to draw a string through the center of the bath vat and the women and children are on the one side while the men are on the other. At famous hot springs in the Japanese mountains I saw both sexes hopping around together in the water splashing one other and enjoying the sulphurous fumes without a thought that there was anything indecent about their actions.—N. Y. Herald.

The Number Seven in the Bible.

On the seventh day God ended His work.

In the seventh month Noah's ark touched the ground.

In seven days a dove was sent out.

Abraham pleaded seven times for Sodom.

Jacob mourned seven days for Joseph.

Jacob served seven years for Rachel.

And yet another seven years.

Jacob was pursued a seven days' journey by Laban.

A plenty of seven years and a famine of seven years were foretold in Pharoah's dream by seven lean beasts, and seven ears of full and seven ears of blighted corn.

On and after the seventh day of the seventh month the Children of Israel fasted seven days and remained in their tents.

Every seventh years the land rested.

Every seventh year the law was read to the people.

In the destruction of Jericho seven persons bore trumpets seven days, on the seventh day they surrounded the walls seven times and at the end of the seventh round the walls fell.

Solomon was seven years building the temple and fasted seven days at its dedication.

The golden candlestick had seven branches.

Naaman washed seven times in the Jordan.

Job's friends sat with him seven days and seven nights, and offered seven bullocks as an atonement.

Hundreds of other biblical references to the number seven could be given did space permit.—St. Louis Republic.

The Benefit of Lightning Rods.

In all cases of steady strain in which a charged cloud descending from the upper regions of the air, or approaching from a distance, might inflict serious injury upon an unprotected building, a well-designed and properly earth-connected lightning rod is an absolute safeguard. In a case of "impulsive rush," the rod may often be of use in bearing the brunt of the discharge, though sometimes the lightning will take no notice whatever of it, striking the building and altogether neglect the rod; and it is even possible that a high rod might attract a destructive discharge which otherwise would not have occurred at all. Although, therefore, a lightning rod is in many cases, probably in a very large majority, of the greatest service, it cannot be depended upon as affording perfect immunity from risk, and the assumption which has universally been made by the "rodder" electricians that damage by lightning is in it self conclusive evidence of some imperfection in the conductor, is an unfounded one.—Professor Bidwell in Nature.

Koh-i-nur.

Koh-i-nur is the name of the finest diamond in the world — which flashes in the front of the Queen's crown, and Koh-i-nur is the name of the finest tea in the world the Koh-i-nur brand, found only at the store of Hawley Bros. Teas have different qualities,—some have strength—some flavour and some other qualities. The Koh-i-nur is a blend of all four teas, that combine in one sample all the best qualities of several brands. Try the Koh-i-nur, the finest, best and cheapest, and most satisfactory tea made. At Hawley Bros., 370 George street. You will be agreeably surprised and delighted with the trial. 2223a31

How to Catch a Lion.

A fierce lion, the terror of the Sahara Desert, was recently captured by the following simple method. The sands of the desert were passed through a sieve. The Lion of course remained in the sieve. His majesty had in his vest pocket a can of Imperial Cream Tartar Baking Powder, which he was taking home to his Queen. t th s-w

PASSE-PIED DE LA REINE

THE LATEST SWELL DANCE IN THE FASHIONABLE WORLD.

It Originated in Brittany Several Centuries Ago—A Graceful Dance Copied from the Peasants Consisting of Eight figures Just the Dance for Summer.

The rage in the swell Parisian salons at the present moment is the old and graceful dance called the Passe-pied de la Reine. It originated in Brittany centuries ago, and still forms a part of the dances of the peasants of the province. The Passe-pied is divided into eight figures.

HOW TO BEGIN.

The first illustration shows how each gentleman should open the dance with his partner the arm extended and slightly rounded, and the two dancers not too close to each other. By this means the position of each one will be graceful.

FIRST FIGURE. FIRST MOVEMENT.

In the first movement of the first figure the gentleman crosses the left foot in front of the right to execute the forward steps, and his partner crosses her right foot before her left.

FIRST FIGURE. SECOND MOVEMENT.

SECOND FIGURE

In this illustration each gentleman is represented at the moment when he turns or whirls his partner around.

THIRD FIGURE.

Then the couples cross hands, preparatory to making a backward slide. Each gentleman describes the arc of a circle to the left and his partner a similar arc to the right. The lady places herself at the left of her partner to make the backward slide. A moulinet, or whirl, is next executed by all the dancers.

FOURTH FIGURE.

The four ladies are placed in the centre and the gentlemen on the sides for a balance, which is repeated twice.

FIFTH FIGURE.

The bow, or reverence, is quite an art when properly made. Here is how it should be done: A step to right or left, according to indication. In the first case, a step to the right; then place yourself in the second position, all the weight of the body resting upon the right foot. Draw the left foot close to the right, so that the two heels may touch. Be careful in taking the first position to bend the knees very low in sliding the point of the left foot backward and to rise slowly as you incline the body.

SIXTH FIGURE.

This illustration represents a couple executing the pas de basque for ward.

SEVENTH FIGURE.

The dancers form a circle and execute a balance forward and back.

EIGHTH AND LAST FIGURE.

The four gentlemen form a circle and raise their arms, while each lady turns around her partner, beginning at the right.

Then each gentleman takes his partner by the left hand and conducts her to her seat.

One Soul Saved.

First Feminine Reformer—"Do you think you have finally saved Mr. Tipple?"

Second Feminine Reformer—"Yes, indeed. I have prayed with him, and sang with him, and read to him until he has become converted that he is going to get a divorce from his wife and marry me."—Life.

There is more fun in a sheet of sticky fly paper than in the average negro minstrel. Watch the kitten playing with it on the new carpet; the latter is ruined for ever; the kitten goes into a fit and all the women and children rush out of the house in terror. If you want to rid your house of flies, buy Wilson's Fly Poison Pads, and use as directed. Nothing else will clear them out thoroughly. Sold at 10c. by all druggists. dw

Party Politics.

When party politics run high bad feeling and bad blood are often caused, but all parties agree that when bad blood arises from ordinary causes, the only satisfactory cure is Burdock Blood bitters, nature's blood purifier. Recommended by the medical authorities. 2w32d

A Child Saved.

My little boy was taken very bad with diarrhœa, he was very delicate and got so low we had no hope of his life, but a lady friend recommended Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and although he could only bear a few drops at a time, he got well. It saved my child. Mrs. Wm. Stewart, Campbellville, Ont. 2w32d

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and terminated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,769,678 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $818,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,694,376	3.07
Confederation	17,574,828	5.31
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,068,837	10.35
Sun Life	11,670,817	10.38
North American	3,470,820	10.68
Temperance and General	2,994,972	17.94
Citizens	2,067,956	29.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,723,100	30 12
London Life	1,844,285	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons it will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

Denne, Dumble, Wrighton, Dr. Burnham, Corkery, Ferguson and English. Doubtless some of the members were off for their holidays. The chairman, Mayor Stevenson was on the way home from Ottawa. Of course, as they always are, the reporters were at the post of duty ready to chronicle what was done or not done.

Opening the Central Exhibition.

Mayor Stevenson, M. Both of these gentlemen were absent from the Capital, but Mr. Stevenson saw Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, who has written to Sir John, and thinks that he will be able to come to Peterborough to the Exhibition. Mr. Stevenson also looked into the cause of the delay in beginning operations on the new customs building here. The cause of the delay is attributed to the absence of the government contractor in British Columbia.

The Muckleston Burglars Bagged.

Three of Them in "Quod" at Perth for Burglary of a Clothing Store.

Mr. E. B. Loucks, manager of Muckleston & Co.'s hardware store, returned from Perth this morning, whether he went to identify the hardware found on the persons of three tramps arrested for burglary in Perso. He is positive that the goods found, two bull-dog revolvers, a knife and a razor, were part of the goods stolen in the burglary of the shop about the end of June. Mr. Loucks swore out an information against the thieves, but as the scamps will have their sentence pronounced to-morrow for burglary of McAllister's tailor shop, Perth, to which they pleaded guilty, the Muckleston charge will not be pressed, but merely used in empanelizing the sentence. It appears that the trio are wretched scamps. There is considerable interest in the story of their crime and capture. After the burglary of McAllister's last Thursday night, a clue having been gained, Chief of Police Stone, a man of little speech but much action, accompanied by a Mr. Correy, started in pursuit of the thieves. On the way down the chief saw the men he wanted from the train windows. He and his comrade stopped at Stittsville, near Ottawa, with the object of giving the burglars a formal reception on their arrival, which took place about eleven o'clock at night. When Chief Stone arrested the party out came the Muckleston buildog and knife, two of tramps drawing revolvers and the other a knife. But Chief Stone was too quick He had his game covered, and in face of his determined front they surrendered. They

ADMITTED THEIR GUILT

—they could hardly do otherwise, for they had on their persons six of the eight suits stolen from McAlister, of Perth—each man wearing two suits. They also had the Muckleston hardware in their possession. They said they might as well plead guilty to the McAlister burglarly, for they were "wanted" on a charge which would involve more serious consequences. The thieves had removed the price marks from the goods stolen from Muckleston's to prevent identification. One of the revolvers had been fired but the other had not been used.

The Perth burglary showed the malice as well as greed of the thieves. They took eight suits of ordered clothing, finished ready for delivery, and what suits they could not take with them they trampled underfoot and destroyed. One web of valuable cloth was thus trampled as to be worthless.

The names of the rascals are Thompson and Lawrence—that of the third was not learned. Thompson is the man that purchased the lantern in Muckleston's a few hours before the burglary, and which was left behind in the shop after the robbery.

It is pretty certain that the burglars will get about five years each for the Perth robbery, and the Peterborough robbery will have the effect of adding two or three years more.

Police Court.

WEDNESDAY Aug. 6th 1890.

Police Magistrate Dumble on the bench.

Thomas Carruthers convicted of larceny of articles from the Persian Laundry, was arraigned for sentence. The magistrate addressed the prisoner and said that owing to his previous good character he would pronounce a lenient sentence. He would give him three months in jail on each of the two counts of which he was convicted, the sentences to run concurrently.

The manner in which the prisoner received his sentence and the emotion displayed showed that he is not a hardened criminal but felt his position keenly.

The next victim was John Dawson of Campbellford, who was charged with disorderly conduct in the neighbourhood of the Cathedral yesterday. Prisoner, who toited at a 2-10 gait, as he found out in a few minutes afterwards, admitted that he had had a glass or two of beer but he had no recollection of having been disorderly. "Why I came to the police station myself. I wouldn't have done that if I had been guilty of anything very bad."

The Cadi—"What did you go there for?"

John—"I went for a night's lodging."

The Cadi—Well, I'll do better than that, I'll give you ten nights lodging—$2 and costs or ten days in jail. Prisoner evidently believed that time was money for he paid his fine in time. He went up for ten days.

Mr. John R. Archer, son of Mrs. F. E. Archer, Rubidge street, arrived in town this morning after an absence in England of eleven years. He is on a visit of a month's duration.

Mr. T. M. Haury has resigned his position as principal of the Perth collegiate institute, and has accepted the head mastership of Napanee High School. Mr. Henry was one time an applicant for a position on the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, mail clerk on the Midland train to Peterborough, and publisher of the Canadian Philatelist, has gone to attend the annual meeting of the American Philatelic Association at New York, and of the Canadian Association at Montreal. These are associations of stamp collectors.

News Nuggets.

—The prize list and posters for the Central Exhibition are now in the printers' hands. Both will be issued shortly.

—Policeman McGinty destroyed a vicious dog at police headquarters yesterday. The reader is spared the harrowing details of the destruction.

—Messrs. J. H. Noble & Co. have secured the contract for the plumbing and heating of Dr Carmichael's residence, corner Brock Water streets, opposite the park.

—At the regular meeting of the Bellevil e cheese board there were boarded 3,015, of which 875 boxes (coloured) were sold at 8 7-16 cents, 121 boxes of white at 8¼ and 195 boxes of white at 8⅛. Total sold, 1,191 boxes.

South Harvey.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A social, under the auspices of the Presbyterian church, of Lakehurst, was held at the residence of Mr. Andrew Stevenson Friday evening, and but for the busy time, would have been a better success. About one hundred people gathered together on the occasion. The tables were spread on the spacious lawn, while the house was thrown open to visitors. A good programme was rendered. It opened by a speech from the chairman; music, "Pardon, Peace and Power", the choir; reading, "Jonn and Tibbie's Dispute," John Renwick; address, "Our Duty to God," Rev. Mr. Oswald; reading, "Betsy and I are Out," Isabella Renwick; music, "To the Rescue," the choir; reading, "The Red Jacket," Mrs. Wm. Renwick; music, "Praise Him," the choir. The entertainment was closed by the audience singing "Praise God From Whom all Blessings Flow."

Thund-rstorms have been pretty frequent here, as elsewhere throughout Canada, of late. On Tuesday last Mr. Archibald Wilson had his house struck by lightning. The fluid cracked the chimney, crossed transversely the house and completely destroyed a handsome mirror, damaging slightly the bureau in its decent to the cellar. Its entrance and exit were made at the back of the mirror in two neat drill holes. On Sabbath another storm passed over Harvey. Mr. George Smith had his barn struck, but fortunately only one of the upright beams—a door post was shattered. Mr. Coon also had his barn struck but with trifling damage.

Business is very pushing in Harvey this season there being no less than five self-binders working.

The Methodists Ruffled.

The Laymen Will Have to Care for Themselves at Conference.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—A great hubbub has been caused in the ranks of Methodist laymen in Montreal, and, in fact, throughout the Dominion, over an accident connected with the coming Methodist general conference, which meets during the month of September. This great ecclesiastical parliament will probably be composed of 350 delegates, half clerical and half lay representatives, the latter, be it understood, possessing about all the rights and privileges on the floor of conference as their ministerial brethren. As is the custom previous to similar gatherings, a billeting committee was formed in this city, and it is the action of this committee that has been the cause of the little unpleasantness in question. They have given it to be understood that the clerical visitors have been placed with the different Methodist families in Montreal, which is most satisfactory to a portion of the coming visitors, but it is in the next move that the trouble comes in. It appears that the committee before alluded to have issued a circular to all the lay delegates, who are politely informed that good hotel and boarding house accommodation can be secured at reasonable rates, which means, according to a great many of the Methodist laymen of Ontario and elsewhere, that a distinction is to be made in the manner in which Montreal is to receive the members of the great conference. Naturally this impression so generally entertained outside the city has placed the hospitable people of the city in a false position, as some of the brethren have gone so far as to term it "impudent distinction," and a leading Methodist said that if the cordial relations between the clerical and lay members of the conference is to be maintained it was the duty of Montreal families to repair the mistake made by the committee. In fact, one gentleman had written to the committee, saying that he would take charge of the delegates but since the trouble arose he would distinctly stipulate that his conting at be lay members of the conference.—Whig.

United States Full of Canadians

At the recent Baptist anniversaries in Chicago, Rev. Dr. Perren, a Canadian well-known in London, called for a meeting of all the Canadian born or bred delegates in one of the side rooms of the church. In response some thirty met, but a writer in the Canadian Baptist who records the incident, states that there were many more in attendance on the meetings who did not re pond—some were sight-seeing when the notice was given and some did not think it would "pay." The sentiments uttered at the meeting, we are told, breathed loyalty to the American nation and Government, and yet a burning and living loyalty to the Dominion. But there they were, exiles from their own land and citizens of the United States, after having been nourished and brought up by Canadian parents and educated in Canadian schools and colleges. Among the number were Rev. C. E. Lee, born in London; Rev. G. E. Morphy, born in St. Marys; Rev. T. B. Hughes, born in Woodstock; Rev. R. W. Bell, born in Ailsa Craig; Rev. W. K. Wood, born in Lino; Rev. O. O. Fletcher, born in Scotland, Norfolk county; and Rev. Robert Cameron, formerly of Brantford. It is facts like those which go to show how Canada is being drained of its best young men. They are drawn to the United States by the tens of thousands every year, and they will continue to go there as long as Canada pursues the insane policy of trying to live within and upon herself.

Catching Frogs.

An Industry That Furnishes New Yorkers a Great Delicacy.

Bellville Ontario.

Dan Belknap, of Rossmore, and his three sons with a boat for each and powerful head lights made their way northward from the city this morning their paraphenalia loading two cart wagons, bound for Moira Lake near Madoc. They looked like a party of duck hunters, but their business is more remunerative and less tedious. They are nothing more or less than frog hunters. They are after the variety that in former days woke the silent echoes about Zwick's Island with their delightful melody—the festive bull-frog. He are left there now. The Belknaps have gathered them in. Last week these hunters shipped 190 pounds of hinds legs of frogs, gathered in two nights, to New York. They were for the famous Delmonico and are dished up to millionaire New Yorkers as great delicacies. The bright headlight blinds the frogs and they are picked out in the water, slaughtered and deposited in the boats The work is done in the cool of the evening the boats being noiselessly propelled by paddle through the swamps and marshes of the lakes. The Belknaps do not know their total shipments this season but think the total weight would make a few tons at least.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Brute to Taste the Cat—A Big Suit Against the City.

TORONTO, Aug. 6.—William J. Macleod, aged 25, was arraigned at the Police Court yesterday morning on the charge of having at the Island the previous day indecently assaulted 7-year-old Lilla Porter, daughter of his landlady, residing at 344 Front-street. Hardly had Macleod been placed in the dock when the handle of an umbrella wielded by a vigorous hand, alighted on his forehead. "Take the man into custody," said the Magistrate who had witnessed the occurrence. The offender was arrested and proved to be David Robins of 778 Queen-street west, the man who discovered the crime and inflicted on the prisoner condign punishment before handing him over to the police. Robins was brought before the Magistrate subsequently, expressed regret for committing a contempt of court and was discharged. Col. Denison thanking him on behalf of the city for the prompt action he had taken in bringing the scoundrel to justice. The charge against Macleod was abundantly proven, and he was sentenced to 23 months in the Central Prison and to receive 40 lashes with the cat-o'-nine-tails, half on entering and an additional 20 two months before the expiration of his sentence.

Hon. Adam Brown, Canadian Commissioner to the Jamaica Exhibition, was in the city yesterday conferring with Mr. Fred Nichols, secretary of the Dominion Manufacturers' Association, as to the best method of drawing attention of manufacturers generally to the desirability of making exhibits.

The Attorney-General has appointed Mr. Hoskins Irving, Q.C., a commissioner to enquire into the numerous complaints that have poured into the Government during the three years that the Lion Provident Life and Live Stock Association has been conducting business. Those complaints allege that in some instances no claim whatever was paid, and in other cases that only partial sums of the amount of insurance was handed over.

Randolph Macdonald and Manning & Macdonald, contractors on the Don improvement, have sued the city for $250,622 damages for breach of agreement.

A telegram was received last evening from Muskoka announcing the death by drowning near Port Carling of Vivian Platt, who was one of a number of boys recently taken to Muskoka by Rev. Mr. Smith on a camping expedition. No particulars of the accident are yet to hand. Deceased was about 16 years of age. His mother resides at No. 9 Robert-street.

Roy V. Somerville of Montreal gave the members of the Canadian Press Association some sound advice on retiring from the presidency at the annual meeting of the association held in the Rosin House parlors yesterday.

Owing to the difficulty generally experienced in securing a large attendance in midsummer it was decided to substitute February for August as the date of the annual meeting.

Committees were appointed to revise the constitution and to fix upon a sliding scale of charges for patent medicine and other foreign advertisements. These officers were elected:

President—A. Pattullo, Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

First Vice-President—H. P. Moore, Acton Free Press.

Second Vice-President—J. C. Jamieson, Belleville Intelligencer.

Secretary—J. McLean, Toronto Empire.

Assistant Secretary—J. S. Bellhouse, St. Thomas Journal.

Executive—A. B. Lucas, Streetsville Review, and J. Black, Robinson's The Week.

Executive—T. G. Jackson, Newmarket Era. T. H. Preston, Brantford Expositor; George Tryon, Port Hope Times; A. E. Pirie, Dundas Banner, and E. W. Cliffe, Bowmanville Statesman.

Good Form in Dress

Social usage imposes certain rules as to dress which are carefully observed by men of good breeding and good sense.

Dress is not the most important object in life, but due observance of the rules of dress adds much to the comfort and refinement of life, and to a considerable extent, marks the difference between gentlemen and those who are not gentlemen.

Good form of dress is of course a matter of fashion and fashions vary. Should you ever be in doubt as to what is suitable call on us and we will give you safe advice on many controverted points, and on new fashions in attire that usually call for a good deal of consideration and caution. Therefore.—

DON'T go to extremes in your dress. Dress quietly. Overdressed men are always despised as frivolous.

DON'T be slovenly in your dress. Neatness is a duty you owe to society.

DON'T disregard that "good form" in dress which custom has fixed. Conformity to social usage in dress as well as in more essential matters is part of good manners.

DON'T wear a silk hat with a sack coat. It is a social crime.

DON'T above all things order your clothing until you have seen our stock. We show every desirable Fabric, Broadcloths, Cheviots, Docskins, Tweeds, Fine, Plain and Fancy Worsteds, and as to Patterns—well, we can give you what you want, no matter what it is.

WILLIAM KEMMLER KILLED BY JUDICIAL LIGHTNING.

His Death Was Instantaneous—The Murderer "Takes it Cool and Does the Best he Can"—He Wishes Everybody Good Luck—The Execution Bungled.

AUBURN, Aug. 6. Kemmler went peacefully to sleep last night and slept soundly and was snoring until 5 o'clock this morning, when he was awakened by Guard McNaughton. Pastor Houghton, who has attended Kemmler, as also Prison Chaplain Yates, was with him. They came from the Bible and he prayed with them. He dressed himself without aid in a suit of grey mixed goods. About his neck he buttoned a turn-down collar, with a cowled tie of lawn stuff. His hair he combed and brushed with great care. His shoes were well polished, and while he made himself tidy the warden and a tall stranger, a deputy sheriff from Buffalo, entered the cell.

The stranger held by his side a pair of clippers. The warden explained to Kemmler that he must have the top of his head shaved. The prisoner demurred. He had taken great pains in dressing his hair and besides, as he explained to the warden, he did not want to be disfigured. He wanted the people to see and know that he was a man of reparative appearance as one has stated.

Kemmler's hair is long, brown and wavy, with a Raphaelesque cut that fell upon his forehead. Of this he was proud. In the shadow of death his vanity asserted itself. His hair, however, was cut, but the curl was saved and, as the sequel proved, with no good result. The clipped spot was 2½ by 1½ inches in size and was not shaved, but was cropped fairly close.

While this was proceeding and the witnesses examined the chair of death the belt was run up on the dynamo in the south wing of the prison and the incandescent test lamps in the anti-chamber glowed faintly. The current was on. The strange power was coursing the circuit.

The evidence was there, but how feebly they formed. Thus exclaimed Dr. Macdonald, who was the only one who got into the anti-room, and that while ignorant of the Warden's desire to keep its secrets inviolate. And in response to Dr. Macdonald's comments, Electrician Davis remarked that there was something wrong about the machinery down there, referring to the dynamo end of the circuit.

This remark took place before the electrocuting, it was but a moment, and was undoubtedly as true a few minutes later when the bell was sung. Kemmler

The condemned man after having his hair cut on the top of his head, listened to the reading of the death warrant by the warden. None of the State witnesses were present, only the prisoner, the guardians and the warden. The man was cool, unruffled, almost apathetic. The last named condition, however, was disconcerted by the blanched hue of the man's face.

"Come, Bill" commanded the warden, when all had been done in the cell, and the little party of four—warden, prisoner, clergymen passed the [illegible] room, past the electrical appliances [illegible] the warden led the way finally into the death chamber. Close behind him stood [illegible] whom it would soon kill. His hands swung at his side easily, save when as though in some embarrassment he stroked his brown full beard and mustache as he contrasted the white, expectant faces of the twenty-five men who, besides the warden, should see him die.

Mr Durston placed a plain, wooden-bottomed chair directly in front of the other and different chair, and bade Kemmler sit upon it. He obeyed readily. There was no uneasiness about his movements. He seated himself leisurely. There was no nervous tension apparent, indeed, not nearly so much as among the men about him. He was apparently the most composed person in the room. The warden took a place beside Kemmler, after the latter had become seated in the kitchen chair placed for him, resting his arm over the prisoner's shoulder on the chair back.

Holding his hat in his hand and standing there in the silent chamber the state's officer presented the condemned man to those present, introduced him indeed, and this is what he said:

"Now, gentlemen, this is William Kemmler. I have just read the warrant to him and told him that he has got to die, and if he has anything to say he will say it."

There was surprise among those present. It was at that moment and place a shock from such a formality.

Kemmler, however, seemed gratified because he had an opportunity to speak, but as the warden moved back the prisoner glanced about the half circle of curious or pitying faces before him. With his feet wide apart upon the stone floor, with a hand on either knee and elbows akimbo, the simple fellow said:

"Well, I wish everybody good luck in the world," in easy, steady tones; "and I'll go to a good place, and the papers have been saying lots of stuff about me that ain't so."

That was all, but into the poor wretch's face came an expression men have when they have acquitted themselves of some act that they had anticipated to do. And with all else depicted upon his face there was a something that evidenced submission to fate. Those who looked into his face would not have wondered if he had said:

"I'm fast and close here, I know I'm to be killed, but don't hurt me, don't hurt me."

There was a consternation without horror when [illegible] his features

The prisoner glanced over his shoulder as he ceased speaking and Mr. Durston came to his side

"Take off your coat, Bill," said the warden. There was no word, but with easy, steady joints he pulled off one sleeve and then swung off the garment to the chair from which he had risen. The warden stood behind him, drew forth the bottom of his shirt and cut it off behind so as to permit easy adjustment of one of the electrodes. Meanwhile Kemmler readjusted his necktie, which was already neatly fixed in a bow knot.

"Are your suspenders all right?" asked the warden, as he laid down the shears he used.

"Yes, all right," was the answer.

"Well then, Bill, you'd better sit down here," said the warden, whose heart is kind and whose time was that of a parent to a child that should be corrected.

The warden was moved with compassion for the being who, obedient to a nod, seated himself in the great chair never to rise alive. The doomed man took his place, and some who witnessed him admired what they styled his "nerve," and others pitied him and dreaded the end.

"Take it cool, Bill. I'm going to stay close beside you all the while to the end," said the warden. Then he buckled a strap at one shoulder.

"I will. I'll take it cool," returned Kemmler, and then with his elbows upon the great arms of the chair, he drew himself firmly back on the seat so that the electrode pressed him hard at the base of the spine. Two assistants were working at the straps, first the arms, then the chest, waist, hips, legs and lastly the leather mask. There was some fumbling in nervous haste and the doomed man observed it and spoke:

"Take your time," he said, "take your time," and while he spoke he held high his arms to make easy the binding of his chest.

THE DEATH CHAIR AND MASK.

And again the witnesses glanced each into his neighbor's face in approval or compassion. Then, as the insulated neck saddle was being placed, he suggested that if pressed forward as it was being adjusted it would be more easy for him.

"All right, Bill, all right," returned the warden, and his voice was a trifle unsteady; "it won't hurt you, Bill, it won't hurt you at all," he added.

"Take your time," Mr. Durston, "don't be in a hurry," the prisoner responded, and then he added as the dangling mask was being shaped for adjustment:

"Well, I wish everybody good luck."

Pastor Houghton's eyes seemed wet, as he glanced up through his glasses as if to see if the [illegible] present did not recognize in this expression of good will some evidence of good results from his ministrations to the prisoner.

Then the mask was drawn across the man's face. It covered his eyes, grasped his chin and firmly pressed his forehead. It was not well fitted. Kemmler said so and spoke to direct its proper adjustment. But when the growing sunlight had been shut out of his eyes and when the rustling cords and green grass were blinded from his vision, there seemed to come to him a strong realization of the fact that sunlight would never again touch his living eyes and that upon his vision had died the final glimpse of the bright greenness without the windows. There seemed also to rush over him an overwhelming sense of self-pity, for there was a touching pause in his tone when he spoke, and the inflections of exhibit submission were intensified as they became focussed upon the end of all. He spoke:

"Do everything right, Mr. Durston, and push down that motion on top of my head."

He referred to the electrode which was being fitted to the top of his head. It was done, seeming to push his head down between his shoulders, while the mask was buckled back so tightly that the edge was buried in the skin of the nose and forehead. Once more he spoke:

"Well, I want to do the best I can and I can't do better than that."

It was the plea of a man in desolation for human sympathy. He had tried to be steady. He had desired to save the warden from a harrowing scene, and his appearance as well as his manner had done that and more, it had dispelled all statements that the man was insane or in a flabby state of dejection. Indeed, he did not appear the brute that he has been depicted.

"No, I can't do any better than that," he repeated after a moment's pause.

"God bless you, Kemmler, you have done well," spoke Dr. Spitzka in his quick, nervous way, and there were pitying tears in many eyes and husky voices muttered:

"You have, Kemmler, you have."

Every strap had been tightened, each electrode had been pressed to the seat of life; the warden's deputies stepped back, there was a hush. The warden inquired of Drs. Macdonald and Spitzka how long the current should be maintained on Kemmler's body. The first response was 20 seconds, which was almost instantly changed to 10 seconds.

"Very well, gentlemen," replied the warden, and he moved towards the door of his secret room, and at the moment Dr Fell of Buffalo, who designed the death chair, was dropping water from a bulb syringe through a long rubber tube into the electrods sponges.

The hour was 6 o'clock and 42 minutes. The warden reappeared from the ante-room.

"Well, everything is ready," he said, while he faced the death chair six feet away. The bound man in the chair had heard every word. He knew he was upon the edge of the eternal world and a lightning flash should show him through. The secret of that minute's agony of suspense has gone out with him. His hands were clinched and rigid. He waited the shock.

It was now 6 o'clock and 45½ minutes. Two and one half minutes had been consumed in securing him with straps after he sat down in the chair, and from that time to the moment [illegible] was ready 5½ minutes had passed. Then the warden leaned over and nodded his head to someone who stood in the secret room at the fatal switch. There was a quick convulsive start of the bound figure in the chair, a little squeaking sound of straining straps, breathless watchers with every sense bent upon the moveless wretch bound [illegible] and face and no sound save birds' songs in the bright sunshine outside the windows.

The bar of a heavy shade at one window was lifted by the straying breeze and fell back against the bar. The noise was slight, but to the tense and breathless watchers in the death chamber it seemed equal to the sound of clashing arms.

Dr Spitzka and Dr. Shrady, drawn by deep interest almost unconsciously from their places, moved on tiptoe to places by the chair. But all was still and no man spoke. Every faculty was contributing to that of vision. Such a scene there never was on earth before. No man ever before had died thus by the deliberate purpose of his fellow-man. Here before men of science and laymen was then in silent operation, a mysterious agent whose results only could be seen or known.

If there could have been a universal mother of all living things on earth, there was being generated here within the iron loins of an inanimate object a vicious virus that might make her childless well nigh every hour.

After that convulsive start that marked the stroke of lightning upon Kemmler, there was no movement of muscle nor twitch of nerve. The features from bridge of nose to chin seemed to have been pursed up as those of one facing a sleety storm or of one breasting a powerful dust-bearing wind. But all was still. Here was no driving storm, no rushing gale. There was no heave of the breast nor distension of the nostril. There was no twitch nor struggle. A hurrying wave frozen at the instant of its combining could not have been more still nor half so impressive as this silent form within the bonds of death.

Who should say? No man of science dared near his ear to the heart within the rigid figure there. The vicious virus from the machine's iron loins was yet flowing through the man so lately speaking, moving, there. The law demanded that the current of electricity should be maintained against his vitals until death should come.

But who should tell when death had come? The men of science believed that then the nerve centres were being beaten as with heavy hammers in different directions at the rate of some 230 times each second. Their books, though they told of no case like this, led the wise men to believe that the silent forces working in this man's body were disintegrating the nerve cells, the tissues, and the blood too, by divorce of oxygen from its corpuscles. They thought the blood was becoming by mechanical change fluidized and useless to sustain life.

And so they watched and listened in the silent room—5, 10, 15, 17 seconds. The time was very short, but to each one there it seemed like the span of an hour.

"There, that's enough. Take off the current," said the warden's chosen physicians—Macdonald and Spitzka—and the warden passed the word within the adjoining room, where someone had let on the current and where the same one cut it off.

Then Dr. Spitzka said: "Observe the lividity about the base of the nose and the entire nose itself. Note, where the mask rests on the nose, the white appearance there." The other doctors came about and deuted the flesh with their fingers and watched the play of white and red upon withdrawal. They saw an abrasion upon the right thumb. In that supreme shock the murderer's fist had become so clenched in the convulsion that the nail of the forefinger had dug into the base of the thumb. Meantime a button pressed in the secret room had signalled the stopping of the dynamo.

Happiest of all in the room was Dr. Southwick of Buffalo, the father of electricizing in capital cases, and who has been studying and working upon the subject since 1881.

"There," he exclaimed, as he strode away from the chair to a knot of witnesses at the other end of the room, "this is the culmination of ten years' work and study. We live in a higher civilization from this day."

But even while he spoke a quick, sharp cry went up from those yet watching closely about the silent figure in the chair.

Then came moans of horror from strong men who looked. There had been, as they closely scanned, a movement in the breast of the man whom all believed had died one minute and 47 seconds before. The doctors and electricians could scarcely at first believe their eyes, but doubt was banished quickly, for there was another movement accompanied by a sudden gasp, and then the breast began to heave with long deep stentorous respiration. Then went forth the cry of sickening horror at the spectacle of a man half killed under the operation of the law.

"Start the current, start the current again!" shouted Dr. Spitzka. Others cried out likewise to have the scene brought to a close. All crowded about the chair and watched the laboring wretch whose breast, despite the broad, tight bands about him, was rising and falling with strong force. Slightly foamy saliva was exuded from the mouth, the entire body rocked in the efforts of the organs to resume their functions and deep fear fell upon some lest consciousness should return.

The doctors declared, however, that the man was beyond consciousness and some thought the action which startled all and sent the warden away with white face to order the current renewed was only a reflex muscular action. Not so one physician, who declared he would stake his name that be could bring Kemmler back to conscious life with brandy hypodermics.

Meantime Mr. G. G. Bain of Washington, D.C., had fainted and lay upon a bench where he was being fanned.

This spectacle was continued from 6¾ until 6.47 o'clock.

Then there came again to the figure within the chair another shock under which the straps were strained again. The lungs, however, filled again and again, while the current was pouring through the unconscious body. The Warden and his helper were anxious beyond measure, and 2½ minutes after the current had been reapplied the switch was opened and shut rapidly twice. Each time the body in the chair was lifted by the shock. The shoulders lifted to the level of the tops of the ears and the features contracted. The reapplication of the current was continued from 6.49½ to 6.51 o'clock, intermitted twice at the switch.

At 6.51 another groan of dismay was heard near the chair and smoke was observed curling up from Kemmler's back.

"He is burning," shouted one.

"Cut off the current!" shouted another.

"He is dead. There's no use keeping up the current longer!" said some one else.

Again the warden gave the signal to open the switch and the body in the chair, surcharged with 4 distinct shocks, developed no further movement.

"He's unquestionably dead," said Dr. Macdonald, "and he would never have moved after the spasm of the first shock had the last shock been maintained 40 seconds, and a less time with a stronger current.

Meantime Dr. Fell was wetting the sponge in the electrode at Kemmler's back and putting out some little fire that had communicated to the man's clothing. Soon the smoke from burning cloth and flesh disappeared. But the odor still clung about the place, stifling and tenacious.

Almost immediately attendants began to unbind the corpse and finally the mask was removed. The eyes were found to be half closed and without a glassy stare. The lids were lifted and tests of the pupils with bright light were made. The optic nerves were dead. There was no contraction of the pupils. Where the mask had pressed the forehead there was a livid mark. The nose and the region of its base was of deeply livid hue. Purple spots soon began mottling the hands, arms and neck and the doctors said he was surely dead. One of the Buffalo doctors seven minutes after the straps were removed cut the skin at the temple for a microscope specimen of the dead man's blood. It was examined and found slightly coagulated.

Warden Durston produced his death certificate, which was read and signed by each witness of the execution.

Warden Durston was asked to state the pressure at the time the current was first applied. "About 1700 volts," was the response.

Kemmler's body was entirely unbound about 7¾ o'clock and the doctors determined not to proceed at once with the autopsy. The witnesses returned to the hotel for breakfast.

"I'd have taken the chance, I think," remarked Dr. Shrady, "of resuscitating that man with hypoderm as even an hour after the current was taken off at the first time and before its re-application."

There is said by all the physicians to be no doubt that consciousness was stricken instantly from Kemmler's brain. The fact that he was not instantly killed is the result of improper contact or of insufficient voltage or pressure. The consensus of opinion among the witnesses here to-day is that not the slightest doubt exists but that a human being may be instantaneously killed by 1000 volts applied through perfect contact and continued 20 seconds.

Kemmler's body will doubtless be disposed of to-morrow in the prison burying ground with quicklime.

DEATH WAS INSTANTANEOUS.

The Brain Paralyzed. Kemmler's Passing Was Painless.

Before 8½ most of the doctors had returned to the prison to prepare for the autopsy. The body of the dead man still sat in the electric chair, the limbs rigid, the expression of the face (but for the discolorations of the skin) unchanged. The rigor of the body was a matter of comment and surprise among the physicians. The jaw had not fallen and the pleasant expression, with which Kemmler had greeted the witnesses as he entered the execution room, still lingered about his features.

It was determined that Dr. Jenkins of New York, instead of Dr. Daniel, should do the work with the surgeon's knife, because of his long experience in performing autopsies on persons killed by electricity. Both Dr. Daniel and Dr. Jenkins stripped off their coats and vests and the surgeons' case was opened and the glittering array of knives and saws brought out. The body was lifted from the chair and placed on the table in the centre of the room. It still preserved its rigidity. A small wooden box was placed under the head to support it and the limbs were straightened out as far as possible. Then a convict was summoned from the prison to take off the clothing.

The removal revealed a scar nearly five inches in diameter where the second electrode had pressed against the base of the spine, showing that the current had burned through into the flesh. The body looked healthy and well nourished. Dr. Shrady at this point suggested the necessity of making the examination as formal as though it was to be taken for criminal investigation, and volunteered to act as secretary and take the report in shorthand. This was agreed upon, and the first step taken was to bind a clinical thermometer to the nape of the neck and take the temperature.

The record demonstrated that the man was dead beyond all question. The table, on suggestion, was moved over to the corner of the cell directly under the windows, where a better light could be had. When it was in position a general survey of the body was taken, and its external condition carefully noted. Then Dr. Jenkins took his surgeon's knife and began operations. The body was cut open. The heart, lungs and other organs were taken out and their condition noted carefully. They were all put in Mueller's fluid for preservation and future examination.

When the organs in the trunk of the body had been examined carefully, the top of the skull was removed and the brain taken out. This was the most interesting feature of the examination, as the theory on which the claims of greater humanity for this method of execution are based is the theory that the electric current paralyzes the brain instantly and thus destroys all sensation. The physicians found evidence of the effect of the current on the formation of the skull, in the blood and on the brain tissue directly beneath the point of contact, which satisfied them that the paralysis of the brain was immediate.

A WAIF AND A WANDERER.

The Story of Kemmler's Life. The Crime for Which he Died.

Kemmler was born in Philadelphia thirty years ago, brought up in ignorance, never learned a trade and for years has been a waif and a wanderer. He did not know whether he has a relative living, although shortly after he came to Auburn he received a letter from a man living in Ohio who was probably his uncle.

So he grew up like a lost child and naturally, because his father was a butcher, worked more at that than at anything else. It was the only business of which he had the least knowledge. Some three years ago in Camden, N.J., he married Ida Porter. The day after his wedding he learned that she had another husband living. Immediately he left her and ran away to Buffalo with Mrs. Tillie Zeigler. There he became at once a huckster and a drunkard. The woman, too, was cursed with a taste for liquor. They quarreled continually. She frequently stole his money, and, taken altogether, their life was as degraded as could be.

One night, crazy with drink, they had a row about a few cents, and he struck her on the head with an ax. Next day she was dead. That night, in the station-house cell, he was plied with liquor until he grew talkative, and told enough to convict himself. That is the whole story of his life, common enough in its beginning, and uncommon in its ending, only because he was the first to die this new death ordained by the law.

THE CLOTHING IDENTIFIED.

Jacob J Kirschner's Clothing Recognized by His Son.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 6.—The clothing found yesterday in Prospect Park was identified to-day by his son as that of Jacob J. Kirschner of Brantford. No reason is known for the suicide.

A floater was found to-day below the falls. It is supposed to be the body of Louis Messinger, who was drowned at Tonawanda about two weeks ago.

An Artillery Revolt at Exeter.

LONDON, Aug. 6. This morning a detachment of royal artillery stationed at Exeter refused to parade, and cut the harness on the horses. Orders have been sent down from the Horse Guards that the men be confined to their barracks pending an investigation.

The Argentine Revolution.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 6.—The President has been compelled by popular clamor to resign.

The Chambers have not accepted Celman's resignation. Complications are feared. Great excitement prevails.

Another instance of the friendly relations between England and Germany is that England has ordered one of her men-of-war to protect German interests at Buenos Ayres.

The Guatemalan Revolt.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 6. The Guatemalan revolutionists, numbering 800, were defeated Monday by Guatemalan regulars under General Pedro Barillas, brother of the President.

A Jumping Record Broken.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 6.—John H. Clausen, the jumper of the Boston Athletic Association, broke the record for the running hop, step and jump yesterday afternoon at Beacon Park. Although the track was somewhat slow Clausen's first trial resulted in a record of 42 feet 2¾ inches. On the second attempt the official measurement was 43 feet and on the third and last trial he covered 44 feet 5 inches. This is 3¾ inches better than the best previous record, which was held by Malcolm Ford, and was made in New York. The judges to-day were Eugene Buckley, J. S. Murphy, J. B. Connolly, John Graham and W. Barnes, all recognised local athletes. Clausen had trained for a week under Instructor Harry Cornish of the Boston Athletic Association.

THE BEHRING SEA QUESTION.

THE Hon. David Mills in a speech at Dresden recently, dealt very fully and very forcibly with the Behring Sea question. As is his custom he spoke with the knowledge of a man who had considered the question in all its aspects. He spoke, too, as a Canadian and, while there was an entire absence of bluster in what he said, he spoke very emphatically on behalf of Canadian rights. The following brief history of the question is condensed from his speech :

The shores of Alaska were discovered by Captain Behring 1741. He was a Dane, but sailed in the interest of the Czar. Russian navigators from time to time carried on their exploratory surveys, but more than 40 years elapsed before they had properly defined and mapped these coasts. In 1799 the country was placed by the Czar under the control of a fur company in imitation of the Northwest Fur Company of Canada. In the meantime English and American fur traders and fishermen had visited these shores. The better to protect the Russian company from these rivals, the Czar in 1821 issued a ukase in which he claimed the sovereignty of the northwest coast of this continent from Behring straits to the 51st degree of north latitude and so much of the Pacific Ocean as lay north of a line drawn from the 51st degree on the American continent to the 45th degree on the Asiatic side. The ocean on this line is nearly 1,000 miles wider than the Atlantic is between New York and Spain. He also laid claim to the Aleutian and Kurile Islands, and prohibited all nations from navigating or fishing in the islands, ports and gulfs within the above limits, nor were they to come within 100 miles of any of the Russian establishments on pain of confiscation of their cargo. Russia based her claim to this part of North America on first discovery, first occupation and a peaceable and uncontested possession extending over half a century. John Quincy Adams was then Secretary of State for the United States. He denied that Russia had acquired any right south of the 56th degree of north latitude, and he ridiculed the pretension to the sovereignty of a sea which upon its southern margin was more than 4,000 miles wide. The contention of Mr. Adams on this point is clear and explicit. He says the suggestion that the Russian Government might justly exercise sovereignty over the Northern Pacific Ocean as mare clausum, because it claimed territories both on the Asiatic and American coasts of that ocean, though on the 51st parallel they were not less than 4,000 miles apart, was a pretension of such a character that he was persuaded the commerce of American citizens would remain unmolested and no effect would be given to a prohibition manifestly incompatible with their rights Shortly after a treaty or convention was concluded between the United States and Russia, in which the contracting parties mutually agreed—

"That in any part of the great ocean commonly called the Pacific Ocean or South Sea the respective citizens and subjects of the high contracting parties shall be neither disturbed or restrained either in navigation or fishing."

President Monroe, in writing to Mr. Madison, shortly after in reference to this convention, says :—

"By this convention the claim of mare clausum is given up. * * * England will, of course, have a similar stipulation in favor of the free navigation of the Pacific, but we shall have the credit of having taken the lead in this affair."

You will observe that President Monroe does not say that Russia's claim to the sovereignty of the North Pacific is left in abeyance, but that "it is given up." And the United States Government at the time declared among other things this :—

That by entering into this treaty with Russia, they did not surrender their rights under the law of nations.

No amount of casuistry can explain away the contentions of the American Government. The broad principle for which Mr. Adams contends is clearly expressed. It is free from all ambiguity and is not restricted by his allusion to another subject—the right to trade with the Indians upon the coast.

THE Hon. Mr. Colby, President of the Privy Council, will leave in a few days for England, with his son, who recently graduated at Harvard University. He is now going to take a three or four years' course at some German University it wouldn't be patriotic to send the son of a member of the Canadian government to a Canadian University.

The Entrance Examinations.

A Norwood correspondent of the Hastings Star writes :

In the Register last week we notice more complaints concerning the Inspector's work. From what we can hear, it seems as though the carrying out of the examinations in this county was a bungling affair all through. The Register requests that the total number of marks taken by each pupil should be published. We would go farther and suggest that the number taken by each pupil in each subject, should be published. Examiners are well paid for their work, and the least the candidate is entitled to, is full information and not only should inspectors, but examiners be men of principle. A teacher and his pupils work diligently for a whole session preparing for the examinations, and when the time comes they should not be thrown to the mercy of some person who examines after the principle of "heads I win, tails you lose." When the full information regarding the result of these exams. is made known, it gives the teacher and pupils a better chance to judge the fairness of the result, and to a great extent removes doubt, is sold; but each stick cut must pay its dues when it is cut. Many of these lands sold, as it is called, a long time ago, still pay a yearly revenue to the Government."

"What further steps could you suggest" was next asked.

"I have no doubt," was the answer, "that in time to come America will, as they do in much of Europe, plant yearly as much forest as she cuts down. I would like to see it done now ; but it is too advanced a step. In the meantime, I should like to see a forest reservation, from which timber might, with certain ease, be sold when mature ; but from which settlers and their cattle should be excluded, formed near the head waters of some of our rivers, say up in the Nipissing territory. It would need fifteen or twenty townships, and no one would lose therby, as much of it would be far better in the forest than in farm, while we have plenty of land for settlement elsewhere Then I would like to see a large nursery established to give farmers young forest trees on condition that they care for them properly. This is done in some countries with good effect. I have no doubt both these things will be done in time ; but in the meanwhile time is lost. It is, however, impossible to move far in advance of public opinion ; but this is rapidly becoming educated on the subject, and will soon be ready for more energetic action with this accolade, promptly turns the other also. It is well understood that ministers as a class do very much like this kind of thing ; and faithfully doing to others as they would that these should do to them, are punctilious in bandying complimentary titles among themselves, such as are disused by the good taste and self respect of more secular men.—Rev. Dr. Leonard Woolsey Bacon in the June Forum.

Fashions and Customs of the Dark Continent.

There is a sad monotony in our European fashions. Even the so-called changes are often fugues on a trivial theme, or thinly-disguised variations and reproductions of forgotten trivialities. Our new communications and lively interest in the gentle inhabitants of Central Africa may suggest some startling novelties. Besides the graceful extravagances of their head-dress—which, however, hardly beat those of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, reconstructed for the public edification a few years since by Mr. Lewis Wingfield, and which may yet live again—there are many varieties among our new African proteges of the way they wear their heads. The ruling families of the Munbuttu tribe flatten their skulls so as to elongate their heads. The Bari apply pressure first in front of the ears so as to heighten the head in that place. The Bedi distinguish themselves by extracting the four front teeth of the lower jaw. Then there is a variety of ways of wearing a tail, which beat the Court train of the modern beauty in simplicity and perhaps in grace. The Madi wear cotton tails, which swing when they dance. Elsewhere a lady limits her costume to a twig arranged as a tail, and manages to seat herself at a court function with this appendage in a graceful and dignified manner without throwing it over her arm, and with the intervention of a chamberlain. In the matter of eating, they are catholic and omnivorous, and nothing comes amiss, from a banna—which furnishes food, and when fermented, drink—to a fat pig or a deceased wife's sister, who give little trouble there to legislators. Owing to their reticence as to their burial customs—for which dark reasons are suggested—it is difficult to pursue this branch of anthropological osteological research. It will be seen, from the gravier gleanings which we publish elsewhere, that there is much to interest the physician and the anthropologist. Dr. Emin Pasha's diary is a mine of dry but instructive reading on this subject.—(Emin Pasha in Central Africa) British Medical Journal.

Needed an Outing.

"Grand singer, isn't he?" said the hostess to one of the guests. "Unfortunately the room is to small and he cannot let out his voice."

"I think he ought to let it out; it would certainly sound better outside and it would do it good to get the air."—Philadelphia Times.

An Unusual Divorce Case.

A lady entered a down town store, made her purchases, and departed.

"Do you know who that is?" asked the salesman of a friend, who replied that he did not. And then this story was told:

"She is Mrs.——. She and her husband had a misunderstanding several years ago. They separated, but neither applied for divorce. She applied herself to a business that was honorable and remunerative. He followed his business as before. They did not cross one another's path during the separation until the event of which I am going to tell you occurred. He sickened and became delirious. At one time there were doubts as to his recovery. The wife was in the city at the time attending to the interests of her business. She heard of her husband's illness and called. He did not recognize her. She attended him until her business called her away. Soon after her departure the husband began to rally. As he recovered he said to a friend that he had thought of his wife a good deal during his sickness; that he had fancied at one time that she was near him and attended him. The man said this to the lady. The friend to whom he related it caused it to be communicated to the wife. I don't know what the details were. I only know that a few weeks ago I saw in one of the newspapers that the husband of whom I have been talking bought a handsome residence on one of the avenues, and nothing thereafter he moved into it and she went with him. That's all."—Chicago Tribune.

OF VALUABLE

Farm Property

IN THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN.

PURSUANT to the order of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, for sale made in HOOEY vs CAMPBELL et al. and bearing date the 11th day of February, A.D. 1890, there will be sold with the approbation of C. A. Weller Esquire, Local Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, at Peterborough, by John Haggart, Auctioneer, at KENNEALLY'S HOTEL, in the Town of Peterborough, at the hour of TWO o'clock p. m.,

ON SATURDAY

The 16th day of August, 1890

the following lands and premises in one parcel, being composed of

The East half of the West half of lot number five in tenth concession of the Township of North Monaghan save and except that part thereof heretofore conveyed to the Ontario and Quebec Railway for a right of way through the said land, known as the "Frank Campbell Farm."

There are erected on said lot, a one and one half storey frame house about 22x30 feet ; one barn about 30x50 feet, and one frame stable about 18x24 feet. There is a good orchard on said lot and the soil is clay loam.

The said lot will be sold subject to the rights or interest of Mary Campbell therein or thereto during her lifetime.

The property will be offered for sale subject to a reserved bid which has been fixed by the said Master.

Terms of payment, ten per cent. of the purchase money at the time of sale and the balance thereof within thirty days thereafter without interest.

In all other respects, the terms and conditions of sale will be the standing conditions of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice

Further particulars can be had from Messrs. Stratton & Hall, plaintiff's solicitors and Messrs Reeves & Bros. Solicitors, Peterborough.

Dated at Peterborough this 28th day of July, 1890.

JUNIPER ISLAND STORE

A full assortment of Groceries, Canned Goods and Campers' Supplies generally—a first class stock, fresh and reliable, and at Peterborough prices. The popularity of this store last year and the favor with which it was received—has induced us to enlarge the building and lay in a much larger stock this season so that campers may be saved the trouble and annoyance of bringing their supplies from town and other places, as they can be equally as well served by us. Being centrally situated, it is easy of access—the Steamer passing close to the Island both entering and leaving Stony Lake.

PLUCKY JOHN THORBURN.

AN INTERESTING ADVENTURE WITH A STEAMER IN AFRICA.

A Trip Over Mountain and Valley, River and Swamp—Sixteen Hundred Miles in Long Jolts—A Steamer Carted Across Country—Fourteen Months Hardship.

John Thornburn has had an interesting adventure with a steamer in Swaziland, South Africa. Mr Thorburn took a steamer across country for 1,600 miles, to Delagoa Bay, and he did this entirely by his own energy and courage. His plain narrative has been published in a pamphlet, "Struggles in Africa," at the office of the Swaziland Concessionaire, and the London Daily News is of opinion that no Englishman can study the story without pride and pleasure and encouragement. Mr. Thorburn left the diamond fields in 1885 and kept a store on the Vaal River. There he was ruined by a flood, but he reflected that the river might be navigated, and the Upper Vaal thus brought into communication with Kimberley by the water-way. He sent home for a steel steam launch of thirty-seven feet and of six-horse power. The Free State and Transvaal Governments gave him leave to remove islands and obstructions, and "for three long years" he was making a water way out of a river. The river boat thinks he could not clear it, and he determined to carry his vessel to Delagoa Bay, over 1,600 miles of veldt mountains and roads resembling those of the Highlands "before they were made." "As long as the wheels go round I will continue to go," he said, and he went. The journey occupied fourteen months, and is one of the miracles of that miracle producing country Africa.

In May, 1884, Mr. Thorburn started. His company was of three white men—his own son Jack, Bill Davies and George Gray. The last deserted the enterprise. There were also thirty natives—one of whom deserted, there were eighteen oxen for the large wagon which held the boat, and fourteen for the small wagon.

THE EARLY PART OF THE JOURNEY

was a mere holiday to Mr. Thorburn, with plenty of sport, both large game and small. Mr Thorburn used to walk in advance, removing stones till his fingers bled and blistered, and he had to throw the obstacles away from the palm of his hand. Then he met his first adventure. The veldt was on fire, the oxen "tan away, the men with them, and the fire roaring and leaping near with the wagon. But the fire passed them, after a run of a mile and a half, and left them nearly choked with the smoke. At last they rested down and advanced slowly, trading, fought for the picnic sun. At Brookhurst Spruit they saw the graves of the Ninety fourth. Here they had to cut a bridge, and it is to be understood that Mr. Thorburn was making his own roads for the best part of the way. Now the backbone of the roads drove them on to the coast, now the softness of the veldt drove them again to the boulder-incumbered track.

"Sometimes they only traveled a mile in three or four days. The native drivers were mutinous and one of them Mr. Thorburn beat, finally he deserted. Then George took to driving into all the holes, and he also was allowed to depart. On Sunday they always rested, shot and fished. At one place the wagon stuck to the axles, and the steamer seemed about on dry ground. Stone had to be brought from a distance of 200 yards, and a kind of a sledge had to be made out of a tree for transport. The distance whence the trees had to be fetched was immense. The whole had to be lifted with screw-jacks, and the stones inserted under them. Six days were spent in overcoming the difficulties in the river sticks fast. The road down from the heights was reported to be very bad. "I agreed as long as there is a road, that is all I require. That I can always repair and make good. Then we entered Swaziland. The King, though a savage, is a very truthful, upright and just man.

"AT ONE POINT UP WAS A DESERT,

One-half of the boat's side was knocked out of shape, six feet of the steel plates were torn open, the woodwork was fire-wood, the iron bulkhead was doubled up. It was now I felt quite beaten," says Mr. Thorburn, "but that was a passing sensation. Encouraged with great difficulty to remove the iron sides, and the wheels from the axles, and then replace the axles without the wheels. Finally, with the aid of the Kaffirs, the wagon was re-tired, but then the steamer had to be unloaded. Mr. Thorburn borrowed an anger from a Boer, made iron bolts out of a piece of the hand railing, and was ready for a start, but now the oxen were lost, and when recovering, were beginning to sicken. At a more distant some days had to be spent in digging a trench on the high crest of these so-called road, that the wheels might move on a level. The now reached Buffels Hoek, and saw a beautiful country covered in bekoodhorn dotted by Kaffir kraals. So they made the road, and then the floods came and washed away the road they had made. Mr. Thorburn made it again, cut a large tree as a sledge for the wagon, and somehow shot the descent. He saw his son's blood on a pick handle and turned away because he should see the tears on my face. The hands of the party were a mass of blood blisters, but they worked on.

"Then the wagon ran away, Jack ran in and got between a deep dongo and the rear wheel. He had but nine inches of space between him and death. Bill's finger was split by an accident. Sandhlana, chief adviser of the Swazi King, visited the white party and was courteous and kind. Two white settlers were also here. But now the oxen were nearly dead and finally most of them died. Fortunately, others were procured from two squatters, a Scot and an Irishman. At last they reached a tidal river, from the last oxen wagon, reached Lorenco Marques, and had a most welcome meal. They had drank no spirits for two months, their beer carried in case spirits were sold to Jack, the native driver, with the result that he harmed himself with the lash of his whip.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

The steamer had now to be repaired again, and Mr. Thorburn manufactured his own wooden mallets. He left the ship in good keeping, went home, and, every one will be sorry to hear, found that his little boy had died during the expedition. "I showed them the toys and sweets I had bought for them (the children) which caused the salt water to overflow down my cheeks. Then Mr. Thorburn sold his farm, not guessing that it was, as it proved later, a rich gold field, and started for Delagoa Bay.

"Adventures befell him on the return route to the Lobombo, where the steamer was, but he was hardened to adventures. The vessel was brought to the Tembe drift, which is tidal, and was launched with great rejoicing, 'the monkeys jabbering and parrots squeaking.' The vessel ran ashore and Mr. Thorburn had to rivet on the funnel with the end of a spade we had on board." Finally they reached Lorenco Marques, where Mr. Thorburn received a certificate as captain from the Portuguese, and stood on the deck of his own vessels. It is pleasant to add that his enterprise has been profitable, 'without aid or financial assistance from any one.' Though he met no lions and fought no natives, he overcame difficulties which only tested his extraordinary resources, courage and perseverance. He is clearly a man who could go anywhere and do anything. The blood of the Vikings is not degenerate in him, and this Thorburn in peace is a match for any Thorburn of his ancestry in war."—London Daily News.

A Smoking Tree.

Newton, a vigorous mountain town west of Charlotte, N. C., has a curiosity that beats by a large majority the rain tree which gained such notoriety in Charlotte in 1886. It is a smoking tree, and baffles all efforts at explanation. It is a white mulberry tree, and stands on the sidewalk in front of the residence of Levi Yoder.

It was brought from Illinois a year or two ago, and is now about twelve feet high, with a bushy top and many lateral branches. Last Sunday one of the family noticed a puff of smoke proceed from one of the limbs, and, by watching it closely, puffs identical in appearance to cigar the smoke were seen starting every now and then from all over the tree, sometimes from the leaves, sometimes from the bloom, sometimes from the bark of the limbs or trunk of the tree. The puffs are at irregular intervals; sometimes two or three at once from various parts of the tree, and sometimes they are several seconds or a half-minute apart. They just seem to come at haphazard from any part of the tree, and as they ascend in the air look exactly like the smoke from a cigarette.

Since Tuesday, when the curiosity first became generally known, large crowds both of town and country people can be seen there at any time of the day. All doubting Thomases are soon convinced on their visit that the tree "does smoke." Among the white people it is looked upon as a curiosity, and many, of course, make explanations of the phenomenon, which, perhaps, are plausible enough, to their authors, but which carry very little in conviction to the minds of others.

But the negroes don't like the thing at all. One negro woman, after intently watching the puffs a few minutes, started off on a run, saying: "I wouldn't fib dar for nothin'; people better go to doin' better 'bout dis town." A negro man said: "I'm gwine stay away from dat thing. I can smell de brimstone clear down to de livery stable."—Richmond Times.

There is more fun in a sheet of sticky fly paper than in the average negro minstrel. Watch the kitten playing with it on the new carpet; the latter is ruined for ever; the kitten goes into a fit and all the women and children rush out of the house in terror. If you want to rid your house of flies, buy Wilson's Fly Poison Pads, and use as directed. Nothing else will clear them out thoroughly. Sold at 10c. by all druggists. dw

Life Insurance Policy Holders

SHOULD READ THIS!

THE PERCENTAGE OF LAPSES.

The large increase in the amount of life insurance written by purely Canadian companies, and accelerated by surrender or lapse, during the past year, has naturally attracted the attention of insurance men. So unexpected and unwelcome an increase as $1,706,612 in the amount of lapsed policies credited to Canadian companies during a period when American companies doing business in this country showed a decrease under this heading of $219,304, could not fail to excite comment; so that the figures have been eagerly scanned to discover how such a condition of affairs was brought about.

Perhaps this is most easily shown in tabular form by giving the net amount of insurance in force on the books of each of our principal Canadian companies and the percentage of lapsed and surrendered policies they are responsible for. In this case they rank as follows:—

Company.	Net amount in force.	Percentage of Surrender and Lapse.
Canada Life	$48,664,376	2.07
Confederation	17,074,523	5.21
Ontario Mutual	13,071,400	10.29
Federal	10,068,337	10.25
Sun Life	11,670,317	10.36
North American	8,470,630	10.63
Temperance and General	2,984,972	17.84
Citizens	2,097,956	29.15
Manufacturers' Life	5,723,100	30.12
London Life	1,644,235	30.61

From this table we can see that while such companies as the Canada Life and Confederation have actually decreased the amount of their lapses, some of the weaker companies have largely increased theirs, so that, although one company shows under four per cent., one under six, and four under eleven, the average percentage of lapses for the whole ten companies is 15.78 per cent.

The only moral we can draw from these figures is that the stronger and more widely known a company is, and the more of its patrons is will retain permanently on its books, while the weaker companies must, perforce, witness the defection of a certain proportion of their customers to their more powerful rivals. That so large a proportion as 30 per cent. of policy holders should entirely abandon the advantages of insurance in one year is hardly probable in these days of popular education. We can therefore only fall back on the hypothesis that the bulk of the lapses of the weaker companies must arise from their policy holders transferring their allegiance elsewhere. It is in fact a case of the wealthier and more widely known (even if not more progressive) companies absorbing the cream of the permanent business, and leaving only the transitory, and therefore less desirable risks, to their humbler competitors. By the aid of clever management and attractive methods, a weak company may be able to absorb a fair share of new business; but it is evident from these figures that the superior prestige of their older established rivals is certain to attract a proportion of their customers in the long run, and that thus their percentage of lapses will always be heavier.

These grounds which are the pride of both Seaton Butcher and the public, are worthy of the best protection.

Nassau Orangmen

The members of Wellington L.O.L., No. 457, Nassau, by order of the W.M., are requested to meet in the Orange Hall, Peterborough, on Sunday next, the 10th inst., at 6.30 p.m., to attend divine service in the George Street Methodist Church. Also to meet on Tuesday, the 12th of August, at 8.30 a.m., in the Orange Hall They will then proceed to the C.P.R. station, where a train will be in waiting to take them to Norwood.

The Band Competition.

The Fifty-seventh band is putting in some effective practice for the competition in Hamilton on Aug. 11-12. The boys had a good practice last night in the drill shed, and preformed their selections in a very creditable manner. It is to be hoped that every member of the band will realize the importance of not losing a single night's practice this week. Don't give bandmaster Miller a chance to complain of poor attendance. Isn't it singular that the best performers have the highest appreciation of the immense importance of diligent practice.?

A Cheese Exhibit.

At a meeting of the cheese board, held in Belleville, Tuesday afternoon, it was decided that every president of a factory contribute $1 towards the cheese exhibit to be held during the Bay of Quinte District Fair. By the payment of this sum any factory will be able to exhibit. Mr. Warrington, President of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, stated that the exhibit would be the finest that has been held in this section for fifteen years. Here is a pointer for Peterborough cheese makers. This county makes as good cheese as is made in the world, and could, no doubt, scoop the prizes at several local or Provincial exhibitions.

An Iron Matter.

Mr. Geo. Stevenson, of the Lock Works, received a letter this morning from Messrs. Drummond, McCall & Co., of Montreal, advising him of the formation of the Canada Iron Furnace Company (Limited), with a capital of $200,000, of which $113,000 has been subscribed, and inquiring if stock subscriptions could not be secured from Peterborough citizens. The new company has secured several important properties in Quebec. There might be a better prospect of securing stock in Peterborough if the company would decide to purchase and operate some of the mines in this vicinity, which are among the best on the continent.

A Boy's Ingenious Tale.

The Empire says that a boy, eight years of age, who gave his name as Percy Maude, was charged Tuesday morning with vagrancy. He said that he came from Peterborough and that his parents were dead. There was considerable doubt cast on the youngster's story, and he was handed over to Inspector Archibald, who will make an investigation into his story. Percy was discovered by Inspector Archibald to be a most ingenious fabricator for a boy of his age. So far from being an orphan, both of his parents are living in Peterborough. Several months ago he ran away from home and by some means reached Toronto and found out his grandmother, an old lady named Chessman, who lives at 812 Yonge street. There he remained until the other day, when he was again seized with a longing for wandering, but fortunately for himself his trip was this time abruptly cut short by the police.

A Belleville Shooting Accident.

The Intelligencer says that an accident, the result of which is as yet unknown, befel a man named Wm. McCaskey, residing in West Belleville, at Napanee yesterday about 10 a.m. He was accidentally shot in the eye with a revolver in the hands of a companion. As soon as it was possible after the distressing accident, two physicians were summoned, who made an unsuccessful attempt to locate the bullet, which had struck the right eye at about the centre and passed almost straight through, striking the bones of the orbit and being reflected downwards and probably buried in the soft tissues of the neck. The patient was conveyed by train to the Belleville Hospital and Dr. Gibson summoned. It was found that the eye was injured beyond repair, and its removal was determined on. Drs. Murphy and Clinton and Mr. McCaul were called in to assist, and the eye was successfully removed at eight o'clock last night. The patient is comfortable this morning, and it is hoped he may recover, although the exact position of the bullet is not definitely known.

No Debate Necessary, for They all Agree

It is not necessary to have any debate or hold any argument whatever, for the public have decided that the best and cheapest trip on our Civic Holiday is going to the city of Belleville under the auspices of the C.M.B.A. and E. B.A. Branches. Therefore let nobody be deceived, for the great majority go with those who give them the best value for their money. Hence the crowd takes the special train at seven o'clock on Aug. 14th, for above city, because they all know that their tickets is good for two days if they feel disposed to stop over; and further, they all say that one dollar is a very small sum for such a fine trip. Why, by all means let everybody secure their tickets and have one good day's sport this season. Barrels of fun—good sports. Ball match, dancing, sailing, fishing, or any kind of amusement you desire. The committee has left nothing undone that will add to the comfort of those attending. You can procure your tickets from the following members of the committee:—Dr. Brennan, Ed. O'Neil, W. J. Devlin, Dr. Moher, John Cronin, G. H. Gircux, Dr. McGrath P. McHugh, M. C. Collins, John McGrath, Jas. Drain, J. J. Lynch. Make up your mind to take this excursion in, for it is pre-eminent to anything on the list on above date. You will be sorry if you don't. 2d32

Band Music.

Brantford, though a city, is not so highly favoured as Peterborough in the matter of music. The Expositor has this wail to make:—"Every village and town in the country nearly has a band playing in the park. Brantford is too poor or impecunious to provide any relaxation at all. If the council were to economize or retrench some where, and expend $500 for band music in the park during the summer, it would be the best money ever spent, for two reasons. First, we might then have a fairly good band, and second, nine-tenths of the people would sanction the expenditure. The condition of affairs in Brantford is in great contrast to Peterborough. All that our band receives from the council is a paltry $150, and they have a perpetual lien on the instruments by way of security. Yet the Fire Brigade Band is liberal, indeed prodigal, with its music. Every week this summer they have given us delightful open air concerts. Last Tuesday night they were in the park playing, and they will play again on Friday evening, two free concerts of high-class music a week. We have nothing to complain of and very much to be thankful for.

The Fishery and Other Politico-Social Matters.

Interview With a Prominent Politician From the United States.

As ex-member of the United States Congress, with his friends, married in Peterborough a couple of days, and was so accustomed to interviews that he did not need to be catechised. The party was "doing" Ontario lakes with the fishing.

"Faith, as to fishing in Behring Sea," for so long the vexata questio, the diplomatic language of Secretary Blaine, the ex-member of Congress characterized as "a long blast, ill-timed and illogical, whether based upon international law or upon treaties existing between England and Russia prior to the purchase of Alaska by the United States" "In brief," said he, "Hon. David Mills"—who, he thought, must be of kin with Mills, of Texas, the great Democratic leader in the House—"had sounded the key note of the fishery question Mills' statesmanship was broad enough and sound enough for the people of the United States, and to his logical conclusions Mr. Blaine and colleagues must come, or step aside, and level-minded arbitrators would so decide."

Our American politician was puzzled over the election protests in Ontario. Protests being filed against more than one-fourth of the entire membership caused him to hesitate as to the beneficial working of the Canadian or Australian ballot system, and inclined him to distrust the system now in vogue in many of the States. The contrast of contests over seats in the National House of Representatives was so great; there, with over two hundred and forty members, an exceptional number of contestants appeared at present session, eighteen seats being contested, of which, thus far, sixteen have been decided by the House itself. Under the United States Constitution, each House is made the judge of the returns of its members. Much the better way, he thinks, prevails in Canada where the decision is left to the Courts, where partizanship does not enter.

Upon the tariff question he waxed warm in denunciation of the McKinley bill; and declared that Blaine's proposed reciprocity with the Latin republics to the south, is the outcome of Cleveland's tariff, or as it is termed, free trade, message to Congress, which, together with the enormous amount of boodle contributed by Vice President Morton, Post Master Gen'l Wanamaker and other rich protectionists, caused the defeat of the democratic candidates in the last Presidential election

Mingling freely among the the people of Ontario, the ex-politician likens them to the citizens of the Southern States in their manners and customs; and says that in their ways and conversation they resemble more the southern people than the people nearer to them on the other side of the great lakes. This similarity, of those more distant people, he attributes to the fact of of their common origin. Maryland, Virginia, the two Carolinas, Florida and Georgia are peopled with the descendants of English and Scotch, with French in Louisiana; into these States very few Germans or Irish have settled. And these States furnished the brainiest and bravest of the Confederate forces. He says, of the effects of that great war, that it has made the people of the U.S. a more homogeneous nation than is apparent in the Dominion. Differences in religious belief will never become a factor in national politics, while the "race question," as it is erroneously called, as the south will eventally and peaceably, under Providence, adjust itself. The southerner and his colored brother will continue to get along together upon better terms and higher humanitarian grounds than it is possible for the northerner, or for the latter to so fully understand, as to legislate upon, by election laws, force bills or by any other congressional schemes.

This ex-member wound up a by panegyric on Prof. Goldwin Smith and says he combines in him all the genius of the scholar and statesman, head and shoulders above Charles Summer's record or any living scholar in America to day.—COM.

The SS. Portia's Escape.

A Huge Iceberg Collapses and the Vessel is Lifted Out of the Sea.

HALIFAX, Aug. 4.—The steamer Portia, Captain Ash, which arrived to-day from St. John's, Nfld., had a very narrow escape from destruction on her way from Pilley's island on the 30th of July. When near Fago Head a huge iceberg was noticed dead ahead. The steamer sailed close alongside of it, and while passing the glittering mass a terrific report was heard, which shook the ship. The monster berg suddenly broke in three pieces, each piece going under water with a roar and crash like thunder. The steamer shot on the bottom of the third piece, which tipped over, holding her for a while clear out of the water. For a time it looked to all on board as though sudden death was inevitable, but in a moment the sea, which had hitherto been as placid as a mill pond, suddenly became a surging mass. This driving sea rushed down upon the Portia and lifted her off the ice into the water. On examining the ship it was found that the stanchions in the saloon had been replaced and bent and the under girders of the dining tables smashed. Captain Ash was at his post on the bridge at the time of the accident. After the report he saw a third of a berg tip over and a portion of it slowly rise from the water. The engines were stopped. Had this order not been promptly executed the steamer would have gone down when lifted from the ice by the seas. The excitement among the passengers was intense. The captain and chief officers shouted to the passengers to keep cool. The terrified passengers grew calmer, and almost immediately after the Portia was in clear water, and out of danger. The bow of the ship was damaged by ice, and a portion of the forward appartment was flooded. The passengers speak in high terms of the judgment and coolness displayed by Captain Ash. This presence of mind during danger is what would naturally be expected from a man who took such a prominent part in the Greeley relief expedition. The passengers presented Captain Ash with an address. Mr. Northcote, the chief officer, was in his berth when the iceberg broke; he informed a reporter to day, that he was startled by lumps of ice coming through the port-hole into his apartments.

Hints for These Days.

Keep cool.

Don't get "in a sweat."

Keep your eye open for mad dogs.

Beware of the cucumber, it's in league with the doctor.

Keep your head cool and your feet—cool, too.

Take the shady side of the street.

Such violent exercise as lawn tennis should not be thought of.

Do not remove your flannels until the weather gets settled.

See that the water commissioners don't catch you watering the street in front of your home.

Wear as few clothes as possible and keep your head laden with wet hay.

Do not drink spirits or ice-cold libations. They are dangerous—when you are hot.

Particularly the ice-cold drinks.

Don't get "hot" at anybody, nor get anyone "hot" at you.

Just keep cool—if you can.

Don't be in a hurry under any circumstances.

Let the wind percolate freely through your whiskers.

Finally, brethren, if you are in a hurry, let some one else do the hurrying.

RIOTING, WITH BLOODSHED

SEVERAL TORONTO POLICEMEN WOUNDED BY FLYING MISSILES.

A Spectator Has His Head Split Open with a Club—A Mob of 3000 Orange Sympathisers Take Possession of the Streets.

TORONTO, Aug. 7.—The Emerald Beneficial Association celebrated the birthday of Daniel O'Connell here yesterday. At night a mob of Orange sympathisers paraded the streets, and assembled in front of Moss Park Rink, where a demonstration was being held and stoned the buildings. The police charged the mob, and used their batons vigorously.

Rioting subsequently occurred in Shuter and Queen-streets and all the police reserves were called out. A spectator named Thomas Wrigley had his skull split open by a policeman's baton and was taken to the Hospital, where he lies in a critical condition. Deputy Chief Stewart, Inspector Ward and Constables Crowe, Cathers and Owens were struck with stones, Owens being badly hurt.

An unknown woman was seriously injured by a flying missile. Many of the rioters were severely punished by the police batons. Order was not restored until nearly midnight.

Additional particulars have been received of the death by drowning at Port Carling of Vivian Platt, Robert-street, one of the young lads who accompanied Rev. Mr. Smith to Muskoka on a camping expedition. It appears that on Tuesday morning Platt, with two younger companions, went boating contrary to the express orders of Mr. Smith. Platt, in a spirit of foolhardiness, seated himself on the gun wale and a sudden jerk of the boat caused him to overbalance himself and fall backward into the stream. His companions threw him both oars and a paddle, but owing to the velocity of the boat and the difficulty in turning it were unable to reach him before he had sunk. The body had not been recovered up to 6 o'clock last evening, although a posse with grappling irons have been searching ever since the accident.

Yesterday was announced the death from diphtheria of the four children of Mr. Andrew Judd of 84 Mitchell-avenue. For some days past the father of the children has been suffering from dysentery. The shock occasioned by the death of his little ones was too much for him to bear, and he died while a hearse was conveying the last two diphtheria victims to the cemetery. His remains will be buried to-day alongside those of his children in St. Michael's cemetery. Judd was in his 45th year and an honorary member of the Army and Navy Veterans and was a solo cornetist in the 78th Highlanders.

THROWN OFF THE TRACK.

A Wreck on the Grand Trunk Near Park Hill The Fireman Killed.

PARK HILL, Aug. 6.—A special through freight in charge of Conductor Thompson from Stratford, running at about 25 miles an hour, was thrown off the track about four miles west of here, killing the fireman named Cheeseboro of St. Thomas, slightly injuring the engineer, also killing a valuable horse belonging to W. R. Croul. The engine and eight cars are a total wreck, besides the track being torn up for quite a piece. Engineer George Harland stuck to his post and escaped miraculously. Two auxiliary trains are clearing away the wreck, which will likely be finished before morning.

A Neat New Swindle.

The Alleged Sharper Taken to Madoc for Trial—His Donations for Luck Did not Save Him From the Officers of the Law—The Little Racket and How It was Worked.

A Madoc official was in the city yesterday looking for a "sharp" named Simon Hatt, a Frenchman from Montreal, who has been duping people in this district on a small scale for several weeks past. He came to Belleville about a week ago and visited several prominent business men and succeeded in getting about a dollar in each case. Calling on a merchant on Monday of last week, he offered to buy a couple sets of harness, for which he gave a cheque payable at the Montreal bank on the following Thursday. He said it was the custom in Montreal when a good cheque was given to give back a dollar or so, "just for good luck," as the sharper put it, but as he was not particular about the price he paid for his goods, the dollar was generally forthcoming. Strange to say the game was successfully worked on some of the best business men in Belleville, and on Wednesday he quietly left the city. The victims did not report the matter to the police, choosing to suffer the loss rather than have their folly known, and no effort was made to arrest the sleek-looking Frenchmen, who was gaining a good livelihood in a small way. It is needless to say that his hotel and other small bills were left unpaid. Madoc apparently offered a flood field for his play, for it was here that he next turned up and succeeded in victimizing nearly everybody he came in contact with. No less than fourteen horses were purchased from unsuspecting farmers in the township, who, according to agreement, sent them to the purchaser who was supposed to be in Madoc. He found the honest farmers only too willing to give the victimizer a "dollar just for luck," and in several cases he got more than that amount. He also as suddenly disappeared from Madoc a few days ago leaving the hotel stables full of horses. It was not long, however, before the cat was out of the bag and the farmers commenced to swarm into the village looking for their horses which they found all right. None of the various bills contracted in the village were settled and a warrant was sworn out for Hatt's arrest and placed in the hands of a constable. Acting on the strength of the information that their man had been seen in the vicinity of Foxboro a couple of officers made a diligent search and soon had him under lock and key. He has been taken to Madoc for his trial.—Belleville Ontario.

Equal Rights.

The topic of the day and that which we all want is not only Equal Rights in a political sense of the word, but in many others. Here are people throwing away their hard earned money, with unprincipled houses who do not as much as thank them for it. Why should they do it? Why not call on W.J. Morrow, where you are received courteously, your money placed to a good advantage and you are placed on a solid basis in future for buying cheap groceries. dw

Good Form in Dress

Social usage imposes certain rules as to dress which are carefully observed by men of good breeding and good sense.

Dress is not the most important object in life, but due observance of the rules of dress adds much to the comfort and refinement of life, and to a considerable extent, marks the difference between gentlemen and those who are not gentlemen.

Good form of dress is of course a matter of fashion, and fashions vary. Should you ever be in doubt as to what is suitable call on us and we will give you safe advice on many controverted points, and on new fashions to attire that usually call for a good deal of consideration and caution. Therefore.—

DON'T go to extremes in your dress. Dress quietly. Overdressed men are always despised as frivolous.

DON'T be slovenly in your dress. Neatness is a duty you owe to society.

DON'T disregard that "good form" in dress which custom has fixed. Conformity to social usage in dress as well as in more essential matters is part of good manners.

DON'T wear a silk hat with a sack coat. It is a social crime.

DON'T above all things order your clothing until you have seen our stock. We show every desirable Fabric, Broadcloths, Cheviots, Doeskins, Tweeds, Fine, Plain and Fancy Worsteds, and as to Patterns—well, we can give you what you want, no matter what it is.

LORD SALISBURY'S SPEECH AT THE MANSION HOUSE.

The Pacific Aspect of Europe Growing Tendency to settle Disputes by Compromise The Irish and Egyptian Problems The New Gas Gun Tested.

LONDON, Aug. 7. At a banquet at the Mansion House last evening Lord Salisbury, in a speech enlarged upon the pacific aspect of Europe during the six years of his government. The powers of Europe, he said, never presented so uninteresting an aspect from the war point of view. The tendency to the settlement of disputes on terms of compromise was spreading fast and in a flowering every power. The African agreements proved the desire of the leading powers to maintain amicable relations.

Referring to Egypt, the Premier said that nothing in the year end of his administration had been more satisfactory than that country's steady progress towards financial equilibrium. The future of the country was a diplomatic matter, of some delicacy. It was owing to English energy that Egypt flourished. The time had not come for Egypt to govern itself. It would depend to a certain degree upon the actions of other nations when Egypt would be fit to be intrusted with its own government.

Regarding home affairs Lord Salisbury claimed that the present government of Ireland had been successful and that the country was more orderly, more contented and more prosperous than ever before. He trusted that he would never again see those in power who were pledged to support a reign of anarchy. (Cheers.)

THE NEW GAS GUN.

A Description of the New French Weapon for Infantry.

LONDON, Aug. 7. At headquarters of the London Scottish Rifles some interesting experiments have been conducted with M Paul Giffard's appliance for the employment of liquified gas as an explosive of, to be more strictly accurate, one should say as a means of propelling projectiles in place of gun powder. M. Paul Giffard's scientific reputation as an inventor of the pneumatic tube and of the Giffard inspirator is largely used in connection with steam power, stands so high that any invention to which his name was attached would be worthy of attentive consideration.

The weapon now produced by him, however, is something more than an ingenious appliance of such discovery, which not only promises to revolutionize the gunmaker's art, but is applicable also to many other purposes as a motive power. Those who are interested in the Giffard gun claim that it is the military weapon of the future. The idea of using liquified carbonic acid gas as a propulsive power is not a new, but M. Giffard is the first who has turned it into practical account.

The gas gun is a model of simplicity, so far as one can judge without examination of the discharging mechanism in which much of the merit of M. Giffard's invention lies. A small cylinder called a cartouche is attached to the barrel of a rifle or smoothbore gun. This cylinder contains liquified gas enough to discharge 25 shots, equal to about fifty bullets of an ordinary service rifle with a velocity to kill at 600 yards. There are no other explosives. The pellet is simply dropped into an aperture of the barrel which is formed on a closed breech, and a small lever and the loading is complete.

When the trigger is pressed a small quantity of liquified gas is at once released and expands in the breech chamber. There is no louder report than the drawing of a champagne cork, makes no smoke and no fouling of the barrel. In all these respects M. Giffard's gas gun seems to fulfil the requirements of an ideal weapon for warfare, but whether in other respects liquified gas has advantages over ordinary explosives for military purposes remains to be proved. The inventor says there would be no difficulty in refilling the cylinders with gas on the battlefield, but it would require more than he in the case that troops in modern warfare would have to be supplied from the main. Another botheration is the number of rounds one is thought to be necessary, and, as bullets added necessarily increased in addition, the ammunition for a gas gun would weigh just as much as ordinary cartridges, weight for weight.

The charge of liquid liberated for each round is regulated by a small screw, and each charge so liberated is contained in a special chamber, from which it is released by the pulling of a trigger. The bullet is dropped separately into an orifice in the breech lock. In the rifle shown the bullets were round, but elongated bullets can be used. When the guns were discharged a mush of vapor was seen issuing from the muzzles. But it instantly faded away, and the bullets flew with strict precision to the targets. Barrels which had been repeatedly discharged in the past two months were shown to have suffered no corrosion. The pressure of the gas and fluid in the above magazines was 500 lbs on the square inch, and this pressure is maintained up to the last drop of fluid. The preparation of the liquified gas involves no mechanical power, but the needful pressure is got entirely by the chemical manipulation of ordinary substances, such as carbonate of soda.
